M. D. XXXIX.

TO THE MOST NOBLE, MOST MYGHTYE, AND MOST redoubted pryncke kynge HENRY the VIII. kynge of Englande and of Fraunce, defensour of the fayth, lorde of Ireland, and in erth supreme heed immedyatly vnder Chryst of the churche of England, his humble seruaunt RYCHARD TAVERNER desireth all Joye, felycitie, and longe lyfe.

NOw hyghly all England is bounde to your incomparable maiestie for the infinite and manifolde benefites receyued at your most gracious handes from tyme to time without ceasing, euē from the begynning of your most noble raigne: truly no mortal tonge is hable with wordes sufficiently to expresse, or with secret thoughtes of hert worthely to contriue: Certes, it far passeth bothe the sklender capacitie of my wyt, and also ỹ rude infancy of my tong to do either thone or thother: yea another Cicero or Demosthenes were not ynough hereunto. Wherfore omittinge or rather leauinge to some other the iust Encomye and commendation of your graces most ample dedes, worthy of eternall memorie, yet this one thing I dare full well affirme, that amonges all your maiesties delerninges vpon the chrysten religion (then which surely nothing can be greater) your highnes neuer did thing more acceptable vnto god, more profitable to ỹ auaūcemēt of true chrystiantie, more displeasaūt to the enemies of the same, & also to your graces enemies then when your maiestie lycenced and wylled the moost sacred Byble conteynyng the vnspotted and lyuely worde of God to be in the Englysh tong set forth to your hyghnes subiectes.

To the setting forth wherof (most gracious & moost redoubted souereigne lorde) lyke as certeyn men haue neither vndiligētly nor yet vnlearnedly trauelled: So agayn it cannot be denied, but ỹ some faultes haue escaped their hades. Neither speke I this to depraue or maligne their industrie & paynes take in this behalf: no rather I think them worthy of no litle praise & thankes for the same, considering what great vtilitie & profit hath redounded to your graces hole realme by the publysshyng and setting forth therof, although it were not fynysshed to the ful absolucion and perfection of the same. For assuredly it is a worke of so great difficultie. I meane so absolutely to translate the hole bible that it be faultlelle, that I feare it can scarce be doone of one or two persons, but rather requyreth bothe a deper conferrynge of many lerned wittes togyther, and also a iuster tyme and longer leysure,

Wherfore the premisses wel cōsidered, for almoch as ỹ printers herof were very desirous to haue this most sacred volume of the bible come forth as faultlelle & emendatly, as the shortnes of time for the recognising of ỹ same wold require, they desired me your most hūble seruāt for default of a better lerned, diligētly to ouerloke & perule the hole copy: and in case I shold fynd any notable default ỹ neded correctiō, to amēd the same, according to ỹ true exēplars Whiche thynge accordyng to my talent I haue gladly done.

These therfore my simple trauaylyngs & labours, to who might I better dedicate, thē vnto your most excellēt & noble maiestie, ỹ only author & grounde nexte God of this so highe a benefite vnto youre graces people, I meane that the holy scripture is communicate vnto the same.

But now though many faultes peraūce be yet left behind vncastigat, either for lacke of lerning sufficiēt to so great an enterprise, for default of leasure. I trust your maiestie & all other ỹ shal rede the same, will pardon me, consyderynge (as I haue alredy declared) how harde & difficult a thinge it is, so to set forth this worke, as shal be in al pointes faultles & without reprehension.

And thus I cōmit your most gracious & excellēt maiestie to ỹ tuicio of ỹ highest. to whose be al honour, glory, & prayse, worlde without ende. AMEN.

Christ vnto the people. Johñ. v.

Serche the scriptures: for they are they that testifye of me.

Paul to Timothy. ii. Tim. iii.

All scripture gyuen by inspiracion of God is profitable to teache, to improue, to amende and to instruct in ryghtousnesse, that the mā of God maye be perfecte and prepared to al good workes.

The same to the Rom. xv.

What thynges soeuer are wrytten, are wrytten for our lernynge; that we thorowe patience and comfort of y scriptures, might haue hope.

Salomon Prou. xxx.

All the worde of God, is pure and cleane it is a shyld vnto them that put their trust in it. Put nothinge vnto his wordes, lest he reproue the, and thou be found a lyar.

Moses to the people. Deu. xii.

Ye shall not doo euery man what semeth hym good in his owne eyes: But what soeuer I commaunde you, that take hydeye doo, and put nought therunto, neither take ought therefrom.

The Lord vnto Josua. Jos. i.

Let not the boke of this lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But recorde therin daye and nyghte, that thou mayste be circumspecte to doo accordynge to all that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then shalte thou haue vnderstandynge. Turne therefrom neyther to the ryght hande, ne to the lefte: that thou mayst haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exo. xiii.

And thou shalte shewe thy sonne at that tyme, sayinge: This is done because of that whiche the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a signe vnto the vpon thy lefte hande. and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouthe. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the oute of Egypte.

Moses Deut. xxxi.

Se that thou rede this lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather the people together: bothemen, women and children, and the straūgers that are in the cities: that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde youre God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe.

God.

Lyst the holy Writinges of the Bible teach vs that there is one God, almyghtye, that hath neither begynnynge ne endynge: which of his owne goodnes dyd create all thynges: of whome all thinges procede, & without whom is nothyng: which is ryghtous and mercyfull, and which worketh al thynges in all after his wyl: of whom it may not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Creacion of man.

Then that this very God did create Adam the first man after his owne Image and lykenes, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym Lorde of all creatures in erth. Which Adam by the enuy of the deuill, disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker, did first sinne, and brought sin into this worlde, such and so greate, that we which be sprynge of him after the flesshe, are subdued vnto sinne, deathe, and damnacion, broughte vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuyll.

Christ promysed.

And further, y Christ Jesus his son Was promised of God the father, to be a sauoure to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche shulde delyuer them frome their synnes and tyrannye of the deuyll, wherunto they were all subiect by Adam.

Lawe.

And that in the meane seaso Whyle the fathers loked for saluacion and delyueraunce promysed, because mans nature is such, that he not onely can not, but also wyl not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specyally such a synner as hath nede of the sauinge health promysed, the lawe was giuen throughe whiche men myghte knowe sinne, and that they are sinners when they se they do none of the thinges that the law commaundeth, with so glad and wyllynge a minde as God requireth: but rather agaynste their wyl ies, without affection, and as though they were constrayned with the feare of that hell which the lawe threatneth sayinge: Cursed be he that mayntayneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuen to thintente that synne and the malyce of mens hert beinge therby the better knowen, men shuld the more feruently thyrst the commynge of Christe, whiche shulde redeme them from their synnes.

Christe the saueour cōmeth.

Last of all: We are taughte, that that Christe Whiche Was promysed and shadowed in the olde testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym selfe, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse florysshed. And that he was sēt not for any mans good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintente he wolde make good his promise and shewe the aboundant riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed.

The lambe the sacrifice.

In the newe We testament therfore it is moste euidently declared, that Jesus Christ the true lambe and hooste, is come to reconcyle vs to the father, payinge on the crosse the punyshmente due to oure synnes: and to delyuer vs from the bondage of the deuyll (vnto whom we serued through sinne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, sith he hath gyuē vs the true pear

Fayth. and tranquilitie of conſcience,that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: which feare is put away by the fayth ,that the father giueth,vs drawyng vs vnto his ſonne.For that faith is the gyft of God wherby we beleue ỹ Chriſte is come in to this worlde to ſaue ſinners:which is of ſo greate pith that they whiche haue it,deſyre to perfourme al the dutyes of loue to al men, after the exrample of Chryſt.For fayth̄e ones receyued,God gyueth his holye ghoſt, wherwith he tokeneth and marcketh all that beleue: which is the pledge and earneſt that we ſhall ſurelye poſſeſſe euerlaſtyng lyfe,and that gyueth witnes vnto oure ſpirite,and grafteth this faith in vs,that we be the ſonnes of God

The holye ghoſt.

Loue. pourynge therwith the loue in to oure hertes which Paul deſcribeth and ſetteth out to the Corinthians. By that faith and confydence in Chriſte whiche by loue is myghty in operacion,and that ſheweth it ſelfe thorow the workes

Iuſtyce. of loue ſterynge men therto,by that(I ſay)we are iuſtyfyed: that is, by that fayth, Chryſtes father (whiche is become oures alſo thorowe that Chriſt our brother)counteth vs for ryghtous & for his ſonnes:imputing not our ſinnes vnto vs thorowe his grace.

To conclude,he came that we being cleanſed from our ſynnes,& ſanctifyed vnto God the father: that is,halowed vnto the vſe of the father to exercyſe

Workes. good workes forſaking the workes of the fleſhly ſhuld freely ſerue him in righteouſnes and holyneſſe al our life long thorow good workes which God hath ordeyned that we ſhuld walke in them declaring our ſelues therby to be ſurely called vnto this grace: which workes whoſoeuer hath not,declareth ỹ he hath not fayth in Chryſt.

The laſt iudgement. ❧This is that Chryſt Jeſus Whiche after he hath kylled the man of ſynne with the breath of his mouth,ſhal ſyt in his maieſty and iudge al men,geuing vnto euery one the workes of his body,accordinge to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.And that ſhal ſay vnto them that ſhal be on his right hande.Come ye bleſſed children of my father, inherete ye the kyngdome prepared for you from the begynning of the world:And vnto the that ſhall be on his lefte hande.Depart from me ye curſſed,into euerlaſtynge fyre: which is prepared for the deuyll and his aungels.Then ſhall the ende come and he ſhall delyuer vp the kyngdome to God the father.

Lyke euerlaſtynge. ❧To thintent We ſhulde knowe this/by the goodnes of God worckynge by his holy ſpirite,are the holy writinges of the Byble gyuen vs: That we ſhulde knowe(I ſaye)and beleue that there is one God,and Jeſus Chriſte whome he hath ſent: and that in beleuyng we ſhuld haue euerlaſting lyfe thorow his name.

❧An other foundacion then this can no man lay.And S. Paul deſyreth that he be holde a curſſed which preacheth any other faith & ſalua cion,then only by Jeſus Chriſt: though it were an angel of heuen.For of him,and thorow him,& for him,are al thinges:to whom,with the father and the holy ghoſte,be honour and glory for euer more. AMEN.

The creacyon of the worlde.

By the worde all thynges be create of God, of mans creation, rule and sustenaunce.

CAPITVLO. I.

IN the begynnynge * created God heuen & erth. The erth was voyde and empye/ and darknes was vpon the depe, and the spirite of God was borne vpo the waters. And God sayd: let there be lyght: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & diuyded the lyght from the darknesse/ & called the lyght the day/ and the darknesse the nyght: and the euenynge & mornynge was made one daye.

God also sayd: let there be a fyrmament betwene the waters/ & let it diuyde the waters a sonder. Then God made the fyrmament/ and parted the waters whiche were vnder the fyrmament, from the waters aboue the fyrmament: And so it was doon. And god called the fyrmament Heauen: And the euenynge and mornyng was made the seconde daye.

And God sayd: * the waters vnder heauen be gathered togyther in one place, that the dry lande maye appere: And so it was doon. And God called the dry lande the erthe/ and the gatherynges togyther of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth greene gralle and that bereth seed/ and frutefull trees beryng frute euery one in his kynde/ haupnge theyr seed in them selues vpon the erth: And it was doon. And the erth brought forth herbe & gralle that bare seed euery one in his kynde/ and trees beryng frute/ and haupng theyr seed in them selues/ euery one in his kynde: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenyng and mornynge was made the thyrde daye.

Than sayd God: * be there lyghtes in the fyrmamente of heauen/ to diuyde daye fro me nyght that they maye be for sygnes/ seasons/ dayes/ and yeares, And * let them be lyghtes in the fyrmament of heauen, to shyne vpon the erthe: And so it was doon. And God made * two greate lyghtes: A greater lyghte to rule the daye/ & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght: and made sterres also: And God set them in the fyrmament of heauen to shine vpon the erth/ and rule the daye and the nyght: and to diuyde the lyghte from darknesse: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenynge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayd: * let the waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue life, and foules for to flee ouer the erthe vnder the fyrmament of heauen. And God created greate whales and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue which the waters brought forth in their kindes/ & all maner of fethered foules in theyr kyndes: And God sawe that it was good: and blessed them sayenge: Encrease and multyplye & fyll the waters of the sees: and let the foules multyplye vpon the erthe. And the euenynge and mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erthe bringe forthe lyuynge creatures in theyr kyndes: catell and wormes & beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes/ and so it was. And God made the beastes of the erthe in theyr kyndes/ and catell in theyr kyndes/ and all maner wormes of the erthe in their kyndes/ and god sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let vs make man to our symylytude and after our lykenesse: and let hym haue rule ouer the fyth of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre/ and ouer catell and ouer all the erthe/ and ouer all wormes that creepe on the erthe. And God created man after his lykenesse/ after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayd: Growe and multyplye, and fyll the erthe/ and subdue it/ and haue dominyon ouer the fyshes of the see/ and foules of the ayre/ and ouer al the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue gyuen you all herbes that beare seed vpon the erthe/ and all maner trees that haue frute in them & beare seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth/ and vnto all foules of the ayre/ & vnto all that moue on the erthe, and wherin is lyfe/ that they maye haue all maner herbes & gralle for to eate/ and so it was done. And * God beholde all that he had made/ and lo, they were exceedynge good: and the euenynge and mornynge was made the fyft daye.

CAPI. II.

THus was heuen and erth fynyshed with all their * furnyture/ and in the seuenth daye God ended his worke whiche he had made/ and rested in the seuenth daye from all his workes that he made. And blessed the seuenth day/ and * sanctified it/ for in it he rested from all his workes whiche he had created and made.

* The furniture of heuen is the sterres & planetes. a.

* Sanctifieng i this place is as moche to saye, as to dedicate & ordeyne a thig to his owne vse as Exo. xxii. a and. xx. b.

These are the generacions of heuen and erth when they were created, in the tyme when the Lorde God created heuen and erth and all the shrubbes of the felde before they grewe in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they sprange/ for the Lorde God had yet sente no rayne vpon the erth, neither was there yet any man to tylle the erth. But there arose a myste out of the grounde/ and watered all the lande. Then the Lorde God * shope man/ of the moulde of the erthe/ and breathed in to his face the breth of lyfe. So * man was made a lyuynge soule.

* Sapi. x. a. Tobi. viii. b. Eccle. xxxiii. b * i. Cor. xv. f.

The lorde God also planted a garden of pleasure from the begynning/ and there he set man whom he had formed. And the Lorde god made to spryng forth of the erth, al maner trees beautifull to the sight, and pleasaut to eate/ and the * tree of lyfe in the myddes of the garden: and also the tre of knowlege of good and euyll.

This garden is called Paradyse.

* Prou. iii. c. Apocal. ii. b.

Eden signifieth pleasures

And there sprange a ryuer out of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it selfe/ and grewe in to foure principall waters. The name of the one is ✱ Physon/ he it is that compasseth all the lande of Heuyla / where golde groweth. And the golde of that countrey is precious/ there is founde Bdellion/ & a stone called Onix. The name of the secõde ryuer is Gihon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde. And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Tigris/ whiche renneth on the East syde of the Assyrians. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

And the Lorde God toke Adam, and put hym in the garden of pleasure, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Of all the trees of the garden eate: But of the tree of knowlege of good and bad eate thou not: For the same day thou eatest ofit, thou shalte dye the dethe.

And the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that man be a lone/ I wyll make hym an helpe to beare hym company. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the erth all maner beestes of the felde/ and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adam to se what he wolde call them. And as Adam called all maner lyuynge beestes, so are theyr names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell / and vnto the foules of the ayre/ & vnto all maner beestes of the felde. But there was no help founde vnto Adam to beare hym company.

Then the Lorde God cast a slomber on Adam/ and he slepte. And he toke out one of his ribbes/ and in stede therof, he filled vp the place with flesshe. And the Lorde God made of the ribbe which he toke out of Adam ✱ a woman and brought her vnto Adam. Then sayd Adam: This is nowe a bone of my bones / and flesh of my flesshe. This shal be called woman: because she was take of man. ✱ For this cause shall mã leue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe/ and they shall be one flesshe. And they were eyther of them naked / both Adam and his wyfe, and were not ashamed.

¶ The serpent disceyueth the woman. The serpent is cursed. Christ our sauioure is prompted. Adam is cast out of Paradyse.

CAPI. III.

A Lyt the serpent was more subtyle then all the beestes of the erth, whiche the Lorde God had made: & sayd vnto the womã: why? hath God cõmaunded you not to eate of all maner trees in the garden? The woman sayd vnto the serpent/ of the frupte of the trees in the garden we eate / but of the frupte of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden (sayd God) se ye eate not/ & se that ye touche it not/ lest ye dye. Then sayd ✱ the serpent vnto the woman: not so, ye shal not dye: for God doth knowe that when so euer ye wolde eate of it, your eyes sholde be opened/ and ye sholde be as goddes, and knowe both the good and euyll. And the ✱ woman sawe that it was a good tree to eate of, and fayre vnto the eyes/ and a pleasaute tree for to gyue vnderstandyng. And toke of the frupte of it & ate, and gaue vnto her husbande also/ & he ate. And the eyes of both them were opened/ that they vnderstode they were naked. Then they sowed fygge leues together, and made them apurns.

✱ 11. Cor. xi. a to haue their eyes open, is to know and vnderstande. ✱ Ecclesiast. b

And they herde the voyce of the Lorde God as he walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd hym selfe and his wyfe also from the ‡ face of the Lorde God/ amonge the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam/ and sayd vnto hym: where arte thou? And he answered: Thy voyce I herde in the garden / but I was afrayde / bycause I was naked, and therfore hydde my selfe. And he sayd: who tolde the that thou were naked? hast thou eaten of the tree, of whiche I bad the that thou sholdest not eate? And Adam answered: The woman whiche thou gauest me a compagnyon, gaue me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman: wherfore dydest thou so? The woman answered: The serpent disceyued me and I ate.

‡ Christ his presence.

And the Lorde God sayd vnto the serpent: bycause thou hast doone this, cursed be thou aboue all cattell and beastes of the erthe: vpon thy belye shalte thou go: and erthe shalte thou eate all dayes of thy lyfe. I wyll put enmyttie betwene the and the woman / and betwene thy seed and her ‡ seed. And that seed shall treade the on the head / and thou shalte treade it on the hele.

‡ Where as this must was of Christ. Holde him the seed of the woman and not of Cain. Cain despayreth.

And vnto the woman he sayd: I wyll encrease thy sorowes / and make the ofte with childe/ and with payne shalte thou be deliuered. And thou shalte be vnder the power of thy husbande./ and he shall rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayd: Bycause thou hast obeyed the voyce of thy wyfe / and eaten of the tree of which I commaunded the not to eate: Cursed be the erth in thy worke. In sorowe shalte thou eate therof all dayes of thy lyfe: And it shal beare thornes and thystels vnto the. And thou shalte eate the herbes of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou returne vnto the erthe whence thou were taken: for ✱ erth thou art/ and vnto erth shalte thou returne.

And Adam called his wyfe Eue / bycause she was the mother of all that lyueth. And the Lorde God made Adam and his wyfe garmentes of skynnes/ which he put on them. And the Lorde god sayd: Lo, Adam is become as one of vs in knowlege of good and euyll. But now lest he stretche forth his hande, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and eate and lyue euer. Then the Lorde God cast hym out of the garden of pleasure/ to tylle the erth whẽce he was taken. And he cast Adam out/ and dyd sette at the entrynge of the garden of pleasure Cherubin with a sperp swerde mouyng in and out, to kepe the waye to the tree of lyfe.

¶ Cayn kylleth his righteous brother Abell. Cayn despayreth and is cursed. The generacion of Enoch/ Mathusael/ Tubail/ Lamech/ Seth and Enos.

CAPI. IIII.

ADam laye with Eue his wyfe, whiche conceyued and bare Cayn, and sayd: I haue obteyned a man of the Lorde. And she proceded forth/ and bare his brother Abel: And Abel became a shepeherde, and Cayn a plowman.

And it fortuned in processe of time, that Cayn brought of the frute of the erth an offeryng vnto the Lorde. Abel brought also of the fyrst borne of his shepe, and of the fatte of them. And the Lorde loked vnto Abel and his offeryng, but vnto Cayn and his offeryng loked he not. And Cayn was wroth exceedingly, and lowred. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: why art angry, and why lowrest thou? Wotest thou not yf thou doest well thou shalt receyue it? But yf thou doest euyll, forthwith thy synne lyeth open in the dooze. Notwithstandynge let it be subdued vnto the, and rule thou it. And Cayn talked with Abel his brother.

And as sone as they were in the feldes, Cayn fell vpon ✱ Abel his brother, and slewe hym. And the Lorde sayd vnto Cayn: Where is Abel thy brother? And he sayd: I can not tell, am I my brothers keper? and he sayd: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloode cryed vnto me out of the erthe. And now cursed be thou vpon the erth, which opened her mouth to receyue thy brothers bloode of thyne hande. For when thou tyllest the grounde, she shall hensforth not gyue her power vnto the. A vacabunde and a ✱ rennagate shalte thou be vpon the erth.

And Cayn sayd vnto the lorde: My synne is greater then that it may be forgyuen. Beholde thou castest me out this daye from the erth, and from thy syght must I hyde my selfe/ and I must be wandrynge and a vacabunde vpon the erthe: Wherouer who soeuer fyndeth me, wyll kyll me. And the Lorde sayd vnto hym: Not so/ but who so euer slayeth Cayn shall be punyshed seuen folde. And the Lorde put a marke vpon Cayn that no man fownde hym shold kyll hym. And Cayn went out from the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande Nod, on the east syde of Eden.

And Cayn laye with his wyfe, whiche conceyued and bare Henoch. And buylded a cite, and called the name of it after the name of his sonne, Henoch. And Henoch begate Irad. And Irad begate Mathuael. And Mathuael begate Mathusael. And Mathusael begate Lamech. And Lamech toke hym two wyues: the one called Ada, and the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jabell, of whome came they that dwelte in tentes, and had cattell. And his brothers name was Jubell / of hym came all that exercyse them selues on the harpe and on the orgons. And Zilla also bare Tubalcayn a worker in metall, and father of all that graue in brasse and yron. And Tubalcayns sister was called Noema.

Then sayd Lamech vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech & herke vnto my wordes, for I haue slayn a man and wounded my selfe, and haue slayne a yong man, and got my self stryppes/ for Cayn shall be aucged seuen folde, but Lamech seuenty tymes seuen folde. Adam also laye with his wyfe yet agayne, and she bare a sonne & called his name Seth. For God (sayd she) hath gyuen me an other sonne for Abel whom Cayn slewe. And Seth begate a son, and called his name Enos. And in that tyme began men to ◦ call on the name of the Lorde.

◦ To call vpo the name of ✱ lorde, is to requyre al thynges of hym & to trust in hym, geuing hym the honour & worshyp that belõgeth to hym as in. ge. xxi. b

¶ The genealogye of Adam vnto Noe.

CAPI. V.

THis is the boke of the genelacyon of Adam. In the day when god created man and made hym after the symilitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed them/ and called theyr names man, in the day when they were created. And when Adam was an hundred and thyrty yere old, he begat a sonne after his symilitude: and called his name ✱ Seth. And the days of Adam after he begat Seth, were eight hundred yere/ and begate sonnes and doughters. And all the dayes of Adam whiche he lyued, were. ix. hundred and thyrty yeres, and then he dyed.

Seth was an hundred and. v. yeres olde and begate Enos. And after he had begot Enos he lyued. viij. C. and. viij. yeres, and begate sonnes and doughters. And al the days of Seth were ix. hundred and xij. yeres, and dyed. And Enos was. iiij. score and. x. yere old and begat Kenan And Enos after he begate Kenan, lyued. viij. hundred and. xv. yeres, and begate sonnes and doughters: and all the dayes of Enos were. ix hundred and. v. yeres, and then he dyed. And Kenan lyued. lxx. yeres & begat Mahalaliel. And Kenan after he had begot Mahalaliel lyued. viij. hundred & xl. yeres, and begat sonnes & doughters: and all the dayes of Kenan were. ix. hundred & x. yeres, and then he dyed And Mahalaliel lyued. lxv. yeres, & begat Jared. And Mahalaliel after he had begot Jared lyued. viij. C. and. xxx yeres, and begate sonnes & doughters: and all the dayes of Mahalaliel were. viij. hundred. iiij. score and. xv. yeres, and than he dyed.

And Jared lyued an hundred and. lxij. yeres, and begat Henoch: & Jared lyued after he begat Henoch. viij. hundred yeres, & begat sonnes and doughters. And al the days of Jared were ix. hundred & lxij. yeres, and then he dyed. And Henoch lyued. lxv. yeres & begate Mathusala. And ✱ Henoch walked with God & lyued after he had begot Mathusala. iij. hundred yeres, and begat sonnes and doughters: And all the dayes of Henoch were. iij. hundred & lxv. yeres/ and Henoch lyued a godly lyfe, and was no more seene, for God toke hym awaye.

And Mathusala lyued an hundred & lxxvij. yeres, & begat Lamech: And Mathusala after he had begot Lamech, lyued. vij. hundred and lxxxij. yeres, and begat sonnes and doughters. And all the dayes of Mathusala were. ix. hundred. lxix. yeres, and then he dyed.

And Lamech lyued an. C. lxxxv. yeres & begat a son, and called hym Noe, saying. This same shall comfort vs in our workes & sorowe of our handes which we haue about the erth that the Lorde hath cursed. And Lamech lyued after he had begot Noe. v. C. lxxxv. yeres, and begate sonnes and doughters. And all the dayes of Lamech were. vij. hundred. lxxvij. yeres, & then he dyed. And when Noe was fyue hundred yeres olde, he begate Sem, Cham, and Japheth.

¶ The cause of the flood. The malyce of mans hert. The preparynge of the ark.

CAPI. VI.

A The sonnes of God are the issues of Seth which had instruct and nourysshed them in the feare of God. The sonnes of men are the sones of Cayn instruct of hym to al wickednesse.

*1. Pet. iij. d.

AND it came to passe when men began to multeply vpon the erth, and had begot them doughters / the ꝑ sonnes of God sawe the doughters of men that they were fayre/and toke vnto them wyues, whiche they best lyked among them all. And the Lorde sayd: My spirite shall not alwaye stryue with man, for he is flesh. Neuertheles I wyll geue them yet * space an hundred and.xx. yeres.

*Gen. viii. d. ‡1. Esd. v. c.

There were graunters in the worlde in those dayes. For after that the chyldren of God had lyen with the doughters of men, and had begotten them chyldren/ the same chyldren were the myghtyest of the worlde / and men of renowme. And when the Lorde sawe that the mayce of man was encreased vpon the erth / and that all the ymagynacyon and thoughtes of his * herte was onely cuyll continually / he * repented that he had made man vpon the erthe, and sorowed in his herte. And sayd: I wyll destroye mankynde whiche I haue made out of the erthe: bothe man, beest, wormes and foule of the ayre / for it repenteth me that I made them. But Noe found grace in the syght of the Lorde.

*Eccl. xliiij. c

* These are the generacions of Noe. Noe was a ryghtous man and perfyte in his tyme/ and walked with God. And Noe begate thre sonnes: Sem, Cham, ꝑ Japheth. And the erth was corrupt in the syght of God, and was full of myschefe. And god loked vpon the erth/ and lo it was corrupte: for all ꝑ flesshe had corrupt his waye vpon the erth.

All flesshe, that is all mē ꝑ lyue flesshly as in the.viii. of the Roma.

C The ende of all flesh, that is, the ende of al men is come before me.

Then sayd God to Noe: ○ the ende of all flesshe is come before me, for the erth is full of theyr myschefe. And lo, I wyll destroye them with the erth. Make the an arcke of pyne tree, and make chambres in the arcke/and pytche it within and without with pytche. And of this facyon shalte thou make it.

The length of the arke shall be thre hundred cubytes, and the breedth of it. l. cubytes/and the heyth of it. xxx. cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make about in the arcke/ and within a cubyte compasse shalte thou fynysshe it. And the dooze of the arcke shalt thou set in the syde of it: and thou shalt make it with thre lofte, one aboue an other. For beholde, I wyll bryng in a floode of water vpon the erth to destroy all flesshe vnder heuen, wherin breth of lyfe is: and all that is in the erth shall perysshe. But I wyll make my leagge with the, that both thou shalt come in to the arcke and thy sonnes / thy wyfe and thy sonnes wyues with the.

And of all that lyueth what so euer flesshe it be / shalte thou bryng in to the arcke of euery thynge a payre, to kepe them alyue with the. And male and female it shall they be/ of byrdes in theyr kynde, ꝑ of beestes in theyr kynde/ and of all maner of wormes of ꝑ erth in their kynd: a payre of euery thynge shall come vnto the to kepe them alyue. And take vnto the of all maner of meate that may be eaten, and lape it vp in store by the, that it maye be meate both for the and for them: And Noe dyd accordynge to all that god commaunded hym.

¶ The entryng of Noe and suche as were with him in to the arcke. The ryssynge of the floode wherwith all thynges dyd perysshe.

CAPI. VII.

AND the Lorde sayd vnto Noe: Go in to the arcke both thou and all thy housholde. For the haue I sene ryghtous before me in this generacion. Of all clene beestes take vnto the. vij. of euery kynde/the male and female/and of vncleane beest ꝑ payre/ the male and his female: lykewyse of the byrdes of the ayre. vij. of euery kynde/ male ꝑ female to saue seed vpon all the erth. For seuen dayes hence wyll I sende rayne vpon the erth. xl. dayes ꝑ. xl. nyghtes/and wyll destroy all maner of thinges that I haue made from the erth.

A

And Noe dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: and Noe was syxe hundred yere olde when the * floode of water came vpon the erth: and Noe went and his sonnes, and his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues with hym in to the arke for the waters of the floode. And of clene beestes/ and of the beestes that were vncleane/and of byrdes and of all that moueth vpon the erthe came in by couples of euery kynde vnto Noe in to the arche, a male and a female as God commaunded Noe. And the seuenth daye the waters of the floode came vpon the erth.

The windowes of heuē opened that is, the waters about the erth descended and moysted the floore.

And the selfe same daye went Noe, Sem, Cham and Japheth Noes sonnes, and Noes wyfe and the thre wyues of his sonnes with them in to the arche: bothe they and all maner of beestes in theyr kynde/ and all maner of catell in theyr kynde/ and all maner of wormes that moue vpon the erth in theyr kynde / and all maner of byrdes in theyr kynde/and all maner of foules what so euer had feders. And they came vnto Noe in to the arche by couples / of all flesh that had breth of lyfe in it. And they that came male and female of euery flesh accordyng as God commaunded hym: and the Lorde shut the doze vpon hym. And the * floode came. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes vpon the erth, ꝑ the water increased ꝑ bare vp the arcke/ ꝑ it was lyfte vp ouer the erth. And the water preuayled and increased exceedingly vpon the erth: ꝑ the arcke was borne vpon the toppe of the waters. And the waters preuayled aboue measure vpon the erth / so that all the hye hylles whiche are vnder all the partes of heuen were couered. xv. cubytes hye preuayled the waters / so that the hylles were couered.

And after the ende of. xl. dayes Noe opened the wyndow of the arcke which he had made/ and sent forth a rauen, which went out, ꝑ euer gopnge and compnge agayne, tyll the waters were dryed vp vpon the earthe.

He sent forth also a doue from hym, to wyt whether the waters were fallen from the erth. And whan the doue coulde fynde no restynge place for her fote, she returned to hym agayne vnto the arcke, for the waters were vpon all the earth. And he put out his hande, and toke her, and pulled her to hym into the arcke.

And he abode yet. vij. dayes moze, and sent out the doue agayne out of the arcke, and the doue came to hym agayn about euentyde, and beholde / there was in her mouth a lefe of an olyue tree, whyche he had plucked: wherby Noe perceaued that the waters were abated vpon the earthe. And he tarryed yet. vij. other dayes, and sente forth the doue, whiche from thence forth came no moze agayne to hym.

And it came to passe, the syxte hundred and one yere, and the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth, that the waters were dryed vp vpon the erth. And Noe tooke of, the hatches of the arcke, and loked: and beholde, the face of the earth was drye. So by the. xxvij. daye of the second moneth the earth was drye.

As soone as Noe was awaked frome his wyne, and wist what his yongest sonne hadde done vnto hym, he sayde: ❡ Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of al seruantes be he to his brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, & Canaan be his seruant. God increase Japheth that he maye dwell in the tentes of Sem. And Canaan be their seruant.

And Noe lyued after the floud thre hundred and fyfty yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were .ix. hundred & fyfty yere, & than he dyed.

¶ The genealogye of Japheth/ Sem and Cham.

CAPI. X.

✱1. Paral. 1.a

THese be the generations of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Cham, and Japheth, whyche begate them chyldren after the floude.

The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomer. Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubali, Meschech and Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomer were: Ascenas Riphat and Togarma. And the sonnes of Iauan were: Elysa, Tharsis, Cithim and Dodanim. Of these came the Iles of the gentyls in their contreys, euery man in his spech, kynred and nacyon.

The sonnes of Cham were: Chus, Misraim, Phut and Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Heuyla, Sabta, Rayma & Sabtecha. And the sonnes of Rayma were Sheba and Dedan. ✱Chus also begat Nemrod whiche began to be myghty in the earth. He was a myghtye hunter in the syghte of the Lorde. Wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghty hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnynge of his kyngdome was ✱ Babel, Erech, Achad and Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded Ninyue, and the stretes of the cyte, & Calah, and Resen betwene ✱ Ninyue & Calah. That is a great cyte. And Mizrim begate Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtuhim, Pathrusim and Casluhim: from whence came the Philystins, and the Caphthorynes.

Canaan also begat Sidon his eldest sonne & Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Gergosi, Hym, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, Zemari and Hamathi. And afterwarde sprange the kynreds of the Cananytes. And the coastes of the Cananytes were frō Sydon tyll thou come to Gerara and to Asa, and tyll thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, Zeboim, euē vnto Lasa. These were the chyldren of Cham in their kynredes, tonges, landes and nations.

And Sem the father of al the chyldren of Eber, and the eldest brother of Japheth begate chyldren also. And his sonnes were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. And the chyldren of Aram were: Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas. And ✱ Arphachsad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. And Eber begat two sonnes. The name of the one was Peleg, for in his tyme the earthe was deuyded. And the name of his brother was Jaketan.

✱1. Paral. 1

Jaketan begate Almodad, Saleph, Hyzarmoneth, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Dikela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Heuila and Jobab. All these are the sonnes of Jaketan. And the dwellynge of them was from Mesa vntyl thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lande. These are the sonnes of Sem in their kynredes, languages, contreyes and nacyons. These are the kynredes of the sonnes of Noe, in their generations and nacyons. And of these came ❡ people that were in the worlde after the floude.

CAPI. XI.

AND al ❡ the worlde was of one tongue, and one language. And as they came frome the east, they founde a playne in the lande of Synear, and there they dwelled. And they sayde one to another: come on, let vs make brycke and burne it with hre. So brycke was their stone, and slyme was their morter. And they sayd: Come on, let vs buyld vs a cyte and a towre, that the toppe maye reache vnto heuē. And let vs make vs a name afore we be scatered abrode ouer all the earth. And the Lorde came ❡ downe to se the cyte & the towre which the chyldren of Adam hadde buylded. And the Lorde sayde: See, the people is one, and haue one tongue amonge thē all. And this haue they begon to do, and will not leaue frome all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, and myngle their tonge euen there, that one vnderstonde not what an other sayeth. Thus the Lorde scattered them from thence vpon all the earth. And they lefte of to buylde the cyte. Wherfore the name of it is called Babel, because that the Lorde there confounded the tongue of all the Worlde. And because that the Lorde frome thence scatered therm abrode vppon all the earthe.

After this there came a derth in the lande. And Abram went downe into Egypte, to iourne there, for the derth was sore in the lād. And when he was come nye for to entre into Egypte, he sayd vnto Sarai his wyfe. I know that thou arte a fayre woman to loke vppon. It will come to passe therfore when the Egyptians se the, that they will saye: she is his wyfe. And so shall they slee me, and saue the. Saye ✱ I praye the therfore that thou art my syster, that I may fare the better by reason of the, and that my soule may lyue for thy sake.

As soone as he came into Egypte, the Egyptians sawe the woman that she was very fayre. And Pharaos lordes sawe her also, and prayed her vnto Pharao: So that she was taken into Pharaos house, whyche entreated Abram well for her sake, so that he had theye oxen and ye asses, men seruauntes, mayde seruauntes, she asses and camels.

But God plaged Pharao, & his house with great plages, because of Sarai Abrams wyfe. Then Pharao called Abram and sayde: Why hast thou thus dealt with me? Wherfore tolldest thou me not that she was thy wyfe? Why sayedest thou that she was thy syster, and causedest me to take her to my wyfe? But now lo, there is thy wyfe, take her and get the hense. But my bond wyl I make with Isaac, which Sara shall bere vn to the cuen this tyme twelue moneth.

And god lefte of talking with hym, & departed vp from Abraham. And Abraham toke Ismael his son, & all the seruauntes borne in his house and al that was bought with money, as many as were men chyldren among the men of Abrahams house, and circumcised the foreskynne of their flesshe, euen that selfe same daye, as God had sayd vnto hym. Abraham was foure score and. xix. yere old, when he cut of the foreskynne of his flesshe. And Ismael his sonne was. xiij. yere olde when the foreskynne of his flesh was circumcised. The selfe same day was Abraham circumcised and Ismael his sonne. And all the men in his house, whether they were borne in his house or boughte with money (thoughe they were straungers) were circumcised with hym.

¶ There appered three men vnto Abraham. Isaac is promysed to hym agayne, at whiche Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomytes is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the Lorde appered vnto hym in the ouergroue of Mamre as he sate in his tent dore in the heate of the day. And he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and lo, three men stode not farre from hym. And when he sawe them, he ran to mete them from the tent dore, and fell to the ground & sayd: Lorde yf I haue found fauour in thy sight: passe not by thy seruaūt. Let a lytle water be fet and washe your fete, and rest your selues vnder the tree: And I wyll fet a ✱ morsell of ○ bread to comfort your hertes withall. And then go your wayes / for euen therfore are ye come to your seruaunt. And they answered: do as thou hast sayd. And Abraham went apace in to his tent vnto Sara and sayd: Make redy aroonce three pecks of fyne mele/ knede it & make cakes. And Abraham ran vnto his beestes & fet a calfe that was tender & good, and gaue it vnto a yong man which made it redye aroonce. And he toke butter and mylke and the calfe whiche he had prepared/ and set it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and ✱ they ate.

And they sayd vnto hym: Where is Sara thy wyfe? He sayd: in the tent. And he sayd: I wyl come agayne vnto the as sone as the frute can lyue. And lo, Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne That herde Sara out of the tent dore whyche was behynd his backe. Abraham & Sara were both olde and well stryken in age/ and it ceased to be with Sara after the maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in her selfe sayeng. Now when I am waxed olde, shall I gyue my self to ✱ lust/ and my lord olde also? Then sayd the Lord vnto Abraham: wherfore doth Sara laugh sayeng: shall I of a surety bere a chylde now when I am olde? is the thyng to hard for the Lord to do? In the tyme ✱ appoynted wyl I returne vnto the, as soone as the frute can haue lyfe/ and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, sayenge: I laughed not / for she was afrayde. But he sayd: yes thou dydst laugh. Then the men stode vp from thence and loked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bryng them on the way. And the Lorde sayd: Can I hyde from Abraham that thyng which I am aboute to do, seyng that Abraham shal be a ✱ great and a mighty people/ and all the nacions of the erth shall be blessed in hym? For I knowe hym that he wyll comaunde his chyldren and his housholde after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde/ to do after ryght and conscyence / that the Lorde may bryng vpon Abraham that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lorde sayd: The crye of Sodome and Gomorre is great/ and their synne is exceadynge greuous. I wyll go downe and se whether they haue done all togyther accordyng to that crye whiche is come vnto me or not, that I may know. And the mē departed thence and went towardes Sodome. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and drewe nere and sayd. wylt thou destroy the ryghtous with the wicked? Yf there be. l. ryghtous within the cite, wylt thou destroy it, and not spare the place for the sake of. l. ryghtous that are therin? That be farre from the, and thou wouldest do after this maner/ to slay the ryghtous with the wycked/ and that the ryghtous shulde be as the wycked: that be farre from the. Shulde not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryght? And the Lorde sayd: Yf I fynde in Sodome fyfty ryghtous within the cite, I wyll spare all the place for their sakes.

And Abraham answered and sayd: beholde I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, and yet am but ✱ dust and asshes. What though there lacke. v. of. l. ryghtous / wylte thou destroye all the cite for lacke of. v? And he sayd:

Yf I fynde there. xl. and. v. I wyll not destroye them. And he spake vnto hym yet agayne and sayd: what yf there be. xl. founde there. And he sayd: I wyl not do it for fourtyes sake. And he sayd: O let not my Lorde be angrye, that I speake. What yf there be founde thyrty? And he sayd: I wyl not do it, if I fynde. xxx. there. And he sayd: Oh, se/ I haue begon to speake vnto my Lorde/ what yf there be. xx. founde there? And he sayd: I wyl not destroy them for twen tyes sake. And he sayd: O let not my Lorde be angry that I speake yet ones moze only. what yf ten be founde there? And he sayd: I wyll not destroye them for. x. sake. And the Lorde wente his waye as soone as he had lefte talkynge with Abraham. And Abraham returned vnto his place.

¶ Lot receyued two aungelles in to his house. The filthy lustes of the Sodomytes. Lot is delyuered and tryzeth to dwell in the city Zoar. Lottes wife is turned in to a pyller of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is dronken and lyeth with his doughters, whiche conceyued chyldren by hym.

CAPI. XIX.

AND there came. ij. aungels to Sodome at euen. And Lot sate at the gate of the city. And Lot sawe them/ and rose vp to mete them / and he ✱ bowed hym selfe to the grounde with his face. And he sayd: Se lordes, turne in I pray you in to your seruaūtes house and tary all nyght and washe your fete / and syse vp early and go on your wayes. And they sayd: nay/ but we wyl abyde in the streates all night. And he ✱ cōpelled them exceedingly. And they turned i vnto hym & entred i to his house, & he made them a feest & dyd bake swete cakes/ and they ✱ ate. But before they went to rest, the men of the city of Sodome cōpassed the house rounde about/ both olde & ponge/ all the people fro all quarters. And they called vnto Lot and sayd vnto hym: where are the mē which came in to thy house to nyght? bryng them out vnto vs that we may do our lust with them.

And Lot went out at the doze vnto them & shut the doze after hym and sayd: nay for gods sake brethren, do not so wyckedly. Beholde I haue two doughters whiche haue knowen no mā, them wyl I bryng out vnto you: do with them as it semeth you good: Only vnto these mē do nothing, for therfore came they vnder the shadow of my rofe. And they sayd: come hither. And they sayd: Camest thou not hyther to sogourne/ & wylt thou be now a ✱ iudge? we wyl surely dele worse with the than with them.

And as they preased sore vpon Lot & began to breake vp the doze/ the men put forthe their handes and pulled Lot in to the house to them and put to the dooze. And they smote the men that were at the doze of the house with blyndnesse ✱ both small & great: so that they could not fynde the doze. And the men sayd moreouer vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or doughters, or what so euer thou hast in the cite, bryng out of this place: for we must destroye this place/ bycause the cry of them is greate ✱ before the Lorde, whiche hath sent vs to destroyd it.

And Lot went out & spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, which sholde haue maryed his doughters/ and sayd: stande vp & get you out of this place/ for the Lorde wyll destroye the city. But he semed as thoughe he had mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the morneyng arose the angels caused Lot to spede him sayeng. Stande vp/ take thy wyfe and thy two doughters, and thy that is at hande, lest thou perysshe in the synne of the city. And as he prolonged the time the men caughte both hym, his wyfe, and his two doughters by the handes, bicause the lorde was mercyfull vnto hym/ and they broughte hym forth and set hym without the city. When they had brought them out / they sayd: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tarye thou in any place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perysshe. Then sayd Lot vnto them: Oh nay my Lorde beholde, forasmoch as thy seruaūt hath founde grace in thy sight/ now make thy mercy great/ whiche thou shewest vnto me, in sauynge my lyfe. For I can not saue my selfe in the mountaynes/ lest some myshortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a citye by, to fle vnto/ and it is a lytle one: let me saue my selfe therin: is it not a lytle one, that my soule may lyue? And he sayd to hym: se, I haue receyued thy request concernyng this thyng/ I wyll not ouerthrowe this citye for whyche thou hast spoken. Haste the / and saue thy selfe there / for I can do nothynge tyll thou become in thyther. And therfore the name of the city is called Zoar. And the sonne was vpon the erthe when Lot was entred in to Zoar.

Then the Lorde rayned vpon ✱ Sodome and Gomorra/ brymstone and fyre from the Lorde out of heuen/ and ouerthrewe those cityes & al the region, & all that dwelled in the cityes/ and that that grewe vpon the erth. And Lots wyfe loked behynde her, & was turned in to a pyller of salte. Abraham rose vp early, and got hym to the place where he stode before the Lorde/ & loked towarde Sodome and Gomorre and towarde all the lande of that countrey. And as he loked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose as it had ben the smoke of a furnace. But yet when god destroyed the cities of the region, he thought vpon Abraham: & sent Lot ✱ out frō the daūger of the ouerthrowing, when he ouerthrewe the cityes where Lot dwelled.

And Lot departed out of Zoar and dwelled in the mountayns, & his. ij. doughters with hym, for he feared to tary i Zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, both he and his. ij. doughters also. Then sayd the elder vnto ỹ ponger: our father is olde/ and there are no mo men in the erth to come i vnto vs after the maner of all ỹ worlde. Come therfore, let vs gyue our father wyne to drynke, and let vs lye with hym that we maye saue seed of our father. And they gaue their father wyne to drynke that same nyght. And the elder doughter went and laye with her father. And he perceyued it not, neither when she laye downe/ neyther when she rose vp.

And on the morowe the elder sayd vnto the ponger: Beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs gyue hym wyne to drynke this night also/and go thou & lye with him,& let vs saue seed of our father. And they gaue their father wyne to drynke þ night also. And the yonger arose and laye with him. And he perceyued it not: neyther when she laye downe/ neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the doughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hym Moab/ which is the father of the Moabyte vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne/ and called hym Ben Ammi/ which is the father of the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

Abimelech is threatned for Sara his wife.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame and sayd vnto hym: Se, thou arte but a deed man for the womans sake whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her/ and therfore sayd: Lorde, wylte thou slaye eyghteous people? sayd not he vnto me, that she was his syster? yea, and sayde not she her selfe that he was her brother? with a pure herte B and innocent handes haue I doone this. And God sayde vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it well that thou dydest it in the puremesse of thy herte. And therfore I kepte the that thou sholdest not synne agaynste me/ neyther suffred I the to come nyghe her. Now therfore delyuer to the man his wyfe agayne/ for he is a Prophete. Then Abimelech rose vp be tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruauntes/ and tolde all these thynges in their eares/ and the men were sore afrayde. And Abimelech called Abraham and sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, & what haue I offended the, that thou sholdest bringe on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne? thou hast doone dedes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: what sawest thou that moued the to do this thyng?

* The feare of god amōg men is principally taken for the honor & feith that we owe vnto god/ & that with D such a loue as the childe hath to the father.

And Abraham answered. I thought that peraduenture the * feare of God was not in this place/ & that they sholde slee me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my suster, the daughter of my father/ but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house/ I sayd vnto her: This kyndnes shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen/ men seruauntes/ and women seruauntes & gaue them vnto Abraham/ and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayd: beholde the lande lyeth before the/ dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue gyuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer/ beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are with the/ and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God/ & God healed Abimelech and his wyfe & his maydens so that they bare childzen. For the Lorde had closed to all the matrynes of the house of Abimelech, bycause of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

She sayd also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham, that Sara sholde haue gyuen childzen sucke/ or that I sholde haue borne hym a sonne in his olde age: The childe grewe, and was weaned/ and Abraham made a greate feast the same daye that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian which she had borne vnto Abraham a mockynge. Then she sayd vnto Abraham: put awaye this * bondmayde & her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shal not be heyre with my sonne Isaac: But the wordes semed very greuous vnto Abrahams syght, bycause of his sonne. Then the Lorde sayd vnto Abraham: let it not be greuous vnto the bycause of the childe and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare her voyce/ for in * Isaac shall thy seed be called. Abraham stode vp, and reuerentely thanked the people of the lande the children of Heth. And sayde vnto them: If it be youre myndes that

B I shall

I shall burye my deade out of my syght, heare me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and let hym geue me the double caue whiche he hathe in the ende of his felde, for so moche money as it is worth, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possessiō to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Then Ephron the Hethyte answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cyte, sayenge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to burye thy deed in. Then Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the countreye, sayeng: I praye the heare me, I will geue syluer for the felde, take it of me, and so wyll I burye my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayeng: My lorde hearken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiij. C. sycles of syluer: but what is that betwene the and me? burye thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the syluer whiche he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth, that is to wyt. iiij. C. syluer sycles of currant money amonge marchauntes. Thus was Ephrons felde wherin the double caue is before Mamre: aswell the felde as the caue that is therin, and all the trees of the felde whiche growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of the cyte. And then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Ebron in the lande of Canaan. And so bothe the felde & the caue that is therin, was made Abrahams sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A Braham was olde and stepten in age, & the Lorde had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldeste seruaunte of his house whiche had the rule ouer all that he had: & Put thy hande vnder my thye that I maye make the sweare by the Lord that is God of heauen and God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananites, amonge whych I dwell. But shalte go vnto my countrey and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then sayde the seruaunte vnto him: what yf the womā will not agree to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whyche thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto him: beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thyther. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me frō my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & which spake vnto me and sware vnto me sayenge: vnto thy * seed will I geue this lande, he shall sende his angell before the that thou maiste take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles yf the womā will not agree to come with the then shalt thou be without daunger of this oothe. But aboue al thinge bringe not my sonne thyther agayne. And the seruant put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham and sware to hym concernynge ỳ matter. And the seruaunte toke .x. camels of his masters and departed, and had all maner goodes of his master with him, and rode vp & went to Melopotamia, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made his camels to lye downe without the cytie by a wels syde at euen: aboute the tyme that women come to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, send me good spede this daye / and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stande here by the well and the doughters of the men of this cytie will come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke. If she saye: Drinke, and I will geue thy camels drynke also, that same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaunt Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe or euer he had lefte speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, & filled hyr pytcher and came vp agayne. Then the seruāt ran vnto her and sayd: let me sup a litle water of thy pytcher. And she sayd: drinke Syr.

And she hasted and late downe her pytcher vpon her arme and gaue him drynke. And whē she had geuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dronke ynoughe. And she poured out hir pytcher into the troughe hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all his camels. And the felowe wondred at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde hadde made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drinkinge / he toke a golden eare ryng of half a sycle weyght and two bracelettes for hir handes, of .x. sycles weyght of golde, & sayd vnto her: Whose doughter arte thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayde vnto hym: I am the doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca / whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouender ynoughe, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lorde / and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche ceasseth not to deale mercyfully & truely with my master, and hathe brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde vnto theym of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as soone as he had seue the eareryngs and the bracelettes vpon his systers handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, sayenge: thus sayd the man vnto me, the he went oute vnto the man. And lo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore stondeste thou without? I haue dressed vp the house, and made rowme for the camels. And the the man came into the house and he vnbrydled the camels: & brought lyter and prouonder for the camels, & water to wash his fete & them fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I haue sayd my mellage. And he sayd: say on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruant, and the Lorde hath blessed my master oute of measure, so that he is become great, and hathe geuen hym shepe, oxen, syluer & golde, menseruauntes, mayde seruauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when she was olde: to whom hath he geuen all that he hath. And my master made me sweare sayenge: thou shalt not fetche a wyfe to my sonne amonge the doughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell, But shalt go to my fathers house and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf the wyfe will not folowe me? And he sayd vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke, wyll sende his angel with the, & prospere thy iourney that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they wil not geue the one, then shalt thou bere no perell of myne othe.

And I came this daye vnto the well & sayd: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: beholde I stonde by this well of water, and when a virgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, & she saye agayne to me: drynke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakynge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pytcher on her shulder, & she went downe to the well and drewe. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drynke. And she made haste, and toke downe her pytcher from her shulders, & sayde: drynke, and I wil geue thy camels drynke also. And I dranke, & she gaue my camels drinke also. And I asked her sayenge: whose doughter arte thou? she answered: the doughter of Bethuel Nahors sonne, whome Milca bare vnto him. And I put the eare ryngs vpō her face and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me the eyght waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Now therfore yf ye wyl deale mercyfully and truly with my master, tell me: yf not tell me also: that I maye turne me to the right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, sayenge: The thinge is proceed of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, as the Lorde hath appointed. And whē Abrahams seruaunt herde their wordes, he bowed hym to the Lorde, flat vpon the earthe. And the seruaunt toke forth iewels of syluer & iewels of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto her brother and to her mother he gaue spyces. And then they ate and dranke, both he & the men that were with him, & tarryed all nyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayd: let the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, at the lest x. dayes, and then go thy wayes. And he sayd vnto them: hynder me not, for the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye that I maye go to my master. And they sayde: let vs call the damsell, and wytte what she saith to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilte thou go with this man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca their syster goo with her norse and Abrahams seruaunt, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte oure syster growe into thousande thousandes, & thy seed possesse the gates of their enemyes. And Rebecca arose and her damsels, and sat them vp vpon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Isaac was comynge frome the well of the * lyuynge and seynge, for he dwelt in the south countreye, and was gone out to walke in his meditations about the euen tyde. And he lyft vp his eyes and loked, and beholde the camels were comynge. And Rebecca lyfte vp her eyes, and when she sawe Isaac, she lyghted downe of the camel, and sayd vnto the seruant: what man is this that cometh against vs in the felde? And the seruant sayd: it is my master. Then she toke her mantell, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac all ỳ he had done. Then Isaac brought her into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac comforted ouer his mother.

Then sayde Abimelech vnto Jsaac: get the from me, for thou art myghtyer then we a great deale. Then Jsaac departed thence, and D pitched his tente in the valey Gerar, & dwelt there. And Jsaac digged agayne the welles of water whyche they dygged in the dayes of Abraham his father, whyche the Philistians had stopped after the dethe of Abraham / and gaue them the same names, whyche his father gaue them. As Jsaacs seruauntes dygged in the valey, they founde a well of lyuyng water. And the herdemen of Gerar dyd stryue with Jsaacs herdmen, sayenge: the water is ours. Then called he the well Eleck, because they stroue with hym.

E Then dygged they another well, and they stroue for that also. Therfore called he it Sytena. And then he departed thence, and dygged an other well for whyche they stroue not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, sayenge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs rowme, and we are encreased vpon the earthe. Afterwarde departed he thence, and came to Berseba. And the Lorde appered vnto hym the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not for I am with the, & will bleesse the, and multyplye thy seed for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And then he buylded an auter there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and there pitched his tente. And there Jsaacs seruauntes dygged a well.

F Then came Abimelech to hym frome Gerar and Ahusath his frende & Phicoll his chefe captayne. And Jsaac sayde vnto them: wherfore come ye to me, seynge ye hate me, & haue put me awaye from you? Then sayde they: we sawe that the * Lorde was with the, & therfore we sayde that there shulde be an othe betwene vs and the, and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou shouldest do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, and haue done vnto the nothinge but good, and sent the awaye in peace: for thou arte nowe the blessed of the Lorde. CAPI. XXVII.

A AND it came to passe that Jsaac waxed olde and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not see. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne and sayde to hym: my sonne. And he answered hym, here I sir. And he sayd: beholde, I am olde, and knowe not the daye of my deathe: now therfore take thy artillery, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the to the feldes, and kyll me some venyson, and dresse me meate suche as I loue, and bynge it me, & let me eate that my soule maye blesse the afore I dye. And Rebecca herde when Isaac spake to Esau his sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to hunt venyson, & to bringe it, she spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayenge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge wt Esau thy brother and sayenge: bringe me venyson and dresse me meate, that I maye eate & blesse the before the Lorde, er I dye. Nowe B therfore my sonne heare my voyce in ꝑ whyche I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and bynge me thence two good kydds, & I will make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt bynge it to thy father and he shall eate, & blesse the before his death.

Than sayde Jacob to Rebecca his mother: beholde Esau my brother is rough, and I am smoothe. My father shall peraduenture fele me, and I shall seme vnto hym as thoughe I went aboute to begyle hym, & so shall he bring a curse vpon me, for a blessynge: and his mother sayde vnto hym: Vpon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, and go and fetche me them. And Jacob went and fet the / C and brought them to his mother. And his mother made meate of them, accordyng as his father loued. And she went and set goodly rayment that was her eldest sonne Esaus, which she had in the house with her, & put them vpō Jacob her yongest sonne, and she put the skynnes vpon his handes & vpō the smooth of his necke. And she put the meate & bred which she had made, in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to his father, sayenge: my Genes.xlix.c & Deut.xxxiii.a father? And he answered: here am I: who arte thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done as thou badest me: aryse, syt vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Jsaac sayde vnto his sonne: how commeth it that thou haste founde it so quyckely, my sonne? He answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayd Jsaac vnto Jacob: come nere, and let me fele the, my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. D Then went Jacob to Jsaac his father, and he felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes were roughe as his brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he asked hym: arte thou my sonne Esau? And he sayd: I am. Then sayd he: bynge forthe and let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym, and he ate. He brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Jsaac sayd vnto hym: come nere and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym & kyssed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of his rayment, and * blessed hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde whyche the Lorde hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earthe, and plentye of corne and wyne. People be thy seruauntes, and nacyōs bowe vnto the. Be Lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers childre stoupe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, & blessed be he that blesseth the.
* Eccli.xli.b & Heb.xi.a

As soone as Jsaac had made an ende of blessynge, Jacob was scace gone oute frome the presence of Jsaac his father: but Esau his brother was come from huntynge, and had made also meate, and brought it vnto his father, & sayde vnto hym: Aryse my father and eate of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule may bielle me. Then his father Jsaac sayde vnto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Jsaac was astonyed oute of measure, and sayde: Where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me, and I haue eaten of all before thou camest, & haue blessed hym, and he shall be blessed styll. Whe Esau herde the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly about measure, and sayde to his father: bielle me also my father. And he sayde: thy brother came with subtylte, and hath taken awaye thy blessynge. The sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hathe vndermyned me nowe two tymes, fyrste he toke awaye my heritage: and se/ f nowe hath he taken awaye my blessynge also. And he sayde: hast thou kept neuer a blessynge for me?

Jsaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy lorde, and all his brothers children haue I made his seruantes. Moreouer, with corne and wyne haue I stablyshed hym, what can I do vnto the now my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto his father: haste thou but one that one blessynge my father? bielle me also my father: so lyfted vp Esau his voyce and * wepte. * Hebr. xlii. And Esau * hated Jacob, because of the blessynge with wyche his father blessed hym, and sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, for I wyll slay my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threatneth to kyll the: nowe therfore my sonne beare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tarye with hym a whyle tyll thy brothers fearsnesse be aswaged, and tyll thy brothers wrathe turne awaye from the, and he forget that whiche thou haste done to hym. Then wyll I sende and fet the awaye from thence. Why shulde I lose you bothe in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Jsaac: I am wery of my lyfe, for feare of the doughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the doughters of Heth, suche one as these are, or of the doughters of the lande, what luste shuld I haue to lyue.

Then Jsaac called Jacob his sonne, and blessed hym / and charged hym, sayeng/ se thou take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaan, but aryse and get the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the doughters of Laban thy vncle. And God almyghty bielle the, increase the, and multiplye the that thou mayste be a nombre of people, & geue the the blessynge of Abraham: bothe to the and to thy seed with the, that thou mayst possesse the lande (wherin thou arte a straunger) which God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Jsaac sent forth Jacob / to go to Mesopotamia vnto Laban / sonne of Bethuel the Syrien / and brother to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother. Jacob is blessed. B

When Esau sawe that Jsaac had blessed Jacob / and sent hym to * Mesopotamia / to fet hym a wyfe thence / and that as he blessed hym / he gaue hym a charge / sayinge: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan: and that Jacob had obeyed his father & mother, and was gone to Mesopotamia: and seynge also that the doughters of Canaan pleased not Jsaac his father: then went he vnto Jsmael, and toke vnto the wyues whyche he had, Mahala the doughter of Jsmael Abrahams sonne, the syster of Nabaioth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and went towarde Haran, and came vnto a place, and tarved there all nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his head / and layde hym downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stode a ladder vpon the earth, & the top of it reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it / yea and the Lorde stode vpon it, and sayde: * Dyrr. Jacob by meth. C

When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe he sayde: surely the Lorde is in this place / & I wist not. And he was afrayd and sayd: how feareful is this place? it is none other but euen the * house of God, and the gate of heuen. And Jacob stode vp early in the morning and toke the stone that he had layde vnder his head, and pitched it vp an ende, & poured oyle on the top of it. And he called the name of the place Bethell, for the name of the citie was called Lus, before tyme. And Jacob vowed a vowe / sayenge: If God wyll be with me, and wyll kepe me in this iourney whyche I go, and wyll geue me bread to eate, and clothes to put on, so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in saufte: then shall the lorde be my God / and this stone, wherye I haue D * Or the chefe of the house of God. set vp an ende, shall be Gods house: and of all that thou shalt geue me / wyl I geue the * tythes vnto the. * Or churche

Then Jacob lyfte vp his feete, and went towarde the Eest countrey. And as he loked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of shepe laye therby (for at that wel were the flockes watered) and there laye a greate stone at the well mouthe. And the maner was to dryue the flockes thyther, and to roull the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe / and to put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth vnto his place. And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren whens be ye? And they sayd, of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayde: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them: is he in good helth? And they said: he is in good helth, and beholde, his doughter Rachel commeth with the shepe. And he sayd / lo, it is yet a gret whyle to nyght / neither is it time that the catell shuld be gathered together / watre the shepe, and go and fede them. And they sayd: we maye not, tyl all the flockes be dryuen together, and the stone be roulled from the welles mouthe / and so we water our shepe. Eschol kes. her fa. shepe. B

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel came to her fathers shepe, for she kepte them. As sone as Jacob sawe Rachel the doughter of Laban his vncle, and his vncles shepe / he wente and rouled the stone from the welles mouthe, and watered the shepe of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kyssed Rachel / and lyfte vp his voyce and wepte: and tolde her also that he was her fathers brother, and Rebeccas sonne. Then Rachel ran and tolde her father. Esau meeteth Jacob.

When Laban herde tell of Jacob his systers son, he ranne to mete hym, and imbraced hym, and kissed hym / and brought hym to his house. And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban sayd: well, thou art my bone and my flesshe. Abyde with me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban sayd vnto Jacob: Thoughe thou be my kynsman / shuldest thou therfore serue me for nought? tell me what shall thy wages be? And Laban had .ij. doughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel. Lea was lose eyed, but Rachel was beautifull and well fauoured. And Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I wyll serue the seuen yere for Rachel thy yongest dougher. And Laban answered: it is better that I geue her to the than to an other man: abyde therfore with me. D

And Jacob serued * seuen yeres for Rachel, and they semed vnto hym but a fewe dayes / for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayd vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appointed is come. * Deut. xxi. b.

Then Laban bade all men of that contrey, E

and made a feest. And when euen was come, he toke Lea his doughter and brought her to hym: and he lay with her. And Laban gaue to his doughter Lea Zilpha his mayde, to be her seruaunt. And when the morninge was come beholde it was Lea. Then sayd he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played thus with me? dyd not I serue the for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of this countrey, to marye the yongest before the eldest. Fulfille out this weke, and then shall this also be gyuen the for the seruice which thou shalt serue me yet .vij. yeres more. And Jacob dyd euen so, and fulfilled out that weke, & then he gaue hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his doughter, Bilha his handmayde to be her seruaunt. So laye he by Rachel also, and loued Rachell more then Lea, and serued hym yet .vij. yeres more. Jacob maryeth .ij. doughters of hym mothers brother. F

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despysed, he made her frutefull: but Rachel was barayn. And Lea conceyued and bare a sonne, and called his name Ruben / for she sayd: the Lorde hath loked vpon my * tribulacion. And nowe my husbande wyll loue me. And she conceyued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lorde hath herde that I am despysed, and hath therfore gyuen me this sonne also / and she called hym * Symeon. And she conceyued yet and bare a sonne, and sayd: now this ones wyll my husbande kepe me compayne, because I haue borne him thre sonnes: and therfore she called his name Leui. And she conceyued yet agayne and bare a sonne sayinge: nowe wyll I prayse the Lorde, therfore she called his name Judas / and lefte bearynge. G Deut. xxvi. b. * Parai. ii. c

CAPI. XXX.

When Rachel sawe that she bare Jacob no children / she enuyed her syster / and sayd vnto Jacob: Gyue me children, or els I am but deed. Then was Jacob wrothe with Rachel sayinge: Am I in Gods stede, which keepeth fro the the frute of thy wombe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha: lye with her, that she maye beare vpon my lappe, that I may be encreased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha her handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob laye with her: and Bilha conceyued and bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayd Rachel. God hath gruen sentence on my syde / and hath also herde my voyce / and hath gyuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rachels mayde conceyued agayne, and bare Jacob an other sonne. And Rachel sayd: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my syster, and haue gotten the vpper hande. And she called his name Nepthali. H

When Lea sawe that she had left bearynge / she toke Zilpha her mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Zilpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayd Lea: Good lucke: and called his name Gad. And Zilpha Leas mayde bare

And Ruben went out in the wheet harvest tyme, and found ☞ mandzagoras in the felde, & brought them vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel to Lea, gyue me of thy sonnes mandzagoras. And Lea answered: Is it not ynoughe that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wolest take away my sones mandzagoras also? Then sayd Rachel, wel let him slepe with the this night, for thy sonnes mandzagoras. And when Jacob came frome the felde at euen / Lea went out to mete hym, and sayd: thy with me, for I haue bought the with my sonnes mandzagoras.

And he slept with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceyued and bare vnto Jacob the fyfth sonne. Then sayde Lea: God hath gyuen me my rewarde, bycause I gaue my mayden to my husbande / & she called hym Jlachar. And Lea conceyued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the sixth sonne. Then sayde she: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbande dwell with me, bycause I haue borne hym. vj. sonnes / & called his name Zabulon. ✱ iij.reg.xj.d

As sone as Rachel had borne Joseph. Jacob said to his father in lawe. Send me away that I may go vnto my owne place & countrey / gyue me my wyues and my children for whome I haue serued the, & let me go, for thou knowest what seruice I haue done the. Then sayd Laban vnto hym. Yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoynte what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyll gyue it the. Then he sayd vnto hym, thou knowest what seruice I haue done the / and in what case thy catell haue ben vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came / and now it is encreased in to a multitude / and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now when shall I make prouysyon for myne owne house also.

E And he sayd, what shall I then gyue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt gyue me nothing at all so thou wylt do this one thynge for me, and then wyll I turne agayne & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

So thou aboute all thy shepe this day, and seperate from them al the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. And then loke, all that shall be party coloured, blacke and spotted, as wel amongst the shepe as the kydde, the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ☞ righteousnes answere for me, when the tyme commeth that I shall receyue my rewarde of the, so that what so euer is not speckled and party among the gotes and blacke amonge the lambes / let that be theftes with me. Then sayd Laban: Lo I am content, that it be accordynge as thou hast said. And he lorded out that same daye the gotes that were party and of dyuers colours, and all the kydes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in them, and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keppynge of his sonnes / and sette thre dayes iourney betwene hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke roddes of grene popull hasell, and of chestnottrees, and pylled whyte streakes in them, and made the whyte appere / the rodes: And he layde the rodes whiche he had pylled before the shepe in the gutters and watrynge troughes / when the shepe came to drynke: that they sholde conceyue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceyued before the rodes & brought forthe speckled, spotted, and party coloured. Then Jacob diuided the flock and put the roddes in the troughes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte & all blacke were Labans, but the residue were Jacobs, and he severed the flockes one from an other. And alwaye in the fyrst ouchynge tyme of the shepe. Jacob put the rodes before the shepe in the gutters, that they myght conceyue before the rodes: But in the latter ouchynge tyme he put them not there: so the last broode was Labans, and the fyrst Jacobs. And the man became exceadynge ryche, and hadde many shepe / maydes seruauntes / men seruauntes / camelles and asses.

And Jacob herd the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers / and of our fathers goodes hath he goten all this honour. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not towarde him as it was in tymes past. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll be with the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto his shepe, and sayd vnto them: I se your fathers countenaunce that it is not towarde me as in tymes paste. Moreouer the God of my father hathe ben with me. And ye knowe how that I haue serued your father with all my myght. And your father hathe disceyued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayd, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. Yf he sayd, the speckled shall be thy rewarde, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers catell, and gyuen thē me. For in ouchynge tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame / and beholde, the rammes that bucked the shepe were straked, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayenge: Jacob? And I answered: here am I. And he sayd, lyfte vp thyne eyes and se, how al the rammes that leape vpon the shepe are straked, spotted, and partye:

Than answered Rachel and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: we haue no parte nor enheritaūce in oure fathers house, he counteth vs as strāgers / for he hath solde vs, and hathe eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches whiche God hath taken frome our father, that is ours and our childrens. Now therfore what so euer God hath sayd vnto the, that do. Then Jacob rose vp, and set his sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and carved awaye all his catell and all his substaunce whiche he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Jsaac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to ✱ shere his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers ymages. And Jacob stale awaye priuily frome Laban the Syrien, and tolde him not that he wolde departe. But where as thou doest calenge me for thefte, with whome so euer thou fyndest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the two maydens tentes: but founde the not. Then wente he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, & sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. ¶ The vyson of the aungels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrastled with the aungell whyche chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

CAPI. XXXII.

A Josu.xxiiii.a. I Acob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Seir and the feld of Edom. And he cõmaunded them sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lorde Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus. I haue sotourned and ben a straunger with Laban vnto this tyme and haue gotten oxen, asses and shepe, men seruauntes and women seruantes, and now I sende imbassage to the my Lorde, that I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cõmeth agaynst the .iiij. hundred men with hym. Then was Jacob greatly afrayde and wist not which way to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the people that was with hym, & the shepe, oxen, and camels in to two companyes, and sayd: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other may saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde which sayest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrey and to thy kynred/and I wyll do all well with the. I am not worthy of the leest of all the mercyes and truthe whyche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. For with my ❊ staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and nowe haue I gotten two droues. Deliuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, lest he wyll come and smyte the mother with the chyldren. Thou sayest that thou wolest surely do me good, and wolest make my seed as the sande of the see, whyche can not be nombred for multitude.

And he tarped there that same nyght/ and toke of that which came to hande, a present/ vnto Esau his brother two hundred she gootes and .xx. he gotes/ two hundred shepe, and xx. rammes: thyrty mylche camels with their coltes. xl. kyne, and .x. bulles. xx. she asses, and .x. foles, and deliuered them vnto his seruautes/ euery droue by them selues/ and sayde vnto them: go forth before me, and put a space betwene euery droue. And he commaunded the formest, sayinge.

When Esau my brother meteth the and asketh the sayinge: whose seruaunt art thou, and whyther goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruaunt Jacobs, and are a present sent vnto my Lorde Esau, and beholde, he hym selfe commeth after vs. And so commaunded he the seconde and curn so the thyrde/ and lykewyse all that folowed the droues sayinge, of this maner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym and sayd moreouer. Beholde thy seruaunt Jacob commeth after vs/ for he sayd I wyll pease his wrath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyll se hym my selfe/ so peraduenture he wyll receyue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he tarped all that nyght in the tente/ and rose vp the same nyght, and toke his two wyues and his .ij. maydens, and his .xi. sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Jacob. And he toke them and sent them all ouer the ryuer, and tarped behynde hym selfe alone.

And there * wrastled a man with hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he couldе not preuayle agaynst hym he smote hym vnder the thygh, and the senow of Jacobs thygh wranke as he wrastled with hym. And he sayd: let me go, for the day breaketh. And he sayd: I wyll not let the go/ excepte thou bliesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. And he sayde: thou shalte be called Jacob no more/ but * Israel. For thou hast wrastled with God, and hast preuayled.

And Jacob asked hym sayinge, tell me thy name. And he sayd, wherfore doest thou aske after my name? and he blessed hym there. And Jacob called the name of the place Phenuel/ for I haue sene God face to face, and yet is my lyfe reserued. And as he wente ouer Phenuel the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thigh, wherfore the chyldren of Israel eate not of the senow of the thygh vnto this daye/ because that he smote Jacob vnder the thygh in the senowe that shronke.

¶ Esau and Jacob are agreed. And Jacob came in to Sichem.

CAPI. XXXIII.

I Acob lyft vp his eyes and sawe his brother Esau come, and with hym .iiij.C. men. And he diuided his children vnto Lea, vnto Rachel, and vnto his two women seruantes. And dyd set the women seruantes & their chyldren formost/ and Lea & her chyldren after, and Rachel & Joseph byndermost. And him selfe went before them and fell on the grounde .vij. tymes tyll he came vnto his brother.

Esau ran to mete him and embraced him and fell on his necke & kyssed him, and they wepte. And he lyft vp his eyes & sawe the wyues and their children, & sayd: what are these which thou there hast? And he sayd: they are the chyldren whiche God hath gruen thy seruaunt. Then came the maydens forth/ and dyd their obeysaunce. Lea also and her children came and dyd their obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph and Rachel, and dyd their obeysaunce.

And he sayde: what meanest thou with all the droues which I met. And he answered: to fynde grace in the syghte of my Lorde. And Esau sayd: I haue ynoughe my brother kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered: oh nay/ but yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receyue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face * as thoughe I had sene the face of God, wherfore receyue me to grace and take my blessing that I haue brought the for god hath gruen it me. And I haue ynough of all thynge. And so he compelled hym to take it. And he said: let vs take our iourney and go And I wyll go in thy companye. And he sayde vnto hym: my lorde knoweth that I haue ten chyldren/ ewes and kyne with yonge vnder myne hand, which yf men shold ouerdryue but euen one daye, the hole flocke wolde dye. Let my Lorde therfore go before his seruaunt, and I wyll dryue fayre and softly, accordynge as the catell that goth before me and the children be able to endure: tyll I come to my lorde vnto Seir.

And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayd: what needeth it? let me fynde grace in the syght of my lorde. So Esau went his waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towarde Sucoth, and bylt hym an house, & made boothes for his cattell: wherfore the name of the place is called Sucoth.

And Jacob came prayshyly in to the citye of Sichem in the lande of Canaan/ after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the citye, and bought parcell of grounde where he pitched his tent, of the children of Hemor Sichems father, for an hundred lambes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the mighty God of Israel.

¶ The rauyshing of Dina Jacobs doughter by the men of Sichē. And of the great bloode shedyng done by the sonnes of Jacob.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

A DIna the doughter of Lea which she bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the doughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the heupte lorde of the countrey sawe her, and toke her and laye with her, and forced her: and his herte laye vnto Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kyndly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Hemor sayinge/ get me this mayde vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herd that he had defyled Dina his doughter, but his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and therfore he helde his peace tyll they were come. Then Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to cõmen with hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came out of the felde as sone as they herde it/ for it greued them/ and they were not a lytle wroth, because he had wrought foly in Israel, in that he had lyen with Jacobs doughter, whiche thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor cõmoned with them sayinge: The soule of my son Sichem longeth for your doughter: gyue her hym to wife, and make mariages with vs: gyue your doughters vnto vs, and take our doughters vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shall be at your pleasure/ dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto her father and and her brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what so euer ye appointe me, that wyl I gyue. Aske freely of me bothe the dowry and gyftes, & I wyll gyue according as ye say vnto me, and gyue me the damsell to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemor his father disceytfully, because he had defyled Dina their syster. And they said vnto them/ we can not do this thyng that we wolde gyue our syster to one that is vncircumcised/ for ỹ were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this wyll we consente vnto you. Yf ye wyll be as we be, that all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, than wyl we gyue our doughter to you, and take yours to vs, & wyll dwell with you and be one people. But yf ye wyll not herken vnto vs to be circumcised, then wyll we take our doughter and go our wayes. And their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the ponge man deferred not for to do the thynge, because he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also moost set by of al that were in his fathers house. Then Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their city and commoned with the men of their cite, sayinge: these men are peasible with vs/ and wyll dwell in the lande and do their occupacion therin. And in the land is rowme ynough for them/ let vs take their doughters to wyues, and gyue them ours: onely herin wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwel with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are among vs be circumcised as they are. Their goodes and their substance and all their catell are ours, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne harkened all that went out of the gate of his cite. And all the men chyldren were circumcysed what so euer went out at the gates of his cite. And the thyrde daye when it was paynefull to them, two of the sonnes of Jacob Simeon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke euery of them his * swerde, and went in to the citye boldly, and slewe all that was male and slewe also Hemor and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina their syster out of Sichems house, and went their waye.

Then came the sonnes of Jacob vpon the deed, and spoyled the citye, because they had defyled their syster: and toke their shepe, oxen, asses and what so euer was i the city & also in the feldes. And all their goodes, all their chyldre and their wyues toke they captyue & made hauocke of all that was in the houses.

And Jacob said to Simeon & Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me fynke vnto the inhabitauntes of the lande, bothe to the Canaanytes and also to the Pherezytes. And I am few in nõbre. Wherfore they shal gather them selues togither agaynst me and slay me/ and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered, Wolde they deale with our syster as with an hoore?

¶ The marriage of Juda. The trespas of Er and Onan, and the vengeaunce of god that came therupon. Juda lare with his daughter Thamar. The brythe of Phares and Zara.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

AND it fortuned at that tyme, that Judas went frome his brethren, and gat hym to a man called Hira of Odollam and there he sawe the daughter of a man called *Sua, a Cananyte: And he toke her, & laye with her. And she conceyued, and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And she conceyued agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And she conceyued the thirde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chesyb when she bare him.

*1.Par.ij.a.

And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. But this Er Judas eldest sonne, was wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, wherfore the Lorde slewe hym. The sayde Judas vnto Onā: go in to thy brothers wyfe and marye her, and styre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceyued that the seed shulde not be his: therfore when he went in to his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, because he wolde not geue seed vnto his brother. And the thynge whiche he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe hym also. Then sayde Judas to Thamar his doughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growen: for he feared lest he shoulde haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus went Thamar, and dwelt in her fathers house.

Onan is slayn because he wolde not sayle seed to his brother.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas when he had lefte mournynge, wente vnto his shepe sherers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayenge: beholde, thy father in law goth vp to Thymnath, to *shere his shepe. And she put her wydowes garmentes frome her, and couered her with a cloke, and disgysed her selfe: And sat her downe at the entrynge of Enaim, which is by the hye wayes syde to Thimnath, because she saw that Sela was growen, and she was not geuen him to wyfe.

*Genes. xxxi.

When Juda sawe her, he thought it hadde bene an hoore, because she hadde couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye & sayde Come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayde what wilt thou geue me, to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende the a kydde frome the flocke. She answered, Then geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. Then sayd he, what pledge shal I geue the? And she sayd thy sygnet, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and she was with childe by hym. And she gat her vp, and went, and put her mantell frō her, & put on her wydowes rayment agayne. And Judas sent the kyd by his neyghboure of Odollam, for to fetche out his pledge agayne from the wyues hande. But he found her not. Then asked he the men of the same place, sayenge: Where is the whore that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whore here. And he came to Juda agayn, sayenge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whore there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydde, and thou couldest not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after thre moneythes, one tolde Juda, sayenge: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whore, and with playing the whore is become great with childe. And Juda sayde: bringe her forth, and let her be brente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe, sayenge: by the man vnto whome these thynges pertayne, am I with childe. And sayde also: loke whose are this seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Juda knewe them, sayeng: she is more eyghtwyse than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye with her no more.

When tyme was come that she shoulde be delyuered, behold there was two twynnes in her wombe. And as she trauelled, the one put out his hande, & the mydwyfe toke & bounde a reed threde aboute it sayeng: this will come out fyrste. But he plucked his hande backe agayne, and his brother came out. And she sayd: wherfore hast thou prent a rent vpon the? and called him Phares. And afterwarde came out his brother that hadde the read threde about his hande, which was called Zara.

IOseph was brought vnto Egypt, and Putiphar *a lorde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian bought hym of the Ismaelytes, which brought him thyther. And the Lorde was with Joseph / and he prospered and contynued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that the Lorde was with hym / and that the Lorde made all that he dyd prospere in his hande: Wherfore he founde grace in his masters syght, and serued hym. And his master made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hand. And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer his house, and ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptias house for Josephs sake / and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the house, and also in the feldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hande / and loked vpon nothynge that was with hym, saue onely on the breed whiche he ate. And Joseph was a *goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: come lye with me: But he denyed and sayd to her. Beholde, my master wotyth not what he hath in the house with me / but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greater in the house then I / and hathe kepte nothynge from me / but onely the because thou arte his wyfe. How then can I do this great wyckednes, for to synne agayns God? And after this maner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

*Genesis xxxvii.

And it fortuned about the same season, that Joseph entred in to the house, to do his busynes: and there was none of the houshold by in the house. And she caught hym by the garment, saying: come slepe with me. And he left his garment in her hand, and fled and got him out. When she sawe that he had lefte his garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and told them sayenge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrue vnto vs, to vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slept with me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he herde that I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me and fled awaye, and got hym out.

And she layde vp his garment by her, vntyll her lorde came home. And she tolde hym accordynge to these wordes saying. This Hebrues seruaunte whiche thou hast brought vnto vs came in to me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me and fled out. When his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde hym saying: after this maner dyd thy seruant to me, he waxed wroth.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in *prysō euen in the place where the kynges prysoners lay bounde. And there contynued he in prison / but the Lorde was with Joseph, & shewed him mercy / and got hym fauour in the syghte of the keper of the prison, which committed to Josephs hande all the prysoners that were in the prison house. And what so euer was done there, that dyd he. And they dreamed eyther of them in one nyght: bothe the butler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte whiche were bounde in the prison house, eyther of them his dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the mornynge / and loked vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayenge, wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym / we haue dreamed a dreame / and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tell me yet. And the chefe butler tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayd vnto hym. In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me / and in the vyne were thre braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shotte forthe: and the grapes therof waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes and wronge them in to Pharaos cuppe, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Joseph sayd vnto hym / this is the interpretation of it. The thre braunches are thre dayes: for within thre dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heed / and restore the vnto thyne office agayne / and thou shalte delyuer Pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner, euen as thou dydest when thou was his butler. But thynk on me when thou art in good case / and shewe mercy vnto me. And make mention of me to Pharao, and helpe to bringe me out of this house / for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all wherfore they shold haue put me in to this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that he had well expowned it / he sayde vnto Joseph / Me thought also in my dreme, that I had .iij. wyther baskettes on my heed. And in the vppermoll basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharao. And the brydes ate them out of the basket vpon my heed.

Expownynge of dreames appertayneth to god.

Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretation therof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes / for this daye thre dayes shall Pharao take thy heed from the / and shal hang the on a tree, and the brydes shall eate thy flesshe from the.

And it came to passe the thyrde daye whiche was Pharaos *byrth daye / that he made a fraut vnto all his seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the heed of the cheefe butler and of the cheefe baker amonge his seruauntes. And restored the cheefe butler vnto his butlershyp agayne/ and he reached the cup in to Pharaos hande/and hanged the cheefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpreated vnto them. Notwithstandynge the cheefe butler remembred not Joseph/ but forgate hym.

Pharao dreameth.

A Nd it fortuned at two yeres ende that Pharao dreamed, and thought that he stode by a ryuers syde/ and that there came out of the ryuer.vij.goodly kyne,& fatte fleshed,and fed in a medowe/& hym thought that.vij.other kine came vp after them out of the ryuer cupl fauored and leane fleshed,and stode by the other vpon the brynke of the ryuer. And the cupl fauoured and leane fleshed kyne,ate vp the.vij. welfauoured & fat kyne/ and he awoke therwith. And he slept agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme,that.vij.eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ranke & goodly. And that.vij. thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them/ and that the.vij.thynne eares deuoured the.vij.ranke and full eares. And then Pharao awaked,and se,dere is his dreame. When the morynge came, his spirite was troubled. And he sente and called for the sothsayers of Egypte/ and all the wyse men therof, and tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interprete it vnto Pharao. Then spake the cheefe butler vnto Pharao sayinge. I do remembre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrye with his seruauntes, and put in warde in the cheefe marshals house, both me and the cheefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght,& eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretation.

And there was with vs a yong man an Hebrue borne,seruaut vnto the cheefe marshall. And we tolde hym, & he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to eyther of our dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs so it came to passe. I was restored to myne office agayn, and he was hanged.

Then Pharao sent and called Joseph. And they brought hym forthwith out of prison. And he shaued him self and chaunged his rayment,& went in to Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph, I haue dreamed a dreme and no man can interpretate it/ but I haue herde tell of the,that as sone as thou hearest a dreame, thou dost declare it. And Joseph answered Pharao sayinge: God shal gyue Pharao a prosperous answere without me. Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer.vij. fatte fleshed and welfauoured kyne,and fed in the medowe. And then.vij.other kyne came vp after them,poore and very cupl fauoured & leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe there lyke in all the lande of Egypte in cupl fauourdnes. And the.vij.leane and cupl fauoured kyne ate vp the first.vij.fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a mã coulde not perceyue that they had eaten them: for they were styl as cupl fauoured as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreme.vij. eares sprynge out of one stalke full and good, and.vij.other eares wythered, thyn and blasted with wynde, sprynge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the.vij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayd vnto Pharao, bothe Pharaos dremes are one. And god doth shew Pharao what he is about to do. The.vij.good kyne are.vij.yeres, and the.vij.good eares are vij.yeres also/and it is but one dreame. Lyke wise the.vij.thyn and cupl fauoured kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres/ and the seuen emptye and blasted eares shall be seuen yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharao,that God dothe shewe Pharao what he is about to do.

Beholde there shall come.vij.yeres of great plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypt. And there shall aryse after them. vij.yeres of hunger: So that all the plenteousnes shal be forgoten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shal consume the land, so that the plenteousnes shal not be ones perceyued in the lande by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shall be exceadynge great. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, & that God wyll shortly bringe it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wysdome, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharao make officers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seuen plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, & laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharao, that there may be foode in the cities, and there let them kepe it, that there may be foode in store in the lande agaynst the seuen yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the lande perysshe not thorow hunger.

And the saying pleased Pharao and al his seruantes. Then said Pharao vnto his seruantes where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirite of God in hym? wherfore Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: forasmoch as god hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wysdom like vnto the. Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my house, & according to thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the kynges seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Joseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the land of Egypt. And he toke of his ryng from his fyngre, & put it vpon Josephs fyngre/ and arayde hym in rayment of silke, and hong a golden cheyne aboute his necke, and let him vpon the best charet that he had saue one. And proclamation was made, þ euery person shulde bowe his knee before hym, as to hym whome Pharao had set ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And

Zaphnath paaneah they nõpbis of Egypt / and mocke to be a mã whome ser vt thynges expoūded.

And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: I am Pharao/ without thy wyll shal no man lyft vp eyther his hand or fote in all the land of Egypt. And he called Josephs name Zaphnath Paenea. And he gaue him to wife Aseneth the doughter of Putiphar preest of On. Then went Joseph abrode in the land of Egypt. And he was thyrty yere olde when he stode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And then Joseph departed from Pharao, and went throughout all all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plentyfull yeres they made theues, and gathered vp all the encrease of the seuen plenteous yeres which were in the land of Egypte, and put it in to the cityes. And he put the foode of the feldes that grewe rounde aboute euery city, euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke to the sande of the see in multitude aboue measure, vntyll he lefte nombryng: For it was without nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before the yeres of huger came, which Aseneth the doughter of Putiphar preest of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyrst sonne * Manasse/ for God (sayd he) hath made me forget all my laboure, and all my fathers houshold. The second called he Ephraim, for God (sayd he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seuen plentyfull yeres that were in the lande of Egypt were ended, then came the seuen yeres of * derth, according as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet fode. When now all the land of Egypt began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharao for bread. And Pharao sayd vnto all Egypte: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that do. And when the derth was throughout all the lande/ Joseph opened all that was in the cityes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypt to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

¶ Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. He knoweth and tryeth them. Symeon is put in pryson/ the other returne to theyr father to fetche Benjamin. His father lothe to let hym go, at last graunted.

CAPI. XLII.

Gen.xli.b

When Jacob sawe there was corne to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to his sonnes: Why are ye negligent? Beholde I haue herde that there is corne to be solde in Egypt. * Get you thither & bye vs corne from thence, that we may lyue and not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne in Egypte/ for Jacob wolde not sende Benjamin with his other brethren: for he said, some misfortune myght happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the land. And his brethren came and fell flat on the grounde before hym. When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them, but made straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them saying: whence come ye? and they sayde: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vytayle. Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembred his * dreames whiche he dreamed of them/ and sayde vnto them, ye are spyes, and ye come to se where the lande is weake. And they sayd vnto hym: nay my lord, but to bye vitayle thy seruauntes are come. We are all one mans sonnes/ and we meane truly/ and thy seruauntes are no spyes. He said vnto them: nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your commynge. And they sayd: we thy seruauntes are.xij. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father/ but one no man woteth where he is. Joseph said vnto the/ that is it that I said vnto you, that ye are surely spyes. Hereby ye shal be proued. For by the lyfe of Pharao ye shall not go hence tyl your yongest brother be brought hither. Sende therfore one of you to fetche your brother, and ye shall be in pryson in the meane season. And therby shall your wordes be proued/ whether ye be true, or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto them, the thyrde day. This do, and ye shal lyue/ for I feare god. Yf ye meane truly, let one of your brethren be bounde in pryson, and go ye and beare necessary fode to your houshoulds, and bryng with you your yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes may be proued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

Then they sayd one to an other: we haue verily synned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the anguysshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wolde not heare hym: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them saying. Spake I not vnto you that ye sholde not * synne agaynst the chylde? but ye wolde not heare. And nowe verily se, his bloode is ꝑ requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstonde them/ for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wept, and then turned to them agayne & talked with them, and toke out Symeon from them and bounde hym before their eyes, and cõmaunded to fyll their sackes with corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, & to gyue them vitayle to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they laded their asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke for to gyue his asse prouender in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sackes mouthe. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouthe. Then their hertes fayled them, and were astonyed, and sayd one to an other/ how cõmeth it that God dealeth thus with vs? And they came to Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan and told hym all that had happened them sayinge. The lorde of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies to serche the countrey.

* Genesis. xxxvii.b. ꝑ To requite the bloude of the brõ of ¶ an other is to take vengeance of ꝑ cupl dede vnto him/ as in Genesis.ix. & Psa.ix.b and Ezechiel.xii.d

And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father / one is awaye, and the yongest is now with our father in the lãde of Canaan. Then the lorde of the countrey sayd vnto vs: by this shall I knowe whether we meane truly: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessarye for your households, and get you awaye, and bringe your yongest brother vnto me. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So will I deliuer you your brother againe/and ye shall occupye in the lande.

And as they emptied their sackes, behold euery mans bũdell of money was in his sacke. And when both they and their father saw the bundels of money, they were afrayde.

B And Jacob their father sayd vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my children: Joseph is dead, and Symeon is awaye/and ye will take Ben Jamin from me. All these thynges fall vpon me. Ruben answered his father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bring him not to the againe. Deliuer him therfore vnto my hande, and I will bringe him to the againe: But he sayd: my sonne shal not go downe with you, for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. Moreouer some misfortune myght happen vpon him by the way which ye go. And so shulde ye bring my gray hed with sorowe vnto the graue.

Bringe me to my graue: that is ye shal bring me to my death / as in Chap. xxxvii.

C When Ben Jamin was brought they returned with gyftes Symeon is deliuered out of prysõn. Joseph goth asyde & weepeth. They eate together.

CAPI. XLIII.

A And the dereth waxed sore in the lande. And when they had eaten vp the corne whiche they brought out of the lande of Egypt, their father sayd vnto them: go againe and bye vs a litle fode. Then sayd Juda vnto him: the man did testifie vnto vs saying, * loke ye se not my face, onlesse your brother come with you. Therfore yf thou wylte sende our brother with vs, we will go and bye the foode. Yf thou wylte not sende hym, we will not go: For the man sayde vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Israel sayd: wherfore delte ye so cruelly with me, to tell the man ye had yet an other brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet alyue? haue ye not an other brother? And we tolde hym accordynge to these wordes: How coulde we knowe that he wolde bid vs bring our brother downe with vs? Then sayd Juda vnto Israel his father: Sende the lad with me, and we will ryse and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: both we, thou and also our children. I will be suerte for hym / and of my handes requyre hym. Yf I bringe him not to the, and set hym before thyne eyes * let me bere the blame for euer. For onlesse we hadde made this tarying, by this we had ben there twyse and come againe.

C Then their father Israel said vnto them. Yf it must nedes be so now, then do thus, take of the best frutes of the lande in your vessels, and carry the man a present, a quantitie of bawme and a porcion of hony, spyces and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as moch money more with you. And the money that was brought agayn in your sackes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was some ouersyght.

Take also your brother with you, and aryse and go againe to the man. And God almyghty gyue you mercy in the sight of the man and sende you your other brother & also Ben Jamin and I wyl be as a man robbed of his children.

Thus tooke they the present & twyse so moche more money with them, and Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt, and presented them selues to Joseph. When Joseph saw Ben Jamin with them, he sayd to the ruler of his house/bringe these men home, and sley & make redy: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man did as Joseph bad, and brought them in to Josephs houle.

When they were brought to Josephs house/ they were afrayde and sayd, because of the money & came in our sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme/are we brought that they myght pyke a quarell with vs, and laye some thynge to our charge, to bringe vs in bondage and our asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake with him at the doze and sayd.

E Syr, we came hyther at the fyrst tyme to bye fode, and as we came to an Inne, and opened our sackes: behold euery mans * money was in his sacke with full weyghte: But we haue brought it againe with vs, and other money haue we brought also in our handes, to bye fode but we can not tell who put our money in our sackes. And he sayde: be of good chere/ feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hathe put that treasure in your sackes / for I had your money. And he brought Simeon out to them, & led them in to Josephs house, & gaue them water to washe their fete, & gaue their asses prouender: And they made redy their present, against Joseph came at none/ for they herde say that they shulde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they brought the present in to the house to hym, whiche they had in their handes, and fell flat in the ground before him. And he welcomed them courteously, sayinge/ is your father that olde man which ye told me of in good helth? and is he yet alyue? They answered: thy seruant our father is in good helth and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lyft vp his eyes and beheld his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne and sayd: * Is this your yongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for * his hert did melt vpon his brother) & sought where to wepe, and entred in to his chambre, for to wepe there. And he washed his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bad set bred on the table.

And they prepared for hym by hym selfe, & for them by them selues, and for the Egyptians whiche ate with hym by them selues, because the Egyptians may not eate bred with the Hebrues, for that is an ♀ abhominacion vnto the

A And he commaunded the ruler of his house sayeng: fyl the mens sackes with food, as moche as they can carye, & put euery mans money in his bagge mouthe, and put my syluer cup in the sackes mouthe of the yongest and his corne money also. And he dyd as Joseph bad sayde. And in the mornynge as soone as it was lyghte, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet ferre passe, Joseph sayde vnto the rular of his house: Aryse and pursue after the men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe, of whiche my lorde drynketh, and dothe he not prophecye therin? ye haue euyll done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke them and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayth my lorde suche wordes? God forbyd that thy seruauntes shulde do so. Behold, the money which we founde in our sackes mouthes, we brought agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaan: how then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? with whomsoeuer of thy seruauntes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde. Nowe therfore accordynge vnto youre wordes he with whome it is founde, shalbe my seruaunt: but ye, shalbe harmelesse.

And forthwith euerye man toke downe his sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched/ come the eldest, to the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then they * rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the cytie. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph sayde vnto them: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wiste ye not that suche a man as I, can prophecye?

D Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vnto my lorde, what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hathe founde oute the wickednesse of thy seruauntes. Beholde, bothe we and he, with whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruauntes. And he answered: God forbyd that I shulde do so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruaunte: but go ye in peace home to your father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayde: oh my lorde, let thy seruaunte speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wrothe with thy seruaunt: for thou arte euen as Pharao. My lorde asked his seruaunte sayenge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my lorde * we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge ladde which he begat in his age: and the brother of the layde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth hym. Then sayde my lorde vnto his seruauntes, bringe him vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vppon hym. And we answered my lorde, that the lad coulde not go from his father, for yf he wulde leaue his father, his father were but a deed man. Then saydeste thou vnto thy seruantes * onles your yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

Wherfore God sent me afore to make prouision, that ye myght continue in the earth, & to saue your lyues by a greate delyueraunce. So now, it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: and he hathe made me as a father vnto Pharao, and lorde ouer all his house, & ruler in all the lande of Egypte. Haste you therfore, and go to my father, and tell him, thus sayth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lorde ouer all Egypte. Come downe vnto me and tarye not. And thou shalt dwell in the lande of Gosan, and be by me: bothe thou, & thy children, and thy childrens children: and thy wepe, and beastes, and all that thou hast. There will I make prouysyon for the: For there remayne yet fyue yeres of derth, leaste thou, and thy housholde, and all that thou hast, perysshe.

Beholde, your eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that I speake to you by mouthe. Therfore tell my father of all my honoure, whiche I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make hast & bring my father hyther.

And he fell on his brothers Ben Jamins neck and wept, and Ben Jamin wept on his necke. Moreouer he kyssed all his brethren, & wepte vpon them. And after that, his brethren talked with him. And when the tydinges were brought to Pharaos house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased Pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

And Pharao spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beastes, & get you hence, And when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take your father, and youre housholdes, and come vnto me, and I will geue you the beste of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatte of the lande. And commaunded also. This do ye: take charettes with you, out of the lande of Egypte, for your children, and for your wyues: and bringe your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shal be yours.

And the children of Israel dyd accordyngly. And Joseph gaue them charettes at the commaundement of Pharao, and gaue them vytayle also, to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them, chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thre hundred peces of syluer, and fyue chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent lyke wyse ten asses laden with good out of Egypte, and ten she asses laden with corne, bread and meat: to serue his father by the waye. So sent he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not oute by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte / and entred the lande of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde him, sayenge. Joseph is yet a lyue, and is gouernour ouer all the lād of Egypte. And Jacobs hert was troubled, but he beleued them not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whiche he had sayde vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes which Joseph had sent to carye him, then his spyrytes reuyued. And Israel sayde. I haue ynought, yf Joseph my sonne be yet alyue: I will go and se hym, or that I dye.

¶ Jacob with all his houshold goeth to Joseph in to Egypt. The genealogie of Jacob. Joseph meeteth his father.

CAPI. XLVI.

ISrael toke his * iourney, with all he had, and came vnto Berseba, and offred offrynges vnto the God of his father Isaac. And God sayde vnto Israel in a vysyon by nyght, and called vnto him: Jacob Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am that myghtye God of thy father, feare not to go downe into Egypte. For I will make of the a great people. I will go downe with the into Egypte, and I will also bringe the vp agayne, and Joseph shall ‡ put his hande vpon thyne eyes.

And Jacob rose vp frome Berseba. And the sonnes of Israel caryed Jacob their father, and their children, and their wyues in the charettes, whiche Pharao had sent to carye him. And they toke their catell, & the goodes whiche they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came into Egypt: both Jacob and all his seed with him, his sonnes, and his sonnes sonnes with hym, his doughters, & his sonnes doughters, and all his seed brought he with hym in to Egypte.

These are the names of the children of Israel, whyche came into Egypte, bothe Jacob and his sonnes: * Ruben Jacobs fyrst sonne. The children of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Charmi. The children of Symeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Cananytish woman. The children of * Leui: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari.

The children of * Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, Phares, and Zerah, But Er, and Onan, dyed in the lande of Canaan. The children of Phares, Hezron, and Hamul. The children of Isachar: Tola, Phua, Job and Semlon. The children of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jaheleel. These be the children of Lea, whyche she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia, with his daughter Dina. All these soules of his sonnes and doughters, make thyrty and three.

The children of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Suni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi, and Areli. The children of * Aser: Jemna, Jesua, Jesui, Bria, and Serah their syster. And the children of Bria, were Heber, and Malchiel. These are the children of Silpha, whome Laban gaue to Lea his doughter. And these she bare vnto Jacob, In noumbre syxtene soules.

The children of Rachel / Jacobs wyfe: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph, in the lande of Egypte, were borne: Manasses, and Ephraim, whiche * Aseth the doughter of Putiphar, preest of On, bare vnto him. The children of * Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Asbel, Gera, Naeman, Ehi, Ros, Muphim, Hupim, and Ard. These are the children of Rachel, whiche were borne vnto Jacob. xiiij. soules all togither. The children of Dan: Husim. The children of Nepthalt: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Sillem. These are the sonnes of Bilha, which Laban gaue vnto Rachel his wughter, and she bare these vnto Jacob, all togither. vij. soules. All the soules that came with Jacob into Egypte, whiche came out of his lopnes (beside his sonnes wyues) were all togither. lx. and. vj. soules. And the sonnes of Joseph, whiche were borne hym in Egypte were two soules: So that all the soules of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypte are. lxx.

And he sent Juda before hym vnto Joseph, that she waye myghte be shewed hym vnto Gosan. And they came into the lande of Gosan. And Joseph made redy his charet, & went to mete Israel his father, vnto Gosan, & presented hym selfe vnto hym, & fell on his necke and wepte vpon his necke a good whyle. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I content to dye, for almoche as I haue sene the, & thou arte yet alyue.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren & vnto his fathers house: I will go and shewe Pharao, and tell hym: that my brethren and my fathers house, which were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and howe they are shepardes (for they were men of catell) & they haue brought their shepe and their oxen, and all that they haue, with them. If Pharao cal you, and aske you what youre occupation is / saye: thy seruauntes haue bene occupyed about catell, frome oure childhode vnto this tyme: bothe we and our fathers, that ye may dwell in the lande of Gosan. For the Egyptians abhorre all shepardes.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharao / and vnto him is geuen the lande of Gosan. He sweareth his sonne for his burial.

CAPI. XLVII

AND Joseph went and tolde Pharao, & sayde: my father and my brethren, their shepe and their beastes, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan / & are in the lande of Gosan. And Joseph toke a part of his brethren: euen fyue of them, and presented them vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto his brethren: what is youre occupation? And they sayde vnto Pharao: shepeherdes are thy seruauntes, both we and also our fathers. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * soiorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for their shepe, so sore is the kampshement in the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Gosan.

And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make bothe thy father and thy brethren dwell: And euen in the lande of Gosan let them dwell. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actiuitie amonge them, make the rulars ouer my catell. And Joseph broughte in Jacob his father, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao asked Jacob, howe olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pilgremage, are an hundred and thirty yeres. Fewe and cupll haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of their pilgremages. And Jacob blessed Pharao, and went out frome hym. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao commaunded. And Joseph made prouysyon for his father, his brethren and all his fathers housholde, as ponge children are fed with bread.

There was no bread in al the lande, for the derth was exceadynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were sampshed, by the reason of the derth. And Joseph gathered togither all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whyche they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande of Egypte, & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenaunce: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the: for our money is spent. Then sayde Joseph: bringe your catell, and I will geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought their catel vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oxen and asses: so he fed them with bread, for all their catell, that yere.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, and sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it frome my lorde, how that we haue nepther money nor catell, for my lorde: there is no more left for my lorde, but our bodyes, and oure landes. Wherfore lateli thou vs dye before thyne eyes, and the lande to go to naught? bye vs and our landes for bread: and let bothe vs and our landes be bonde to Pharao. Geue vs seed, that we maye lyue / & not dye, and that the lande go not to wast.

And Joseph bought all the lande of Egipt for Pharao. For the Egyptians solde euery man his lande, because the derth was sore vpon them: and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto the cytes / frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of preestes bought he not. For there was an ordinaunce made, by Pharao / for the preestes, that they shuld eate that whiche was appointed vnto them: whiche Pharao had geuen them, wherfore they solde not their landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: behold I haue bought you this daye, and youre landes for Pharao. Take there seed, and go sow the

F the lande. And of the encrease, ye shall geue ℔ fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and. iiij. partes shal be your owne for seed to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of your housholdes, and for youre children, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my lorde, and let vs be Pharaos seruauntes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that men muste geue Pharao the fyfte parte, except the lande of the preastes only, which was not bounde vnto Pharao.

And Israel dwelte in Egypte: euen in the countrey of Gosan. And they had their possessions therin, and they grewe and multyplyed exceadyngly. Moreouer Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte. xvij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob, was an hundred, and. xlvij. yeres.

When the tyme drewe nye, that Israel muste dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: If I haue found grace in thy sight, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercyfully and truely with me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but let me lye by my fathers and carye me oute of Egypte, and bury me in their buryall. And he answered: I wyll do as thou haste sayde. And he sayde ✱ Iweare vnto me. And he sware vnto hym. And then Israel worshypped the Lorde, and bowed hym vnto the beddes head.

¶ Jacob lyeth sycke. He deuyseth Ephraim and Manasses for his sonnes and blesseth them.

CAPI. XLVIII.

A Fter these wres, tydynge were brought vnto Joseph, that his father was sicke. And he toke with hym his two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph commeth vnto the. And Israel toke his strength vnto hym, and sat vp on the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtye apeared vnto me at ✱ Lus, in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, and sayde vnto me: beholde, I wyll make the growe, and will multyplye the, and will make a great ✱ nombre of people of the, and wyll geue this lande vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the, for an euerlastinge possession. Now therfore thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim, whiche were borne vnto the before I came to the into Egypt, shalbe myne euen as Ruben and Symeon shal they be vnto me. And the children whiche thou getteste after them, shalbe thyne owne: but shalbe called with the names of their brethren in their enheritaunces. And after I came frome Mesopotamia, Rachel ✱ dyed vpon my hande in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when I had but a fridoes breed to go vnto Ephrate. And I buryed her there in the way to Ephrat whiche is now called Bethlehem.

Jacob adopteth the two sonnes of Joseph.

✱Gen.xxxv.c

And Israhel beheld Josephs sonnes, and sayde: what are these? And Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes, whiche God hathe geuen me here. And he sayde: bringe them to me, and let me bleste them. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so that he coulde not well se. And he broughte them to hym, and he kyssed them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I wolde not haue thoughte, that I shoulde haue sene thy face, and yet lo, God hathe shewed it me, and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them awaye frome his lappe, and they fell on the grounde before hym.

Then toke Joseph them bothe: Ephraim in his syght hande towarde Israels left hande and Manasses in his lefthande, towarde Israels syghte hande, and broughte them vnto hym. And Israel stretched oute his syghte hande, and ℔ layde it vppon Ephraims head, whiche was the yonger, and his lefte hande, vppon Manasses head, crossinge his handes, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph, sayenge: God before whome my fathers Abraham and Isaac dyd walke, and the God whiche hathe fedde me all my lyfe longe vnto this daye, And the aungell whiche hath delyuered me frome all euyll, blesse these ladies: that they maye be called after my name and after my fathers Abraham and Isaac, and that they maye growe and multiplye, vppon the earthe.

When Joseph sawe that his father layde his syght hande vppon the head of Ephraim, it displeased hym. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it frome Ephraims head vnto Manasses head, and sayde vnto his father. Not so my father, for this is the eldest. Put thy syght hande vpon his head. And his father wolde not, but sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a ✱ people, and shalbe greate. But of a truthe his yonger brother shalbe greatter then he, and his seed shalbe full of people. And he blessed them, sayenge: At the ensaumple of these, the Israelytes shall bleste, and saye: God make the, as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus set he Ephraim before Manasses.

A THESE ARE THE NA

*Gen.xlvi.b mes of the * chyldren of Israel, whyche came to Egypte with Jacob, euerye man with his housholde: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad and Aser. All these soules proceedinge out of the loynes of Jacob, were. lxx. where as Joseph was in Egypte all redye.

When Joseph was dead, and al his brethern and all the generation: the * children of Israel grewe, encreased, multyplyed, and waxed very myghtye: so that the lande was full of them.

B Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypt whyche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde the people of the children of Israel are mo & myghtyer than we. Come, let vs playe wysely with them: lest they multiplye, and so (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues to oure ennemyes and fyghte agaynste vs, and so gette them oute of the lande.

C And he set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao cyties of defense: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed the, the more they multyplyed and grewe: so that they abhorred the children of Israel. And the Egyptians vexed the children of Israel in bondage without mercye, and made their lyues bitter vnto them, with cruell laboure in clave, and brycke, and all maner worke in the feldes, and in all maner seruice, whyche they caused them to worke, cruelly.

D And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Ebrues women, of whyche the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: When ye do the office of a mydwyfe, to the women of the Ebrues, & se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But yf it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men children.

D Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwyues, and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the menchildren? And the mydwyues answered Pharao/ that the Ebrues women were not as the women of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were delyuered afore the mydwyues came at them. And god therfore delt well with the mydwyues. And the people multyplyed and waxed very myghty. And because the mydwyues feared God, he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people, sayenge. All the menchildren that are borne, caste into the ryuer, and saue the maydechildren a lyue.

¶ Moses kepeth shepe, God appeareth vnto hym in a bushe/ and sendeth hym to the children of Israel/ and to Pharao the oppressour.

CAPI. III

A MOses kepte the shepe of Jethro his father in lawe, preest of Madian, and he droue the flocke to the backsyde of the wylde mesle, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, in a flame of fyre, oute of a bushe. And he perceaued that the bush burned with fyre, and consumed not. Then Moses sayde: I wyll go hence, & see this great syght, how it cometh that the bushe burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe that he came forth to see, he called hym out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered, I am at hand.

The bushe & fyre.

B And he sayde: come not hyther, but put thy shoes of thy fete: for the place wheron thou standest is ꝑ holy ground. And he sayd: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayd to loke vpon God.

ꝑ The scripture vseth to call that holy which eyther ꝑ Lorde choseth vnto hym selfe/ or is dedicate vnto ꝑ Lorde as Exod.xxix.d

Then the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people which are in Egypt, and haue herde their crye, which they haue of their taskemasters. For I knowe their sorow and am come downe to delyuer them out of ꝑ handes of the Egyptians, and to brynge them out of that lande, vnto a good lande, and a large, and vnto a lande that floweth with ꝑ mylke and hony: euen vnto the place of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites, & of the Jebusites. Now therfore beholde, the complaynt of the children of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppression, wherwith the Egyptians oppresse them. But come, I wyll sende the to Pharao, that thou mayste brynge my people the children of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to go vnto Pharao, and to brynge the children of Israel out of Egypte? And he sayde: I wyll be with the. And this shalbe a token vnto the, that I haue sent the: After that thou hast brought the people oute of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon this mountayne.

ꝑ By mylke and hony is vnderstonde aboundaunce and plentye of all thynges appertaynyng the comforte of man.

Then sayd Moses to God: When I come.

Then ſayd God vnto Moſes: ❡ J am that J am: And he ſayde: This ſhalt thou ſaye vnto the childzen of Jſrael: He that is hyd ſende me vnto you. And God ſpake further vnto Moſes: Thus ſhalt thou ſaye vnto the childzen of Jſrael: the Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abzaham, the God of Jſaac, and the God of Jacob, hath ſent me vnto you: this is my name for euer, and this is my memorye all thorowe out all generacions. Go therefore and gather the elders of Jſrael togyther, and ſaye vnto them: The Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abzaham, the God of Jſaac, and the God of Jacob, apeared vnto me, and ſayde: J haue viſited and ſene both you and that whiche is done to you in Egypt. And J haue ſayd it, that J will bringe you out of the tribulacion of Egypte vnto the lande of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorytes, Pherezites, Heuytes and Jebuſytes: a lande that floweth with mylke and hony.

Notwithſtanding J am ſure that the kynge of Egypte will not let you go, oneles it be with a myghtye hande: J wyll therfore ſtretche out myne hande and ſmyte Egypte with all my wonders which J will worke therin. And after that, he will let you go. And ✱ J wyll get this people fauoure in the ſyghte of the Egyptians: ſo that when ye go, ye ſhal not go emptie: but euery wyfe ſhall borowe of her neyghbouresſe, and of her that ſoiourneth in her houſe, iewels of ſyluer and of golde and rayment. CAPI. IIII.

Moſes answered and ſayd: Se, they wil not beleue me nor herke vnto my voyce but will ſaye, the Lorde hath not apeared vnto the. Then the Lorde ſayd vnto hym: What is that in thyne hande? and he ſayde, a rodde. And he ſayde caſt it on the grounde, he dyd caſt it, and it turned vnto a ſerpent. And Moſes ranne awaye fromne it. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: put forth thyne hande and take it by the taple. And he put forth his hand and caught it, and it became a rodde agayne in his hande, and this ſhalt thou ſayth the Lorde, that they maye beleue that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abzaham, the God of Jſaac, and the God of Jacob hath apeared vnto the.

And the Lorde ſayd further more vnto him thruſt thyne hande into thy boſome. And he thruſt his hande into his boſome, and toke it out. And beholde, his hande was leperous euen as ſnowe. And he ſayde: put thyne hande into thy boſome agayne. And he put his hand into his boſome agayne, and plucked it oute of his boſome, and beholde, it was turned agayne as his other fleſh. And Moſes tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lord, whiche he hadde ſent by hym, and all the tokens whiche he had charged him with all. So wēt Moſes and Aarō, and gathered all the elders of the childzen of Jſrael. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whiche the Lorde had ſpoken vnto Moſes, and dyd the myracles in the ſyghte of the people, and the people beleued. And when they herde that the Lorde had vyſited the children of Jſrael, and hadde loked vpon their tribulatiō, they bowed them ſelues and worſhypped.

❡ Moſes and Aaron go vnto Pharao. The people of Jſrael are oppreſſed more and more / and they crye out vpon Moſes and Aaron therfore.

CAPI. V.

Then Moſes and Aaron went and tolde Pharao, thus ſayth the Lorde God of Jſrael. Let my people go, that they may kepe holye daye vnto me in the wyldernelle. And Pharao answered: What felowe is the Lorde, that J ſhuld heare his voyce for to let Jſrael go? J know not the Lorde, neyther will let Jſrael go. And they ſayde: the God of the Hebrewes hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) thre dayes iourney into the deſert, that we maye ſacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God: leſt he ſmyte vs eyther with peſtilence, or with ſwerde. Then ſayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: Wherfore wo ye, Moſes and Aaron, let the people frome their worke, get you vnto youre laboure. And Pharao ſayd furthermore: beholde there is moche people in the lande, and ye make them play, and let their worke ſtande.

And Pharao commaunded the ſame daye the taſkemaſters ouer the people, and the officers, ſayenge: ſe that ye geue the people no more ſtrawe to make dryche with, as ye dyd in tyme paſſed: let them go and gather ſtrawe them ſelues, and the nombre of dryche, which they were wont to make in tyme paſſed, laye vnto their charges alſo, and dymynyſſhe nothinge therof. For they be idell, and therfore crye, ſayenge: Let vs go and do ſacrifice vnto our God. They muſt haue more worke layde vpon them, that they maye labour therin, and then will they not turne them ſelues to falſe wordes.

Then went the taſkemaſters of the people and the officers out, and tolde the people ſayenge: Thus ſayth Pharao: J will geue you no more ſtrawe, but go youre ſelues, and gather you ſtrawe where ye can fynde it, yet ſhal none of your labour be mynyſhed. Then the people ſcatered abrode thorow out all the lād of Egypte, for to gather them ſtubyll, to be in ſtede of ſtrawe.

And the taſkemaſters haſted them forward, ſayenge: Fulfill your werke daye by day, euē as when ſtrawe was geuen you. And the officers of the childzen of Jſrael, which Pharaos taſkemaſters had ſet ouer them, were beaten. And it was sayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taſke in makynge dryche, bothe yeſterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes paſte.

Then went the officers of the childzen of Jſrael, and complayned vnto Pharao, ſayeng: Wherfore dealeſt thou thus with thy ſeruantes? there is no ſtrawe geuen vnto thy ſeruauntes, and yet they ſaye vnto vs: make dryche. And lo, thy ſeruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he aniwered: Yldll are ye, and therfore ye ſaye: let vs go and to ſacrifice vnto the Lorde. Go therfore and worke, for there ſhall no ſtrawe be geuen you, and yet ſe that ye delyuer the hole tale of dryche.

When the officers of the childzen of Jſrael ſawe them ſelfes in thyewde caſe (in that he ſayde, ye ſhall mynyſhe nothinge of your dayly makynge of dryche) then they met Moſes and Aaron, ſtondinge in their waye, as they came out frome Pharao, and ſayd vnto them: The Lorde loke vnto you & iudge, for ye haue made the ſauoure of vs ſtynke in the yghe of Pharao, and of his ſeruauntes, and haue put a ſwerde into their handes to ſley vs.

Moſes returned vnto the Lorde, and ſayde: Lorde, wherfore dealeſt thou cruelly with this people: and wherfore haſt thou ſent me? For ſence J came to Pharao to ſpeke in thy name, he hathe fared foule with this folke, and yet thou haſt not delyuered thy people at all. The the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: Nowe ſhalte thou ſe what J will do vnto Pharao, for with a myghtye hande, ſhall he let them go, & with a myghtye hande, ſhall he dryue them oute of his lande.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: Go and dyd Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he let the childzen of Israel go out of his land. And Moses spake before the Lorde, sayenge: beholde, the childzen of Israel herken not vnto me, howe then shall Pharao heare me: seynge that I haue ¶ vncircumcysed lyppes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron and gaue them a charge vnto the childzen of Israel, and vnto Pharao, kynge of Egypt: to bzynge the childzen of Israel, out of the lande of Egypte. These be the headdes of their fathers houses. The * childzen of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel, are these: Hanoh, Pallu, Hezron, Charmi, these be the houssholders of Ruben. The childzen of Symeon are these: Semuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Cananyteth wyfe: these are the kynredds of Symeon. These * are the names of the childzen of Leui in their generations: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari. And Leui lyued and hundzed and. xxxvij. yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semei in their kynreddes. The childzen of Kahath: Amram, Jesear, Hebzon and Vsiel. And Kahath lyued an hundzed and. xxxiij. yere. The childzen of Merari are these: Maheli and Musi: these are the kynreddes of Leui in their generatiõs.

And Amrã toke Jochebed his nece to wyfe which bare hym Aaron and Moses. And Amram lyued an hundzed and. xxxvij. yere. The childzen of Jezear: Korah, Nepheg and Sychri. The childzen of Vsiel: Misael, Elzaphã and Sithri.

And Aaron toke Elizaba dughter of Aminadab and syster of Nahason, to wyfe: which bare hym Nadab, Abehu, Eleazar and Ithamar. The childzen of Korah: Assir, Elkana, and Abiasaph: these are the kynreddes of the Korahites. And Eleazar Aarons sonne, toke hym one of the dughters of Putuel to wyfe, whiche bare hym Pinehas: these be the principall fathers of the Leuites / in their kynredds.

These are that Aaron and Moses to whom the Lorde sayde: carye the childzen of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, with their armyes These are the same Moses and Aaron which spake to Pharao kynge of Egypte, that they myght bzynge the childzen of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayenge, I am the Lorde, se that thou speake vnto Pharao the kynge of Egipt all that I saye vnto the. And Moses answered before the Lorde: I am of vncircumcysed lyppes, howe shall Pharao then geue me audience?

¶ Tokens. The rodde of Moses is tourned to a serpent. The sozcerars do the same. The waters are tourned into bloude.

CAPI. VII.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, I haue made the Pharaos God and Aaron thy brother shal be thy prophete. Thou shalt speke all that I cõmaunde the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao: that he sende the childzen of Israel out of his lande. But I will harden Pharaos hert, that I maye multiplye my myracles and my wondzes in the lande of Egypte. And yet Pharao shal not herken vnto you, that I may set myne hande vpon Egypte, and bzynge out myne armyes, euen my people the childzen of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, with great iudgementes. And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lorde, when I haue stretched forth my hande vpon Egypte, & haue brought out the childzen of Israel from them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded them. And Moses was. lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron. lxxxiij. when they spake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: When Pharao speaketh vnto you, and sayth: Shewe a wondze, then shalte thou saye vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and caste it before Pharao, and it shall turne to a serpente. Then wente Moses and Aaron to Pharao, and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodde before Pharao and his seruauntes, and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharao called for the wyse men and * enchaunters of Egypte: and they dyd in lyke maner with their sozcerye. And they caste downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde ate vp their roddes: and yet for all this Pharaos herte was hardened, so that he herkened not vnto them, accozdynge as the Lorde had sayde.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses. Pharaos herte is hardened, and he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharao in the mornynge, for he will come vnto the water, and stonde thou vpon the ryuers bzynke, against he come, and the rodde whiche turned to a serpent take in thyne hande. And saye vnto hym: the Lorde God of the Hebzues hath sent me vnto the, sayenge: let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernesse: but hytherto vnto thou woldeste not heare. Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde: hereby thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde. Beholde, I will smyte with the staffe that is in myne hande, the waters that are in the ryuer, and they shall turne to bloude. And the fysshe that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall stynke, so that it shall greue the Egyptians to bzynke of the water of the ryuer.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: take thy staffe & stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their streames, ryuers, pondes, & all pooles of water, that they maye be bloude, and that there may be bloude in all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wodde and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer, in the sight of Pharao, and in the sight of his seruauntes, and al the water that was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the fish that was in the ryuer dyed, * and the ryuer stanke: so that the Egyptians coulde not bzynke of the water of the ryuer. And there was bloud thorow out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters of Egypte, dyd lykewyse with their enchauntementes, so that Pharaos herte was hardened, and dyd not regarde the, as the Lorde had sayde. And Pharao turned hym selfe, & went into his houlle, and set not his herte there vnto. And the Egyptians bygged rounde aboute the ryuer for water to bzynke, for they coulde not bzynke of the water of the ryuer. And it contynued a weke, after that the Lorde hadde smyten the ryuer.

¶ The plage of frogges. Moses prayeth for Pharao. The plage of flyes.

CAPI. VIII.

The Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande with frogges. And the ryuer shall sceale with frogges, and they shal come vp, & go into thyne houlle and into thy chaumbze, where thou slepeste, and vppon thy bedde, and into the houlles of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy bytayles, whiche thou haste in store. And the frogges shall come vppon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forthe thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and pondes. And bzynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the sozcerers dyd lykewyse with their sozcery, and the frogges came vp, vppon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses, and Aaron, and sayde: Praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and frome my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they may do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharao: Appointe thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for the / and thy seruauntes, and thy people, to bzynge awaye the frogges frome the, and thy houlle, so that they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayde to morowe. And he sayd: euen as thou hast sayd that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord our God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and frome thyne houlles, and frome thy seruauntes, and frome thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vppon the appointment of frogges, whiche he hadde made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accozdynge to the sayenge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houlles, courtes & feldes. And they gathered them togither vpõ heapes so that the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had reste gruen hym, he hardened his herte, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde hadde sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the dulle of the lande, that it maye turne to lyse / in all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched oute his hande, with his rodde, and smote the dull of the earth, and it turned to lyse, both in man and beast, so that all the dulle of the lande, turned to lyse, throwe out all the lande of Egypte. The thyrde plage.

And the enchaunters assayde lykewyse with their enchauntementes, to bzynge forth lyse, but they coulde not. And the lyse were bothe vpon man and beast. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of God. Neuerthelater Pharaos hert was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the mornyng, and stonde before Pharao, for he will come vnto the water: and say vnto hym, Thus sayth the Lorde: let my people go, that they may serue me. If thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, I will sende al maner flyes, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houlles. And the houlles of the Egyptians shalbe full of flyes, and the grounde whereon they are. But I will separate the same daye, the lande of Gosan where my people are, so that there shall no flyes be there: that thou mayste knowe, that I am the Lorde vppon the earth. And I will put a dyuysyõ, betwene my people and thyne. And euen to morow shal this miracle be done.

And the Lorde dyd accozdyngly: and there came noysome flyes into the houlle of Pharao and into his seruauntes houles, and into all the lande of Egypte: so that the lande was marred with flyes. Then Pharao sent for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shulde so offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whiche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abomination vnto the Egyptiãs before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyll therfore go thre dayes iourney, into the wyldernesse, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God as he hath commaunded vs. The fourth plage.

And Pharao sayde: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in the wildernes: onely go not farre away, and se that ye praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyll goo oute frome the, and praye vnto the Lorde, and the flyes shall departe frome Pharao, and frome his seruauntes and frome his people, to morowe. But let Pharao frome henceforth deceaue no moare, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses went oute frome Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd as Moses had sayd, and toke away the flyes frome Pharao, and from his seruauntes, and frome his people, so that there remayned not one. But for all that, Pharao hardened his herte euen then also, and woulde not let the people go.

¶ The mozen of beastes. The plage of botches and soores. The horrible hayle/thonder and lyghtenyng.

CAPI. IX.

A And the Lorde sayde to Moses, go to Pharao and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: let my people go that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, but wilt holde them styl: be- The fyfth plage.
holde, the hande of the Lorde shalbe vpon thy catell which thou hast in the felde, vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, & shepe, with a mighty great moreyne. But the Lorde shall make a diuision betweene the beastes of the Israelites, and the beastes of the Egyptians: so that there shal nothinge dye of all that belonge to the children of Israel. And the Lorde appointed a tyme, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde shal worke this thinge in the lande.

B And the Lorde dyd the thynge on the morowe, and all the catell of Egypte dyed: but of the catell of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharao sent to wete: but there was not one of the catell of the Israelites dead. Notwithstandinge the herte of Pharao hardened, and he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take youre handes full of asshes out of the fornace, and let Moses sprinkel it vp into the ayre. in the syght of Pharao, and it shal turne to dust in all the lande of Egypte, and shall make swellynge soores with blaynes, bothe man and beast, in all the lande of Egypte.

with blaynes, bothe in man and beast, so that the sorcerers coulde not stonde before Moses, for there were botches vpon the enchaunters and vpon all the Egyptians, But the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao, that he herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde had shewed Moses.

C And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the morninge; and stonde before Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: Let my people go, that they maye serue me, or els I will at this tyme send all my plages vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruauntes, & on thy people, that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke me in all the erthe. D If it be so that thou stoppest my people that thou wilt not let them go: beholde, to morow this tyme I will sende downe a myghty great hayle: euen suche one as was not in Egypte sythens it was founded, vnto this tyme. Sende therfore and fet home thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men & beastes whiche are founde in the felde, & not broughte home, shall the hayle fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde, amonge the seruauntes of Pharao made their seruauntes and their beastes flee to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, lefte their seruauntes and their beastes in the felde.

And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake all the trees of the felde: only in the lande of Gosan where the childre of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharao sent and called for Moses & Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue nowe synned, the Lorde is ryghtwyse, and I and my people are wicked. Praye ye vnto the Lorde, that the thonder of God and hayle may ceasse G and I will let you go, and ye shall tary no lōger. And Moses sayde vnto hym: assone as I am out of the cytie, I will sprede abrode my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shal ceasse, neyther shall there be any more hayle: that thou mayst knowe howe that the earthe is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruauntes yet feare not the Lorde God. The flare and the barly were smyten, for the barly was shot vp, and the flare was boulled: but the whete and the rye were not smyte, for they were late sowne.

And Moses went out of the cytie from Pharao, and spredde abrode his handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder and hayle ceased, neither rayned it any more vpon the earth: when Pharao sawe that the rayne and the hayle & thunder were ceased, he synned agayne & hardened his herte: both he and his seruauntes. So was the herte of Pharao hardened, that he wolde not let the children of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde to Moses.

And he turned hym selfe aboute, and went out from Pharao.

B And Pharaos seruauntes sayde vnto hym: How longe shall we be thus cumbred? Let the men go that they may serue the Lorde their god: wylt thou not yet knowe that Egypte is destroyed? And then Moses & Aaron were broughte agayne vnto Pharao, & he sayd vnto them: Go and serue the lorde your god, but who are they that shall go? And Moses answered, we wyll go with yong and old/ yea and with our sonnes and with our doughters/ & with our shepe and oxen must we go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

C And he sayd vnto them: shall it be so? The Lorde be with you/ holde I let you go/ and your children also? Take yede, for ye haue some myschefe in hande. Naye not so, but go ye that are men and serue the Lorde, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Stretche out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypte for grashoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egypt and eate all the herbes of the lande/ and all that the hayle lefte vntouched. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde broughte an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye and all D

And in the morninge the east wynde brought the grashoppers/ and the grashoppers went vp ouer all the land of Egypt and lyghted in all quarters of Egypte very greuously, so that before them were there no suche grashoppers, neither after them shall be. And they couered all the erthe / so that the lande was darke therwith. And they ate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees which the hayle had left, so that there was no grene thyng lefte in the trees and herbes of the felde thorough all the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses and Aaron C

AND the Lorde spake to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying: This moneth shall be your chefe moneth, euē of the fyrst moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you. Speke ye vnto al the felowship of Israel, sayinge: that they take the tenth daye of this moneth to euery housholde a shepe. Yf the housholde be to fewe for a shepe, then let hym and his neighbour that is next vnto his house take accordynge to the nombre of the soules/ and counte vnto a shepe accordynge to euery mans eatynge. A shepe without spot, and a male of one yere olde shall it be/ and out of the flocke of the lambes and the geotes shall ye take it.

And ye shall kepe hym in tyll the .xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shal kyll hym about euen. And they shall take of the bloode, and stryke it on the two syde postes, & on the vpper doze post of the houses, wherin they eate hym. And they shall eate the flesshe the same nyght, roost with fyre and with vnleuended breed/ & with soure herbes they shall eate it. He that ye eate not therof rawe, nor sodē in water/ but roost with fyre: both the heed, fete, and puetenance togyther. And se that ye let nothynge of it remayne vnto the morowyng: yf ought remayne durne it with fyre.

B Of this maner shall ye eate it: with youre lopnes gyrded/ and shoes on your fete/ & youre staues in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste/ for it is the Lordes passeouer, for I wyl go aboute in the lande of Egypte this same night/ and wyl smyte all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beest/ and vpon all the Goddes of Egypte wyll I the Lorde do execution. And the bloode shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherin ye are, for when I se the bloode, I wyll passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you / when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

C And this daye shall be vnto you a remembraunce/ & ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lorde euen throughout your generacyons after you shall ye kepe it holy daye, that it be a custome for euer. Seuen dayes shal ye eate vnleuended breed/ so that euen the fyrst daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of your houses. For who so euer eateth leuended breed from the fyrst daye vntyll the seuenth day, that soule shal be plucked out from Israel. * The fyrst daye shall be a holy feall vnto you/ and the .vij. also. There shall be no maner of worke doone in them/ saue aboute that onely which euery man must eate, that onely may ye do. And se that ye kepe you to vnleuended breed. For vpon that same daye I wyll brynge your armyes out of the lande of Egypte/ therfore ye shall observe this daye, and all your children after you, that it be a custome for euer. The fyrste moneth and the .xiiij. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete breed vnto the .xxj. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seuen dayes se that there be no leuended breed founde in youre houses. For who so euer eateth leuended breed, that soule shall be roted out from the multytude of Israel: whether he be a straunger, or borne in the lande. Therfore se that ye eate not leuended breed, but in all youre habitacyons eate swete breed.

D And Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euery housholde a shepe, and kyll passeouer. And take a bunche of ysope, and dyp it in the bloode that is in the basen/ and stryke it vpon the vpper post, and on the two syde postes, and se that none of you go out at the dooze of his house vntyll the morowyng. For the Lorde wyll go about & smyte Egypte. And when he seeth the blood vpon the vpper doze post, and on the two syde postes, he wyll passe ouer the dooze, and wyll not suffre the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therfore se that thou obserue this thynge, that it be an ordinaunce to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come in to the lande which the Lorde wyll gyue you accordyng as he hath promysed/ se that ye kepe this seruyce. And when your children are you what maner of seruyce is this ye do? Ye shall say, it is the sacrifice of the Lordes passeouer, whiche passed ouer the houses of the children of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued our houses. Then the people bowed them selues & worshypped. And the children of Israel went and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

E And at mydnyght the Lorde smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt, from the first borne of Pharao that sat on his seat, vnto the fyrst borne of the captyue that was in prysō, and all the fyrst borne of catell. Then Pharao arose the same nyght and all the seruauntes and all the Egyptians: * & there was a great crynge throughout Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one deed.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght sayinge: Ryse vp, and get you hence from my people, bothe ye and also the children of Israel, and go and serue the Lorde as ye haue sayde. And take your shepe and your oxen with you as ye haue sayde, and departe and & bielle me also. And the Egyptians were fearce vpon the people, and made haste to send them out of the lande: for they sayde: we be all deed men.

And the people toke the dough before it was soured whiche they had in store, and bounde it in clothes/ and put it vpon their shoulders. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses: and they borowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and iewels of golde / and rayment. And the Lorde gat the people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians, and so they borowed and robbed the Egyptians.

F Thus toke the children of Israel their iourney from Rameses to & Sucboth. vj. hundred thousande men of foote, besyde children. And moche common people went also with them, and shepe and oxen, and catel exceding moche. And they baked swete cakes of the dought whiche they brought out of Egypte / for it was not soured, bicause they were thrust out of Egypt and could not tary, neyther had they prepared any other prouysyon of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellynge of the children of Israel whiche they dwelled in Egypte was .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yere. And when the iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres was expyred, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hoostes of the Lorde out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght to be obserued to the Lorde / bycause he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght of the Lorde, to be kepte of all the children of Israel and of their generacyons after them.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses & Aaron: this is the maner of passeouer: there shall no straunger eate therof / but all the seruauntes that are bought for money shall ye circumcise, and then let them eate therof. A straunger and a hyred seruaunt shall not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten. Ye shal cary none of the flesshe out at the dores: moreouer * se that ye breke not a bone therof. All the multytude of the children of Israel shall obserue it.

Num. xv. g

If a straunger dwell among you, and wyll holde passeouer vnto the Lorde, let hym circumcyse all that be males, & then let hym come and obserue it, & be taken as one that is borne in the land. No vncircumcised person shal eate therof. One maner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the lande/ & vnto the straungers that dwell among you. And all the children of Israel dyd as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses and Aaron. And euen the selfe same day dyd the Lorde bryng the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armyes.

¶ The fyrste begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lorde. The memoryall of their deliuerance, why they were caryed throughe the wildernes. The bones of Joseph. The pyller of the clowde.

CAPI. XIII.

A And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying & Sanctifye vnto me all the fyrst borne that open all maner matrices amonge the children of Israel as well of men as of beestes: for they are myne. And Moses sayd vnto the people, thinke on this day / which ye came out of Egypt, and out of the house of bōdage: for with a myghty hande the Lorde brought you out from thence. Se therfore that ye eate no leuded breed. This day come ye out of Egypt, in the moneth of & Abib.

When the Lord hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananytes, Hetbytes, Amorites, Heuytes and Jebusytes, whiche he sware vnto thy fathers that he wolde gyue the a lande wherin mylke and hony floweth, then se that thou kepe this ceremonye in this same moneth. God wolde that the cause of this ceremonie be declared at the tyme of the celebracion therof. & Luke. Psal. cxxv. b.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme sayng: this is done, bicause of that which the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a sygne vnto thy hand vpon thyne hande, and as a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe may be in thy mouthe. For & with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte, se thou kepe therfore this ordynaunce in his season from yere to yere. Moreouer when the Lorde hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananytes, as he hath sworne vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath gyuen it the, then thou shalt appoynt vnto the Lorde all that openeth the matrye, all the fyrst borne amonge the beestes whiche thou hast yf they be males. And all the fyrst borne of the asses, thou shalt redeme with a shepe: yf thou redeme hym not, then breake his necke. But all the fyrst borne amonge thy children shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne axeth the in tyme to come sayinge: what is this? thou shalte saye vnto hym: with a myghty hande the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharao was lothe to let vs go/ the Lord slewe all the fyrst borne in the land of Egypt: as well the fyrst borne of men as of beestes. And therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lorde all the males that open the matrice, but all the first borne of my children I must redeme. And this shall be as a token in thyne hande, and as a thing hanged vp betwene thyne eyes bycause the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande.

D When Pharao had let the people goo, God caryed them not thorow the land of the Philistynes, though it were a nye waye, thynkynge that the people myghte happely repent when they se warre, and so turne agayne to Egypt: therfore god led them about thorow § wildernesse that bordereth on the red see. The children of Israel went harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with hym: for he made the children of Israel sweare saying * God wyl surely vysyt you, take my bones therfore away hence with you. And they toke their iourney from Sucoth, and pitched their tentes in Etham in the edge of the wyldernes. * And the Lorde went before them by day in a pyller of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pyller of fyre to gyue them lyght, that they myght go bothe by day and nyght. * And the pyller of the cloude neuer departed by day, nor the pyller of fyre by nyght out of the peoples syght.

13 And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, then Pharaos herte and all his seruauntes turned agaynste the people and sayde: why haue we this done, that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? And he made redye his charettes and toke his people with hym, & toke .vj. hundred chosen charettes and all the charettes of Egypte, and captayns vpon all his people. For the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israel, whiche neuertheles went out thorow an hye hande, and the Egyptians folowed after them, and ouertoke them where they pytched by the see with all the horses and charettes of Pharao and with his horsemen and his host: fast by the entrynge of Hiroth before Baal Zephon. And Pharao dresse nye/ and when the chyldren of Israel lyfte vp theyr eyes, and sawe that the Egygtians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde, & cryed out vnto the Lorde.

C Then sayd they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bringe vs awaye to dye in the wyldernesse? wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, to carye vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte sayinge, let vs be in rest and serue the Egyptians? For it had ben better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernesse. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stande styll and beholde how the Lorde shall saue you this day: For the Egyptians whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer, The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall be styll.

D The Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche forthe thy hande ouer the see and diuyde it asondre, that the chyldren of Israel may go on drye ground, thorow the mydest therof. And beholde, I wyll harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they may folow you. And I wyll get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his hoost vpon his charettes, and vpon his horse men. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes and vpon his horsemen.

E And the aungell of god whiche went before the hoost of Israel, remoued and went behynd them. And the clouden pyller that was before them, remoued and stode behynde them, & went betwene the host of the Egyptians & the host of Israel. It was a darke cloude, & gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the nyght longe the one couldo not come at the other.

* When Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, the Lorde carryed awaye the see with a strong east wynd that blewe all night, and made the see drye lande, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thorow the mydest of the see vpon the dry ground. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on their eyght hande and on their lefte. F And the Egyptias folowed, and went in after them to the mydest of the see, with all Pharaos horses and his charettes & his horsemen. And in the mornynge watche the Lorde loked vnto the hoost of the Egyptians out of the fiery and cloudye pyller, & troubled theyr hoost, and smote of theyr charet wheles, and caste them downe to the grounde. Then sayd the Egyptians: Let vs flee from Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst vs. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande ouer the see, that the water may come agayn vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyr charettes and horsemen.

Then stretched forth Moses his hande ouer the see/and it came agayne to his course early in the mornynge/and the Egyptians fledde agaynst it. Thus the Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the mydest of the see/ and the water returned and couered the charets & the horsemen: so that of all the hoost of Pharao that came in to the see after them, remayned not one. But the children of Israel went vpon dry land in the mydest of the see, and the water was a wall to them, both on the eyght hand of them and also on the lefte.

* Thus the Lorde delyuered Israel the selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians/ and Israel sawe the Egyptians dead vpon the see syde. His tolye captaynes are drowned in the red see/ the drye waters haue couered them: they sonke to the botome as a stone. Thyne hande Lorde is glorious in power/ thyne hande Lorde hath all to dasshed the ennemye. And with thy great glorye thou hast destroyed thyne aduersaryes/ thou sentest forthe thy wrathe, and it consumed them as stobell. With the breth of thyne anger the water gathered togyther and the floodes stode styll as a roche/ and the depe water congeled togyther in the mydest of the see.

I wyll satisfye my lust vpon them: I wyll drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy breth and the see couered them, and they sanke as lead in the mighty waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, amonge goddes: who is like the, so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and that dooest wonders? Thou stretchedest out thy eyght hande, & the erth swalowed them. And thou carriedest with thy mercye this people whiche thou delyueredest, and broughtest them with thy strength vnto thy holy habitacion. The nacions herde, and were afrayde, panges came vpon the Philistynes. Then the dukes of the Edomytes were amased/ and trembelynge came vpon the myghtyest of the Moabytes, and all the inhabiters of Canaan waxed fayne herted. Let feare and dred fall vpon them thorow the * greatnesse of thyne arme, and let them be as styll as a stone: whyle thy people passe thorow, o Lorde, whyle the people passe thorow, whiche thou hast goten. Bringe them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thyne enheritaunce, the place Lorde whiche thou hast made for to dwell in/ the sanctuarye Lorde, whiche thy handes haue prepared.

The Lorde reygne euer and alwaye. For Pharao went in on horsebacke with his charettes and horsemen in to the see, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the see vpon them. And the chyldren of Israel went on drye lande thorow the middest of the see. And Mirjam a yphetesse the syster of Aaron, toke a tymbrel in her hand, & all the wome came out after her with tymbrels in a daunce. And Mirjam sang before them: Sing ye vnto the Lorde, for he is become glorious in dede: the horse and his ryder hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. Moses brought Israel from the red see, and they went out in to the wyldernesse of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernesse, and could fynd no water. At last they came to Mara: but could not drinke of the waters for bitternesse, for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Mara. Then the people murmured against Moses, saying: * What shal we drinke? And Moses cried vnto the Lorde, and he shewed hym a tree which he caste in to the waters, and they waxed swete.

There he made vnto them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued them, and said: If ye wyll herken to the voyce of the Lorde your God, and do that which is eyght in his syght, and gyue eare to his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: I wyll put none of these diseases vpon you, whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians/ for I am the Lorde God your surgeon.

AND * they came to Elim, where were xii. welles of water, and lxx. date trees, & they pytched there by the water. And And they toke their iourney from Elim, and al the hole companye of the chyldren of Israel came to the wyldernesse of Sin, whiche lyeth betwene Elim and Sinai, the .xv. daye of the .ij. moneth after that they were come out of the lande of Egypte. And the hole multytude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynste Moses and Aaron in the wyldernesse/ and sayd vnto them: wolde God we had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sate by the fleshpottes, & ate bread our belyes full/ for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernesse to kyll this hole multytude for hunger.

Murmour.

Then sayd the Lorde to Moses: beholde, I wyl rayne bread from heuen downe to you, and let the people go out, and gather daye by daye that I may proue them whether they wyl walke in my lawe or no. The .vj. day let them prepare that whiche they wyll bringe in, and let it be twyse as moche as they gather dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall know that it is the Lorde, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, and in the mornynge ye shall se & the glorye of the Lorde: because hathe herde youre grudgynges agaynste the Lorde: for what are we that ye sholde murmure agaynste vs. And moreouer Moses said. At euen the Lorde wyll geue you flesshe to eate, and in the mornynge bread ynoughe, because the Lorde hathe herde your murmure which ye murmur agaynst hym: for what are we? your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lorde.

& The glorye of the Lorde is here taken for the brightnes and lyght that was sene in the clowde. Of which glorye & Apostle maketh mencion .ii. Corin. iii. c. d.

And Moses sayd to Aaron: Say to all the company of the chyldren of Israel, come forth before the Lorde, for he hath herde your grudgynges. And while Aaron spake vnto the hole multytude of the chyldren of Israel, they loked towarde the wyldernesse: and beholde the glory of the Lorde appeared in a cloude. And the Lorde spake to Moses sayinge: I haue herd the murmuryng of the children of Israel, tell them therfore and saye that at euen they shal eate flesshe, and in the morynng they shal be spilled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quayles came and couered the grounde where they laye: And in the mornynge the dewe laye rounde about the hoost. * And when the dewe was fallen, beholde it laye vpon the ground in the wyldernesse small and rounde and thyn as the horse frost on the grounde. When the chyldren of Israel saw it, they sayd one to an other what is this? For they wyst not what it was. And Moses sayd: * this is the bread which the Lord hath gruen you to eate. This is the thyng which the Lorde hath comaunded that ye gather euery man ynough for hym to eate: a gomer full for a man accordyng to the nombre of you, and gather euery man for them whiche are in his tente.

And the.vj. day they gathered twyse so moche breed, that is to wyte, two gomers for one man/ and the rulers of the multytude came and told Moses. And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayde: to morowe is the Saboth of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wyll bake, and seethe that ye wyll sethe, and that remayneth laye vp for you, & kepe it tyll the morninge. And they layde it vp tyll the morninge as Moses bad, and it stanke not, neither was there any wormes therin. And Moses said: eate this to day: for to daye it is the Lordes Saboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes ye shall gather/ for the.vij. is the Saboth: in it shall be none.

Notwithstandyng there went out of the people in the.vij. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: how long shall it be ere ye wyl kepe my cõmaundementes and lawes? * Se, because the Lorde *Ezech.xx.b hath geuen you a Saboth, therfore he geueth you the sixt daye breed for two dayes. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: take a cruse, and put a Gomer full of Man therin/ and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kept for your chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. ¶ The Israelytes come in to Raphidim. They grudge. water is geuen them out of the rocke. Moses lyfteth vp his handes, and they ouercome the Amalechytes.

CAPI. XVII.

a AND all the company of the childre of Israel went on their iourneys from the wyldernesse of Sin at the commaundement of the Lorde, and pitched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drynke who chode with Moses and sayde: Geue vs water to drynke. Moses sayde vnto them: Why chyde ye with me, and wherefore do ye tempte the Lorde? So the people thyrsted for water, and murmured agaynste Moses, and sayde: wherfore hast thou brought vs out of b Egypte, to kyll vs and our chyldren and our catell with thurst?

So Moses cryed to the Lorde saying, what shal I do vnto this people? they be almost redye to stone me. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: go before the people, and take with the of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherwith thou smotest the ryuer take in thyne hande and go. Beholde I wyll stande there vpon a rocke in Horeb: and thou shalte smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out therof, that the people may drynke.

c *Exo. Num. Psal. 1.Cor.

* And Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel: And called the name of the place Massa, and Meriba, because of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayinge: Is the Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amelech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayd vnto Josua: chose out men, and go fyghte with Amelech. To morowe I wyll stande on the top of the hyll, and the rodde of God in myne hande. And Josua dyd as Moses bade hym, & fought with the Amelechites. And Moses, Aaron and Hur wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And when Moses helde vp his handes, Israel had the better. And when he late his hand downe Amelech had the better.

When Moses handes were weery, they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he sate downe theron. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedye vntyll the sonne was downe. * And Josua discomfited Amelech and his people with the edge of his swerde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses, write this for a remembraunce in a boke and tell it vnto Josua, for I wyl put out the remembraunce of Amelech vnder heuen. And Moses made an alter, and called the name of it * Jeouah Nisi/ for he sayde: the hande is on the syght of the Lorde, that the Lorde wyll haue warre with Amelech throughout all generations.

¶ Jethros counsell is receyued of Moses.

CAPI. XVIII.

a IEthro the preest of Madian Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel his people, how that the Lorde had brought Israel forthe of Egypte. And he toke Zephora Moses wyfe, after she was sent backe, and her two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson / for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a straunge lande. And the other was called Eliezer, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the swerde of Pharao. So Jethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe to Moses in the wyldernes: where he had pytched his tent by the mounte of God. And he sent worde to Moses: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and her two sonnes with her. And Moses b went forthe to mete his father in lawe, and dyd dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym / and they saluted eche other and came in to the tent. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharao, and to the Egyptians for Israels sake/ and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, & how the Lorde hadde delyuered them. And Jethro reioyced ouer all the good whiche the Lorde had done to Israel/ and that he had delyuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayd: blessed be the Lorde, which hath delyuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and oute of the hande of Pharao, and hath delyuered his people from the power of the Egyptians. Now I know that the Lorde is greater then all Goddes, bicause they dealt proudly with them. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt offrynges and sacrifyces to God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breed with Moses father in lawe before God.

c And it chaunced on the morowe that Moses sate to iudge the people/ and the people stode aboute Moses from morninge tyl euen. When his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayd: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy selfe, and letrest all the people stande about the from morninge vnto euen? And Moses sayd vnto his father in lawe, bycause the people came vnto me to seke counsell of God. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene euery man and his neighbour, and must shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde to him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou doest vnwisely, and also this people that is with the, bycause the thynge is to grenous for the, * and thou art not able to do it thy selfe alone. But heare my voyce, and I wyll geue the counsell, and God shall be with the. Be thou vnto the people to ϑ Godwarde, and bringe the causes vnto God/ and prouyde them ordinaũces and lawes/ and shewe them the way wherin they muste walke, and the werkes that they muste do. Moreouer sehe out amonge all the people men of actiuite, whiche feare God, and men that are true, & hate couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people, rulers ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten. And let them iudge the people at all seasons: Yf there be any great matter, let them bringe that vnto the, and let them iudge all small causes them selues, and ease thy selfe, and let them beare with the. If thou shalte doo this thynge, then thou shalte be able to endure that whiche God chargeth the with all, and all this people shall goo to their places quietly.

And Moses herde the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men out of all Israel, and made them heedes ouer the people, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyftyes, & ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, and brought the harde causes vnto Moses, & iudged all small matters them selues. And then Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his owne lande.

¶ The chyldren of Israel come to the mounte Sinai. The people of God are holy and royal preesthod. He that toucheth the hill dyeth. God appeareth to Moses on the mount in thonder and lyghtenynge.

CAPI. XIX.

a THE thirde moneth after the chyldren of Israel were gone out of Egypt, the same daye they came in to the wyldernesse of Sinai. * For they were departed from Raphi- *Num.xxxiii.a dim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched their tentes in the wyldernes. And there Israel pytched before the mounte. And Moses wente vp to God. And the Lorde called to him out of the mountayne, saying/ thus saye to the house of Jacob, and tel the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd to the Egyptians, and how I toke you vp vpon eagles wynges, and haue brought you vnto my selfe. Now therfore yf ye wyll heare my voyce, and kepe myne appoyntmẽt, ye shal be mine owne aboue all nations, for all the erth is myne. Ye shal be vnto me a kyngdom of preestes, and an holy people, these are the wordes which thou 1.Peter.ii.b shalte saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elders of Israel, and layde before them all these wordes, whiche the Lorde had commaunded him. And the people answered all together and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayd, we wyll doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I wyll come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke with the, and also bileue the for euer. So Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

b And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Goo vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morowe, and let them ϑ washe their clothes, that they maye be redye agaynste the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyll come downe in the syght of all the people vpon mounte Synai. And sette markes rounde aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp in to the mounte, and that ye touche not the borders of it/ for who so euer toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thorowe: whether it be beest or man, it shall not lyue/ when the horne bloweth, then let them come vp in to the mountayne. ϑ The washynge of the clothes is but a mocion to purifye the hartes. Reuerence;

c And Moses went downe from the mounte to the people, and sanctified them, and they washed their clothes. And he sayde vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, & se that ye come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morninge there was thunder, and lyghtenyng, and a thycke cloude vpon mount, and the voyce of the horne wared exceedynge loude, and all the people that was in the hoste was afrayde. And Moses brought the people out of ϑ tentes to mete with God, and they stode vnder the hyll. ϑ This proueth not that wedlocke is an vnholy thyng but willeth vs time of prayer and serious meditacion to requyre ours

And mounte Sinai was al together on a smoke: because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as it had ben the smoke of a fyr, and al the mount was exceadynge fearfull. And the voyce of the horne blewe and waxed lowder & lowder. Moses spake, and God answered him and that with a voyce. And the Lorde came downe vpon mount Sinai, euen in the top of the hyl, and called Moses vp into the top of the hyll. And Moses wente vp.

D And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Goo downe and charge the people that they preasse not vp vnto the Lorde to se him, lest so many of them perysshe. And let the preestes also whiche come to the Lordes presence, sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde smyte them. Then Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: the people can not come vp into the mount Sinai, for thou chargedest vs sayinge: set markes aboute the hyl, and sanctifye it. And the Lorde sayd vnto him: away, and get the downe, and come vp agayne bothe thou and Aaron with the. But let not the preestes and the people presume to come vp vnto the Lorde, lest he smyte them. And Moses wente downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

CAPI. XX.

E AND God spake all these wordes & sayd: I am the Lorde thy God, which haue brought the out of the lande of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage. Thou shalte haue none other Goddes in my syght. Thou shalte make the no grauen ymage, neither any symilitude that is in heuen aboue, either in the erth beneth, or in the water that is beneth the erth. Se that thou neither bowe thy selfe vnto them neither serue them / for I am the Lorde thy God stronge ✣ gelous, and vysyte the synne of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thyrde and fourth generacion of them that hate me, and yet shewe mercy vnto thousandes amonge them that loue me and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne / for the Lorde wyl not holde him gyltles that taketh his name in vayne.

Remembre the Saboth daye that thou sanctifye it. Syx dayes thou shalt labour, and do al that thou hast to do, but the seuenth day is the Saboth of the Lorde thy God, in it thou shalte do no manner worke: neither thou, nor thy sonne, nor thy doughter, neither thy man seruaunt, nor thy mayde seruaunt, neither thy cattell, neither the straunger that is within thy gates. For in syx dayes the Lorde made both heuen and erth and the see, & all that in them is, and rested the seuenth daye: wherfore the Lorde blessed the Saboth daye, and halowed it. ✣ Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the.

Thou shalte not kyll.

Thou shalte not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalte not steale.

Thou shalte beare no false wytnes agaynst thy neyghboure.

Thou shalte not couet thy neighbours house: neither shalte couet thy neighbours wyfe, his man seruaunte, his mayde, his oxe, his asse, or ought that is his.

✣ And all the people sawe the thonder and the lyghtenynge, and the noyse of the horne, and how the mountayne smoked. And when the people sawe it, they remoued and stode a farre of, and sayd vnto Moses: talke thou with vs, and we wyl heare, ✣ but let not God talke with vs lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people, feare not, for god is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be amonge you that ye synne not.

And the people stode a farre of, and Moses went in to the thicke cloude, where God was. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye haue seue howe I haue talked with you out of heuen: ye shal not make therfore with me Goddes of syluer, nor Goddes of golde: in no wise shal ye do it. ✣ An alter of erth thou shalt make me, and theron offre thy burnt offrynges, and thy peace offeringes, and thy shepe, and thyne oxen. And in al places where I shal put the remembraunce of my name, thyther wyl I come to the, and ✣ bielle the. But if thou wylt make me an alter of stone, se thou make it not of hewyd stone, for if thou lyft vp thy tole vpon it, thou shalte defyle it. Moreouer thou shalt not go vp with steppes vnto myne alter, that thy foulnesse be not shewed theron.

CAPI. XXI.

THese are the lawes whiche thou shalte set before the. ✣ If thou bye a seruaunt that is an Hebrue: sixe yeares he shall serue, and the seuenth he shall goo oute free payinge nothynge. If he came alone, he shal goo oute alone: If he came maryed, his wyfe shal go out with hym. And yf his master haue gyuen hym a wyfe, and she haue borne hym sonnes or doughters: then the wyfe and her chyldren shall be her masters, and he shal goo out alone. But yf the seruaunte saye, I loue my master, and my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyll not goo oute free: Then let his master bringe hym to the ✣ Godes, and set hym to the doore or the dooze poste, and bore his eare thorowe with a neule, and let hym be his seruaunte for euer.

If a man sell his doughter to be a seruaunt, she shal not go out as the men seruauntes do. If she please not her master, so that he hathe gruen her to no man to wyfe, then shal he let her go free: to sell her vnto a straunge nation shal he haue no power, because he despised her. If he haue promysed her vnto his sonne to wyfe, he shal deale with her as men doo with their doughters. If he take him an other wyfe, yet her foode, rayment, and duty of mariage shal he not mynysshe. If he do not these thre vnto her, then shal she go out free and paye no money.

money. ✣ He that smyteth a man that he dye shal be slayne for it. If a man laye not awayte but God deliuer him in to his hande, then I wyl poynte the a place whyther he shal flee. If a man come presumptuously vpon his neighbour and slee him with gyle, thou shalte take him from myne alter that he dye. And he that smyteth his father or his mother shal dye for it.

He that stealeth a man and selleth him (yf it be proued vpon him) he shal be slayne for it. ✣ And he that curseth his father or mother, shall be put to death for it. If men stryue together, and one smyte an other with a stone or with his fyste, so that he dye not, but kyeth in bed: yf he ryse agayne, and walke wout vpon his staffe, the shal he that smote him go quite, saue onely he shal beare his charges whyle he laye in bed, and paye for his healynge.

If a man smyte his seruaunte or his mayde with a staffe that they dye vnder his hande, it shal be auenged. But yf they contynue a daye or two, it shal not be auenged, for they are his money. When men stryue and smyte a woman with chylde, so that her frute depart from her, and yet no mysfortune folowe: then shal he be amerced accordynge as the womans husbande wyl laye to his charge, & he shal pay as the iuges men appointe hym. But ✣ yf any mysfortune folowe: then shall he paye lyfe for lyfe, eye for eye / tothe for tothe / hande for hande / foote for foote / burnynge for burnynge / wounde for wounde / and stripe for stripe.

If a man smyte his seruaunt or his mayde in the eye, and put it out / he shal let them goo free for the eyes sake. Also yf he smyte out his seruauntes or his maydes tothe, he shall let them go out free for the tothes sake. If an oxe gore a man or a woman that they dye, then the oxe shal be stoned, and his flesh shal not be eaten / and his master shal go quyte.

If the oxe were wonte to runne at men in tymes past, and it hathe ben tolde his master, and hath not kepte him, but that he hath kylled a man or a woman, then the oxe shal be stoned, and his master shal dye also. If he be set to a somme of money, then he shal gyue for the deliueraunce of his lyfe, accordynge to al that is put vnto hym. And whether he hath gored a sonne or a doughter, he shal be serued after the same maner. But yf it be a seruaunte or a mayde that the oxe hathe gored, then he shal gyue vnto their master the somme of thyrtye ✣ sycles, and the oxe shall be stoned.

If a man open a wel or dygge a pyt, and couer it not, but that an oxe or an asse fal therin, the owner of the pyte shal make it good, and gyue money vnto their master, and the deed beest shal be his.

If one mannes oxe hurte an others that he dye: then they shal sel the lyue oxe, and deuyde the money, and the deed oxe also they shal deuyde. But yf it be knowen that the oxe hathe vsed to pushe tymes paste, then bycause his master hathe not kepte him / he shal paye oxe for oxe, and the deed shal be his owne.

¶ Moses goeth vp to the mount and wryteth the wordes of the Lorde. The bloude of the couenaunt. The elders of Israel iudge the people.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A

And he said vnto Moses: come vp to the Lord, thou & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel, and worshyp a farre of. And Moses wente him self alone vnto the Lorde, but they came not nye, neither came the people vp with hym. *Moses then came and tolde the people al the wordes of the Lorde, and all the lawes. And all the people answered with one voyce and sayd: all the wordes whiche the Lorde hath sayde, wyll we do. Then Moses wrote all the wordes of the Lorde, and rose vp early, and made an alter vnder the hyll, and.xij. pyllers accordyng to the nombre of the.xij. trybes of Israel, and sent yong men of the chyldren of Israel to sacrifyce burnt offrynges, and do offre peace offrynges of oxen vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke halfe of the bloode, and put it in basens/ and the other halfe he sprynckled on the alter.

And he toke the boke of the appoyntment, and red it in the audience of the people. And they sayd: All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl do and heare. And Moses toke the bloode, and sprynckled it on the people, and sayd: beholde, this is the bloode of the appoyntment, whiche the Lorde hath made with you vpon all these wordes.

Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel vp, & sawe the God of Israel, and vnder his feete as it were a worke of Saphir, and as it were the facion of heuen when it is clere, and vpon the nobles of the chyldren of Israel he set not his hande. And when they had sene God, they ate and dronke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: come vp to me in to the hyll, and be there, and I wyll gyue the tables of stone, and a lawe and commaundements which I haue wrytten to teache them. Then Moses rose vp, and his ministre Iosua / and Moses wente vp in to the hyll of God, and sayde vnto the elders: tarye ye here tyll we come againe vnto you: And beholde here is Aaron and Hur with you. If any man haue any maters to do, let him come to them. When Moses was come vp to the mounte/ a cloude couered the hyll, and the glory of the Lorde abode vpon mounte Sinai, and the cloude couered it sixe dayes. And the seuenth daye he called vnto Moses out of the cloude. And the facyon of the glorye of the Lorde was lyke consumynge fyre on the toppe of the hyll in the syghte of the chyldren of Israel. And Moses wente in to the mountayne. And Moses was in the mounte fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes.

And they shall make me a sanctuarye that I may dwel amonge them. And I shal shewe the, the facion of the habitacion, and of all the ornamentes therof, euen so se that ye make it in all thynges. And they shall make an arke of sethim wod, two cubites and an halfe long, a cubyte and an halfe brood, and a cubyte and an halfe hye. And thou shalte ouerlaye it with pure golde, bothe within and without, and shalte make a. bye vpon it a crowne of golde rounde about. And thou shalt cast foure rynges of golde for it, and put them in the foure corners therof, two rynges on the one syde of it, and two on the other. And thou shalte make staues of sethim wodde, and couer them with golde, and put the staues of the rynges alonge by the sydes of the arke to beare it withall. And the staues shal abyde in the rynges of the arke, and shal not be taken awaye. And thou shalt put in the arke the wytnes which I shal gyue the.

And thou shalte make a mercy seate of pure golde, two cubites and a halfe longe, and a cubyte and a halfe broode. And make two cherubyns of thycke golde on the two endes of the mercy seate, and set the one cherub on the one ende, and the other on the other ende of the mercy seate: so se that thou make them on the two endes therof. And the cherubyns shall stretche their wynges abrode ouer on hyghe, and couer the mercy seate with their wynges / and their faces shal loke one to an other: to the mercy seate warde, shal the faces of the cherubyns be. And thou shalte put the mercy seate aboue vpon the arke, and in the arke thou shalte put the wytnes which I wyl gyue the.

There I wyl mete the. and wyl common with the vpon the mercy seate, betwene the two Cherubyns whiche are vpon the arke of wytnesse, of all thynge whiche I wyll gyue the in commaundement vnto the chyldren of Israel.

Thou shalte also make a table of sethym wodde of two cubytes longe, and one cubyte broode, and a cubyte and an halfe hye. And couer it with pure golde, and make there to a crowne of golde rounde aboute. And make vnto that an hoope of foure fyngers brode, rounde aboute. And make a golden crowne also to the hoope rounde aboute. And make for it foure rynges of golde, and put them in the corners that are on the foure fete therof, harde vnder the hoope shal the rynges be, to put in staues to beare the table withal. And thou shalte make staues of Sethym wodde, and ouerlaye them with golde, that the table maye be borne with them. And thou shalte make his dysshes, sponces, pottes, and slatte peces to poure out withall, of fyne golde. And thou

CAPI. XXVI.

A Nd thou shalte make an habitacyon
with tenne curtaynes of twyned bysse, Iacynct, scarlet, and purple/and shalt make them with cherubyns of brodred worke.
The lengthe of a curtayne shall be .xxviij. cubytes, and the bredth foure / and they shall be
all of one measure: fyue curtaynes shall be coupled togyther one to an other / and the other fyue lykewyse shall be coupled togyther
one to an other.

Then shalte thou make loupes of Iacynct
colour, alonge by the edge of the one curtayne
euen in the selfuege of the couplynge curtayne.
And lykewyse shalte thou make in the edge of the vttermost curtayne, that is coupled ther-
with on the other syde. Fyfty loupes shalte thou make in the one curtayne, and fyfty in the edge of the other that is coupled therwith
on the other syde: so that the loupes be one ouer agaynst an other. And thou shalte make fyfty buttons of golde, and couple the cur-taynes togither with the buttons, that it may be an habitacion.

And thou shalt make eleuen curtaynes of
gotes heere, to be a tente to couer the habi-tacion. The length of a curtayne shall be. xxx.
cubytes/and the bredth foure / and they shall be all .xi. of one measure. And thou shalte couple fyue by them selues, and the other syxe by them selues, and shalte double the syxte in the fore fronte of the tabernacle. And thou shalte make fyfty loupes in the edge of the vtter-
most curtayne on the one syde, euen in the cou-plynge curtayne: and as many in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other syde.
And thou shalt make fyfty buttons of braſſe,
and put them on the loupes, and couple the tent togyther withall, that there maye be one couerynge.

And the remnaunt that remayneth in the cur-taynes of the tente, the bredth of halfe a curtayne, that remaineth shal be left on the backe
syde of the habitacō: a cubyte on the one syde
and a cubyte on the other syde, of that that remayneth in the length of the curtaynes of the tabernacle, which shall remayne of either syde
of the habitacion, to couer it with.

And thou shalt make an other couerynge for
the tent of rammes skynnes dyed red/ and yet
an other aboue all of taxus skynnes.

And thou shalte make bordes for the habi-tacion of Sethim wodde to stande vpryghte, ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. Two fete shall one borde haue to couple them togyther with, and so thou shalt make vnto all the bordes of the tabernacle.

And thou shalte make .xx. bordes for the ha-bitacion on the south syde, & thou shalte make
xl. sockettes of syluer, and put them vnder the
xx. bordes, two sockettes vnder euery borde for theyr two feete. In lyke maner in the northe
syde of the habitacion there shall be. xx. bordes
and .xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder euery borde.

And for the west ende of the habitacion shalt thou make syxe bordes, and two bordes moo
for the two Weste corners of the habitacion:
so that these two bordes be coupled togyther
benethe, and lykewyse aboue with clampes.
And so shall it be in bothe the corners. And so there shall be eyght bordes in all, and sixtene
sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euer borde.

And thou shalte make barres of Sethimwood, fyue for the bordes of the one syde of the tabernacle, and fyue for the other syde, and fyue for the bordes of the west ende. And the myddle barre shall goo alonge thorowe the myddes of the bordes, and barre them togy-ther frome the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalte couer the bordes with golde, and make golden rynges for them to put the barres thorowe, and shalte couer the barres with golde also. And rere vp the habitacion accor-dyng to the facion therof that was shewed in the mounte.

And thou shalte make a vayle of Iacynct,
of scarlet, purple, and twyned bysse/ and shalt make it of brodred worke, and full of cherubyns. And hange it vpon foure pyllers of sethim wod couered with golde, and that theyr
knoppes be couered with golde also, and stand vpon foure sockettes of syluer. And thou shalte hange vp the vayle with rynges, and shalte
bryng in within the vayle the arke of wytnes.
And the vayle shall deuyde the holy frome the moost holy. And thou shalte put the mercye seate vpon the arke of wytnesse in the holyest place. And thou shalte put the table without the vayle, and candelstycke ouer agaynst the table vpon the south syde of the habitacion.
and put the table on the north syde.

And thou shalte make an hangynge for the
doze of the tabernacle, of Iacynct, of scarlet,
of purpul and of twyned bysse wrought with nedle worke. And thou shalte make for the hangynge, fyue pyllers of Sethim wodde, and couer bothe theym and their knoppes, with golde, and shalte caste fyue sockettes of braſſe
for them.

¶ Yet mo thynges pertaynynge to the holy place.

CAPI. XXVII.

A Nd thou shalt make an aultare of Sethim wodde: fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, that it be foure-square, and thre cubytes hyghe. And make it homes procedinge out in the foure corners of it, & couer it with braſſe. And make his asche-pannes, shouels, basens, flesshookes, fyrepā-
nes, and all the appertenaunces, of braſſe, &
thou shalt make a gredyern also lyke a net, of braſſe: vpon whose foure corners, shalbe .iiij.
braſen rynges: and the gredyern shall reache
vnto the myddes of the altare. And thou shalte make staues for the altare of Sethim wodde, & couer them with braſſe, and let theym be put in rynges alonge by the sydes of the altare to beare it with, and make the aulter holowe with bordes: as it was shewed the in the mounte,
so let them make it.

And thou shalt make a court vnto the habitation, whiche shall haue in the southe syde hangynges of twyned bysse, beynge an hundred cubytes longe, and. xx. pyllers therof, with their. xx. sockettes of braſſe: but the knoppes
of the pyllers and their bowpes shalbe syluer.
In lykewyse on the northe syde, there shall be hangynges of an hundred cubytes longe, and
xx. pillers with their sockettes of braſſe, and the knoppes and the bowpes of syluer. And in the bredth of the court westwarde, there shall be hangynges of fyfty cubytes longe, and ten py llers, with their ten sockettes. And in the bredth of the courte eastwarde, towarde the sprynge of the sonne, shalbe hangynges of. l.
cubytes.

So there shalbe hangynges of. xv. cubytes
in the one syde of it, with thre pyllers. and. iij.
sockettes: and lykwyse on the other syde shal
be hangynges of. xv. cubytes with. iij. pyllers
and. iij. sockettes.

And in the gate of the courte shalbe a vayle
of twenty cubites: of Iacinct, scarlet, purpul
and twyned bysse wrought with nedle worke
and. iij. pyllers with their. iij. sockettes. All the pyllers rounde aboute the courte, shall be bowped with syluer, and their knoppes of si uer, and their sockettes of braſſe. The length of the court shalbe an hundred cubytes, and the bredth. l. and the heygth fyue, and the hangynges shall be of twyned bysse, and the sockettes of braſſe. And all the vessels of the habytation to all maner seruyce, and the pyn nes therof: bee and the pynnes also of the court shalbe braſſe.

And commaunde the children of Israel that they gyue the pure oyle olyue beaten for the lyghtes to powre alwaye into the lampes. In the tabernacle of wytnesse without the vayle whiche is before the wytnesse: and Aaron and his sonnes shall dresse it bothe euen and mor-nynge before the Lorde: and it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto youre generacions after you: to be gyuen of the children of Israel.

¶ Aarons apparell, and his sonnes.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A Nd take thou vnto the Aaron thy bro ther and his sonnes with hym, forth of the children of Israel, that he maye minister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, both honourable & glorious. Moze-ouer speke vnto al that are wyse harted, whi-
che I haue fylled with the spirite of wysdome:
that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate
hym with, that he maye mynister vnto me.
because there in was contained the couenaunt and witnes where vnto god wolde that the children of Israell shuld trust, as Leuitic. xvi. c A

These are the garmentes whiche they shal
make: a breſtlappe, Ephod, a tunycle, a brayde cote, a mytre and a gyrdell. And they shal make holy garmentes for Aaron thy brother, and his sonnes, that he maye mynister vnto me.
A breſtlappe or breſtlappe is suche a lappe as is the breſt of a cope.

And they shall take therto golde, Iacincte, scarlet purpull and bysse. And they shall make the Ephod of Golde, iacynct, scarlet, purpul
and whyte twyned bysse with broderd worke.
The two sydes shall come togyther, closed vp in the edges therof. And the gyrdell of the Ephod shalbe of the same worckmanshyp and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, iacincte, scarlet,
purpull and twyned bysse.

And thou shalt take two Onyx stones, and graue in them the names of the children of Is rael: sixe in the one stone, and the other sixe in the other stone: accordynge to the order of their byrth. After the worke of a stonegrauer, euen as sygnettes are graue, shalt thou graue
the. ij. stones with the names of the children of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in ou
ches of golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, &
they shalbe stones of remembraunce vnto the children of Israel. And Aaron shal beare their names before the Lorde vpon his two shoulders for a remembraunce. And thou shalt make hokes of golde and two cheynes of fyne golde lynkewoorke and wrethed, and fasten the wrethed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the breſtlappe of iud-gement with broderd worke: euen after the worke of the Ephod, shalte thou make it: of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse shalt thou make it. Fowresquare it shalbe, & double, an handbrede longe, and an hande
brede brode. And thou shalte fyll it with. iiij.

Hardios, a Topas, and an Emeraude. The seconde rowe, a Rubye, Saphie and Dia-monde. The thirde: Lygurios, an Achat and Amatist. The fourth: a Turcas, Onix, and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their incloseres. And the stones shall be grauen, as sygnettes be grauen: with the names of the children of Israel euen with twelue names e-uery one with his name accordynge to the xij

two fastenynge cheynes of pure golde & wrethen worke. And thou shalte make lykewyse vpon the brestlappe two rynges of golde, and put them on the edges of the brestlappe, and put the two wrethen cheynes of golde, in the two rynges, whiche are in the edges of the brestlappe. And the two endes, of the .ij. cheynes, thou shalt fasten in the two rynges, and put them vpon the shulders of the Ephod on the forefyde ofte. And thou shalt yet make .ij. rynges of golde, and put them in the two edges of the brestlappe euen in the borders therof towarde the inside of the Ephod that is ouer against it. And yet two other rynges of golde thou shalt make, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer against the brestlappe, alowe where the sydes are ioyned together vpon the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shal bynde the brestlappe by his rynges, vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of Jacincte, that it maye lye closse vnto the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod, that the brestlappe be not loosed from the Ephod.

E And Aaron shall beare the names of the children of Israel, in the brestlappe of iudgement, vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holye place, for a remembraunce, before the Lorde alway. And thou shalt put in the brestlappe of iudgement * Urim and Thumin: & they be vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the Lorde, and Aaron shall beare the ensaumple of the children of Israel, vpon his herte, before the Lorde alwaye.

* Urim and Thumin, are Hebrewe wordes. Urim significth lyght and Thumin perfectnes.

And thou shalte make the tunycle vnto the Ephod, all together of Jacincte. And there shalbe an hole for the heed, in the myddes of it, and let there be a bonde of wouen worke rounde aboute the coler of it, (as it were the coler of a parliet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of Jacincte, of scarlet, and of purple, round about the hem, & belles of golde betwene them rounde about: that there be euer a golden bel and a pomgranate, rounde aboute vpon the hem of the tunycle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him, when he ministreth, that the sound maye be herde, when he goeth into the holy place, before the Lorde, and when he cōmeth out, that he dye not.

F And thou shalt make a plate of pure golde, and graue theron, (as sygnettes are grauen) ✠ the holynesse of the Lorde, and put it on a lace of Jacincte, and tye it vnto the mytre, vpon the forefront of it, that it be vpon Aarōs forehed: that Aaron beare the * synne of the holy thinges which the childrē of Israel haue halowed in all their holy gyftes. And thou shalte make them lynen breches to couer their priuities: From the lopnes vnto the thyes shall they reach. And they shalbe vpon Aaron and his sonnes, whē they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altar to minister in holynes that they beare no synne, and so dye. ¶ The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. XXIX.

THis is the thynge that thou shalt do vnto them when thou halowest them to be my prestes. Take one ore and two rammes that are without blemysh, and vnuended bred, and cakes of swete bred tempered with oyle, and wafers of swete bred, annoynted with oyle (of wheten flour shalte thou make them) and put them in a maunde and bringe them in the maunde with the ore, and the two rammes.

And bringe Aaron and his sonnes, vnto ✠ dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water, and take the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the strayte cote, and the cuncle of the Ephod, and the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrde them to him, with the brodered gyrdell of the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed, and put the holy crown vpon the mytre. Then take the annoyntinge oyle, and powre it vpon his heed and anoynt him. And bringe his sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrde them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sonnes. And put the bonettes on them, that the prestes office maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fyll the handes of Aarō and of his sonnes, and bringe the ore before the tabernacle of wytnesse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon his heed, and kyll him before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And take of the bloude of the ore and put it vpon the hornes of the altar, with thy fyngar and powre all the bloud vpon the botome of the altar, and take all the fat that coureth the inwardes, and the kall that is on the lyuer, and the two kydneis with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the altar: But the flesh of the ore & his skynne and his donge shalt thou burne with fyre without the hoste, For it is a synne offeringe.

Then take one of the rammes, and let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpō the heade of the ram, and cause hym to be slayne and take of his bloude, and sprenkel it round about vpon the altar, and cut the ram in peces, and washe the inwardes of him and his legges, and put them vnto the peces, and vnto his heed, and burne the hole ram vpon the altar. For it is a burnt offeringe to the Lorde and a swete sauoure of the Lordes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron and his sonnes, put their handes vpon his heed, & let him than be kylled. And take of his bloud and put it vpon the tryppe of the right eare of Aaron and of his sonnes, & vpon the thombe of their

of their right handes, and vpon the great too of their right fete, and sprenkell the bloude vpon the alter round about.

D Then take of the bloude, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoyntinge oyle, and sprenkell it vpon Aaron, and his vestimentes, and vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his rompe, and the fat that coureth the inwardes, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vpon them, and the right shoulder (for that ram is a full offringe) and a symnell of bred, and a cake of oyled bred and a wafer oute of the basket of swete bred that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aarō, and on the handes of his sonnes: and waue them in & out a waue offringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it frome of their handes, and burne it vpon the alter: euen vpon the burntoffring, to be a sauoure of swetnesse before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Then take the breste of the ram C that is Aarons full offrynge, and shalt sanctifie it an offringe before the Lorde, and let that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waue offringe, and the shoulder of the heueoffringe, which is the fulloffringe of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes duetie for euer, of the children of Israel, for it is an heueoffringe. And the heueoffring shall be the Lordes duetye of the children of Israel: euen of the sacrifice of their peaceofferinges, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde. And the holy garmentes of Aaron, shalbe his sonnes after him, to annoynte them therin, and to fill their handes therin. And that sonne that is preest in his stede after hym, shal put them on seuen dayes: that he go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, to minister in the holy place.

Then take the ram that is the fulloffringe and sethe his flesshe in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate the flesh of him and the bred that is in the basket: euen in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And they shall eate them, because the attonement was made therwith to fyll their handes, and to sanctifie them: but a straūger shall not eate therof, because they are holy.

If ought of the flesshe of the fulloffringes, or of the bread remayne vnto the morninge, thou shalte burne it with fyre: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And se thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so in all thinges as I haue commaunded the: that thou fil their handes seuen dayes, and offre euery day an ore for a synne offringe to reconcyle with. And thou shalt halowe the alter, when thou reconcylest it, and shalt annoynte it, to sanctifie it. Seuen dayes thou shalte reconcyle the G alter, and sanctifie it, that it maye be an alter most holye: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offre vpon the alter two lambes of one yere olde, daye by day for euer, the one thou shalt offre in the morninge and the other at euē. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wyne, for a drynkofringe. And the other lambe thou shalte offer at euen, and shalt do thereto accordynge to the meateoffringe and drynkeoffringe in the morninge, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure of ✠ sacrifice of the Lorde. And it shalbe a continuall burnt offringe, amonge your childrē after you, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, before the Lorde, where I will mete you, to speke vnto you there. There I will mete with the childrē of Israel, and will be sanctyfyed, in myne honoure. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the alter: and I will sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my prestes. And moreouer I wil dwell amōg the childrē of Israel, and will be their God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde their God, that brought them out of the lād of Egypte, to dwell amonge them: euen I ✠ Lorde their God.

¶ The altare of incense. The brasen lauer. The anoyntynge oyle.

CAPI. XXX.

AND thou shalte make an alter to burne A cense therin, of Sethim woodde: a cubyte longe, and a cubyte broade, euen fowresquare shall it be, and two cubytes hye: with hornes procedynge oute of it, and thou shalte ouerlaye it with fyne golde, bothe the rofte, and the walles rounde aboute, and his hornes also, and shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about, and two golden rynges on eyther syde, euen vnder the crowne, to put staues therin, for to beare it withall. And thou shalt make the staues of Sethim woode and couer them with golde. And thou shalte put it before the vayle, that hangeth before the arcke of wytnesse, and before the mercyseate that is before the wytnesse, where I wil mete the.

And Aaron shall burne theron swete sense B euerye morninge, when he dresseth the lampes: and lykewyse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes, he shall burne sense perpetually before the Lorde, throughout your generacyons. Ye shall put no straunge sense theron, neyther burntsacrifice, nor meateoffrynge, neyther poure any drynkeoffrynge theron.

And Aaron shall reconcyle vpon the hornes of it, once in a yere, with the bloude of the synneofferinge of reconcylinge: euen once in the yere shall he reconcyle it throughout your generations. And so is it moste holye vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * When thou takeste the summe of the children of Israel, and tellest them, they shal gyue euerye man a reconcylynge of his soule vnto the Lorde that there be no plage amonge the when thou tellest them. And thus much shall euery man gyue that goeth in the noumbre: halfe a sycle, after the sycle * of the sanctuary A sycle is .xx. gerras: and an halfe sycle shalbe the

the heuesoffringe vnto the Lorde. And all that are nombred of them that are twenty yere old and aboue, shall gyue an heuesoffringe vnto ℣ Lorde. The ryche shal not passe, and the poore shall not goo vnder halfe a sycle, when they gyue an heuesoffringe vnto the Lorde, for the attonement of their soules. And thou shalte take the reconcylinge money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and it shall be a memoriall of the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde, to make an attonnemente, for their soules.

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng:
*Exodi xl.d * Thou shalte make a lauer of brasse, and his fote also of brasse to washe with, and shalte put it betwene the tabernacle of witnesse and the alter, and put water therein: that Aaron and his sonnes may washe both their handes and their fete thereout, when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altare, to mynistre and to burne the Lordes offrynge, lest they dye. And it shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto him & his seed among your children after you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge: take principall spices: of pure myrre fyue hundred sycles, of swete cynamome halfe so moch two hundred and fyfty sycles: of swete calamyte, two hundred and fyfty. Of casia, two hundred and fyfty, after the holy sycle, and of oyle olyue, an hin. And make of them ℣ holy anoyntynge oyle, euen an oyle compounde after the crafte of the Apotycary. And annoynte the tabernacle of wytnesse therwith, and the arke of wytnesse, and the table with al his appertenaunce, and the candelsticke with al his ordinaunce, and the altare of incense, and the alter of buent sacrifice and all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And sacrifice them that they may be moste holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them to mynistre vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayeng: This shalbe an holy oynting oyle vnto me, thorowe outes youre generacyons. No mans fleshe shalbe annoynted therwith: neyther shall ye make any other after the makynge of it, for it is holye, se therfore that ye take it for holy: Who so euer maketh lyke that, or who so euer putteth any of it vpon a straunger, shall perysshe frome his people.

And the Lorde sayde to Moses: Take to the swete spices: stacte, onycha, swete galbanum, and pure frankencens, of eche lyke moche: and make encense of them compounde after the crafte of the apotycary, myngled together, that it maye be made pure and holy. And beate it to powder, and put it before the witnesse, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the, but let it be vnto you holye. And se that ye make none after the makyng of that, but let it be vnto you holy for the Lorde. And who so euer shall make lyke vnto that, to smell there to, shall perysshe frome his people.

C The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the workmen. The Saboth is commaunded. The tables of stone are gyuen Moses.

CAPI. XXXI.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Beholde * I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Ury, sonne to Hur, of the tribe of Juda. And I haue fylled hym with the spirite of God, with wysdome, vnderstandynge and knowledge: euen in all maner worke, to fynde out soteil craftes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, and with ℣ crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in tymbre, and to worke in all maner workmanshyp. And beholde, I haue gyuen hym, to be companyon, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, & in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdom to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arcke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is there vpon all the ornamentes of the tabernacle, and the table with his ordinaunce, and the pure candelsticke with all his apparell, and the alter of incens, and the alter of buent offringes, with all his vessels, and the lauer with his foote, and the vestimentes to mynister in, and the holy garmentes for Aaron the preest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to mynistre in, & the annoyntynge oyle, and the swete sence for the sanctuary: accordynge to all that I haue commaunded the, shall they do.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: In any wyse, se that ye kepe my * Sabboth, for it shall be a signe betwene me and you, in youre generacyons, for to knowe, that I the Lorde doo sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabboth therfore, that it be an holy thinge vnto you. He that defyleth it shalbe slayne therfore. For who so euer worketh there in, the same soule shalbe rooted out frome his people.

Sixe dayes shal men worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabboth, of the holye rest of the Lorde: so that who so euer doeth any worke in the Sabboth daye, shall dye for it: Wherfore let the children of Israel kepe the Sabboth, that they obserue it thorowe out their generations, that it be an appoynteinent for euer. For it shalbe a signe betwene me and the children of Israel, for euer. * For in sixe dayes the Lorde made heauen and earthe, and the seuenth daye he rested and was refreshed.

And when he hadde made an ende of comenynge with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, * he gaue him two tables of wytnesse: which were of stone, and written with the ♆ fynger of God.

C The Israelites worshyp the golden calfe. Moses prayeth for them, puttynge God in remembraunce of his promyse. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The idolaters are slayn. Moses prayeth God to forgyue them, or to put him out of the booke of lyfe.

CAPI. XXXII.

And

And when the people sawe that it was longe or Moses came downe of ℣ mountayne, they gathered them selues together, and came vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto him. * Aryse and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moses thy felow that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, we wote not what is become. Exo.xiii.c

And Aaron sayde vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whiche are in the eares of youre wyues, your sonnes and of your doughters: and bringe theym vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and brought theym vnto Aaron. And he * receyued them of their handes, and facioned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * This is thy God O Israel, whiche brought the out of the lande of Egypte. Deute.ix.b Exo.xiii.f

And when Aaron saw that, he made an altare before it, and made a Proclamation sayenge, To morowe shall be holy daye vnto the Lorde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offred burntoffringes, and brought offringes of attonement also. * And than they sat them downe to eate and drinke, and rose vp agayne to playe. Exo.xxxii.b

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * go get the downe, for thy people whiche thou broughtest oute of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye whiche I commaunded them: * & haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offred therto, & haue sayde: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hath brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: behold * I se this people that it is a styfe necked people and nowe therfore suffre me that my wrathe maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people. Exo.xxxii.b Deute.ix.a

Then Moses besought the Lorde his God and sayde: O Lorde, Why shulde thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people whiche thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte wt greate power and with a myghtye hande? * wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake and say: For a myschefe dyd he bringe theym out: euen to slee them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earth? Turne from thy fearse wrath, and haue compassion ouer ℣ wyckednesse of thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruaūtes, to whō thou swarest by thyne owne selfe, and saydest vnto them: * I will multiplye youre seed as the starres of heauen, and all this lande whiche I haue sayde, I will gyue vnto your seed: & they shall enherete it for euer. And the Lorde repented him selfe frome that euyll, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people. Deute.ix.d

And Moses turned his backe, and wente downe frome the hyll, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande: whiche were writtē on bothe the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the writynge was the writyng of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when Josua herde the noyse of the people as they sou ted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the holde. And he sayde: it is not the crye of them that haue the maistrye, nor of the that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of syngynge.

And as sone as he came myghe vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the dauēsyng, his wrath warmed hote, and he cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it with fyre, and stampt it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made ℣ children of Israel drynke. And than Moses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them? C

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde ware fearse, thou knowyste the people that they are euen set on mischefe: they sayde vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses thy felow, that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayde vnto them: Let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: And I cast it into the fyre, & there of came out this calfe. E

When Moses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame when they made mutremotion) he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, & sayde: If any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues together, and came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth ℣ Lorde of Israel: * Put euery man his sword by his syde, and go in and out from gate to gate thorow out the hoste: and slee euery man his brother, euery man his frende, and euery mā his neyghboure. And the children of Leui dyd as Moses had sayde. * And there were slayne of the people the same daye, aboute three thousande men. Then Moses sayde: fyll youre hādes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpō his sonne and vpon his brother: to bringe vpon you a blessynge this daye. *Nu.xxv.a

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wytte whether I can make an attonement for your synne. *i.Corin.x.b

And Moses went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue synned a great synne, and haue made them a god of gold: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: If not & wype me out of thy boke whiche thou hast written. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will put him out of my boke that hath synned against me. But goo and bringe the people vnto the lande which I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne aungell shall goo before the. Neuertheles in the daye when I visit, I will ‡ visit their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plaged the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made. ♆ To wype hym out of ℣ booke, is to put him oute of the nōbre of the chosen and to take him clean out frome god, as Roman.ix.a. ‡ To visit their sinne is to haue their synn in remēbraunce to punysshen: as in Genesis.l.b

C The Lorde sendeth an angell before his people. The Lorde denyeth to go vp with the people. The people lament their synne. Moses talketh with the Lorde and desyreth to se his face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

CAP. XXXIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou and the people which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypt, vnto the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayenge: vnto thy seed I will gyue it. * And I will sende an angell before the, and will caste oute the Cananytes, the Amorytes, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes: that thou maiste go into a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a styffenecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this euyll tydinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, Say vnto the children of Israell: ye are a styffenecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put youre goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel layde their goodly rayment frome them euen vnder the mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle & pytched it without the hoste a farre offrome the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And all that wolde aske any question of the Lorde, wente oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without the hoste. And when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his tent dore, and loked after Moses, vntyll he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudem pyller descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And when all the people sawe the cloudem pyller stande in the tabernacle doore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent dore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses & face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moses turned agayn into the hoste, the lad Josua his seruaunte the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: See, thou sayest vnto me: Leade this people forthe, but thou wolest me not whom thou wilt sende with me. And hast sayd moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also founde grace in my sighte: Now therfore, yf I haue founde fauour in thy sighte, then shew me thy waye, & let me know the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that this nacyon is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go with the, and I will gyue the rest. And he sayd: If thy presence go not with me, cary vs not hence for how shall it be knowen now that both I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that bothe I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou haste sayde, for thou haste founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseche the, shewe me thy glory: And he sayd: I wyll make all my good go before the, & I will be called in this name Jehouah before the, and wyll shewe mercy to whome I shewe mercye, and wyll haue compassion on whome I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou mayst not se my face, for there shall no man se me and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde, Beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rocke, and whyle my glory goeth forthe, I will put the in a clyfte of the rocke, and will put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I wyll take awaye myne hande, and thou shalte se my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

¶ The tables are renued. The mercye of God. To haue felowshyp with the gentyles is forbydden, and theyr ydolatrie also. The feast of swete breade. The fyrste begotten. The Sabboth. The feaste of thre wekes. The fyrste frutes. Moses fast, Moses face glystreth.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: hewe the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the first, that I may wryte in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, which thou brakest. And be redy against the morning that thou mayst come vp early vnto the moute of Sinai and stande me there vpon the toppe of the mounte. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be sene thorowe out all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone like vnto the first, and rose vp early in the morning and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lorde commaunded him, and toke in his hand the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the cloude, & stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed: Lorde * Lorde God, full of compassion and mercy, whiche arte not lyghtly angery, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forgyuest wickednesse, trespace, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visytest the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the children, & vpon childrens children, euen vnto the thyrde and fourth generations. And Moses bowed him selfe to the erth quickly, and worshypped and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy syght, o Lorde, then let my Lorde go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne enheritaunce.

And he sayd: beholde, I make an apoyntment before all this people, that I wil do marueiles, suche as haue not bene doone in all the worlde, neither amonge any nation. And all the people, amonge which thou art, shal se the worke of the Lorde: for it is a terrible thynge that I wyll do with the: kepe all that I commaunde the this daye, and beholde, I wyl cast out the out before the: the Amorites, Cananytes, Hethytes, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites. * Take hede to thy self, that thou make no leage with the inhabyters of ye lande whether thou goeste, leaste it be cause of ruyne amonge you. But ouerthrowe their alters and breake their pyllers, and cut downe their grones, for thou shalte worshyppe no straunge God. For the Lorde is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: least yf thou make any agreement with the inhabitauntes of the land when they go a hoorynge after their goddes and w sacrifice vnto their goddes, they call ye and thou eate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their doughters vnto thy sonnes, and whe their doughters go a hoorynge after their goddes, they make thy sonnes go a hoorynge after their goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no goddes of metall. The feast of swete bred shalte thou kepe, and seuen dayes thou shalt eate vnleuend bred (as I commaunded the) in the tyme appoynted in the moneth of Abib: for in the moneth of Abib thou camest out of Egypte. All that breaketh vp the matrice shalbe myne, and al that breaketh the matrye amonge thy catell, yf it be male: whether it be oxe or shepe. But ye firste of the asse thou shalte bye oute with a shepe, or if thou redeme him not: se thou breake his necke. All the firste borne of thy sonnes thou must nedes redeme. * And se that no man appeare before me emptye.

Sixe dayes thou shalte worke, and the seuenth thou shalt rest: bothe froune earynge & reappnge. * Thou shalte obserue the feast of wekes with the first frutes of wheate beruell and the feast of ingaderynge at the yeres ende. Thryse in a yere shall all youre men children appeare before the Lorde omnipotent God of Israel: for I will cast out the nacyons before the, and wyll enlarge thy costes, so that no man shall desyre thy lande, whyle thou goest vp to apeare before the face of the Lorde thy God, thryse in the yere.

* Thou shalte not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with leuended bred: neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feast of Passouer be lefte vnto the morninge. The firste of the firste frutes of thy lande, thou shalte brynge vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And se, thou seethe not a kydde in his mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Wryte these wordes, for vpon these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the, and with the children of Israel. * And he was there with the Lorde .xl. dayes, and .xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bred nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moses came downe frome mount Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and wyste not that his face shone with beames of his commenynge with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and all the children of Israel looked vpon Moses, and sawe that the skynne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayde to come nyghe him. But he called them to hym, and then Aaron and all the chiefe of the company came vnto him, & Moses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commaundement vnto them of all that the Lorde had sayde vnto him in mounte Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of talkynge with them, he put a couerynge vpon his face. But when he went before the Lorde to speake with him, he toke the couerynge of, vntyll he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the children of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the children of Israel sawe the face of Moses, that the skynne of his face shone with beames / but Moses put a couerynge vpon his face, tyll he wente in to commen with him.

¶ The Sabboth. The fyrste frutes are requyred. The redynes of the people to offre. Bezaleel and Aholiab are prayed of Moses and set to worke.

CAPI. XXXV.

AND Moses gathered all the companye of the children of Israel togyther, and sayde vnto them / these are the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe commaunded to wo. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye shall be vnto you the holy Sabboth of the Lordes reste / so that who so euer wolde anye worke therein, shall dye. Moreouer ye shall kyndle no fyre thorowe out all youre habitations, vpon the Sabboth daye.

And Moses spake vnto all the multytude of the children of Israel saying * this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaunded, sayinge. Gyue frome amonge you fyrste frutes vnto the Lorde.

All that are wyllynge in theyr hartes, shall brynge fyrste frutes vnto the Lorde: golde, syluer, bralle, Jacyncte, scarlet, purple, bysse, and gotes heare: rammes skynnes reed and taxus skynnes and Sethim wood: and oyle for lyghtes and spices for the anoynting oyle and for the swete encense: & Onyxstones and stones to be set for the Ephod and for the brestlappe.

And lette all theym that are wyse harted among you, come and make all that the Lord hathe commaunded: the habytacion and the tente therof with his couerynge and his ringes, bordes, barres, pyllers, and sockettes, the arke and the staues therof with the mercyseate and the vayle that couered it / the table and his staues, with all that pertayneth therto and the shewbred / the candelsticke of lyght with his furnishynge and his lampes, and the oyle for the lyghtes / the incense alter and his staues, the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete incense and the hangynge before the tabernacle wre / the altare of burntsacrifices, & his brasen gredyron that lyeth therto with his staues and all his ordynaunce, and the

lauer & his fote: the hangynges of the court with his pylers and their fockettes, and the hangynge to the wore of the courte: the pynnes of the habitacion, and the pynnes of the courte with their boozdes: the mynisteinge garmentes to minister with in holynesse, and the holy vestymentes of Aaron the preast and the vestymentes of his sonnes, to mynistre in.

And all the company of the childzen of Israell departed frome the presence of Moses.

And they went (as many as their hertes couraged them, & as many as their spirites made them wyllynge) and brought heueofferinges vnto the Lozde, to the makynge of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and foz all his vses, & foz the holy vestimentes. And the men came with the wemen (euen as many as were wyllinge herted) and brought braceletes, earynges, rynges and gyrdels, and all maner Jewels of golde. And all the men that waued waueofferinges of golde vnto the Lozde and euery mã with whome was founde Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, Bysse oz gootes heare oz red skynnes of Rammes oz Tarus skynnes, brought it. And all þ bone vp golde oz bralle, brought an heueoffrynge vnto the Lozde. And all men with whome was founde Sethim wode mete foz anye manner worke/ oz seruice, brought it.

And all the wemen that were wyse herted to worke with their handes, span & brought the sponne worke, both of Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse. And all the wemen that excelled in wysdome of herte, spanne the gootes hayre. And the Lozdes brought Onix stones and sectiones foz the Ephod, and foz the brestlappe, and spyce and oyle/ bothe foz the lyghtes and foz the annoynteing oyle and foz the swete incense. And the childzen of Israel brought wyllynge offrynges vnto the Lozde, both men and wemen/ as many as their hertes made them wyllinge to bringe, foz all maner worckes which the Lozde had commaũded to make by the hande of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto the childzen of Israel/ beholde * the Lozde hath call by name Bezaleel the sonne of Ury the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, and hathe fylled hym with the spyrite of God, with wysdome, vnderstandinge and knowledge, euen in all maner worke, and to fynde out curyous workes, to worke in golde, syluer and bralle/ & with grauynge of stones to set, and with kettinge in wode, and to worke in all maner of subtle workes. And he hathe put in his herte the grace to teache/ bothe hym and Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan hath he fylled with wysdome of herte, to worke al maner of grauen worke/ they are also broderers and workers with nedle, In Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse, and are weuers that can make all maner worke, and can deuyse subtel workes.

* Exo. xxxi.a.

¶ The thinges that Bezaleel and Aholiab made foz the holy place of the Lozde.

AND Bezaleel wrought and Aholiab & all wyse herted men, to whome the Lozde hadde gyuen wysdome and vnderstandynge, to knowe howe to worke all manet worke foz the holy seruyce, in all that the Lozde commaunded.

And Moses called foz Bezaleel Aholiab, & all the wyse herted men, in whose hertes the Lozde hadde put wysdome, euen as many as their hertes were encouraged to come vnto þ worke to worke it. And they receyued of Moses all the heueofferinges which the childzen of Israel hadde brought foz the worke of the holye seruice to make it with all. And they brought besyde that wyllynge offerynges euery morynge.

And all the wyse men that wrought all the holy worke, came euery man from his worke whyche they made, and spake vnto Moses sayenge/ the people bringe to moche and aboue that is ynoughe to serue foz the worke which the Lozde hathe commaunded to make. And then Moses gaue a commaundement, & they caused it to be proclamed thorow out the host sayenge/ se that neyther man noz woman prepare any moze worke foz the holye heueofferinge. and so the people were forbidden to bringe/ foz the stuffe they had, was sufficient foz them vnto all the worke, to make it and to moche.

And all the wyse herted men among them that wrought in the worke of the habytacõ made/ euen ten curteynes of twyned Bysse, Jacynct, Scarlet, and Purple, and made them full of Cherubins with broderd worke. The length of one curtayne was. xxviij. cubytes, and the bredth foure, and were all of one syse. And they coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and other fyue by them selues. And they made fyfty loupes of Jacynct alog by the edge of the furdest curtayne, euē in the selnege of the coupl̃ynge curtayne/ And lykewyse they made on the syde of the furdest coupl̃ynge curtayne on the other syde, fyfty loupes they made in the one curtayne, and fyfty in the edge of the coupl̃ynge curtayne on the other syde/ so that the loupes were one ouer against an other.

And they made fyfty rynges of golde/ and coupled the curtaynes one to an other with the rynges/ and so was it made a dwellinge place.

And they made.xi. curtaynes of gotes hayre to be a tent ouer the tabernacle thirtye cubytes longe a pece, and foure cubytes brode, & they all. xi. of one syse. And they coupled. v. by them selues, and. vi. by them selues, & they made fyfty loupes alonge by the bozder of the furdest coupl̃ynge curtayne on the one syde/ & fyfty in the edge of the coupl̃ynge couertayne on the other syde. And they made fyfty rynges of brasse to couple the tente togyther that it myght be one. And they made a couerynge vnto the tente of Rammes skynnes reed, and yet an other of Tarus skynnes aboue all.

And

And they made boxdes foz the dwellynge place of Sethim wode that stode vpright euery boxde ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and an halfe brode. And they made two feete to euery boxde of the dwellynge place topninge one to an other. And they made twenty boxdes foz the southsyde of the habitacion, and.xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. boxdes two sockettes vnder euery boxde, euen foz the two feete of theym. And foz the other syde of the dwellynge towarde the Nozth, they made other twenty boxdes with fourty sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery boxde. And behynde in the ende of the tabernacle towarde the west, they made sixe boxdes and two other boxdes foz the corners of the habytacion behynde, and they were ioyned close bothe beneth and also aboue with clampes & thus they dyd to bothe the corners: so they were in all eyght boxdes and. xvi. sockettes vnder euery boxde two sockettes.

And they made barres of Sethim wode. v. foz the boxdes of the one syde of the habitacion and fyue foz the other, and fyue foz the boxdes of the west ende of the habitacion. And they made the myddell barre to shoote thorowe the boxdes: frome the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the boxdes w golde, and made them rynges of golde to thrust the barres thorow, and couered the barres with golde. And they made an hangynge of Jacynct, of Scarlet, Purple and twyned bysse with Cherubins of broderd worke. And made thereunto foure pylers of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. Their knoppes were also of golde, and they cast foz them. xiij. sockettes of syluer. And they made an hangynge foz the tabernacle waye: of Jacynct, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bysse of nedleworke, and the pylers of it were fyue with their knoppes, and ouerlayde the heades of them and the hoopes with golde, with their fyue sockettes of brasse.

¶ The arcke of witnesse. The mercyseate. The table. The candelsticke. The lyghtes. The aulter and the incense

CAPI. XXXVII.

AND Bezaleel made the arcke of Sethim wode two cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubyte and a halfe brode, and a cubyte and an halfe hyghe: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round aboute, and caste foz it foure rynges of golde foz the foure corners of it: two rynges foz the one syde and two foz the other, and made staues of Sethim wode, and couered them with golde, and put the staues in the rynges along by the syde of the arcke to beare it with.

And he made the mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a halfe longe and one cubite and a halfe brode, and made two Cherubins of thicke golde vpõ the two endes of the mercyseate: One Cherub on the one ende, and an other Cherub on the other ende of the mercyseate. And the Cherubins spred out their wynges aboue an hyghe, and couered the mercyseate therewith. And their faces were one to an other: towardes the mercyseate, were the faces of the Cherubins.

And he made the table of Sethim wode. ij. cubytes longe and a cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hyghe, and ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde round about, and made therto an hoope of an hande breadth rounde about, and made vnto the hoope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, & cast foz it foure rynges of golde and put the rynges in the foure corners by the fete: euen vnder the hoope to put staues in to beare the table with. And he made staues of Sethim wode and couered theym with golde to beare the table with, and made þ vessels that were on the table of pure golde, the dysshes, spones, flatpeces and pottes to poure with.

And he made the candelsticke of pure thicke golde: both the candelsticke and his shaft: w braunces, bolles, knoppes and floures procedynge out of it. Sixe braunches, procedynge out of the sydes therof, three oute of the one syde, and three out of the other. And on euery braunche were three cuppes lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and floures thorowe oute the sixe braunches that proceded out of the candelsticke. And vpon the candelsticke self were foure cuppes/ after the facyon/ of almondes with knoppes and floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes, and the braunches proceded oute of it, & were all one pece of pure thicke gold. And he made seuen lampes therto, and the snoffers therof, and fyrepannes of pure golde. An hundred weyght of pure golde, made bothe it and all that belonged therto.

And he made the altare of incense, of Sethim woode, of a cubyte longe, and a cubyte brode: euen foure square, and two cubytes hygh̃e with hornes procedynge out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the coppe and the sydes rounde aboute, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of gold rõd aboute.

And he made two rynges of golde vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon eyther syde of it, to put staues in foz to beare it with: & made staues of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. And he made the holye annoyntinge oyle and the swete pure incense after þ Apothecaris craft.

¶ The aulter of burntoffrynges. The brasen lauer. The somme of that the people offred to the buyldyng of the habytacyon of the Lozde.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

AND he made the burntoffrynge altare of Sethim wode, fyue cubytes longe/ and fyue cubytes brode: euē iiij. square and three cubytes hygh̃e. And he made hornes in the foure cornerss of it procedinge out of it, and ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altare: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, flesshehookes, and colepannes,

F.y. all

all of bzalle.

And he made a bzalen gredyron of net-wozke vnto the altare rounde aboute alowe beneth vnder the compalle of the altare: so that it reached vnto halfe the altare, and cast foure rynges at bzalle, for the foure endes of the gredyron to put staues in. And he made staues of Sethim woode, and couered theym with bzalle, and put the staues in the rynges alonge by the altare syde to beare it, and made the altare holowe with bozdes. And he made the lauer of bzalle, and the fote of it also of bzalle in the sighte of theym that dyd watche before the woze of the tabernacle of wytnelle.

And he made the court with hangynges of twyned Bylle, of an hundzed cubytes longe, vpon the southside, and twenty pylers with twenty sockettes of bzalle: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes were siluer. And on the Northside the hangynges were an hundzed cubytes longe with twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of bzalle, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of siluer. And on the west syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes longe, and. x. pylers with their ten sockettes, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer. And on the east syde towarde the sonne vprynge, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes lōg, and their pylers thze with their three sockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of. xv. cubytes longe, and their pylers thzee with three sockettes. Now all the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of twyned Bylle, and the sockettes of the pylers were bzalle: but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer and the heedes were ouerlayde with syluer, & all the pylers of the courte were hooped aboute with syluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the courte was nedlewozke, of Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bylle twenty cubytes longe and fyue in the bzeedth, accozdynge to the hangynges of the courte. And the pylers were foure with foure sockettes of bzalle, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes ouerlayde with syluer and hooped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute were bzalle.

This is the summe of the habitatiō of wytnelle, which was counted at the commaundement of Moses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preeste. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lozde commaunded Moses, and with hym Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer, and a wozker of nedlewozke in Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bylle.

All the golde that was occupyed vpon all the wozke of the holy place (whiche was the golde of the wauesfferynge) was. xxix. hundzed weyght, and seuen hundzed and thzetye sycles, accozdynge to the holy sycle. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue score hundzed weyght, and a thousande seuen hundzed and. lxxv. sycles of the holy sycle. Euery man offeryng halfe a sycle after the weyght of the holy sycle among them that went to be nombzed frome twenty yere olde and aboue, among six hundzed thousand and thzee thousande, and fyue hundzed and fyfty men.

And the fyue score hundzed weyght of siluer went to the castyng of the sockettes of the sanctuary and the sockettes of the vayle: an hundzed sockettes of the fyue score hundzed weyght, an hundzed weyght to euery socket. And the thousande seuen hundzed and. lxxv. sycles, made knoppes to the pylers, and ouerlayde the heedes and hooped them.

And the bzalle of the wauesfferynge was. lxx. hundzed weyght and two thousande, and foure hundzed sycles. And therwith he made the sockettes to the woze of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and the bzalen altare, and the bzalen gredyron that longeth therto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockettes of the courte rounde about, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pynnes of the habitation, and all the pynnes of the courte rounde about.

¶ The makynges of Aaron and his sonnes apparell. Til that the Lozde commaunded was offered.

CAPI. XXXIX.

And of the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned Bylle, they made the vestimentes of mynistration to mynistre in that holy place, and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bylle. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and the Bylle, with brodered wozke. And they made the sydes come together, and closed them vp by the. ij. edges. And the bzodrynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe and after the same wozke of Golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and twyned Bylle, as the Lozde cōmaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones, closed in ouches of golde and graued as signettes are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, & put them on the shoulders of the Ephod that they should be a remembzaunce of the children of Israel, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And they made the bzestlappe of connynge wozke, after the wozke of the Ephod: euen of Golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple & twyned Bylle. And they made it foure square and double, an handes bzeadth long and an handes bzeadth bzode. And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones (the first rowe Sardios, a Topas, and Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubye, a Saphir & a Diemonde: the third rowe, Ligurios, an Achat & an Amatiste: the fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Jaspis) closed in ouches of golde in their inclosers. And the. xij. stones were grauen as signettes with the names of the children of Israel, euery stone with his name, accozding to the. xij. tribes.

And they made vpon the bzestlappe, two fastenynge chaynes of wzethen wozke & pure golde. And they made two bokes of golde and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of the bzestlappe. And they put the two chaynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the bzestlappe. And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two bokes, and put theym on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefronte of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde and put theym on the two other corners of the bzestlappe a longe vpon the edge, toward the inside of the Ephod that is ouer against it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the forefyde of it, euen where the sydes goo together, aboue vpon the bzodrynge of the Ephod, and they trapned the bzestlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with laces of Jacincte, that it myghte sye fast vpon the bzodrynge of the Ephod, and shoulde not be lowsed frome of the Ephod, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Tunicle vnto the Ephod of wouen wozke, and all together of Jacinct, and the head of the Tunicle was in the mydest of it as the colre of a partlet, with a bond rounde aboute the colre, that it shoulde not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the Tunycle, Pommegranates of Jacynct, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bylle. And they made sycle belles of pure golde, and put the amonge the Pommegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tunycle a bell & a Pomgeranate, a bell and a Pommegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tunycle, to mynister in / as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And they made cootes of bylle of wouen wozke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of Bylle, and goodly bonettes of Bylle, and lynen bzeches of twyned bylle, and a gyrdell of twyned Bylle, Jacynct, Scarlet and purple / euen of nedlewozke, as the Lozde cō maunded Moses.

And they made the plate of the holy crown of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen wozke, the holynes of the Lozde / and tyed it to a lace of Jacynct to fasten it an hyghe vpon the mytre, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the wozke of the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnelle fynyshed. And the children of Israel dyd accozdynge to all that the Lozde badde commaunded Moses.

And they brought the habitation vnto Moses / the tent and all the furniture therof / the buttons, boozdes, barres, pylers and sockettes / and the couerynge of Rams skynnes red / and the couerynge of Taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, and the aecke of wytnelle with the staues thereof, and the mercyseate: the table and all the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbzed, and the pure candelsticke, and the lampes prepared therunto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, and the annoyntynge oyle and the swete incense, and the hangynge of the tabernacle woze, and the bzalen altare / and the gredyron of bzalle longynge therunto with his barres and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, and the hangynges of the courte with his pylers and sockettes, and the hanginge to the courte gate, his boozdes and pynnes, and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and the mynistring vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the preeste and his sonnes rayments to mynistre in / accozdynge to all the Lozde commaunded Moses / euen so the children of Israel made all the wozke. And Moses beheld all the wozke / and se, they hadde wrought it euen as the Lozde commaunded / and then Moses blessed them.

¶ The tabernacle is reared vp. The glozye of the Lozde appeareth in a cloude couerynge the tabernacle.

CAPI. XL.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge. In the first daye of the first moneth shalt thou set vp the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and put therin the arke of wytnelle, and couer the arke with the vayle, and bzynge in the table and appareil it, and bzynge in the candelsticke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde, before the arke of wytnelle, and put the hangynge of the doze vnto the habitatiō. And set the burntoffrynge altare before the woze of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnelle and the altare, and put water therin, and make the court rounde about, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate.

* And take annoyntynge oyle and anoynt the habitation, and all that is therein, and halowe it, and al that belongeth therto: that it maye be holye. And annoynte the altare of the burntoffrynges, and all his vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moste holye. And annoynte also the lauer and his fote and sanctifye it.

Than bzynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and washe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and annoynte hym and sanctifye hym that he mare mynistre vnto me, that their annoyntinge maye be an euerlastinge preasthode vnto them thoroweoute their generacyons. * And Moses dyd

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the L first daye, in the fyrste moneth, in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle/and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bor-des, and put in their barres, and reared vp the pillers, and spred abrode the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente
on hyghe aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in the arcke, and set the staues to the arcke, and put the mercy seate on hyghe vpon the arcke, and brought the arcke into the habitation, and hanged vp the vayle and couered the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of
wytnesse in the Northside of the habitation,
without the vayle, and set the breed in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candelsticke in the tabernacle of witnesse ouer against the table in the southside of the habitation, and set vp the lam-pes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaun
ded Moses.

And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of witnesse before the vayle, and brent swete incense theron as the Lorde commaun-
ded Moses.

And set vp the hangynge in the dore of the habitation, and set the burntofferynge altare
before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse,
and offered burntofferynges and meateoffe-rynges thereon: as the Lorde commaunded D Moses.

And he set the lauer betwene the tabe-

water therin to washe with. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their han-des and their feete thereat: both when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, & when they wente to the altare, as the Lorde com-
maunded Moses.

And he reared vp the court rounde about the

the habitation, so that Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because the cloude abode therin, and the glorye of the Lorde fylled the habitation.

the habytation, the childzen of Israell toke
their iourneys as ofte as they had iour-

The ende of the seconde booke of Moses.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICVS.

The order of burnte offrynges, whether it be of small or great catell or foules.

CAPI. I.

AND the Lorde called Moses, and spake
S vnto him out of the tabernacle of witnes, saying: Speke to the chil dzen of Israel, and saye vnto them: who so e-uer of you shall brynge a gyfte vnto the Lorde shall brynge it of the catteil: euen of the oxen
and of the sheepe.

Yf he brynge a burnt offrynge of the oxen,
he shall bryng a male without blemysshe, and
shall dzynge hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let him put his hand vpon the B heed of the burnt sacrifyce, and fauoure shall be giuen him to make an attonement for him, and let him kyll the ore before the Lorde. And let the preestes Aarons sonnes bring the bloude
and let them sprynkle it rounde aboute vpon
the alter, that is before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And let the burnt offrynges be strypped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the preest put fyre vpon
the alter, and put wod vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces with the heed and the fat
vpon the wod that is on the fyre in the alter.
But the intraples and the legges they shall
washe in water, and the preest shall burne al together vpon the alter, that it be a burnt sacrifyce, and an offryng of a swete odour vnto
C the Lorde.

Yf he wyll offre a burnt sacrifyce of the
sheepe, whether it be of lambes or of the gotes
he shall offre a male without blemysshe. And let hym kyll it on the northe syde of the aulter before the Lorde. And let the preestes, Aarons sonnes sprynkle the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And let it be cutte in peces: euen with his heed and his fatte, and lette the Preeste put them vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aulter. But lette hym washe the intraples and the leg-
ges with water, and then brynge all together and burne it vpon the aulter: that is a burnt offryng, and a sacrifice of swete sauour
vnto the Lorde.

D Yf he wyll offre a burnt offrynge of the foules, he shall offre eyther of the turtle doues, or of the younge pygeons. And the Preeste shall brynge it vnto the aulter, and wrynge the necke asonder, and burne it on the aulter, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the aulter, and plucke awaye his croppe and his fethers, and caste
them beside the aulter on the East part vpon
the heape of asshes, and breake his wynges,
but plucke them not asonder. And then lette
the Preeste burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifyce, and an offrynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

The order of meateoffrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankencens. &c. without leuen and without hony, but not without salte.

CAPI. II.

YF any soule wyll offre a meat offrynge
E vnto the Lorde, his offrynge shall be fyne floure, and he shall poure therto oyle, and put frankensence theron, and shall brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the Preestes.
And one of them shall take therout his hand-full of the floure, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce
vpon the aulter: an offrynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meat offryng shall be Aarons and his sonnes,
as a thynge moost holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

Yf anye man brynge a meate offrynge
F that is baken in the ouen, lette hym brynge
swete cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle,
and vnleuend wafers annopnted with oyle.
Yf thy meate offrynge be baken in the fry-
inge panne, then it shall be of swete floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalte mynce it small, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meat offrynge.

Yf thy meat offrynge be a thynge broyled vpon the gredyron, of floure myngled with oyle it shall be. And thou shalte brynge the meat offrynge that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, and shalte delyuer it to the G preest, and he shall brynge it vnto the aulter,
and shall heue vp parte of the meat offrynge
for a memoriall, and shall burne it vpon the aulter: an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto
the Lorde. And that is lefte of the meat offe-rynge shall be Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thynge that is mooste holy of the offrynges
of the Lorde.

All the meat offrynges which ye shal bryng
vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen.
For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offryng of the Lorde: Notwythstandyng
ye shall brynge the firste frutes of them vnto
the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the aulter, to make a swete sauour.

All thy meat offrynges thou shalt salt with salte: neither shalt thou suffre the salte of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng from thy meat offryng: but vpon all thyne offrynges
thou shalt brynge salte.

Yf thou offre a meat offryng of the first frye
H frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche
is yet grene, and dryе it by the fyre, and beat it small, and so offre the meat offryng of thy first frye frutes. And then poure oyle therto, and put frankensence theron: and so it is a meat-offrynge. And the preest shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the

all the frankencence, for a remembrance, that is an offeryng vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of peax offeryngs, whiche were offerd for the keppyng of peax, made of oxen, shepe, lambes and gotes.

CAPI. III.

a ✱ Exo.xxiii.b

IF any man bryngе a ✱ peax offeryng of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall bryng suche as is without blemysshe before the Lorde: and let hym put his hande vpon the heed of his offeryng, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And Aarons sonnes the Prestes shall sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde about. And they shall offre of the peax offeryng to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fat ꝑ is vpon the inwardes: and the two kydneys, with the fatte that lyeth vpon the loynes, and the hall that is on the lyuer they shall take awaye with the kydneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifyce which is vpon the wod on the fyre: that is a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

b

If a man bryngе a peax offeryng vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemysshe. If he offre a lambe, he shall bryng it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offeryngs heed, and kyll it in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and Aarons sonnes shal sprynckle the bloude therof rounde about the aulter.

And the of peax offeryng they shall bryngе a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte therof and the rompe all togyther whiche they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fatte that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Prestes shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes offeryng with.

If the offeryng be a goote, he shall bryngе it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his heed of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of witnesse, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprynckle the bloude therof vpon the aulter rounde about. And he shall bryngе therof his offeryng vnto the Lordes sacrifyce: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, ✱ vpon the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Prestes shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifyce with, and to make a swete sauour. And thus shal all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generacions after you in youre dwellynge places: that ye eate neyther fat nor bloude.

¶ The offeryng made for synnes doone of ignorance.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a soule synneth thorow ignorance, and hath done any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be doone: If the preest that is anoynted, synne and make the people to doo amysse, he shall bryngе for his synne whiche he hathe done: an ore without blemysshe vnto the Lorde for a synne offering. And he shall bryngе the ore vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of witnesse before the Lorde, and shall put his hande vpon the ore heed, ✱ kyll hym before the Lorde.

B ✱ Le.

And the preest that is ✱ anoynted shal take of the ore bloude, and bryngе it in to the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall dyppe his synger in the bloude and sprynckle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter of swete incense before the Lorde, which is in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall poure all the bloude of the ore vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offeryngs, whiche is by the dooze of the tabernacle of witnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the ore that is the synne offeryng: the fatte that couereth the intraples, and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the two kydneys with the fat that lieth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the hall vpon the lyuer let them take awaye also with the kydneys: as it was taken from the ore of the peax offeryng, and let the Preste burne them vpon the aulter of burnt offeryngs. But the layme of the ore, and all his flesche with his heed, his legges, his intraples with his donge, shall he cary all togither oute of the hoste vnto a clene place: where the asshes are poured oute, and burne hym on wodde with fyre: euen vpon the heape of asshes.

Yf the hole commonaltie of the chyldren of Israel syn thorowe ignorance, and the thing be hyd from their eyes: so that they haue committed any of these thynges which the Lorde hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes and haue offended, and the synne whiche they haue synned be afterwarde knowen, then shall they offre an ore for a synne offeryng, and shall bryngе hym before the tabernacle of witnesse, and the elders of the multitude shall put their handes vpon his heed before the Lorde.

✱ And the Preste that is anoynted, shall bryngе of his bloude in to the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall dyppe his synger in to the bloude, and sprynckle it seuen tymes before the Lorde, euen before the vayle. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter whiche is before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offeryngs, which is by the dore of the tabernacle of

E of witnesse, and shall take all his fatte frome hym, and burne it vpon the aulter, and shall do with his ore as he dyd with the synne offeryng ore. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgyuen them. And he shall bryngе the ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the firste: so is this the synne offeryng of the commonalte.

When a Lorde synneth, and committeth thorow ignorance any of these thynges whiche the Lorde his God hathe forbydden to be doone in his commaundementes and hath so offended: when his synne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hathe synned, he shall bryngе for his offeryng an he goote without blemysshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offeryngs are kylled before the Lorde: this is a synne offeryng. Then let the preest take of the bloud of the synne offeryng with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeryng aulter, and poure his bloude vpon the bottome of the burnt offeryng aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as he dothe the fatte of the peax offeryngs. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym as concernyng his synne, and so it shall be forgyuen hym.

F

Yf one of the common people of the lande synne thorowe ignorance, and commyt any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe forbydden in his commaundementes to be done and so hath trespased, when his synne which he hathe synned is come to his knowlege, he shall bryngе for his offeryng a she gote without blemysshe for his synne whiche he hathe synned, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offeryng, and slee it in the place of burnt offeryngs. ✱ And the preest shal take of the bloude with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeryng aulter, and poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and shall take awaye all his fat as the fat of the peax offeryngs is taken awaye. And the preest shall burne it vpon the aulter for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the preest shal make an attonement for hym, and it shal be forgyuen hym.

G ✱ Leuit.iii.b

If he bryng a lambe, and offre it for a synne offeryng, he shall bryngе a female without blemysshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offeryng, and slee it in the place where the burnt offeringes are slayne. And the preest shall take of the bloude of the synne offeryng with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeryng aulter, and shall poure all the bloude therof vnto the bottome of the aulter. ✱ And he shall take awaye all the fatte therof, as the fatte of the shepe of the peax offeryngs was taken awaye. And the Preest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the preest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

WHen the soule hath synned, and herd the voyce of cursyng, and is a wytnes, whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not vttered it, he shall beare his synne. A Eyther when a man toucheth any vncleane thynge: whether it be the carcon of an vncleane beest, or of vnclene catell or vncleane wormе, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane and hathe offended. Eyther when he toucheth any vnclennesse of man (what so euer vnclennesse it be, that a man is defyled w) and is not ware of it, and after commeth to the knowlege of it, he is a trespacer.

Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lyppes to do euyll, or to doo good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth with an othe) and the thynge be out of his mynde, and afterwarde commeth to the knowlege of it, then he hathe offended in one of these. Then when he hathe synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherin he hath synned, and shall bryngе his trespace offeryng vnto the Lorde for his syn whiche he hathe synned. A femele frome the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goote, for a synne offeryng. And the preest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. ✱ But yf he be not hable to bryngе a shepe, then let hym bryngе for his trespace whiche he hathe synned, two turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons to the Lorde, one for a synne offeryng, and an other for a burnt offeryng. And he shall bryngе them vnto the preest, whiche shall offre the synne offeryng firste, and wryngе the necke a longer of it, but pluckе it not cleane of. And let hym sprynckle of the bloude of the synne offeryng vpon the syde of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude bleede vpon the botome of the aulter, and then it is a synne offeryng. And let him offer the seconde for a burntofferyng as the maner is: and so shall the Preeste make an attonement for him for the synne whiche he hath synned, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

And let the Preest make an attonement for hym for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) and it shall be forgyuen. And the remnaunt shalbe the prestes as it is in the meate offeryng.

When a soule synneth and committeth any of these thynges whiche are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lorde: thoughe he wyst it not, he hathe yet offended and is in synne, and shall bryng a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is estemed to be worthe a synne offeryng, vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorauncе which he dyd, and was not ware, and it shall be forgyuen hym: This is a trespace offeryng, for he trespaced agaynst the Lorde.

a AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespaceth agaynst the Lorde, and denyed vnto his neyghboure that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande or that which he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he hath dyscerued his neyghbour of with subtelte, or hathe founde that whiche was lost and denyeth it, and sweereth falsely in what so euer thyng it be that a man dothe, and synneth therin.

Then when he hath synned or trespaced, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye or the wronge whiche he dyd, or that whiche was delyuered him to kepe, or the lost thynge whiche he founde, or what so euer it be about whiche he hathe sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more therto, and gyue it vnto him to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespace, and shal bryng for his trespace offeryng vnto the Lord a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke that is estemed worth a trespace offeryng vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for him before the Lorde, and it shall be forgyuen hym, in what so euer thyng it be that a man doth and trespaceth therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: b Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeryng. The burnt offeryng shal be vpon the harth of the aulter all nyght vnto the morninge, and the fyre of the aulter shall burne therin. And the preest shall put on his lynnen alde, and his lynnen breches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the asshes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the aulter hath made, and put them beside the aulter, & then put of his rayment, and put on other, and carye the asshes out, without the hoost vnto a clene place.

The fyre that is vpon the aulter shal burne therin, and not go out. And the preest shal put wodde on the fyre euery morninge, and put the burnt sacrifyce vpon it, and he shall burne theron the fatte of the peax offeryngs. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the aulter, and neuer go out. *Lyra.

This is the lawe of the meat offeryng: Aarons sonnes shall bryng it before the Lorde, vnto the aulter: and one of them shall take his handfull of the floure of the meat offeryng and of the oyle with all the frankencens whiche is theron, and shall burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter, to be a swete sauour of the memoryall of it vnto the Lorde. c And the rest therof, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate vnleuended: it shall be eaten in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse they shall eate it. Their parte which I haue gyuen them of my sacrifice shall not be baken with leuen, for it is most holy, as is the synne offeryng, and trespace offeryng. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lorde, neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: this is the offeryng of Aaron and of his sonnes which he shall offre vnto the Lorde in the daye when they are anoynted: the tenth part of an Epha of floure, whiche is a dayly meat offeryng perpetually: halfe in the morninge and halfe at nyght: and in the fryenge panne it shall be made with oyle. And all the meat offerynges that are baken in the ouen, & all that is dressed vpon the gredyron and in the fryeng pan, shall be the preestes that offereth them. And all the meat offerynges that are mingled with oyle or dyre, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as moche as an other.

This is the law of the peax offeringes whiche shall be offered vnto the Lorde. b If he offre to gyue thankes, he shal bryng vnto his thanke offeryng: swete cakes myngled with oyle & swete wafers anoynted with oyle, and cakes myngled with oyle of fyne flowre fryed, and he shall bryng his offeryng vpon cakes made of leuend breed vnto the thanke offeryng of his peax offerynges, and of them all, he shall offre one to be an heue offeryng vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the preestes that syprynckleth the bloude of the peax offerynges. And the fleshe of the thanke offeryng of his peax offerynges shall be eaten the same daye that it is offred, and there shall nought of it be layde vp vntyll the morninge.

Yf it be a vowe of a free wyll offering that he bryngeth that same daye that he offereth it it shall be eaten, and that remayneth maye be eaten on the morow: but as moche of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. For yf any of the fleshe of the peax offerynges be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offred it obtayne no fauour, neyther shall it be reckened vnto him, but shall be an abhominacion, and the soule that eateth of it, shall beare the synne therof.

c The fleshe that toucheth any vncleane thynge, shall not be eaten, but burnte with fyre: and all that be clene in theyr fleshe, may eate fleshe. Yf any soule eate of the fleshe of the peax offerynges that pertayne vnto the Lorde, and his vnclennes yet vpon hym, the same soule shall perysshe oute of his people. Moreouer yf a soule toucheth any vncleane thynge, whether it be the vnclennes of man, or of any vncleane beest, or any abhommacion that is vncleane, and then eate of the fleshe of the peax offerynges, whiche pertayne vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perysshe from his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: Ye shall eate no maner fatte of oxen, sheepe, or gootes: yet the fatte of the beest that dyeth alone and the fatte of that whiche is torne with wylde beestes, maye be occupyed in all maner wyse: but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For who so euer eateth the fatte of the beest of whiche men bryng an offeryng vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perysshe from his people.

Moreouer ye * shall eate no maner of bloude where so euer ye dwell, whether it be of foule or of beest. What so euer soule it be that eateth any maner bloude, shall perysshe from his people. * Leui. xvii. d

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: He that offereth his peax offeryng vnto the Lorde, shall bryng his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peax offeryng: his owne handes shall bryng the offeryng of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the breest, he shall bryng with the breest, to waue it a waue offeryng before the Lorde. And the preest shall burne the fat vpon the aulter, and the breest shall be Aarons and his sonnes. And the ryght shoulder they shall gyue vnto the preest, to be an heue offeryng, of theyr peax offerynges. And the same that offereth the bloude of the peax offerynges and the fatte amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulder vnto his parte, for the wauebreest and the heueshoulder I haue taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peaxofferynges, and haue gyuen it vnto Aaron the preest, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron, and of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offred to the preestes vnto the Lord, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be gyuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, & to be a dutye for euer amonge theyr generations. This is the lawe of burntoffrynges, of meateoffrenges, of synne offrynges, of trespaceoffrynges, of fulofrynges, of peacetrynges, which the Lorde commaunded moyses in the mounte Sinai, in the daye when he comaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer theyr offrynges vnto the Lorde in the wildernesse of Sinai.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes with hym, and the vestures and the anoyntynge oyle, and an oxe for a synneoffrynge, and two rammes and a basket of swete breed: and gather all the commenalte togyther vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, bym, and the people gathered them selues to-gyther, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayd vnto the people, this is the thynge which the Lorde commaun ded to do.

And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and gyrded him with a gyrdell, & put vpon him the cunicle, and put the Ephon theron, and gyrded him with the brodred gyr-dell of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwith. And he put the brestlap theron, and put in the brestlap Urim and Thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpō the forefront of it the gol den plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde cō maunded Moses.

And Moses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacion and all that was therin, & sanctified them, and sprinckled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the aulter and all his vessels, and the lauer with the fote, to sanctifie them. And he poured of ȳ anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and a-noynted him to sanctifie him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrded them with gyrdles, and put bonettes vpon their heedes: as the Lorde commaun-ded Moses.

And the synneofferynge was brought. And Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ore of the synneofferynge. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the blonde and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute with his fynger, and purified it, and poured the blonde vpon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconciled it. And he toke al the fatte that was vpon the inwar des, and the hall that was on the lyuer, and the two kydneys with their fatte, and burned it vpon the aulter. But the ore, the hyde, his flesshe and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ramme of the burntof-ferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and it was killed. And Moses sprynckled the blond vpon the aulter rounde aboute, and cut the ramme in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnte the ramme euery whit vpon the aulter. That was a burnt sacrifice of a swete sauoure, and an offerynge vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fullofferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the blond of it, and put it vpon the typ of Aarons eyght eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greate too of his eyght foote. Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Mo-ses put of the blonde on the typ of the eyghte eare of them, and vpon the thombes of their eyghte handes, and vpon the greate toes of their eyghte feete, and sprynckled the blonde vpon the aulter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys with their fatte, and their eyght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breed that was before the Lord, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and vpon the eyght shoulder: and put all togither vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waued it a waue offerynge be-fore the Lorde.

And then Moses toke them from their han des agayne, and burnt them vpon the aulter, euen vpon the burntofferynge: These are the fulloffrynges of a swete sauoure, and a sacri-fyce vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke ȳ breſt, and waued it a waue offerynge before the Lorde, of the ramme of the fulloffrynges: and it was Moses parte, as the Lorde commaun-ded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, & of the blond which was vpon the aulter, and sprynckled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vest-mentes, and vpon his sonnes and on their ve-stimentes with him, and sanctified Aaron and his vestures, and his sonnes and his sones ve-stures also. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron & his sonnes: boyle the flesshe in the doore of the tabernacle of witnes, and there † eate it with the bred that is in the basket of fulloffryn-ges, as the Lorde commaunded, saynge: Aa-ron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whi che remaynyth of the flesshe and of the bred, burne it with fyre.

And se ye departe not from the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse seuen dayes longe, tyll the dayes of your fulloffrynges be at an ende. For seuen dayes muste your handes be fylled, as they were this day: euen so the Lord hath commaunded to do, to thintent to reconcyle you. Se therfore ye abyde in the doore of the ta bernacle of witnesse day and night seuē dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lorde that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded. And Aa-ron and his sonnes did all that the Lorde com maunded by the handes of Moses.

¶ The fyrste offrynges of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blesseth the people. The glorye of the Lorde is shewed. The fyre commynge from aboue consumeth the sacrefyce.

CAPI. IX.

And the eyght daye, Moses called Aa-ron and his sonnes, and the elders of Is rael, and sayd to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offerynge, a ram for a burntofferynge: both without blemysshe, and bryng them be-fore the Lorde. And vnto the children of Israel he spake, saying: take ye an he gote for a synne offerynge, and a calfe and a lambe both two of a yere old, & without blemysshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ramme for peaxoffe-rynges, to offre before the Lorde, and a meat-offerynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lorde will appere vnto you.

And

And they brought that which Moses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse and all the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaunded ye shulde do: and then the glory of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Goo vnto the aulter, and offre thy synneofferynge, and make an attonement for the and the people: and then offre the offerynge of the people, and re-concyle them also: as the Lorde commaun-ded Moses.

And Aaron went to the aulter, and slewe the calfe that was his synneofferynge. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blonde vnto hym, and he dypte his fynger in the blonde, and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the blonde vnto the bottome of the al-ter. And the fatte and the two kydneys, with the hall of the lyuer of the synne offerynge he burnt vpon the aulter, as the Lord commaun ded Moses: but the flesshe and the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the hoste. Afterwarde he slewe the burntofferynge, and Aarons sonnes brought the blond vnto him, and he sprin-kled it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And they brought the burntofferynge vnto hym in peces, and the heed also, and he burnt it vpon the aulter, and dyd washe the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also vpō the burnt offerynge in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offerynge and toke the goote that was the peoples syn-neofferynge, and slewe it, and offered it for a synneofferynge: as he dyd the first. And then brought the burntofferynge, and offered it as the maner was, and brought the meatoffering and filled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the mor-nynge.

Then he slewe the ore and the ramme that were the peoples peaceoffrynges, and Aarons sonnes brought the blonde vnto hym, and he sprynckled it vpon the aulter rounde aboute, and toke the fat of the ore and of the ramme: the rompe & the fat that coureth the inwardes and the kydneyes and the hall of the lyuer, and put them vpon the brestes and burne it vpon the aulter: but the brestes and the right shoulders Aaron waued before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe from offerynge of syn-offrynges, burntofferynges and peaxoffrynges. Then Moses and Aaron went in to the taber-nacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glorye of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed vpon the aulter, the burntoffrynge and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and shoted, and fel on their faces.

¶ Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The Preestes are forbidden wyne. The re-lyque of the sacrefyce the Preestes eate.

CAPI. X.

And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aa ron toke either of them his censor, and put fyre therin, and put rens vpon, and brought straung fyre before the Lorde: which he commaunded them not: and there wente a fyre out from the Lorde, & consumed them, and they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moses said vnto Aaron: this is that the Lorde spake saying: I wyl be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron held his peas. And Mo-ses called Misael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and said to them: Go and carye youre brethren fro̅ne the holy place out of the hoste. And they went to them and carred them in their albes out of the hoste as Moses bad.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron and Eliazar, and Ithamar his eldest sonnes: vncouer not your heed, neyther rent your clothes, least ye dye, and wrath come vpon all the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whiche the Lorde hathe burnt. But go ye not out by the doore of the taber-nacle of wytnesse, least ye dye: for the anoyn-tynge oyle of the Lorde is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses bad.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, saynge: drynke no wyne ne stronge drynke, neyther thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, least ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you: that ye maye put difference by-twene holy and vnholy, bytwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye maye teache the chyl-dren of Israel all the ordinaunces whiche the the Lorde hath commaunded them by ȳ han-des of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vn-to Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that were lefte. Take the meatofferynge that re-maynyth of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, and eate it without leuen beside the aulter, for it is moste holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy durye and thy sonnes durye of the sacrifyce of the Lorde: for so I am commaūded. And the wauebrest and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: bothe thou and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the. For it is thy durye, and thy sonnes duty with the, of the peaxofferynges of the chyldren of Israel. For the heueshoulder, and the waue-brest whiche they bryng with the sacrifyces of the fatte, to waue it before the Lorde, shall be thyne, and thy sonnes with the: and be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hathe com-maunded.

And Moses sought for the goote that was the synneofferynge, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaaron, whyche were lefte alyue, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offrynge in the holy place, seynge it is moste holy: and for as moche as it is gyuen you to bere the synne of the people, and make agree-ment for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the blonde of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore shulde ye haue eaten it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayd vnto Moses: beholde, this day haue they offered theyr synneoffrynge and theyr burnt offerynge before the Lorde, and it is chaunsed me after this maner. If I sholde eate of the synneoffryng to day, wolde the Lorde be content withall? And when Moses herde that, he was content.

¶ Of beastes whiche be cleane and whiche be vncleane.

CAPI. XI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: speake vnto the chyldre
of Israel, and say: these are the beastes
whiche ye shall eate amonge all the beastes
that are on the erth: what so euer hath hoofe
and deuideth it in to two clawes, and cheweth cud among the beastes, that shall ye eate. But these shal ye not eate of them that chewe cud
and haue hoofes. The Camell, for he cheweth cud, but he deuideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you.
And the Conye, for he cheweth the cud, but de-uideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore
he is vncleane to you. And the Hare, for he like wyse cheweth the cud, but deuideth not ye hoofe
into two clawes, he is therfore vncleane to you
And the swyne, for though he deuyde the hoofe
in to two clawes, yet he cheweth not the cud,
and therfore is vncleane to you. Of their flesh
se ye eate not, and their carkalles se ye touche
not, for they are vncleane to you.

These shal ye eate, of all that are in the waters: what so euer haue fynnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shal ye eate.
And all that haue not fynnes and scales in
the sees and ryuers of all that moue and lyue
in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not of their flesh, and also that ye abhorre their carcalles: for all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are the foules which ye shal abhorre, and which shal not be eaten, for they are abhominacion. The egle, the gosshauke, the ozmoraunt, the kyte, the bulsur and all
his kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the estrich
the vpgheteow, the cuckow, the sparowhauke
and all the kynde: and the lytle oule, the storcke,
the great oule, the backe, the pellicane, the ype,
the heron, the lapwing and the swalowe. And all foules that creepe and go vpe all foure, shall be an abhominacion vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate of all the foules
that moue and go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue no knees aboue vpon their fete to leape withall vpon the earthe: euen these of them ye may eate: the Arbe and all his kynde:
the Selaam with all his kynde: the Bargol
and all the kynde, the Hagab and all his kynd.
All other foules that moue and haue faure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In such ye shal be vncleane who so euer touche the car-
kalle of them, shall be vncleane vnto the euen:
and who so euer beareth the carkalle of them
shal washe his clothes, and so shal be vncleane vntyll euen.

Amonge all maner beastes that haue hoofes
and deuyde them not in to two clawes, or
that chewe not the cud, shall be vncleane vnto
you: and all that toucheth them shall be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his handes amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete, are vncleane vnto you: and as many as touche their carkalles, shall be vncleane vntyll
the euen. And he that beareth the carkalle of them, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, for suche are vncleane
vnto you.

And these are also vncleane to you amonge
the thynges that creepe vpon the erathe: the weesell, the mouse, the toode, and all his kynde,
the hedgehogge, stellio, the lizerde, the snayle,
and the moule: these are vncleane to you among all that moue, and al that touche them
when they be tred, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen. And what so euer any of the tred car-kalles of them fall vpon, shall be vncleane:
what so euer vessell of wod it be, or rayment,
or skynne, or bagge, or what so euer thynge it be that any worke is wrought withall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vncleane tyll the euen, and then they shal be clene agayne.

All maner of erthen vessell wherinto any of them falleth is vncleane with al that therin is and ye shal breake it. All maner meate that is eaten, yf any such water come vpon it, it shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is dronke in all maner such vessels shal be vn clene. And whether it be ouen or kettel it shal be broken. For they are vncleane, and shal be vncleane vnto you. Howbeit the fountaynes and welles, and pondes of water, shal be clene styll. But who so euer toucheth their carkalles, shall be vncleane.

If the tred carcalle of any such fal vpon any seed shed to sowe, it shal yet be clene styl: but yf any water be poured vpon the seed, and afterwarde the tred carkalle of them fall theron,
then it shal be vncleane vnto you.

If any beest of whiche ye may eate, dye, he toucheth the tred carcalle shal be vncleane tyll
the euen. And he that eateth of any such tred carkalle, shal washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane tyll the euen. And he also that beareth the carkalle of it, shal washe his clothes
and be vncleane tyl euen.

All that scrauleth vpon the earthe, is ab-hominacion, and shal not be eaten. And what so euer goeth vpon the brest, and what so euer goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that scrauleth vpon the erth, of that se ye eate not:
for they are abhommable.

Make not your soules abhominable with nothyng that creepeth, neither make your sou-
les vncleane with them: that ye sholde be defiled therby. For I am the Lorde youre God, be sanctified therfore that ye may be holy, or I am holy: and defyle not your soules with any maner thyng that creepeth vpon the erth.
For I am the Lorde that brought you out of the lande of Egypt to be your God: be holy therfore, for I am holy.

This is the lawe of beest and foule, and of all maner thynge that lyueth and moueth in the water, & of all thynges that creepe on the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vn-clene and clene, and betwene the beestes that are eaten, and the beestes that are not eaten.

¶ lawe howe women shuld be purged after theyr childbirth.

CAPI. XII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and sayd: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a woman hath conceyued, and hath borne a man chylde, she shall be vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner
as when she is put apart in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eyght daye the flesh of the chyldes foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And she shal continue in the bloude of her purify-inge. xxxiij. dayes, she shall touche no halowed
thynge, nor come in to the sanctuarye, vntyll
the tyme of her purifying be out. If she beare
a maydechylde, then she shall be vncleane two wekes, as when she hath her naturall disease.
And she shall continue in the bloude of her pu
rifying. lxvj. dayes.

And when the dayes of her purifynge are out: whether it be a sonne or a doughter, she shal bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pigeon or a turtle doue
for a synne offeryng vnto the doze of the taber nacle of wytnesse, vnto the preest: which shall offre them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, & so she shal be purged of her yssue of bloude. This is the lawe for her that hath borne achylde, whether it be male or female. But yf she be not able to bring a sheepe
then let her bringe two turtles, or two yong pygions: the one for the burntofferynge, and the other for the synneoffryng. And the preest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be clene.

¶ The Preestes are appoynted to iudge who are Lepers.

CAPI. XIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and
vnto Aaron, saynge: when there appereth a rysyng in a mans flesshe eyther a scabbe or a glysterynge whyte: as thoughe the plage of leprosye were in the skyn of his flesh,
let him be brought vnto Aaron the preest, or vnto one of his sonnes the preestes, and lette
the preest loke on the soze that is in the skynne of his flesshe. If the heere in the soze be turned vnto whyte, & the soze also seme to be lower
then the skynne of his flesshe, then it is surely a leprosye, and let the preest loke on hym, and iudge him vncleane.

If there be but a whyte plecke in the skyn of his flesshe, and seme not to be lower then
the other skyn, nor the heere therof is turned vnto whyte, then let the preest shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke vpon hym
the seuenth day: yf the sore seme to hym to a-byde styll, and to go no further in the skynne,
then let the preest shut him vp yet seuen dayes
mo. And let the preest loke on him agayne the seuenth daye. Then yf the soze be waxed black ysh, and is not growen abrode in the skynne,
let the preest make him clene, for it is but a skurf.
And let him washe his clothes, and then he is clene: But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne
after that he is sene of the preest agayn: if the preest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vncleane: for it is surely a leprosye.

If the plage of leprosye be in a man, let him
be brought vnto the preest, and let the preest se him. If the rysing appeare whyte in the skyn, and haue also made the heere white, and there be rawe flesshe in the sore also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skyn of his flesshe. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, and shall not shut him vp, for he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out in the skyn, and co-
uer all the skynne from the heed to the foote ouer all where so euer the preest lokeeth, then let the preest take vpon hym. If the leprosye haue couered all his flesshe, let him iudge the disease clene, for in as moche as he is all together whyte, he is clene. But yf there be rawe flesshe on hym when he is sene, then he shall be vncleane. Therfore when the preest seeth the rawe flesshe, let him iudge him vncleane. For in
as moche as his flesshe is rawe, he is vncleane:
and it is surely a true leprosye. But if the raw flesshe depart agayn and chaunge in to white,
then let him come to the preest, and let the preest
se hym. If the sore be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge the disease clene, and then
he is clene.

When there is a byle in the skynne of any mannes flesshe, and is healed and after in the place of the byle there appeare a whyte rysyng
eyther a shynynge whyte, somwhat redysshe,
let hym be sene of the preest. yf when the preest
seeth hym, it appeare lower then the other skynne, and the heere therof be chaunged vn-
to whyte, let the preest iudge hym vncleane:
for it is a very leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle. But if when the preest lo-keth on it there be no white heeres therin, neither the scabbe lower then the other skynne,
and be somwhat blackysshe, then the Preeste
shall shut him apaete seuen dayes. If it spred abrode in the meane season, then let the preest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf the glysterynge whyte abyde styll in one place, and goo no further, then it is but the pynne of the byle, and the preest shall iudge
him clene.

When the skyn of any mans flesshe is burnt with fyre that it be rawe, and there appere in the burnynge a glysteryng whyte that is som-
what redysshe or all together whyte, let the preest loke vpon it. yf the heere in that bright-
nesse be chaunged to whyte, and it also appere lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broken oute of the place of the burnynge. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf when the Preeste loketh on it) he se there is no whyte heere in the bryghtnes, and that it is no lower then thother skynne, and that it is also blackelshe, then let the Preest shut hym up seuen dayes. And yf (when the preest loketh on him the seuenth daye) it be growen abrode in the skynne, let hym iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf that bryghtnelle abyde styll in one place and go no further in the skynne and be blacketh, then it is but a rysyng in the place of the burnynge, and the Preest shall make hym cleane: for it is but the ryynde of the burnynge onely.

C When eyther man or woman hathe a brea kynge out vpon the heed or the beerde, let the Preest se it. And yf it appeare lower then the other skynne, and there be therin golden heeres and thynne, let the preest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a breakynge oute of leprosye vpon the heed or beerde. Yf (when the Preeste loketh on the breakynge oute) he se it is no lower then thother skynne, and that there are blacke heeres therin, let hym shut him up seuen dayes. And let the preest loke on the disease the seuenth daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golden heeres therin, neyther the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let him be shaue, but let him not shaue the scabbe: and let the preest shut hym up seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on the breaking out the.viij. daye agayne: yf the breakyng out be gone no further in the skynne, nor more lower then thother skynne, then let the preest iudge him cleane, and let hym washe his clothes, and then he is cleane.

D Yf the breakynge out growe in the skynne after he be ones iudged cleane, let the preeste se hym. Yf it be growen abrode in dede in the skynne, let the Preest seke no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the scabbe stande styll, and that there is blacke heere growen vp therin, then the scabbe is healed, and he is cleane: and the Preeste shall iudge hym cleane. Yf there be founde in the skynne of the flesshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, lette the preest se it. Yf there appeare in theyr flesshe a glysterynge whyte, somwhat blackysshe, then it is but freckels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

E Yf a mans heere fall of his heed, then he is heedbauide and clene. Yf his heere fall before in his forehed, then he is forheedbauide and clene. Yf there be in the bauide heed, or bauide forehed a redysshe whyte scabbe, then there is leprosye sprounge vp in his bauide heed, or bauide forehed. And let the preest se it: and yf the rysynge of the sore be reddysshwhyte in his bauide heed or forehed after the maner of a leprosye in the skynne of the flesshe, then he is a leper, and vncleane: and the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for the plage of his heed.

G And the leper in whom the plage is, shal haue his clothes rent, and his heed bare, and his mouthe mofled, and shall be called vncleane. And as long as the disease lasteth vpon hym, he shall be vncleane, for he is vncleane: & shall therfore dwell alone, and euen without ỹ host shall his habitacion be.

Leui. xiij. Deu. xxiiij.

When the plage of leprosye is in a clothe: whether it be lynnen or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the lynnen, or of the wollen: eyther in a skynne, or any thynge made of skynne, yf the disease be pale or somwhat redysshe in the clothe or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wolfe, or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a leprosye, and must be shewed vnto the preest And when the preest seyth the plage, let hym shut it up seuen dayes, and let him loke on the plage the seuenth daye. Yf it be increased in the cloth, whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or in a skynne, or in any thynge that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatyng leprosye, and it is vncleane: and that clothe shall be burnt, eyther warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge that is made of skynne wherin the plage is, for it is a freatynge leprosye, and shall be burnt in the fyre.

Yf the preest se that the plage hath freaten no further in the clothe: eyther in the warpe or wolfe, or in what so euer thynge of skynne it be, then let the preest commaunde them to washe the thynge wherin the plage is, and let hym shut it up seuen dayes and moo. And let the preest loke on it agayne after that the plage is washed. If the plage haue not chaunged his fashion, though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inwarde: whether in parte or in all. But yf the preest se it somwhat blackysshe after it is washed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or wolfe.

And yf it appeare any more in the clothe eyther in the warpe, or in the wolfe, or in any thynge made of skynne, then it is a warynge plage. And se ye burne that with fyre wherin the plage is. Howsoeuer the cloth either warpe or wolfe, or what so euer thing of skynne it be which thou hast washed, and the plage be departed from it shall be washed ones agayne, and then it is clene. This is the lawe for the plage of leprosye in a cloth, whether it be wollen or lynnen: either whether it be in ỹ warpe or wolfe, or in any thyng made of skynnes, to iudge it clene or vncleane.

¶ The cleansinge of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * this is the law for a leper when he shall be cleansed: He shal be brought vnto the preest, and the preest shall go forthe without the hoost and loke vpon hym. Yf the plage of leprosye be healed in the leper, then shall the preest commaunde that there be brought for hym that shall be cleansed two lyuynge birdes that are clene, and cedar wodde, and a pece of purple cloth and yssope. And the preest shal cõmaunde that one of the birdes be killed in an erthen vessell with rennyng water. And the Preeste shall take the lyuynge birde and the cedar wode and the purple and the yssope, and shal dippe them and the lyuing birde in the bloude of the slayne birde, and in the rennynge water and sprynkle it vpon him that muste be cleansed or his leprosye seuen tymes and cleanse him, and shall let the liuing birde goo free in to the feldes.

B And he that is cleansed shall washe his clothes, and shaue of all his heere, and wash him selfe in water, and then be is clene. And after that he shall come in to the hoost, but shal tarye without his tent seuen dayes. When the seuenth daye is come, he shall shaue of all his heere, bothe vpon his heed, and his berde, and on his browes: and euen all the heere that is on him, shall he shaue of. And he shal washe his clothes and his flesshe in water, and then he shall be clene.

And when the eyght daye is come, let hym take two lammes without blemysshe, and a ewelambe of a yere olde without blemysshe, and thre tenth deales of fyne flour, for a meat offerynge myngled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. Then let the Preeste that maketh him clene, dyrynge the man that is made clene with thole tymes before the Lorde vnto the wore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the prest take one of the lambes, & offre hym for a trespaceoffering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then let them slee the lambe in the place where the synne offeryng and the burntoffering were slayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synneofferynge is, euen so is the trespaceofferynge of the preestes for it is moost holy.

C Then let the preest take of the bloude of the trespaceofferynge, and put it vpon the typ of the right eare of him that is cleansed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his right fote. Then let the preest take of the logge of oyle, and poure it in to the palme of his lefte hande, and dyp his right fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of his lefte hande, and let him sprynckle it with his fynger seuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, shall the preest put vpon the typ of the ryght eare of hym that is cleansed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght fote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespaceofferynge. And the rest of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of hym that is cleansed: and so shall the preest make an attonement for him before the Lorde.

Then let the preest offre the synneofferynge and make an attonement for him that is cleansed for his vncleannesse. And then let the burnt offeryng be slayne, and let the preest put bothe the burntofferyng and the meatofferyng vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for him and then he shall be clene. Yf he be poore and can not get so moche, then let him bryng one lambe for a trespace offerynge to waue it, and to make an attonement for him, and a tenthe deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doues or two yonge pigions whyche he is able to get, and let thone be a synneofferynge, and thother a burnt offrynge. And let him bryng them the eyght day for his clensing vnto the preest to the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

D And let the preest take ỹ lambe that is the trespace offerynge, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespaceofferynge is killed, the preest shall take of the bloude of the trespace offerynge, and put it vpon the typ of his ryght eare that is cleansed, and vpon the thombe of his ryghte hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote. And the preest shall poure of the oyle in to his ryghte hande, and shall sprynckle with his fynger of the oyle that is in his lefte hande seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the preest shall put on the oyle that is in his hande (vpon the typ of the ryghte eare of hym that is cleansed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespaceofferynge was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of him that is cleansed: to make an attonement for hym before the Lorde. And he shall offre one of the turtle doues, or of the yonge pigions, suche as he can get: the one for a synne offeryng, and thother for a burntoffrynge vpon the aulter. And so shal the preest make an attonement for him that is cleansed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of him that hathe the plage of leprosye, whose hande is not able to get that belongeth to his clensynge.

E And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when ye become vnto the land of Canaan which I giue you to possesse: yf I put the plage of leprosye in the house of the lande of your possession, let hym that owneth ỹ house go and tell the preest, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosye in the house. And the preest shall commaunde them to vtter all thynge forth of the house, before the preest, enter to se the plage: that he make not all that is in the house vncleane, and then the preest shal go in, and se the house.

F Yf the preest se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that they be holow strakes pale or redde whiche seme to be lower then the other partes of the wall, then lette the preest go out at the house dores, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And let the preest come agayne the seuenth daye and se it, yf the plage be increased in the walles of the house, lette the Preeste commaunde them to take awaye the stones in whyche the plage is, and lette them caste them in a foule place without the cytye, and scrape the house within rounde aboute: and poure oute the dust without the cytye in a foule place. And lette them take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other morter, and plaster the house with. Yf nowe the plage come agayne, and breake oute in the house, after that they haue taken awaye the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is playstered anewe: let the Preest come and se

it. And if then he perceyue that the plage hath eaten further in the house, it is a freetynge leprosye that is in the house, and it is vncleane.
Then they shall breake downe the house:
both the stones, tymbre, and all the morter of the house, and carye it forthe of the citye vnto a foule place. Moreouer he that goeth in to the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tyll nyght. And he that slepeth in the house shall washe his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall washe
his clothes.

S But yf the Preeste come and se that the plage hathe spred no further in the house after it is newe playstered, then let hym make it cleane, for the plage is healed. And lette hym take to clense the house with: two birdes, cedar wodde, and purple clothe and yssope. And let hym kyll one of the birdes in an earthen vessell with runnynge water: and take the cedar wodde, the yssope, the purple and the lyuynge bryde, and dyppe them in the bloude
of the slayne bryde, and in the runnynge water, and sprynckle vpon the house seuen tymes, and clense the house with the bloude of the bryde, and with the runninge water, and with the lyuynge bryde, and with the cedar wodde, and the yssope, and the purple clothe.
And he shall let the lyuynge bryde flee forthe
of the towne in to the wylde feldes, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosye and breakynge out, and of the leprosye of clothe and house, and of ry-
singes, scabbes, and glysterynge white, to teache when a thynge is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprosye.

¶ The maner of purgynge the vnclennes bothe of men and women.

CAPI. XV.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Speake vnto the chil-dre of Israel, and say vnto them: euery
man that hath a runnynge yssue in his flesshe, is vncleane by reason of his yssue. And hereby shall it be knowen when he is vncleane. If his flesshe runne, or yf his flesshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then he is vncleane.
Euerye couche whereon he lyeth, and euerye
thynge whereon he sytteth shall be vncleane.
He that toucheth his couche shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, and
be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sytteth on that whereon he sate,
shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe
with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen-synge. And he that toucheth his flesshe, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in wa ter, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If any suche spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he muste
washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in wa ter and be vncleane vntyll euen.

15 And what so euer saddel that he ryeth vpon
shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thynge that was vnder hym, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vn-
to the euen: and what so euer he toucheth (yf
he haue not fyrste washed his handes in water) must washe his clothes, and bathe hym
selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen-synge. * And yf he touche a vessell of erth, it *Leui.
shall be broken: and all vessels of wod, shall 11.d.
be rynsed in water.

When he that hath an yssue is clensed of his yssue, let hym nombre seuen dayes after he is cleane, and washe his clothes, and bathe his flesshe in runnynge water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght daye lette hym take two turtle doues, or two ponge pygeons,
and come before the Lorde vnto the dore
of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them
vnto the Preeste. And the Preeste shall offre them: the one for a synne offrynge, and the other for a burntofferynge: and make an attonement for hym before the Lorde concernynge his yssue.

If any mans seed departe from him in his slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes or fleces wheron suche seed chaunceth, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto
the euen. And yf a woman lye with suche person, they shall washe them selues with water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans naturall course of bloud
runneth, she shall be put aparte seuen dayes:
and who so euer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or syteth vpon as longe as she is put aparte, shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth her couche, shall washe his clothes, and bath him
selfe with water, & be vncleane vnto the euen.
And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sate vpon, shal washe his clothes, and washe
hym selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto
the euen: so that whether he touch her couche
or any thynge whereon she hath syteen, he shal
be vncleane vnto the euen: and yf a man lye
with her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seuen dayes, and all his couche wherin he lepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe 19
tyme, beyonde the tyme of her natural course:
as longe as her vnclennesse runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the maner as when she is put aparte. All her couches whereon she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be vn-
to her as her couche, when she is put aparte.
And what so euer she syteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vnclennesse when she is put aparte. And who so euer toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vn-
to euen.

But yf she be cleane of her yssue, lette her count her seuen dayes, after that she is clene.
And the eyght daye let her take two turtles
or two ponge pygeons and bringe them vnto
the

the preste vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preste shall offre the one for a synneofferynge: and the other for burntof-ferynge: and make an attonement for her before the Lorde for her vncleane
sse. Make thy children of Israel to kepe them selues from their vnclennes, that they dye not in their vncleannesse, when they haue
defyled my habitacion that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of him that hath a runny
nynge yssue, and is defyled therwith,
from a man in his slepe and is defiled therwith,
and of her that hathe an yssue of bloude as longe as she is put aparte, and of whosoeuer hath a runnynge yssue whether it be man or woman, and of him that sleepeth with her that is vncleane.

¶ What Aaron muste do or he entre in to the holy place. The cleansynge of the sanctuary or holy place.
& the tente of cleansynge. Aaron cotesseth the sinnes of the children of Israel ouer the lyue gote and put-teth them vpon his heade.

CAPI. XVI.

2 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses * after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lorde and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses:
Speake vnto Aaron thy brother that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the vayle that hangeth before the mercyseate which is vpon the arche that he dye not.
For I will appeare in a clowde vpon the mercyseate.

But on this maner shall Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullocke for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe. And he shall put the holy lynen albe vpon him, and shall haue a lynen breche vpon his flesshe, and shal gyrde him with a lynen gyrdell, and put the lynen myter vpon his heade: for they are holy rayments. And he shall washe his flesshe with water, and put them on. And he shall take of the multitude of the children of Israel two he gotes for a synneoffring and a Ram
for a burntoffringe.

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synneoffringe and make an attonemēt for him and for his house. And he shall take the two gotes and presente them before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two gootes:
one lot for the Lorde, & an other for a scapegote. And Aaron shall bringe the gote vpon which the Lordes lot fell, and offer him for a synneoffringe. But the gote on which the lot fell to escape, he shal set alyue before the Lord to reconcyle with and to let him go fre into wyldernesse. And Aaron shall bringe the bullocke of his synneoffringe, and make attonement for him selfe and for his household, and kyll him.

And then he shall take a censer full of burnynge coles out of the altare that is before Lorde, and his handefull of swete incense bea
ten small and bringe them within the vayle,
and put the incense vpon the fyre before the

Lorde: that the clowde of the incense maye
couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes
that he dye not. * And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and sprynkle it with * Hebre. 9.c.
his fynger before the mercyseate eastwarde: and 5.d.
euen seuen tymes.

Then shall he kyll the gote that is the peo ples synneoffringe, & bringe his bloude within the vayle, and do with his bloude as he dyd
with the bloude of the bullocke, and let hym sprynkle it towarde the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate: and reconcyle the holy place
from the vnclennesse of the children of Israel, and from their trespaces and all their syn
nes. And so let him do also vnto the tabernā-cle of wytnesse that dwelleth with them, euē amonge their vnclennesses.

* And there shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make * Luke.1.c an attonement in the holy place, tyll he come forth agayne. And he shall make attonement for him selfe and his household, and all the multitude of Israel. Then he shall go forthe vnto the aultare that standeth before the Lorde, and clense it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and the gote, and put vpon the hornes of the altare rounde about,
and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his
fynger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow
it from the vnclennesses of the children of Israel.

And when he hath clensed the holy place
the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altar, let him bringe the lyue gote, and let Aaron put both his handes vpon the head of the lyue
gote, and confesse ouer him all the misdedes
of the children of Israel, and their trespaces,
all their synnes: and let him put theym vpon
the heed of the gote, and sende him awaye by the handes of one that is acquaynted in the wyldernesse. And the goote shall beare vpon
him all their misdedes into the wyldernesse,
and he shall let the gote go fre in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron go into the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the lynen clothes which he put on when he went into the holy place, and leaue them there. And let him washe his flesshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out and offer his burntofferynge and the burntoffring
of the people, and praye for him selfe and the people, and the fat of the synneoffrynge let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that caryed forth the scapegote, washe his clothes
and bathe his flesshe in water, and then come into the hoste agayne.

And the bullocke of the synneoffringe and
the gote of the synneofferynge (whose bloude
was brought in to make an attonemēt in the holy place) let one carye forthe without the hoste and burne with fyre: bothe their skyn-nes, their flesshe and their donge. And let him that burneth them, washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and so come into hoste agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye shall humble your soules

soules and shall do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a straunger that sojourneth amonge you, for that day shall an attonement be made for you to clense you frome all youre synnes before the Lorde, and ye shall be cleane. It shall be a Sabboth of reeste vnto you, and ye shal humble youre soules, and it shall be an ordynaunce for euer.

And the preest that is anoynted and whose hande was fylled to mynistre in his fathers stede, shall make the attonement and shall put on, the holy lynnen clothes and holy beniments, and shall repourge the holy sauctuary and the tabernacle of witnesse and the aultare, and shall make attonement also for the preestes and all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlastyng ordinaunce vnto you to make attonements for the children of Israel for al theyr synnes ones a yere. and it was done euen as ꝑ Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ All sacrifyce must be brought to the dore of the tabernacle. To deuyls may they not offer, Blouds and all karen is forbydden them.

CAPI. XVII.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto al the children of Israel, and tell them, this is the thyng which the Lorde charged, sayinge: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, that killeth an oxe, lambe or gote, in the hoste or out of the hoste, and bryngeth them not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offre an offeryng vnto the Lorde, before the dwellyng place of ꝑ Lorde, blonde shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shedde blonde, and that man shall perysshe from his people.

Wherfore let the children of Israel bryng theyr offerynges that they offre in the wylde felde, vnto the Lorde: euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and vnto the preest, and offre them for the prayofferynges vnto the Lorde. And the Preeste shall spyrnckle the blonde vpon the aultre of the Lorde in the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And let them no moze offre theyr offerynges vnto deuyls, after whome they go an hoorynge. And this shall be an ordynaunce for euer vnto you, thorowe out youre generacions.

And thou shalte saye vnto them: what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne among you, that offereth a burntofferyng, or any other offeryng, and bryngeth it not vnto the woze of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offre vnto the Lorde, the same shall perysshe frome his people. And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you that eateth any maner of blonde, I wyll sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth blonde, and wyll destroye him out of his people, for the lyfe of the flesh is in the blonde, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the aulter, to make attonement for youre soules, for blonde shall make attonemente for the soule. And therefore I sayde vnto the children of Israel: ye no soule of you eate blonde, ne any straunger that sojourneth amonge you.

Whatsoeuer man it be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beeste or foule that maye be eaten, he shall poure out the blonde and couer it with erth, for the lyfe of al fleshe is in the blonde, therfore I sayde vnto the children of Israel ye shall eate the blonde of no maner of fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in his blonde, and whosoeuer therfore eateth it, shall perysshe. And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that whiche dyed alone or that whiche was torne with wylde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger, he shall washe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wasshe them not nor washe his flesshe, he shall beare his synne.

¶ what degrees of kynred maye marye to sythes and what not.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and shewe them, I am the Lorde youre god. Wherfore after the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherein ye dwelte, se ye doo not: after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whyther I wyll brynge you: neyther walke ye in theyr ordinaunces, * but do after my iudgementes, and kepe myne ordynaunces, to walke therin. For I am the Lorde youre God. Kepe therfore myne ordinaunces, and my iudgementes, whiche yf a man doo, he shall lyue therby: for I am the Lorde.

Se ye goo to none of youre nyghest kynred, for to vncouer theyr secretes, for I am the Lorde. The secretes of thy father, and thy mother, se thou vnhylle not: she is thy mother, therfore shalte not thou discouer her secretes. The secretes of thy fathers wyfe shalte thou not discouer, for they are thy fathers secretes. Thou shalte not discouer the priuitie of thy sister the doughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be borne at home or without. Thu shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne priuite: Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers wyues daughter, whiche she bare to thy father, for she is thy sister: Thou shalte therfore not discouer her secretes Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers sister, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalte not discouer the secretes of thy mothers sister, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalte not go in, to his wyfe, for she is thyne awnte. Thou shalte not discouer the secretes of thy doughter in lawe, for she is thy sonnes wyfe: therfore vncouer not her secretes. Thou shalt not vnhyl the secretes of thy brothers wife, for that is thy brothers priuite. Thou shalte not discouer the priuytyes of the wyfe and her daughter also, neyther shalte thou take her sonnes daughter or her daughters daughter to vncouer theyr secrettes, they are her nexte kynne, it were therfore wyckednesse. Thou shalte not take a wyfe and her sister therto, to vexe her that thou wouldest open her secrettes as longe as she liueth. Thou shalte not goo vnto a woman to vncouer her priuitye, as longe as she is put aparte for her vncleanesse. * Thou shalte not lye with thy neyghboures wyfe, to defyle thy selfe with her. Thou shalt not gyue of thy seed to offre it vnto Moloch, ꝑ thou defyle not the name of thy God, for I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not lye with mākynde as with womankynde, for that is abhominacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe therewith, neyther shall any womā stonde before a beast to lye towne therto, for that is abhominacion.

Defyle not youre selues in any of these thinges, for with all these thynges are these nacions defyled which I cast out before you: and the lande is defyled, and I will vysett the wickednesse therof vpon it, and the lande shall spewe out her inhabiters. * Kepe ye therfore myne ordinaunces and iudgementes, and se ye do none of these abhominacions: neyther any of you nor any straunger that sojourneth among you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande done whiche were there before you, and the lande is defyled) lest the lande spewe you out when ye haue defyled it, as it spewed oute the nacions that were there before you. For who so euer shall commit anye of these abhominacions, the same soules that do them shall perysshe frome theyr people. Therfore se ye kepe myne ordinaunces, that ye commit none of these abhominable customes whiche were committed before you: that ye defyle not your selues therwith for I am the Lorde your God.

¶ Repetycion of certayne lawes pertaynynge to the ten commaundementes. Consyderacion for the poore. Howe we oughte to iudge ryghtously. Howe we ought not to be auenged. witchcraft is forbidden.

CAPI. XIX.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to all the multitude of ꝑ children of Israel, and saye vnto them. * Be holy for I the Lorde your God am holy. Se ye feare euery man his father and his mother, and that ye kepe my Sabbothes, for I am the Lorde your God. Ye shal not turne vnto ydoles nor make you goddes of metall: I am the Lorde your God.

When ye offre your peaceofferynges vnto ꝑ Lorde, ye shall offer them that ye may be accepted. And it shalbe eaten the same daye ye offer it and on the morowe, but what so euer is lefte on the thirde daye shalbe burnt in the fyre. Yf it be eaten the thirde daye, it shalbe vncleane and not accepted. And he that eateth it shall beare his synne, because he hath defyled the halowed thinges of the Lorde, & that soule shall perysshe frome his people.

* When ye reape downe the frute corne of your lande, ye shall not reape downe the vttermost borders of your feldes, neyther shalte thou gather that is lefte behynde in thy haruest. Thou shalte not pluckе in all thy vyneyarde clene, ne gather in the grapes that are ouerclaped. But thou shalte leaue them for the poore and straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

Ye shal not steale neyther lye, nether deale falsely one with an other. * Ye shal not swere by my name falsely / that thou defyest not the name of thy God, I am the Lorde. Thou shalte not beggle thy neyghboure with cauillations, neyther robbe him violently, neither shall the workmans laboure abyde with the vnkyll the morowne. Thou shalte not curse the deafe, neyther put a stombling blocke before the blynde / but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lorde. Ye shall do no vnrighteousnes in iudgement. * Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honoure the myghtye, but shalte iudge thy neyghbour righteously.

Thou shalt not go vp and downe a preuye accuser amonge thy people, neither shalt thou helpe to shede the blonde of thy neyghboure / I am the Lorde. * Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne harte, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghboure / that thou bere not synne for his sake. * Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe nor beare hate in thy mynde against the children of thy people, but shalt loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe, I am the Lorde.

Kepe myne ordinaunces. Let none of thy catell gendre with a contrary kynde, neyther sowe thy felde with myngled seed, neyther shalt thou put on any garment of lynen and wollen.

Yf a man haue to do with a woman that is bonde and hathe bene medled with all of an other man which neyther is bought nor free-wome gyuen her, there shalbe a payne vpon it, but they shall not dye, because she was not made free. And he shall bryng for his trespaceofferinge vnto the Lorde / euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a Ram for a trespaceofferynge. And the preest shal make attonement for him with the Ram of the trespaceofferynge before the Lorde, for his synne whiche he hathe done / and it shall be forgyuen him, concernynge the synne whiche he hath done.

And when ye come to the lande and haue planted all maner of trees whereof men eate ye shall holde them vncircumcysed as concernynge their frute / euen three yere shal they be vncircumcysed vnto you and shall not be eate of, and the fourth yere all the frute of theym shall be holy and acceptable to the Lorde. And the fifth yere maye ye eate of the frute of them the, & gat her in the increase of them: I am the Lorde youre God. * Ye shall eate nothinge with the bloude, ye shall vse no witchecraffte, nor obserue dismall dayes, ye shall not rounde the lockes of youre heedes, neyther shalt thou marre the cuttes of thy beerde.

Ye shall not rent youre flesshe for any soules sake, nor pryncte any markes vpon you: I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not pollute thy daughter, that thou wolwilt maynteyne her to be an hoore: least the lande fall to whoredome, and wax full of wyckednesse. Se ye kepe my Sabbothes & feare my sanctuary: I am the Lorde. Turne not to them that worshe with spirites, ne regarde them, that obserue dismall dayes: that ye be not defyled by theym, for I am the Lorde youre God.

Thou shalt ryse vp before the hoorehed, & reuerence the face of the olde man, and dread thy God, for I am the Lorde. * Yf a straunger sorourne by the in youre lande, se ye vexe him not: But let the straunger that dwelleth with you, be as one of your selues, and loue him as thy selfe, for ye were straungers in the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde youre God.

Ye shall vse no vnrighteousnes in iudgement neyther in meteyerde, weyght or measure. But ye shall haue true balances, true weyghtes, A true Epha, and a true Hin. I am the Lorde youre God which brought you forth of the lād of Egypt, that ye shulde obserue all myne ordinaunces and iudgementes and kepe them: I am the Lorde.

¶ They that gyue of theyr seed to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes necessarye to be vsed in common wealthes.

CAPI. XX.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayenge: tell the children of Israel, whoso euer he be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that dwell in Israel, that gyueth of his sede vnto Moloch ye shall dye for it: the people of the lande shall stone him with stones. And I will set my face vpon that felow, and will destroye him frome his people: because he hath gyuen of his seed vnto Moloch, to defyle my sanctuary and to polute my holy name. And thoughe the people of the lande hyde their eyes frome that felow, when he gyueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I will put my face vpō that man and vpon his generacion, and will destroye him and all that goo a hoorying with him and commit horedome with Moloch frō their people.

Yf any soule turne him to enchaunters or expounders of tokens and go a hoorynge after them, I will put my face vpon that soule and will destroye him frome his people. Sanctifye youre selues therfore, and be holy, for I am the Lorde youre God. And se ye kepe myne ordinaunces and do them. For I am the Lorde which sanctifye you.

Who so euer curseth his father or mother, shall dye for it, his bloude on his head, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with an others mans wyfe shall dye for it, because he hathe broke wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe, & so shall the lyke wyse.

Yf a man lye with his fathers wyfe & vncouer his fathers secrettes, they shall bothe dye for it, their bloude be vpon their heedes.

Yf a man lye with his daughter in lawe they shall dye both of the: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloude vpō their heedes.

Yf a man lye with mankynde after the maner as with woman kynde, they haue bothe committed abhominacion and shal dye for it. Their bloude be vpon their heades.

Yf a man take a wyfe and her mother therto, it is wyckednesse. Men shall burne with fyre both him and them, that there be no wickednesse amonge you.

Yf a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and ye shall slay the beast.

Yf a woman go vnto a beast and lye wyth therto: thou shalte kyll the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloude be vpon their heades.

Yf a man take his sister, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, & se her secrettes and she se his secrettes also: it is a wycked thynge. Therfore let them perysshe in the sight of their people, he hath sene his sisters secretnelle, he shall therfore beare his synne.

Yf a man lye with a woman in tyme of her flowers and vncouer her secrettes and opē her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloude, they shall both perysshe frome the people.

Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy mothers sister nor of thy fathers sister, for he that wyll so, vncouereth his nexte kyn: & they shall beare their mysdoynge.

Yf a man lye with his vncles wyfe, he hath vncouered his vncles secrettes / they shall beare their synne, and shall dye childelesse.

Yf a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thynge, he hath vncouered his brothers secrettes, they shall be childelesse therfore.

* Se ye kepe therfore all myne ordinaunces and all my iudgementes, and that ye do them / that the lande whether I bringe you to dwell therin, spewe you not out. And se ye walke not in the maners of the nacyons whiche I cast out before you / For they committed all these thinges, and I abhorred them.

But I haue sayde vnto you that ye shall enioye their lande, and that I wil gyue it vnto you to possesse it: a lāde that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the Lorde youre God, which haue dyuyded you frome other nacions: * that ye shulde put difference betwene cleane beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane foules and them that are cleane. Make not youre soules therfore abhominable with beastes and foules, and with all maner thinge that creepeth on the grounde, which I haue secured vnto you to holde them vncleane. Be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue seuered you frome other nacions: that ye shulde be myne.

* Yf

* Yf there be a man or woman that worketh with a spirite or that expoundeth tokēs, they shall dye for it. Men shall stone theym with stones, and their bloude shall be vpon them.

¶ The preest forbydden to be at the death of any of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepte. Preestes maye not be shaven neyther on the heade nor on the bearde. The preestes wyfe muste be a mayde. The preestes daughter maye not be an harlot.

CAPI. XXI.

AND the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: speake vnto the preestes the sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. A preest shall not defyle him selfe at the death of any of his people, but vpon his kynne that is nyghe vnto him: as his mother, father, sonne, daughter and brother: and on his sister as longe as she is a mayde and dwelleth nyghe him and was neuer gyuen to man: on her he maye defyle him selfe. But he shal not make him selfe vncleane vpon a ruler of his people to polute him selfe withall.

They shall make them no baldnesse vpon their heedes or shaue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make any markes in their flesshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lorde and the breed of their God they offre: therfore they must be holy.

They shall take no wyfe that is an hoore or poluted, or put frome her husbande: for a preest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offreth vp the breed of God: he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifie you, am holy.

Yf a preestes daughter fall to play the hore she polluteth her father: therfore she shall be burnt with fyre.

He that is the hyghe preest amonge his brethren vpon whose head the annoyntinge oyle was powred and whose hande was fylled to put on the vestimentes, shall not vncouer his head nor rent his clothes, neyther shall go to any dead body nor make him selfe vncleane: not on his father or mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, that he defyle not the holy place of his God, for the crowne of the annoyntynge oyle of God, is vpon him. I am the Lorde. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but no wydow nor deuorsed nor defyled hore. But he shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye them.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge / speake to Aaron, and saye: No mā of thy seed in their generacions that hath any defourmitie vpon him, shall preace to offer the breed of his God: for none that hath any blemyshe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, snotnosed, or that hath any mishappen membre, or broken foted, or broken handed, or crokebacked, or perleyed, or gogeleyed / or maungye, or skaulde, or hath his stones broken.

No man that is defourmed of the seed of Aaron the preest, shall come nyghe to offer the sacrifices of the Lorde. Yf he haue a defourmitie, he shall not preace to offer the breed of his God. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the breed of his God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holy: but shall not go in, vnto the vayle, nor come nyghe the altare, because he is defourmed that he polute not my sanctuary / for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes and vnto all the Children of Israel.

¶ What maner personnes ought to abstayne from eatynge the thynges that were offred. How, what, and when they shulde be offered.

CAPI. XXII.

AND the Lorde comened with Moses, A sayenge: byd Aarō and his sonnes that they abstayne frome the halowed thinges of the children of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, that they polute not my holy name: for I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all youre seed amonge youre generacion after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thinges which the children of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lorde, his vnclennes shall be vpon hym: and that soule shall perysshe forth of my sight. I am the Lorde.

None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnynge sore, shall eate of the halowed thinges tyll he be cleane. And who so euer toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose seed runneth frome him by nyghte, or who so euer toucheth any worme that is vncleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him what so euer vnclennesse he hath: the same soule that hath any suche thinge, shall be vncleane vntyll euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thinges vntyll he haue washed his flesshe with water. And then when the sonne is downe, he shall be cleane and shall afterwarde eate of the halowed thinges: for they are his fode. * Of a beast that dyeth alone or is rent with wylde beastes, he shall not eate, to defyle him selfe therwith: I am the Lorde. But let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce least they lade synne vpon them and dye therin, when they haue defyled them selues: for I am the Lorde which sanctify them. B Exodi. xxii. d. Ezech. xliiii. g

There shall no straunger eate of the halowed thinges, neyther the preestes gest, or his hyred seruaunt. But yf the preest bye any person with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred. Yf the preestes daughter be maryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed heueofferinges. Notwithstandinge yf the preestes daughter be a wydow or deuorsed, and haue no childe but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bred as well as she dyd in her youth. But there shall no straunger eate therof. Yf a man eate of the halowed thinges vnwityngly, he shall put the fyfte parte therunto, and make good vnto the preest the halowed thinge. And let the preestes se, that they defyle not the halo-

halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel which they haue offred vnto the Lorde, least they lade them selues with mysdynge & trespace in eatynge their halowed thynges, for I am the Lorde which halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all ℣ chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or straunger in Israel that will offre his offrynge: what so euer vowe or frewyll offrynge it be whiche they wyll offer vnto the Lorde for a burntoffrynge to reconcyle them selues, it must be a male without blemyth of the oxen, shepe, or gootes, let them offer nothyng that is deformed for they shall gette no fauoure

Yf a man wyll offer a peaceoffrynge vnto the Lorde and seperate a vowe or a frewyll offrynge of the oxen or the flocke, it muste be without deformyte, that it maye be accepted.

There maye be no blemyche therin: whether it be blynde, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maungye or scabbed, se ye offre no suche vnto the Lorde, nor put an offrynge of any such vpon the aultare vnto the Lorde.

An oxe or a shepe that hathe any membre out of proporcion, maylte thou offer for a frewyll offrynge: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lord that is bruised, broken, plucked out or cut awaye, neyther shalte make any suche in youre lande, neyther of a straungers hande shall ye offre an offrynge to youre God of any suche. For they marre all in that they haue deformytes in them, and therfore can not be accepted for you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: when an oxe, a shepe, or a goote is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dame. And frome the eyght daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it and her younge bothe in one daye.

When ye wyll offer a thanke offrynge vnto the Lorde, ye shal so offre it that ye may be accepted. And the same day, it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it tyl the morow. For I am the Lorde, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lorde. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. For I am the Lorde whiche halowe you, and brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

¶ Of the holy dayes, as the Sabboth, Ester, whitsontyde, the feast of the fyrste frutes. The feaste of clensynge. The feaste of Trompetes. The feast of the tabernacles.

CAPI. XXIII.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall call holy feastes. Syxe dayes ye shall worcke, and the seuenth is the Sabboth of reste an holye feaste: so that ye maye doo no worcke therin, for it is the Sabboth of the Lorde, wheresoeuer ye dwell. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall proclayme holye in their seasons. * The .xiiij. daye of the fyrste moneth at euen is the Lordes * Passouer. And the fyftene daye of the same moneth is the feaste of swete breade vnto the Lord seuen dayes ye muste eate vnleuened brede. The fyrste daye shalbe an holy feaste vnto you, so that ye maye do no laboryouse worcke therin. But ye shall offer sacrefyces vnto the Lorde seuen dayes, and the seuenth daye also shalbe an holy feaste, so that ye maye do no laboryous worcke therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande which I gyue vnto you and repe doune youre harueste / ye shall bringe a shefe of the fyrste frutes of youre harueste vnto the preeste, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: and euen the morowe after the Sabboth the preeste shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waueth the shefe, a lambe without blemyche of a yere olde for a burntoffrynge vnto the Lorde: and the meatoffrynge therof, two tenthe deales of fyne floure mengled with oyle to be a sacryce vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: and the drynkoffrynge therto, the fourth deale of an hyn of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther bread, nor parched corne, nor fyrmentye of new corne: vntyl the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offrynge vnto your God. And this shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, wheresoeuer ye dwell.

And ye shall counte frome the morowe after the Sabboth: euen frome the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waueoffryng. vij. weekes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuen weekes, ye shal nombre .l. dayes. And then ye shall bringe a newe meatoffring vnto the Lord. And ye shal bryng out of your habitacions two waueloues made of two tenth deales of fyne floure leuended and baken, for firste frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shal bring with the breed seuen lambes without diffaultie of one yere of age, and one younge oxe, and two rammes, which shal serue for burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, with meatoffrynges, and drynckeoffrynges longynge to the same, to be a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

And ye shall offre an he gote for a synneoffrynge: and two lambes of one yere olde for peaceoffrynges. And the preest shall waue them with the bread of the firste frutes before the Lord and with the two lambes. And they shall be holy vnto the Lorde, and be the preestes. And ye shall make a proclamacion the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall do no laboryous worke therin: And it shal be a law for euer throwout all your habitacions vnto your chyldren after you.

* When ye repe downe youre harueste, thou shalt not make clene rydaunce of thy felde, neither neyther shalt thou make any aftergatheringe of thy harueste: but shalt leue them vnto the poore and the straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. The firste daye of the seuenth moneth shall be a rest of remembraunce vnto you, to blowe hornes in, an holy feast it shalbe, and ye shal do no laborious worke therin, and ye shal offre sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: also the tenthe daye of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shal be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Moreouer ye shal do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an attonment for you before the Lorde your God. For what so euer soule it be that humbleth not him selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed frome his people. And what so euer soule do any maner worke that daye, the same I will destroye frome his people. Se ye do no maner worke therfore. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your generacions after you in all youre dwellynges. A Sabboth of reste it shalbe vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules. The .ix. daye of the monthe at euen and so forth frō euen to euen agayne, ye shall kepe your Sabboth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: the .xv. daye of the same seuenth moneth, shal be the feaste of tabernacles. vij. dayes vnto ℣ Lorde. The firste daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therin. Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, and the .viij. daye shalbe an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shal do no laborious worke therin.

These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall proclayme holy feastes, for to offre sacrifice vnto the Lorde, burntoffrynges, meatoffringes and drynkeoffringes euery daye: besyde the Sabbothes of the Lorde, and besyde your gyftes, and all your vowes, and al your frewilloffringes which ye shall gyue vnto the Lorde.

Moreouer in the .xv. daye of the seuēth moneth after that ye haue gathered in the frutes of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes longe. The firste daye shall be a daye of reste, and the eyght daye shall be a daye of rest. And ye shall take you the firste daye, the frutes of goodly trees and ℣ braunches of palme trees and the bowes of thycke trees, and wylowes of the brooke: and shall reioyse before the Lorde seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe it holye daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes in the yere. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you, that ye kepe that feast in the seuenth moneth. And ye shall dwell in boothes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boothes, that your children after you may know howe I made the chyldren of Israel dwell in boothes, when I brought them oute of the lande of Egypte: for I am the Lorde youre God. And Moses tolde all the feastes of the Lorde vnto the chyldren of Israel.

¶ The oyle for the lampes and lyghtes of the byrde of remembraunce or the wyned. Hee that curseth must be stoned. He that kylleth shalbe kylled. &c.

CAPI. XXIIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they bringe vnto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to powre into ℣ lampes alwaye, without the vayle of wytnesse within the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall dresse them dorthe euen and mornynge before the Lorde alwayes. And it shal be a lawe for euer amonge youre children after you. And he shall dresse the lampes vpon the pure candelsyche before the Lorde perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne floure and bake .xij. wastels therof, two tenth deales shall euery wastell be. And make two rowes of the, sixe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankencens vpon the rowes. And it shall be dyed of remembraunce, and an offrynge to the Lorde. Euery Sabboth he shall put theym in rowes before the Lorde euermore, gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, that it be an euerlastinge couenaunte. And they shall be Aarons and his sonnes, and they shall eate theym in the holye place. For they are moste holye vnto him of the offrynges of the Lorde, and shall be a duety for euer.

And the son of an Israelytish wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went oute amonge the chyldren of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelytysh wyfe and a man of Israel, stroue togyther in the hoste. And the Israelytysshe womans sonne blasphemed the name of the Lorde and cursed, and they brought him vnto Moses. And his mothers name was Salompth, the doughter of Dibry of the tribe of Dan: and they put him in warde, that Moses shulde declare vnto them what the Lorde sayde therto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge, bringe him that blasphemed without the host and let all that herde him, put their handes vpon his heed, and let al the multitude stone him. And speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayenge. Who so euer curseth his God, shall beare his synne: And he that blasphemeth ℣ name of the Lorde, shall dye for it: all the multitude shall stone him to deathe. And the straunger as well as the Israelite, yf he curse the name, shall dye for it.

He that kylleth any man, shall dye for it, but he that kylleth a beaste shall paye for it, beast for beast. Yf a man mayme his neyghboure, euen as he hath wone, so shal it be wone to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and tothe for tothe: euen as he hathe maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne.

So noby

D So now be that kylleth a beast shall pay for it: but he that kylleth a man, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner lawe amonge you: euen for the straunger as well as for one of your selues, for I am the Lorde your God.

And Moses tolde the children of Israel, þ they shulde bringe him that had cursed, out of the hoste, and stone him with stones. And the children of Israel dyd as the Lorde cõmaunded Moses.

¶ The Sabboth of the seuen yeres and of the yere of iubelie, otherwise called the kyrye yere.

CAPI. XXV.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayenge: speake vnto þ children of Israel and saye to theym. Whẽ ye be come into the lande which I geue you let the lande kepe a Sabboth vnto the Lorde. Sixe yeres thou shalt sowe thy felde, and sixe yere thou shalt cut thy vynes and gather in thy fruites. But the seuenth yere shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabboth it shalbe, and thou shalt neither sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vynes.

The Sabboth of seuen yeares.

The corne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not repe, neyther gather the grapes that growe without thy dressynge: but it shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. Neuertheles the Sabboth of the lande shall be meate for you: euen for the and thy seruaunte and for thy mayd and for thy hyred seruaunt and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy cattell and for the beastes that are in thy lande, shall all the encrease therof be meate. Then nombre seuen weekes of yeres, that is, seuen times seuen yere: and the space of the seuen weekes of yeres wyll be vnto the xlix. yere. And then thou shalte make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, which is the day of attonement. And then shall ye make the horne blowe, euen throughout all youre lande. And ye shall halowe the fyftieth yere, and proclayme lyberte throughout the lande vnto all the inhabiters therof. It shall be a yere of iubelie vnto you and ye shall returne: euerye man vnto his possession and euery man vnto his kynred agayne. A yere of iubelye shall that fyftieth yere be vnto you.

Ye shall not sowe neyther repe the corne that groweth by it selfe, nor gather the grapes that growe without thy laboure. For it is a yere of iubelye and shall be holye vnto you: howbeit, yet ye shall eate of the encrease of the felde. And in this yere of iubelie ye wall returne, euery man vnto his possession agayne.

When thou sellest oughte vnto thy neighboure or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not oppresse one an other: but accordynge to the nombre of yeres a ter the iubelye yere, thou shalte bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the nombre of fruteyeres, he shall sell vnto the. Accordyng vnto the multytude of yeres, thou shalte encrease the pryce therof, and accordynge to the fewnesse of yeres, thou shalte mynysshe the pryce: for the nombre of the frute he shal sell vnto the. And se that no man oppresse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lorde youre God. Wherfore doo after myne ordinaunces, and kepe my lawes, and doo them, that ye maye dwell in the lande in saferye. And the lande shall geue her frute, and ye shall eate youre fyll and dwell therin in saferye.

Yf ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yere, in as moche as we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure encreace. I wyll sende my blessyng vpon you in the syxte yere, and it shall bringe forthe frute for thre yeres: and ye shall sowe the eyghte yere, and eate of olde frute vntyll the nynth yere, and euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde frooze.

Wherfore the lande shall not be solde for euer, because that the lande is myne, and ye but straungers and sojourners with me: and ye shall throwe oute all the lande of youre possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

When thy brother is waxed poore, and hath solde of his possession: yf any of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whyche his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet yf his hand can get sufficient to bye it out agayne, then let hym counte how longe it hath be solde, and delyuer the rest vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall returne vnto his possession agayne. But yf his hande can not get sufficient to restore it to hym agayne, then that whyche is solde shall remayne in the haude of hym that hathe boughte it, tyll the Jubelye: and in the yere of Jubelye it shall come oute, and he shall returne vnto his possession agayne.

Yf a man sell a dwellynge house in a walled citye, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme within a hole yere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in whiche he maye redeme it agayne.

But yf it be not bought out agayne within the space of a full yere, then the house in the walled citye shall be stablysshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his successours after hym, and shall not goo out in the yere of Jubelye. But the houses in villages whiche haue no walles rounde aboute them shall be counted lyke vnto the feldes of the countrey, and maye be bought oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the yere of Jubelye.

Notwithstandynge the cityes of the Leuytes and the houses in the cityes of their possessions, the Leuytes maye redeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase oughte of the Leuytes: whether it be house or city that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelye: for the houses of the cityes of the Leuytes, are their possessyons amonge the children of Israel. But the feldes that lye rounde aboute their cityes, shall not be bought: for they are their possessyons for euer.

If thy brother be waxed poore and fallen in decaye with the, receyue hym as a straunger or a sojourner, and lette hym lyue by the. * And thou shalte take none vsurye of hym, nor gaynes. But shalte feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalte not lende hym thy money vpon vsurye, nor lende hym of thy fode to haue gaynes by it: for I am the Lorde youre God whiche haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypte, to geue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

Yf thy brother that dwelleth by the, waxe poore and sell hym selfe vnto the, thou shalte not let him labour, as a bondseruaunt doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be with, and shall serue the, vnto the yere of iubelye, and then shal he departe from the: bothe he and his children with hym, and shall returne vnto his owne kynred agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not be solde as bondmen.

Se therfore thou raygne not ouer him cruelye, but feare thy God. Yf thou wilte haue bondseruauntes and maydens, thou shalte bye them of the heythen that are rounde about you, and of the children of the straungers that are sojourners amonge you and of their generations that are with you, whiche they begate in your lande. And ye shal possesse them and geue them vnto youre children after you, to possesse them for euer: and they shall be youre bondemen. * But ouer your brethren the children of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer an other cruelly.

When a straunger and a sojourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxeth poore and sell him selfe vnto the straunger that dwelleth by the, or to any of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he maye be redemed agayne: one of his brethren maye bye hym oute: whether it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred: eyther yf his hande can get so moche, he maye be loosed.

And he shal reckon with hym that bought hym from the yere in whiche he was solde, vnto the yere of Jubelye, and the price of his bringe shall be accordynge to the nombre of yeres, and he shall be with hym as a hyred seruaunt.

Yf there be yet many yeres behynde, accordynge vnto them he shall geue agayne for his delyueraunce, of the money that he was solde for.

Yf there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Jubelye, he shall so counte with hym, and accordynge vnto his yeres gyue hym agayne for his redemption, and shall be with hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not raygne cruelly ouer hym in thy syght. Yf he be not bought free in the meane tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Jubelye and his children with him: for the children of Israel are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte.

¶ Images are forbidden. Blessed are they that kepe those thynges that God byddeth and moost cursed are they that kepe them not.

CAPI. XXVI.

I Am the Lorde your God. Ye shal make you no idolles nor grauen ymage, neyther reare you vp anye pyller, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lande to bowe your selues thereto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Sabbothes and feare my sanctuarye: for I am the Lorde.

Yf ye shall walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my cõmaundementes and do them, then I will sende you rayne in the ryght season, & youre lande shall yelde her encrease and þ trees of the felde shall gyue their frute. And the threshynge shall reache vnto wyne hanestle, & the wynehauest shall reache vnto sowinge tyme, and ye shall eate youre breed in plentyousnes, and shall dwell in youre lande prayably. And I will sende peace in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afrayde.

And I will expell euyll beastes out of youre lande, and there shall no sweorde goo throwe out youre lande. And ye shall chase youre enemyes, and they shall fall before you vpon the sweorde. And fyue of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and youre enemyes shall fall before you vpon the sweorde. And I wyll tourne vnto you and encrease you and multiplye you, and set vp my testament with you. And ye shall eate olde stoare, and calle out the olde for plenteousnes of the newe. * I wyll make my dwellynge place amonge you, and my soule shall not lothe you. And I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde youre God, whiche brought you out of the lande of the Egyptians, that ye shulde not be their bondmen, and I brake the bowes of youre yockes, and made you goo vpryght.

* Deut. xxviii. b. Leuit. xxvi.

* But yf ye will not herken vnto me, nor will do all these my commaundementes, or yf ye shall despyse myne ordinaunces, so that ye not do all my commaundementes, but shall breake myne appoyntement: then I will do this agayne vnto you: I will vysyt you with vexations, swellinge and feuers, that shall make youre eyes dasell, and with sorowes of herte. And ye shall sowe youre seed in vayne, for your ennemyes shall eate it. And I will set my face agaynste you, and ye shall fall before your ennemyes, and they that hate you shall rayne ouer you, and ye shall flee when no man pursueth you.

And yf ye will not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punysh you seuẽ tymes more for youre synnes, and wyll breake the pryde of youre strengthe. For I will make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & your lande as harde as braſſe. And ſo your laboure ſhalbe ſpent in vayne. For youre lande ſhall not gyue her encreaſe, neyther the trees of the lande ſhall gyue their frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me and wil not herken vnto me, I will bringe ſeuen tymes mo plagues vpon you accordynge to your ſynnes. I will ſende in, wylde beaſtes vpon you, which ſhall ſpoyle you of your childzen and deſtroye your catel, and make you ſo few in nombre that youre highe wayes ſhal grow to a wyldernelle.

And yf ye wyll not be lerned yet, for all this, but ſhal walke contrarye vnto me, then will I alſo walke contrarye vnto you, and wyll punyſh you yet ſeuen tymes for youre ſynnes. I wyll ſende a ſwerde vpon you, that ſhall auenge my teſtament with you. And when ye are fled vnto youre cytyes, I wyll ſende the peſtilence amonge you, ye ſhalbe gyuen into the handes of your ennemyes. And wyen I haue broken the ſtaffe of youre breed / that. x. wyues ſhall bake your bred in one ouen and men ſhall delyuer you your breed agayne by weyght, then ſhall ye eate and ſhal not be fylled.

And yf ye will not yet for all this, herken vnto me, but ſhall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrarye vnto you alſo, wrathfully and will alſo punyſhe you ſeuen tymes for your ſynnes: ſo that ye ſhall eate ꝑ fleſhe of your ſonnes and the fleſhe of youre dughters. And I will deſtroye your altares buylt vpon hyghe hylles, & ouerthrowe your ymages, and caſt youre carkaſes vpon the bodyes of your ydolles, and my ſoule ſhall abhorre you. And I will make your cytyes deſolate, & bryngе your ſanctuaries vnto noughte, and will not ſmel the ſauoures of your ſwete odoures.

And I will bringe the lande vnto a wyldernelle: ſo that your enemyes whiche dwell therin, ſhall wondre at it. And I will ſtrawe you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a ſwerde after you, and youre lande ſhall be waſt, and your cytyes deſolate. Then the lād ſhall reioyſe in her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde and ye in your ennemies lande euen then ſhall the lande kepe holy daye and reioyſe in her Sabbothes. And as longe as it lyeth voyde it ſhall reſt, for that it coulde not reſte in youre Sabbothes, when ye dwelte therein.

And vpon them that are left alyue of you I will ſende a faynтnelle in to their hertes in the lande of their ennemyes: ſo that ꝑ ſound of a leef that falleth, ſhall chace them & they ſhall flee as thoughe they fled a ſwerde, and ſhall fall no man folowinge them. And they ſhall fal one vpon an other, as it were before a ſwerde no man purſuyng them, and ye ſhal haue no power to ſtande before youre ennemyes: And ye ſhall perylſhe amonge the hethen, and the lande of youre ennemyes ſhall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, ſhall pyne away in their vnrighteouſnes, euen in their ennemyes lande, and alſo in the mysdeades of their fathers ſhall they conſume. And they ſhall confeſſe their mysdedes, and the myſdedes of their fathers in their treſpaces whyche they haue treſpaced againſt me, and for that alſo that they haue walked cōtrary vnto me. Therfore I alſo will walke contrarye vnto them, and will bryngе them into the lande of their ennemyes. And then at leeſt waye their vncircumcyſed hertes ſhall be tamed, & then they ſhall make attonement for their myſdedes.

And I will remembre my bonde with Iacob and my couenant with Iſaac, and my teſtament with Abraham, and will thinke on ꝑ lande. For the lande ſhall be left of them and ſhall haue pleaſure in her Sabbothes, whyle ſhe lyeth waſt without them, and they ſhall make an attonement for their mysdedes, becauſe they deſpiſed my lawes and their ſoules refuſed myne ordinaunces. And yet for al that when they be in the lande of their ennemye, * I will not ſo caſt them awaye nor my ſoule ſhall not ſo abhorre them, that I will vterly deſtroye them, and breake myne appointement with theym: for I am the Lorde their God. I will therfore remembre vnto them the fyrſte couenaunte made when I broughte them out of the lande of Egypte in the ſight of the heythen to be their God: for I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgementes, and lawes whyche the Lorde made betwene hym and the childzen of Iſrael in mount Sinai by the hande of Moſes.

¶ Of diuerſe vowes and the redempyng of the ſame Of tythes. xc.

CAPI. XXVII.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayenge/ ſpeake vnto the childzen of Iſrael and ſaye vnto them: Yf any mā wil gyue a ſinguler vowe vnto the Lorde accordynge to the value of his ſoule, then ſhal the male frome twenty yere vnto. lx. be ſet at. l. * ſycles of ſyluer, after the ſycle of the ſanctuary, and the female at. xxx. ſycles. And frō v. yeres to. xx. the male ſhall be ſet at. xx. ſycles, and the female at. x. ſycles. And frome a moneth vnto. v. yere, the male ſhall be ſet at. v. ſycles of ſiluer, and the female at thre. And the man that is. lx. and aboue, ſhalbe valued at. xv. ſycles, and the woman at. x. Yf the be to poze ſo to be ſet, thē let him come before the preaſt: and let the preaſt value him, accordynge as the hande of him that vowed is hable to get.

Yf it be of the beaſtes of which men bringe an offeryngе vnto the Lorde: all that any mā gyueth of ſuche vnto the Lorde, ſhalbe holy. He maye not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. Yf he chaunge beaſt for beaſt, then both the ſame beaſt and it alſo wherwith it was chaunged ſhalbe holy. Yf it be any maner of vncleane beaſt of which men maye not offer vnto the Lorde, let him bringe the beaſt before the preaſt and let the preaſt preaſt value it. And whether it be good or bad as the preaſt ſetteth it, ſo ſhall it be. And yf he will hye it agayne, let him gyue the fyfte parte more to that it was ſet at.

Yf any man dedicate his houſe, it ſhall be holy vnto the Lorde. And the preaſt ſhall ſet it, whether it be good or bad, and as ꝑ preaſt hath ſet it, ſo it ſhall be. Yf he that ſanctified it, wil redeme his houſe, let him gyue the fift parte of the money that it was iuged at therto, and it ſhalbe his.

Yf a man halowe a pece of his enheryted lande vnto the Lorde, it ſhall be ſet accordyng to that it beareth. Yf it beare an homer of barley, it ſhall be ſet at fyfty ſycles of ſyluer. Yf he bowe his lande forthwith from the yere of Jubely, it ſhalbe worthe accordynge as it is eſtemed. But yf he halowe his felde after the trompet yere, the preaſt ſhall reckon the pryce with him accordynge to the yeres ꝑ remayne vnto the trompet yere, and therafter, it ſhall be lower ſet.

Yf he that ſanctifyed the felde will redeme it agayne, let him put the fyfte parte of the pryce that it was ſet at thervnto, and it ſhall be his, yf he will not, it ſhall be redemed no more. But when the felde goeth out in ꝑ yere of Jubyle, it ſhalbe holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a thinge dedycated, and it ſhall be the preaſtes poſſeſſion.

Yf a man ſanctifie vnto ꝑ Lorde a felde, whyche he hath boughte and is not of his enheritaunce, then the preaſt ſhall reken with hym what it is worth vnto the yere of Jubyle, and he ſhall gyue the pryce that it is ſet at ꝑ ſame daye, and it ſhalbe holy vnto the Lorde. But in the yere of Jubely, the felde ſhall returne vnto him of whome he bought it, whoſe enheritaunce of lande it was.

And all ſettynge ſhall be accordynge to the holy ſycle. One ſycle maketh. xx. Geras.

But the firſt borne of the beaſtes that pertayne vnto the Lorde, maye no man ſanctify: whether it be oxe or ſheepe, for they are ꝑ Lordes alredy. Yf it be an vncleane beaſte, then let him redeme it as it is ſet at, and gyue the fyfte parte more therto. Yf it be not redemed then let it be ſolde as it is rated.

Notwithſtandynge no dedycated thynge ꝑ a man dedycateth vnto the Lorde, of all his good, whether it be man or beaſt or lande of his enheritaunce, ſhalbe ſolde or redemed: for all dedicate thinges are mooſte holy vnto the Lorde. No dedicate thinge therfore that is dedicate of man, may be redemed, but muſt nedes dye.

All theſe tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the felde or frute of the trees, ſhalbe holy vnto the Lorde. Yf any man will redeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte more therto. And the tythes of oxē and ſheepe and of all that goth vnder the heed mans keppynge, ſhall be holy tythes vnto the Lorde. Men ſhal not loke yf it be good or bad nor ſhall chaunge it. Yf any man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged with all, ſhalbe holy and may not be redemed.

These are the commaundementes which the Lorde gaue Moſes in charge to gyue vnto the childzen of Iſrael in mount Sinai.

The ende of the thyrde booke of Moſes.

THE FOVRTHE BOKE OF MOSES CALLED NVMERI.

¶ All that are apte for batell are numbred. The trybe of Leuy is appoynted to mynystre to the tabernacle.

Amonge the childzen of Aser / their generation in their kynredes and houses of their fathers (when they were summed by name / frome twenty yeres and aboue, all that were apte to warre were nombred in the trybe of Aser one and fourty thousande, and fyue hundred.

Of Nephthali.

Amonge the childzen of Nephthali: their generation, in their kynredes and houses of their fathers (when their names were tolde) frome .xx. yeres and aboue, what so euer was mete to warre: were nombred in the trybe of Nephthali thre and fyfty thousande and. vij. hundred.

These

These are the nombres whyche Moses and Aaron nombred with the twelue prynces of 6 Israel: of euery houte of their fathers a man. And all the nombres of the chyldren of Israel, in the houses of their fathers, frome twentye yere and aboue, what so euer was mete for the warre in Israel, dyewe vnto the somme of fyue hundred and thre thousande, fyue hundred and fyftye. But the Leuites in the tribe of their fathers, were not nombred amonge them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: onely se thou nombre not the trybe of Leui, ne take the somme of them amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the Leuytes vnto the habitacion of witnesse, and to all the garnysshment therof, and vnto all that longeth thereto. For they shall beare the tabernacle, and all the ordinaunce therof, and they shall mynistre it, and shall pytche their tentes rounde aboute it. And when the tabernacle goeth forthe, the Leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is pytched, they shall set it vp: for ꝑ any straunger come nere, he shall dye. And the chyldren of Israel shal pytch their tentes euery man in his owne companye, and euery man by his owne standerd throw out all their hostes. But the Leuytes shall pytche rounde aboute the habitacion of witnesse, that there fal no wrath vpon the congregacion of the chyldre of Israel, and the Leuytes shall wayte vpon the habitacion of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ The order of the pytchynge of the tentes rounde about the tabernacle of witnesse. The heades and eyelle Lordes or the kinredes of Israel are named.

CAPI. II.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: The chyldren of Israel shall pytche: euery man by his own standerd, with the armes of his fathers houses, alwaye frome the presence of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

On the east syde towarde the rysynge of the sonne, shall they of the standerd of the hoste of Juda pytche with their armes: And Nahelson the sonne of Aminadab shall be captayne ouer the sonnes of Juda. And his hoste and the nombre of theym thre score and fourtene thousande, and fyue hundred. And nexte vnto hym, shall the trybe of Isachar pytche, and Nathanael the sonne of Zuar, captayne ouer the chyldren of Isachar, his hoste and the nombre of them. liiij. thousande and foure hundred.

And then the tribe of Zabulon: with Eliab
B the sonne of Helon, captayne ouer the chyldre of Zabulon, and his hoste in the nombre of them lvij. thousande, and foure hundred. So that all they that perrayne vnto the hoste of Juda, are an hundred thousande. lxxvbi. thousande and foure hundred in their companyes: and these shall go in the forefront, when they iourney.

And on the southe syde, the standerd of the hoste of Ruben shall lye with their companyes, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, Elizur the sonne of Sedeur, and his hoste and the nombre of them. xlvi. thousande, and fyue hundred.

And fast by hym shall the trybe of Simeon pytche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Simeon. Salumiel the sonne of Zuri Sadai and his hoste, and the nombre of them lix. thousande, and thre hundred. And ꝑ trybe of Gad also: And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xlv. thousande, fyre hundred, and fyftye. So that all the nombre that appertayne vnto the hoste of Ruben, are an hundred and. li. thousande, foure hundred and fyftye, with their companyes, and they shall be the seconde in the iourney.

And the tabernacle of wytnesse with ꝑ host of the Leuytes, shall go in the myddes of the E hostes: as they lye in their tentes, euē so shal they procede in the iourney, euery man in his quarter about the standerdes.

On the west syde, the standerd and ꝑ hoste of Ephraim shall lye with their companyes. And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud: and his hoste, and the nombre of them fourty thousand and fyue hundred.

And fast by hym the trybe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur and his hoste, and the nombre of them were. xxxij. thousand and two hundred. And the trybe of Ben Jamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ben Jamin, Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni, and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xxxv. thousande, and foure hundred. All the nombre that belonged vnto the hoste of Ephraim, were an hundred thousande, eyght thousande and an hundred in their hostes: and they shal be the thyrde in the iourney.

And the standerd and the hoste of Dan shal lye on the northy syde with their companyes: and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sadai: and his hoste, and the nombre of them threscore and two thousande and seuen hundred. And fast by him shall the trybe of Aser pytche: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser, Pagiel D the sonne of Ocran: and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xli. thousand and fyue hundred. And the tribe of Nepthali also, and the captayn ouer the chyldren of Nepthali: Ahira the sonne of Enan: and his hoste, and the numbre of them. liij. thousande an foure hundred. So that the hole numbre of al that perayned vnto the hoste of Dan, was an hundred. lvij. thousande and fyue hundred. And they shalbe the last in that iorney with their standerdes.

These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel in the houses of their fathers: euen al the nombres of the hostes with their companyes fyue hundred thousand thre thousande

fyue

fyue hundred and fyfty. And yet the Leuites were not nombred amonge the chyldren of Israel as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and pitched with their standerdes, and they iourneyd euery man in his kynred, and in the housholde of his father.

¶ The Leuites are not nombred to go to battell, but to mynystre to the holy place of sanctuary. They muste all o pitch theyr tentes next to the habitacion.

CAPI. III.

A THese are the generacions of Aaron and Moses, when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai. And these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron, which were preestes anoynted, and theyr handes fylled to mynistre, but *Nadab and Abihu dyed before þ Lorde, as they brought straunge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Sinai, and had no chyldren. And Eleazar and Ithamar mynistred in the sight of Aaron their father. * Leuit. x. a. Num. xxvi. g.

B And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: brynge the tribe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the preest, and let them serue hym and wayte vpon hym, and vpon all the multitude before the tabernacle of wytnesse, to do the seruice of the habitacion. And they shal wayte vpon all the garnyshement of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the seruice of the habitacion. And thou shalte geue the Leuytes vnto Aaron and his sonnes, for they are gyuen vnto hym of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalte appoynt Aaron and his sonnes to wayte on theyr preestes office: and the straunger that cõmeth nye shall dye for it.

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Beholde * I haue taken Leuytes of the chyldren of Israel for all the fyrstborne that openeth the matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel, so that the Leuytes shall be myne: because all the fyrste borne are myne: for the same daye that I smote all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all the fyrste borne in Israel, bothe man and beest, and myne they shall be: for I am the Lorde. * Exod. xiii. a. Nume. viii. c.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Sinai, sayinge: Nombre the chyldren of Leui in the houses of theyr fathers and kynredes, all that are males from a moneth olde and aboue. And Moses nombred them at the worde of the Lorde, as he was commaunded. And these are the names of the chyldren of Leui: Gerson, Cahath, and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in theyr kynredes: Libni and Semei. And the sonnes of Cahath in theyr kynredes were: Amram, Izehar, Hebron and Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes were: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of Leui in the houses of theyr fathers. D

And of Gerson came the kynred of the Libnites and the Semeites, whiche are the kynredes of the Gersonytes. And the sum of them (when al the males were told) from a moneth olde and aboue were seuen thousand and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Gersonites pytched behynde the habitacion westwarde. And the captayne of the moost auncient house among the Gersonites, was Eliasaph the son of Lael.

And the office of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of witnesse was to kepe the habitacion, and the tent with the couerynge therof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the hangynges of the courte, & the curtayne of the doze of the court: whiche court wente rounde aboute the dwellynge, and the aulter, and the cozdes that pertayned vnto all the seruyce therof.

And of Cahath came the kynred of the Amramptes and the kynred of the Jezehaytes and of the Hebronytes, and of the Oziclites. And these are the kynredes of the Cahathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was eyght thousande, and fyue hundred: which wayted on the holy place.

And the kynred of the chyldren of Cahath pytched on the southsyde of the dwelling. And the captayne in the moost auncient house of the kynredes of the Cahathytes, was Elisaphan the sonne of Oziel, and theyr office was to kepe the arcke, the table, the candelstycke, and the aulter, and the holy vessels to mynistre with, and the vayle with all that serued therto. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the Preeste, was Captayne ouer all the Captaynes of the Leuytes, and hadde the ouersyght of them that wayted vpon the holye E tynges.

And of Merari came the kynredes of the Maheliytes, and of the Musites: and these are the kynredes of the Merarytes. And the nombre of them (when all the males from a moneth olde and aboue was tolde) drewe vnto fyue thousande, and two hundred. And the captayne of the moost auncient house amonge the kynredes of the Merarites, was Zuriel þ sonne of Abihael whiche pitched on the north syde of the dwellynge.

And the office of the sonnes of Merari was to kepe the bordes of the dwellynge, and the barres, pylers with the sockettes therof, and all the instrumentes therof, and all that serued therto: and the pylers of the courte round aboute, and theyr sockettes with theyr pynnes and cozdes. But on the foreffront of the habitacion, and before the tabernacle of wytnesse eastward, shal Moses & Aaron and his sonnes pytche, and wayte on the sanctuary in the stede F of the chyldren of Israel. And the straunger þ commeth nye, shall dye for it. And the hole summe of the Leuytes which Moses and Aaron nombred, at the commaundement of the Lorde throughout their kynredes, euen of all the males of a moneth olde and aboue, was xxij. thousande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Nombre all the fyrst borne that are males amonge the chyldren of Israel, frome a moneth olde and aboue, and take the nombre of theyr names. And thou shalte appoynte the Leuytes to me the Lorde, for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Leuytes for the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel. And Moses nombred as the Lorde commaunded hym all the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel. And all the fyrstborne males in the summe of names, frome a moneth olde and aboue, were nombred two and twentye thousande, two hundred, and thyrtene.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Take the Leuytes for all the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Leuytes for theyr cattell: and the Leuytes shall be myne whiche am the Lorde. And for the redemynge of the two hundred and thyrtene, whiche are moo then the Leuytes in the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel, take. v. sycles of euery pece, after * the sycle of the holy place, twentye geras the sicle. And giue the money wherwith the odde nombre of them is redemed, vnto Aaron and his sonnes. 6 * Num. iii. b. Num. iii. b. Num. xviii. b.

And Moses toke the redemcyon money of the ouerplus that were moo then the Leuytes, amonge the fyrstborne of the the chyldren of Israel, and it came to a thousande, thyrtene hundred, and thyrtene score and fyue sycles, of the holye sycle. And he gaue that redempcyon money vnto Aaron & his sonnes at the worde of the Lorde, lyke as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ The offyces of the Leuytes, euery one after the kynde that he came of.

CAPI. IIII.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and bad them take the summe of the chyldre of Cahath forth of the sonnes of Leui in theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers frome thyrtye yere and aboue, vntyll fyftye all that were able to warre to do the worke in the tabernacle of witnesse. This shall be thoffyce of the chyldren of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytnesse whiche is moost holy. And when the hoste remoueth, Aaron and his sonnes shal come and take downe the vayle, and couer the arke of witnesse there with, and shal put theron a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and shall spred a cloth that is all together of Jacinct aboue all, and put the staues therof in. And vpon the shewe table they shall spred abrode a clothe of Jacinct, and put theron the dysshes, spoones, flat peces, and potes to poure with, and the dayly breed shall be theron: and they shall spred vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the same with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put the staues therof in.

And they shall take a clothe of Jacinct and couer the candelstycke of lyghte, and her lampes and her snoffers, and fyre pannes, and all her oyle vessels whiche they occupy about it, and shall put vpon her and on all her instrumentes, a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put it vpon staues. And vpon the golden aulter they shall spred a clothe of Jacinct, and put on her staues.

And they shall take all the thynges whiche they occupy to ministre within the holy place, and put a clothe of Jacinct vpon them and couer them with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put them on staues. And they shall take awaye the asshes out of the aulter, and spred a scarlet cloth theron: and put aboute it, the fyre pannes, the flesshe hokes, the shouels, the basens, and all that belonged vnto the aulter, and they shall spred vpon it a couerynge of taxus skinnes, and put on the staues of it. B

And when Aaron and his sonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the sanctuary and all the thynges of the sanctuarye, against that the hoste remoue, then the sonnes of Cahath shal come in to beare, and so lette them not touche the sauntuarye leaste they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Cahath in the tabernacle of witnesse. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preste, shall haue the charge to prepare oyle for the lyghtes and swete tens, and the dayly meatoffrynge and the anoyntyng oyle, and the ouersyghte of all the dwellynge and of all that therin is, bothe ouer the sanctuarye and of all that pertayneth therto.

And the Lorde spake to Moses and Aaron, sayinge: destroye not the tribe of the kynredes of the Cahathites, frome amonge the Leuites. But thus doo vnto them that they maye lyue and not dye, when they goo vnto the moost holye place. Aaron and his sonnes shall go in and put them euery man vnto his seruice and vnto his burthen. But lette them not go in, to se when they couer the sanctuarye, lest they dye.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: C Take the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, in the houses of theyr fathers and in theyr kynredes: frome thyrtye yere and aboue, tyll fyftye all that are able to go forth in warre, to do seruice in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the seruice of the kynred of the Gersonytes, to serue and to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the tabernacle, and the rofe of the tabernacle of witnes and his couerynge, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes that is on hyghe aboue vpon it, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse: and the hangynge of the courte, and the hangynge of the gate of the courte that is rounde about the dwellynge and the aulter, and the cozdes of them, and all the instrumentes that serue vnto them, and all that is made for them. And at the mouth of Aaron and his sonnes, shal al the seruice of the chyldren of the Gersonytes be doone, in all theyr charges, and in all their seruice, and ye shall appoynte them vnto all theyr charges, that they shal wayte vpon. And this is the seruice of the kynred of the children of the Gersonytes in þ tabernacle of witnesse, C

and they shall be vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest.

And thou shalt nombre the sonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, frome thyrtye yeres and aboue vnto fyfye: euen all that is hable to go forth in warre, to doo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And this is the charge that they muste wayte vpon in all that they muste serue in the tabernacle of wytnesse: The bordes of the tabernacle, and the barres, pyllers and sockettes therof, and the pyllers of the courte rounde about, and theyr sockettes, pynnes, and cordes, with all that pertayneth and serueth vnto them.

D And by name ye shall reckon the thynges that they muste wayte vpon to beare. This is the seruyce of the kynredes of the sonnes of Merary in all theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse vnder the hand of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest.

And Moses and Aaron and the prynces of the multitude nombred the sonnes of the Kahathytes in theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers frome thyrtye yeres and aboue vnto fyfye, all that were hable to goo forthe in the hoste, and to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kynredes, were two thousande, seuen hundred, and fyfye. These are the nombres of the kynredes of the Kahathytes, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of witnesse, whi the Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And the sonnes of Gerson were nombred in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, frome thyrtye yere vp vnto fyfye, all that were hable to goo forthe in the hoste to doo seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, was two thousande, syxe hundred, and thyrtye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde.

And the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari were nombred in theyr kynredes, & in the houses of theyr fathers, from thyrty yere vp vnto fyfye, all that were hable to go forth with the hoste, to do seruice in the tabernacle of witnes And the nõbre of them was in theyr kynredes thre thousande and two hundred. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari, whiche Moses and Aaron nombred at the cõmaundement of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses.

The hole summe which Moses, Aaron and the lordes of Israel nombred amonge the Leuytes in theyr kynredes & housholdes of theyr fathers, from thyrty yere vp vnto fyfye euery man to do his office and seruyce, and to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of wytnes was eyght thousande, fyue hundred and foure score which they nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses, euery man vnto his seruyce & burthen: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ Who they be that ought to be cast oute of the hoste. The knowlegynge of synne. The cleansynge of synne done of ignorance. The lawe of the fyrst frutes, and of gelousye.

CAPI. V.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses, saying: commaunde the chyldren of Israel they put forth of the hoste, all lepers, and all that haue yssues, and all that are defiled vpon the dead, whether they be males or females ye shal put them out of the hoste, that they defile not the tentes among which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And ỳ Lord spake to Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be man or woman, when they haue synned anye maner synne whiche a man doth wherwith a man trespaceth agaynst the Lorde: so that the soule hathe doone amisse: then they knowe lege theyr synnes whiche they haue done, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue wonne in the hole, and put the fifte parte of it more therto, and gyue it him whom he hath trespaced agaynst. But yf he that maketh the amendes haue no man to doo it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the Lordes, and the preestes, besyde the ramme of the attonement offeryng, wherwith he maketh attonement for him selfe. And all the fyrste frutes whiche the chyldren of Israel bryngе vnto the preest, shall be the preestes, and euery mannes halowed thynges shall be his owne, but what so euer any man gyueth the preest, it shall be the preestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, saynge: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, and shewe them. Yf any mannes wyfe goo a syde and trespase agaynst hym, so that an other man lye with her fleshely and the thynge be hyd frome the eyes of her husbande and is not come to lyght that she is defyled (for there is no witnesse agaynst her) in as moche as she was not taken with the maner, and the spyryte of gelousye come vpon him and he is gelous ouer his wyfe and she defyled, or happelye the spyryte of gelousy cometh vpon him, and he is gelous ouer his wyfe, and she vndefyled. Then let her husbande bryng her vnto the preste, and bryng an offeryng for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barlye meele, but he shall poure none oyle therunto, nor put franckencens theron: for it is an offeryng of gelousye, and an offerenge that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And let the preste bryng her and sette her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erthē vessel and of the dust that is in the floure of the habitation, and put it in to the water. And the preeste shall set the wife before the Lorde and vncouer her heade, and put the memorial of the offeryng in her handes whiche is the gelousye offering, and the preest shal haue bitter and cursing water in his hand and he shal coniure her, and shal saye vnto her Yf no man hath lyen with the, neyther hast gone aside and defyled thy selfe behynde thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter cursynge water.

But yf thou hast gone aside behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other mā hath lyen with the besyde thyne husband (and let the preest coniure her with the coniuration of the curse, and saye vnto her) the Lord make the a curse and a coniuration among thy people: so that the Lorde make thy thyghe rotte, and thy bely swell, and this bytter cursyng water goo in to the bowels of the, that thy belye swell, and thy thyghe rotte, and the wyfe shal saye: Amen Amen.

And the preest shal wryte this curse in a byll and walshe it oute in the bytter water. And when the cursynge water is in her, then lette the preest take the gelousyofferynge out of the wymes hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bryng it vnto the aulter: and he shall take an handfull of the memorialofferynge, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make her dryncke the water, and when he hath made her dryncke the water: Yf she be defyled, and haue trespased agaynste her husbande, then shall the cursynge water goo in to her and be so bytter that her belye shall swell, and her thygh shal rotte, and she shal be a curse among her people: That yf she be not defiled but is clene, then she shal haue no harme, but that she may conceyue.

This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth aside behynde her husbande and is defiled, or when the spyryte of gelousye commeth vpon a mā, so that he is gelous ouer his wife, then he shall bryng her before the Lorde, and the preest shal minister all this lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltelesse, and the wife shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of the Nazarees that take vpon them abstynence. The manner of blessynge the people.

CAPI. VI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saynge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to vowe a vowe of abstinence for to absteyne vnto the Lorde, he shal absteyne from wyne and stronge dryncke, and shall dryncke no vynegre of wyne or of strong dryncke, nor shal dryncke what so euer is pressed out of grapes: and shal eate no fresh grapes, neyther yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, not so moche as the kernels or the huske of the grape.

All the while as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasure nor sheres come vpon his heed, vntyll his dayes be runne out wherin he sanctefy vnto the Lorde, and he shall be holye, and shall let the lockes of his heere growe. As longe as he absteyneth vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no dead bodye he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the deathe of his father, mother, brother or sister: for the abstynence of his God is vpon his heed. And therfore as longe as his abstynence lasteth, he shall be holye vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce dye sodenly before him, and defile the heed of his abstinence, then muste he shaue his heed the daye of his clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bryng two turtles, or two ponge pygeons to the preest, vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preest shall offre thone for a synneofferynge and thother for a burntofferynge, and make attonement for hym in that he synned vpon the dead, and shal also halowe his heed the same daye, and shall absteyne vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinencye, and shall bryng a lambe of a yere old for a trespaceofferyng: but the dayes that were before are lost, bicause his abstinencie was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absteynce, when the tyme of his abstynence is runne oute, he shall be brought vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bryng his offeryng vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without spotte for a burntofferynge and a shee lambe of a yere olde without blemysshe for a synofferynge, a ramme without blemysh also for a peaceofferynge, and a basket of swete breed of fyne floure myngled with oyle and wafers of swete breed anopnted with oyle with meatofferynges and drynkofferynges that belonge therto.

And the preest shall bryng him before the Lorde and offre his synofferyng and his burnt offeryng, and shall offre that ramme for a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde with a basket of swete breed, and the Preeste shall offre also his meatofferyng and his drynkofferyng. And the absteyner shall shaue his heed in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heere of his sober heed and put it in that fyre whiche is vnder the peaceofferynge.

Then the Preeste shall take the sodden shoulder, of the ramme and one swete cake out of the basket, and one swete wafer also, and put them in the hande of the absteyner after he hathe shaued his abstinence of, and the Preeste shall waue them vnto the Lorde, whiche offeryng shall be holy vnto the preest, with the wauebrest and heue shoulder: & then the absteyner may dryncke wyne.

This is the lawe of the Nazaree whiche hathe vowed his abstynence vnto the Lorde for his abstinence, besydes that his hande can gette. And accordynge to the vowe whiche he vowed, so he muste do in the lawe of his abstynence.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, saynge speake to Aaron and his sonnes, saynge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel saynge vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the and kepe the.

The

The Lorde make his face shyne vpon the and be mercyfull vnto the.

6 Of this maner was the dedicacion of the alter when it was anoynted, vnto whiche was brought by the prynces of Israel .xij. chargers of syluer, twelue syluer boules, and twelue spones of golde: euery charger conteynynge an hundred and thyrtye sicles of syluer, and euery boule three score and ten, so that all ye syluer of all the vessels, was two thousande and foure hundred sicles of the holy sicle. And the twelue golden spones whiche were full of incense, contayned ten sycles a piece of the holye sicle: so that all the golde of the spones, was an hundred and .xx. sicles.

All the oxen that were brought for the burntofferinges were twelue, and the rammes twelue, and the lambes twelue of a yere olde a pece, with the meatofferynges: with he gotes for synneofferinges. And all the oxen of the peaxofferynges were .xxiiij. the rammes. lx. the gotes. lx. and lambes of a yere olde a piece. lx. and this was the dedicacion of the aulter, after that it was anoynted.

And when Moses was gone in to the tabernacle of wytnesse to speake with God, he herde the voyce of one speaking vnto him out of the mercy seate that was vpon the arke of wytnesse: euen betwene the two cherubyns, he spake vnto him.

¶ The disposicion and order of the lampes. The forme of the candelstycke. The cleansynge and offerynge of the Leuites. The age of the same.

CAPI. VIII.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and say vnto him: * when thou puttest on the lampes, se they lyghte all seuen vpon the forefront of the candelstycke. And Aaron did accordingly and put the lampes vpon the forefront of the candelstycke, as the Lorde comaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelstycke was of fyne golde, bothe the shafte and the floures therof. And accordynge vnto the fashion which the Lorde had shewed Moses, so he made the candelstycke. * Exo.xxv.a

5 And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take the Leuites forth of the chyldren of Israel, and clense them. And this do vnto them when thou clensest them, sprynckle water of purifyenge vpon them, and make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, 6 and let them walshe theyr clothes, and then they shall be clene. And let them take a bullock and his meatofferynge fyne flour mingled with oyle: and an other bullocke shalt thou take to be a synofferynge.

Then bringe the Leuytes before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel togyther. And bringe the Leuytes before the Lorde, and let the chyldren of Israel put theyr handes vpon the Leuytes. And lette Aaron heue the Leuytes before the Lorde for an heue offerynge gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to waye vpon the seruice of the Lorde.

And let the Leuytes put theyr handes vpon the heades of the bullockes, and then offre the: the one for a synofferynge, and the other for a burntofferynge before the Lorde, to make attonement for the Leuytes. And make the Leuytes stande before Aaron and his sonnes, and heue them to be an heueofferynge vnto the Lorde. And thou shalte separat the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let them goo and doo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

C Clense them, and halow them, for they are gyuen me frome amonge the chyldren of Israel

*Num.iii.c. for * I haue taken them vnto me for all the firstborne that open the matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel.

*Exod.xiii.a *For all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel are myne bothe man and beast, bycause the same tyme that I smote the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctifyed them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and haue gyuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes for the of the chyldren of Israel, to doo the seruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage among the chyldren of Israel, yf they come nye vnto the sanctuarye.

D And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldren of Israel dyd vnto the Leuytes accordynge vnto all that the Numer. iiii.c Lorde comaunded Moses. And the Leuytes clensed them selues, and walshed theyr clothes. And Aaron offered them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for them to clense them. And after that, they went in to doo theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and his sonnes. And accordynge as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concernyng the Leuytes, euen so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: This shal be the maner of the Leuytes: frome .xxv. yere vpwarde, they shall go in, to waye vpon the seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and at fifty they shall cease wayting vpon the seruyce of therof, and shall laboure no more, but shall minister vnto theyr brethre in the tabernacle of witnesse, and there wayte but shall do no more seruyce. And se thou doo after this maner vnto the Leuytes, in theyr waytynge tymes.

C The Ester or passouer offerynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerynge the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

CAPI. IX.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the g wildernesse of Sinai, in the fyrst moneth of the seconde yere after they * were come out of the lande of Egypt, sayinge: let the chyldren of Israel offre Passouer in his season, euen the .xiiij. daye of this moneth at euen, they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moses bad the chyldren of Israel that they sholde offre Passouer, and they offered Passouer the .xiiij. daye of the fyrste moneth at euen in the wyldernesse of Sinai: and dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses:

And it chaunced that certayne men which were defiled with a dead corse, so that they mygbte not offre Passouer the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same time and sayde: We are defiled vpon a dead corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offre an offrynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: tarye, that I maye heare what the Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. Yf any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reason of a corse, or is in the waye ferre of, then let hym offre Passouer vnto the Lorde, the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete breed and sour herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the morynge, nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordynaunce of the Passouer lette them offre it.

But yf a man be cleane and not lette in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer Passouer: the same soule shall perysshe frome his people, bicause he broughte not an offerynge vnto the Lorde in his due season: and he shal beare his synne. And when a straunger dwelleth among you, and wyll offre Passouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passouer and maner therof shall he offre it. And ye shall haue one law both for the straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the lykenesse of fyre vntyll the morynge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by day and the symilitude of fyre by night. And when the cloude was taken vp frome the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pytched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lorde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and

and at the mouth of the Lorde they pytched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye styll, and when the cloude taryed styll vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the chyldren of Israel wayted vpon the Lorde and iourneyed not.

Yf it chaunsed that the cloude abode anye space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kepte theyr tentes at the mouth of the Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the comaundement of the Lord. And it it happened that the cloude was vpon the habytacyon frome euen vnto morning, and was taken vp in that morning, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyghte that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taryed two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habytacyon, as longe as it taryed theron, the chyldren of Israel kepte theyr tentes, and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp they iourneyed. At the mouthe of the Lorde they rested, and at the commaundment of the Lorde they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lorde, at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

C The Trompettes of syluer, and the vse therof. The Israelites departe frome Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are nombred. Hobab reuolteth to go with Moses.

CAPI. X.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayst vse them to call the company togyther, and when the host shall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the companye shall resorte to the vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. Yf but one trompet blowe onely, then the prynces which are heades ouer thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. And when ye trompe the fyrste tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trompe the seconde tyme, then the hostes that lye on the south syde shal take theyr iourney: for they shal trompe whe they take theyr iourneys. And in gatheringe the congregacion togyther, ye shall blowe and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the Priestes shall blowe the trompettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and amonge youre chyldren after you.

And when ye shall goo to warre in youre lande agaynste youre ennemyes that vexe you ye shall trompe with the trompettes, and ye shall be remembred before the Lorde your god and saued frome youre ennemyes. Also when ye be merye in your feest dayes, and in the fyrste dayes of youre monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrifices & peax offerynges, that it may be a remembraunce of you before youre God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twentye daye of the seconde moneth in the seconde yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sinai, and the cloud rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan. And they fyrste toke theyr iourney at * mouth of the Lorde by the hand of Moses: euen the standarde of the hoste of Juda remoued with theyr armyes, whose capitayne was Nahasson sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Issachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Suar. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari went forth bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the standerd of the hoste of Ruben went forthe with theyr armyes, whose capitayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samaliel the sonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Then the Cayathytes went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd set vp the habitacion agaynste theyr commynge.

Then the standard of the hoste of the chyldre of Ephraim went forth with theire armies whose capitayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiud. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni. C

And hyndermooste of all the hoste, came the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Dan with theyr armies whose capitayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren Aser was * Pagiel the sonne of Ochran. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of * Or phegiel Nephthali, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In this maner were the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel with theyr armyes when they remoued.

And Moses sayd vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Madianyte, Moses father in lawe: We goo vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, I wyll gyue it you. Goo with vs, and we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto hym: I wyll not, but wyll go to myne owne lande, and to my kynred. And Moses sayde: oh nay, leaue vs not, for thou knowest where is best for vs to pytche in the wildernesse, and thou shalte be oure gyde. And yf thou goo with vs, loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vpon vs, the same we wyll shewe vpon the.

And they departed frome the mounte of the Lorde thre dayes iourney, and the arke of the testament of the Lorde went before them in the thre dayes iourney, to serche out a restyng place for them. And the cloude of the Lorde was ouer them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arcke went forthe, Moses sayde. Ryse vp Lorde, and let thyne enemyes be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the arke rested, he sayd: returne (Lorde) vnto the manye thousandes of Israel.

¶ The people murmureth and is punyshed with fyre. They desyre flesshe. They loothe Manna. The murmuryng and weuerynge sayeth of Moses. The Lorde dyuydethe the burden of Moses to seuentye of the auncyentes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad doo also prophesye in the hoste. It rayneth quayles. The flesshe raueners are punyshed.

CAPI. XI.

1 AND the people complayned, and it displeased the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herd it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them, and consumed the vttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed vnto Moses, and he made sute vnto the Lorde, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place Thabarah, because the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them.

4 And the common sorte of people that was amonge them fell a lustynge. And the chyldren of Israel also wepte eo, and wepte and sayde: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate? we remembre the fysshe which we sholde eate in Egypte for noughte, and of the Cucumbres and melouns, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dryed awaye, for our eyes loke on nothynge elles, saue vpon Manna.

7 The Manna was as it hadde ben Coriander seed, and in apparaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people wente aboute and gathered it, and grounde it in mylles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the hoste in the nyght, the Manna fell therewith.

10 And when Moses herde the people wepe in theyr beholdes, euery man in the dooze of his tente, then the wrethe of the Lorde waxed hote exceedingly: and it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruaunt? wherfore doo I not fynde fauour in thy syghte, sythens thou puttest the wyghte of this people vpon me? Haue I conceyued all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou wouldest saye vnto me, carye them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng child) vnto the lande whiche thou swarest vnto their fathers? where sholde I haue flesshe to gyue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayinge: gyue vs flesshe that we may eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is heuye for me. Wherfore yf thou deale thus with me, kyll me. I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syghte, and let me not se my wretchednesse.

16 And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: gather vnto me thre score and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers ouer them, & bringe them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and let them stande there with the. And I wil come downe and talke with the there, & take of the spirite wich is vpon the, and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

17 And saye vnto the people: halow your selues against to morow, that ye may eate flesh, for ye haue whyned in the eares of the Lorde sayinge: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate, for we were happy whē we were in Egypte? therfore the Lorde wyll gyue you flesshe, and ye shal eate. Ye shall not eate one daye onely, either two or fiue dayes, either ten or twentye dayes: but euen a moneth longe, and vntyll it come out at the nostrels of you, that ye be redye to prebiake: because ye haue cast the Lorde a-syde, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before hym, sayinge: why came we out of Egypt.

21 And Moses sayde: sixe hundred thousande foote men are there of the people, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayd: I wil giue them flesshe, and they shall eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them to fynde them? Either shall all the fysshe of the see be gathered together to serue them? And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Is the Lordes hande waxed shorte? Thou shalte se whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

24 And Moses went forth, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the thre score and ten elders of the people, and sette them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spirite that was vpon him, and put it vpon the thre score and ten elders And as the spirite rested vpon them they prophecied and dyd noughte elles. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the other Medad. And the spirite rested vpon them for they were of them that were wrytten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the hoste.

27 And there ran a yonge man and tolde Moses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad do prophecy in the hoste. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses whiche he had chosen out answered and sayde: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses said vnto him: enuiest thou for my sake? wolde God that all the Lordes people coulde prophecye, and that the Lorde wolde put his spirite vpon them. And then both Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the hoste.

31 And there went forthe a wynde from the Lorde and brought quayles from the see, and let them fal about the hoste, euen a dayes iourney rounde aboute on euery syde of the hoste. And two cubytes hye vpon the erthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morowe, and gathered quayles. And he that gathered leest, gathered tenne homers homers full. And they kylled them rounde about the hoste.

34 And whyle the flesshe was yet betwene theyr teeth, afore it was chewed vp, the wrath of the Lorde warde hoote vpon the people, and the Lorde slewe of the people an exceedynge mygtye slaughter. And they called the name of the place ✠ Kybroth Hathauah: because they buryed the people that lusted there.

35 And the people toke theyr iourney from Kybroth Hathauah vnto Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

¶ Aaron and Mary grudge against Moses. Mary was stryken with the leper and healed at the prayer of Moses.

CAPI. XII.

1 AND ✠ Marye and Aaron spake against Moses, because of his wyfe of Inde whiche he hadde taken: for he hadde taken to wyfe one of Inde. And they sayde, hathe the Lorde spoke onely thorowe Moses? hathe he not spoke also by vs? And the Lorde herde it. But Moses was a very meke man aboue all the men of the earthe. And the Lorde spake attonce vnto Moses, vnto Aaron, and vnto Marye: Come oute ye three vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse: & they came out all thre.

5 And the Lorde came downe in the pyller of the cloude, and stode in the dooze of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Marye. And they wente out bothe of them. And he sayde, heare my wordes: yf there be a Prophete of the Lordes amonge you, I wyl shewe my self vnto him in a vysion, and wyll speake vnto him in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so: whiche is faythfull in all myne house vnto hym I speake mouthe to mouthe, and he seeth the sygne and the facyon of the Lorde and not thorow rydels. Wherfore then were ye not afrayde to speake against my seruaunt Moses.

9 And the Lorde was angrye with them, and went his waye, and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Marye was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron loked vpon her and sawe that she was leprous, he sayde vnto Moses: Oh I beseche the my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs whiche we haue foolyshly committed and synned. Oh, let her not be as one that come deed forth of the mothers wombe: for halfe her flesshe is eaten awaye.

13 And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: Oh God, heale her. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Yf her father had spytte in her face, ought she not be ashamed seuen dayes, let her be shutte forth of the hoste seuen dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Marye was shut out of the hoste seuen dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agarne. And afterwarde, they remoued from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderneste of Pharan.

¶ Certayne are sende to searche the lande of Canaan: which bringe with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of frutefulnesse.

CAPI. XIII.

1 AND the Lorde spake there vnto Moses sayinge: ✠ Sende men oute to searche the lande of Canaan, whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery tryde of theyr fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moses at the commaundement of the Lorde sent forthe of the wildernesse of Pharan, suche men as were al heedes among the children of Israel, whose names are these.

16 And Moses sent them forthe to espye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you southwarde, and go vp in to the hygh countrey, and se the lande what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therin: whether they be stronge or weyke, fewe or many: and what the land is that they dwel in, whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cities they dwell in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether fatte or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. And be of good courage, and bringe of the frutes of the lande. And it was aboute the tyme that grapes are rype.

21 And they went vp and serched out the lande from the wylderneste of Zin vnto Rehob, as men go to Hemath, and thei ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Sesai, and Thalmai the sonnes of Enacke. Hebron was buylt seuen yere before Zoan in Egypte. And they came vnto the riuer of Escol, and they cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, and also of the pomegranates, and of the fygges of the place. The tyme was called Nahel, Escol, because of the cluster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

25 And they turned backe agayne from searchynge the lande at fourtye dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron and vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wildernesse of Pharan, euen vnto Cades, and broughte them wozde and also vnto all the congregacyon, and shewed

them the frute of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came vnto the lande why-
ther thou sendest vs, and surely it is a lande
that flowyth with mylke and honye, and here is of the frute of it. Neuertheles the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the ci-tyes are walled and exceadynge greate, and moreouer we sawe the chyldren of Enacke
there.

The Amalleckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Jebusytes and the A-morytes dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananytes dwell by the see, and alonge by the coste of Jordane.

And Caleb stylled the murmure of the people agaynst Moses, sayinge: let vs go vp and conquere it, for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp with hym, said: We be not able to go vp agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they broughte vp an euyll reaporte of the lande which they had serched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge:
The lande whiche we haue gone thorowe to serche it out, is a lande that eateth vp the in-habytauntes therof, and the people that we sawe in it are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enacke whiche are of the gyauntes. And we semed in our syghte as it were grashoppers, and so we dyd in theyr syght.

¶ The people despearyng of commyng to the lande promysed, do murmure agaynste God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb and Josue, The serchers of the land dye. Amaleth hyllyth the Israelites.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND all the companye cryed out, and the people wept thorowe out that nyght,
and all the people of Israel murmured
agaynst Moses and Aaron: sayinge. Wolde God we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, either we wolde we hadde dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherfore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde, that both our wyues, and also our chyldren shulde be a pray? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to an other: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And Moses and Aaron hearyng this fel on there facys before all the multitude of the chyl
dren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, e Caleb the sonne of Jephone whiche were of them that serched the lande, rent their clothes
and spake vnto all the company of the childre of Israel, sayinge. The lande which we walked thorowe to serche it, is a very good lande. Yf the Lorde haue lust to vs, he wyll bryng vs in to this lande, and gyue it vs, which is a lande that flowyth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not agaynst the Lorde. More ouer feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bread, so may we deuour. Their syelde is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs: feare them not therfore.

That is to saye, replenis-shed with all plentye and commodities

Eccleſi. xlvi. b

And all the people bade stone them with ste-
nes. But the glorye of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witnesse vnto al the childre of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses Howe longe shall this people raple vpon
me, and howe longe wyll it be er they beleue
me? for all my tygnes whiche I haue shewed amonges them? I wyll smyte them with the Pestylence and destroye them, and wyll
make of the a greater nacion, and a myghtier
then they.

And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy myghte from them. And it wyl be tolde to the inhabiters of this lande
also, for they haue herde lykewyse that thou
the Lorde arte amonge this people, and that thou arte sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyller of a cloude,
and in a pyller of fire by nyght.

Yf thou shalte kyll all this people, as they were but one man, then the nacions whiche
haue herde the fame of the wyll speake, sayinge: bycause the Lorde was not able to bryng in this people in to the lande which he sware vnto them, therfore he slew them in the wylderneſſe.

So now let the power of my Lord be great accordynge as thou hast spoken, sayinge: the Lorde is longe er he be angrye, and ful of mer-
cye, and sufferyth synne and trespace, and leaveth no man innocent, and visityth the vn-ryghteousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generacion, be mercyfull I beseche the therfore vnto
the synne of this people, accordynge vnto thy greate mercye, and accordynge as thou hast
forgyuen this people from Egypte, euen vn-
to this place.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgyuen it, accordynge to thy request. But as truelye as I lyue, all the earthe shall be fylled with my glorye. For of all those men whiche haue sene my glorye, and my myracles whiche I dyd in Egypte, and in the wylderneſſe, and yet haue tempted me now this tenne tymes, & haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande whiche I sware vnto theyr fathers: neyther shall any of them that rayled vpon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb: by-cause there is an other maner spirite with hym, and because he hathe folowed me: vnto
him I wyll bryng in to the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amalleckytes and Cananytes whiche
dwel in the lowe countreys. To morowe turne you and get you in to the wilderneſſe: euen the waye towarde the red see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: how longe shall this euyll mul-tytude murmure agaynst me: I haue herd the murmuryngs of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynste me. Tell them that the Lorde sayth: as truly as I lyue, I wyll
doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Youre carkaſſes shall lye in the wylderneſſe: neyther shall anye of these nombres whiche

which were nombred from twenty yere and aboue of you which haue murmured agaynste
me come into the lande ouer which I lyfted
myne hande to make you dwell therin, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

And youre chyldren which ye sayde shulde be a pray, them I will bringe in, and they shall knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and youre carkaſes shall lye in this wyldernesse.
And youre chyldren shall wandre in this wyl-dernesse. xl. yeres and suffre for youre whore-
me vntyll youre carkaſſes be wasted in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye serched out the lande. xl. dayes, and euery day a yere: so that they shal beare youre vnryghteousnes. xl. yere, and ye shall fele my vengeaunce. I the Lorde haue sayde that I will do it vnto all this cuyll congregacio that are gathered togyther against me: euē in this wyldernesse ye shalbe consumed, and there ye shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to serche the
lande, and whiche (when they came agayne)
made all the people to murmure agaynst it in that they broughte vp a sclaunder vpon the lande: dyed for theyr vngodlye vp that cuyll sclaunder vpon it, and were plaged before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Jephune whiche were of the men that went to enserche the Lande, lyued styll. And Moses tolde these sayenges to all the children of Israel, & the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the mornyng and
gat theym into the toppe of the mountayne,
sayenge: lo we be here, and will go vp vnto
the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, for we haue synned. And Moses sayd: wherfore wil ye go on this manor beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it wyll not come well to passe, go not vp (for the Lorde is not amonge you) least ye be slayne before youre ennemyes. For the Ama lechytes and the Cananytes are there before you, and ye wyl fal vpon the swerde, because ye are tourned away from the Lorde, & therefore the Lorde will not be with you.

But they were blynded to goo vp in to the hyll toppe: Neuertheleſſe, the arcke of the te-stamēt of the Lorde and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechytes and the Cananytes which dwelt in that hil, came downe and smote them and hewed themselues vnto Horma.

¶ The drynkoffrynges of them that enter in to the lande the punyshment of hym that synneth of ar-roganey or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered stykes on the Sabboth. Gardes must be made vpon
the quarters of theyr garmetes.

CAPI. XV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say-enge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto theym: When ye be come into the lande of your habitation which I gyue vnto you, and will offre an offrynge
vpon the fyre vnto the Lorde, whether it be a burntoffrynge or a specyall vowe or frewil
offringe, or yf it be in youre principall feastes
to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of oxen or of the flocke.

Then, let him that offreth his offrynge vn-
to the Lorde, bryng also a meatoffrynge of a tenth deale of floure, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne for a drynkeoffrynge, and offer with the burntoffrynge or any other offrynge when it is a lambe. And vnto a Ram thou shalt offer a meatoffrynge of .ii. tenth deales of floure, myngled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a drynkoffryng thou shalt offer the thirde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offrest an oxe to a burntoff-
rynge or in any special vowe or peaceoffring
vnto the Lorde, then thou shalt bryng vnto
an oxe, a meatoffringe of thre tenth deales
of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle.
And thou shalt bryng for a drynkeoffrynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. This is the maner that shalbe wone vnto one oxe, one Ra a lambe or a kydde. And accordynge to the no
dre of suche offrynges, thou shalte encrease
the meatoffrynges and the drynkoffringes.

All that are of youre selues shall wo these thinges after this manor, when he offreth an offringe of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.
And yf there be a straunger with you or be amonge you in youre generacions, and will offer an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordynaunce shall serue both for you of the con-gregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynaunce for euer amonge youre
children after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one manor shall serue, bothe for you and for the straunger that dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng:
speake vnto the children of Israel and saye
vnto them: When ye be come into the lande
whether I will bryng you, then when ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shal gyue an heueoffrynge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall gyue
a bake of the fyrst of your dowe vnto an heue-offrynge: as ye do to the heueoffringe of barne euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyrste of youre dowe ye must gyue vnto the Lorde an heueof
feynge, thorowout your generacions.

Yfye ouersee your selues and obserue not al
these commaundementes whiche the Lorde
hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lorde hathe commaunded you by the hande
of Moses, frome the fyrst daye forwarde that the Lorde commaunded amonge youre generacion: when ought is committed ignorauntly
before the eyes of the congregacion, then al
the multitude shall offer a calfe for a burnt-offringe to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde,
and the meatoffringe and the drynkoffringe
thereto, accordynge to the manor: and an he gote for a synneoffringe. And the preast shall make an attonement for all the multitude of the children of Israel, and it shalbe forgyuen
them

them for it was ignorauncē. And they shall bringe their gyftes vnto the offeringe of the Lorde, and their synneofferynge before the Lorde for their ignorauncē. And it shalbe forgyuen vnto all the multitude of the children of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonges you: for the ignorauncē pertayneth vnto all the people.

D Yf any one soule synne thorow ignorauncē, he shall bringe a she gote of a yere old for a synneofferinge. And the preaste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned vnwetyngly with the synneofferynge before the Lorde and make him at one, and it shalbe forgyuen him. And both thou that art borne one of the children of Israel & the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue bothe one lawe, yf ye synne vnwetingly.

God punisheth them that dispyse his worde.

And the soule that wyll oughte presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath despyted the Lorde. And that soule shall be destroyed out of his people, because he hath despyted the worde of the Lorde and hath broken his commaundementes, that soule therefore shall perysh and his synne shal be vpon him.

E And whyle the children of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man gatheringe stickes vpon the Sabboth daye. And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregation: and they put him in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let all the multitude stone him with stones forth of the host. And all the multitude brought him without the hoste & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Tardes. Deute. xxii.b And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell, and byd them, they make them gardes on the quarters of their garmentes thorow out their generatiōs and let them make the gardes of rybandes of Iacynct. And the garde shall be vnto you, to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde and do them: that ye seke not a waye after youre owne hertes, and after your owne eyes, to go a whoring after them: but that ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holye vnto youre God, for I am the Lorde youre God, whyche brought you oute of the lande of Egypte to be your God. I am the Lorde God.

¶ The rebellion and resistaunce of Corah Dathan and Abiram. The erth openeth and swalowed them vp.

CAPI. XVI.

A Nd * Corah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Caath, the sonne of Leui, & Dathan, and * Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moses, with other of the children of Israel. v. hundred and eyghtye heades of the congregation, and counsaillours and men of fame, and they gathered them selues togither against Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: ye haue wone ynoughe. For all the multitude are holy euery one of them and the Lorde is amonge them. Why therfore auaunce ye your selfes above the congregation of the Lordes.

When Moses herde it, he fell vpō his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his companye, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde will shewe who is his, and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, & whome so euer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. This wil take eyther pannes, thou Corah and all thy cōpanye, and se eyre therin and put cens therto before the Lorde to morowe. And then whō so euer the Lorde wyll chose, the same is holye. Ye make ynoughe to wo ye chyldren of Leui.

B And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye chyldren of Leui, Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israell hath seuered you from the multitude of Israel to bring you to him, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to minister vnto them? he hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and ye seke thoffice of the preast also. For which cause both thou and all thy cōpany are gathered togither against the Lord: for what is Aaron, that ye shoulde murmure against hym.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered, we will not come. Semeth it a small thinge vnto the that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wyldernesse? but that thou shuldest raygne ouer vs also? Wore ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no lande that floweth with mylke and hony, neyther hast geuen vs possessions of feldes or of vynes. Eyther wilte thou pull out the eyes of these men? we wyll not come.

C And Moses waxed verye angrye and sayde vnto the Lorde: Turne not vnto their offeringes. I haue not taken so moche as an asse frō them, neyther haue hered any of them. Then Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lorde: bothe thou they and Aaron to morowe. And take euerye man his censer and put cens in them, and come before the Lorde euery man with his censer: two hundred and eyghtye censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in them and layde cens theron, and stode in the wre of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered all the congregation against them vnto the wore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregation. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: seuer your selues frome this congregation, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpō their faces, and sayde. * O moost myghtye God of the spirites of all flesh, one man hath synned and wilte thou be wrothe with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge:

enge: speake vnto the congregacion and say: Get you away frō the tētes of Corah, Dathā & Abiram. And Moses arose vp and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregation, sayenge: departe frome the tentes of these vngodly men, and touche not thinge of theirs: least ye perysshe in all their synnes. And they gat them frome the tentes of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came oute and stode in the wore of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their children.

D And Moses sayde: Hereby ye shall knowe that the Lorde hathe sent me to wo all these workes, and that I haue not wone them of myne owne hed: yf these men dye the cōmen death of all men, or yf they be vysited after the visitation of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But yf the Lorde make a E newe thinge, and the earth open hir mouthe and swalowe them, and all that pertayne vn to them, so that they go downe quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue rayled vpon the Lorde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of speakynge all these wordes, the grounde cloue a sonder that was vnder them, and the earthe opened her mouthe and swalowed them and their houses and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. and they and al that pertayned vnto them, went downe alyue vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon them, and they perysshed awaye frome the congregacion. And al Israel that were about them fled at the crye of them. For they sayde: The earth might happely swalowe vs also. And there came out a fyre frome the Lorde and cōsumed the two hundred and fyfty men that offred incens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast and let him take vp the censers out of the burnynge and scatter the fyre here & there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in their deathes: and let them be beaten into thynne plates and fastened vpon the altare. For they offred them before the Lorde, & therfore they are holye and they shalbe a signe vn to the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brasen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, F and beat them and fastened them vppon the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer incense before the Lorde, that he be not made lyke vn to Corah and his cōpany: as the Lorde sayd vnto him by the hande of Moses.

And on the morowe all the multitude of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, sayenge: ye haue killed the people of the Lorde. And when the multitude was gathered against Moses and Aaron, they loked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and the glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Get you frome this congregacion, that I may consume them quyckely. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therin oute of the altare, and powre on incens, and go quickely vnto the cōgregacion and make an attonemēt for them. For there is wrathe gone out from the Lorde and there is a plage begonne. And Aarō toke as Moses commaunded him, and ran vnto the congregacion: and beholde, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on incens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the dead, and them that were alyue, and the plage ceased. And the nombre of them that dyed in the plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed about the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went agayn vnto Moses vn to the wre of the tabernacle of witnesse, and the plage ceased.

A Nd the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell and take of them, for euery principall house a rod, of their princes ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xij. roddes, and wryte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wryte Aarons name vpon the staffe of Leui: for euery heedmā ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I will mete you. And his rod whome I chose, shall blossome: So I will make cease frome me the grudgynges of the children of Israel which they grudge against you.

And Moses spake vnto the children of Israel, & all the princes gaue him for euery prince ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xij. roddes, and the rodde of Aaron was amonge the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before the Lorde in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde * the rod of Aaron of the house of Leui was budded and bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses brought out all the roddes whiche were before the Lorde, vnto all the children of Israel, and they loked vpon them, and toke euerye man his rodde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bringe Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kept for a token vnto the children of rebellio, that their murmurynges may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lord commaunded him. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayenge: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to noughte: for whosoeuer commeth nyghe the dwellynge of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vtterly consume awaye?

AND the Lorde ſayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy ſonnes and thy fathers houſe with the, ſhall beare the faute of that whiche is done amyſſe in the holy place. And thou and thy ſonnes with the, ſhal beare the faute of that whiche is done amyſſe in youre prieſthode. And thy brethren alſo the tribe of Leui, the trybe of thy father take with the, & let them be ioyned vnto the and miniſter vnto the. And thou & thy ſonnes with the, ſhall miniſtre before the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And let them warte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come nyghe the holy veſſels and the altare, that bothe they & ye alſo dye not. And let theym be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and on all the ſeruice of the tabernacle, and let no ſtraunger come nyghe vnto you.

Wayte therfore vpon the holy place & vpō the altare, that there fall no more wrath vpō the childzen of Iſrael: beholde, I haue taken youre brethren the Leuites forth of the childre of Iſrael, to be youres, as gyftes gyuen vnto the Lorde to do the ſeruice of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſe that both thou and thy ſonnes with the take hede vnto youre prieſtes office in all thinges that pertayne vnto the altare and within the vayle. And ſe ye ſerue, for I haue gyuen youre prieſtes office vnto you for a gyfte to do ſeruice: and the ſtraunger that commeth nyghe, ſhall dye.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aaron: beholde I haue gyuen the the keepynge of myne heueoffringes in all the halowed thinges of the childzen of Iſrael. And vnto the I haue gyue the vnto annoyntynge and to thy ſonnes: to be a dutye for euer. This ſhall be thyne of moſte holy ſacrifices. All their gyftes, thorow out all their meatoffrynges, ſynneoffrynges, and treſpaceoffringes which they bringe vnto me. They ſhalbe moſt holy vnto the and vnto thy ſonnes. And ye ſhall eate it in the moſte holy place: all that are males ſhall eate of it, for it ſhalbe holy vnto the.

And this ſhalbe thyne: the heueoffrynges of their gyftes, thorow out all the waueoffrynges of the childzen of Iſrael, for I haue gyuen theym vnto the, and thy ſonnes, and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer: & all that are cleane in thy houſe, ſhall eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, of the wyne and of the corne: their firſt frutes which they gyue vnto the Lorde, haue I gyuen vnto the. The firſt frutes of all that is in their landes, whyche they bringe vnto the Lorde, ſhall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne houſe, ſhall eate of it.

All dedicate thinges in Iſrael, ſhalbe thyne. All that breaketh the matrice of all fleſhe that men bringe vnto the Lorde, both of man and beaſt, ſhall be thyne. Neuertheleſſe the firſte borne of man ſhall be redemed, and the firſte borne of vncleane beaſtes ſhall be redemed. And their redemptions ſhall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyue ſycles of ſiluer, of the holy ſycle. A ſycle maketh twentye Geras. But the firſt borne of oxen, ſheepe and goates ſhall not be redemed. For they are holy, and thou ſhalt ſprynkle theyr bloude vpon the altare, & ſhalt burne their fat to be a ſacrifice of a ſweete ſauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the fleſhe of them ſhalbe thyne, as the wauebreaſt and all the ryght thulder is thyne all the holy heueoffringes which the childzen of Iſrael heue vnto the Lorde, I gyue the & thy ſonnes and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer. And it ſhall be a ſalted couenaunt for euer, before the Lorde: vnto the & to thy ſeed with the.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aarō: thou ſhalt haue none enheritaūce in their land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the childzen of Iſrael. And beholde I haue gyuen the childzen of Leui, the tenth in Iſrael to enheryte, for the ſeruice which they ſerue in the tabernacle of wytnes, that the childzen of Iſrael henceforth come not nyghe the tabernacle of wytneſſe, & beare ſynne and dye. And the Leuites ſhall do the ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe and beare their ſynne, and it ſhalbe a lawe for euer vnto your childzen after you: But amonge the childzen of Iſrael they ſhall enheret none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the childzen of Iſrael whiche they heue vnto the Lorde, I haue gyuen the Leuites to enheret. Wherfore I haue ſayde vnto the: Amonge the childzen of Iſrael, ye ſhall enheret none enheritaunce.

And the Lorde ſpake to Moſes, ſayenge: ſpeake vnto the Leuites, and ſaye vnto them: when ye take of the childzen of Iſrael the tythes which I haue gyuen you of them to youe enheritaunce, ye ſhall take an heueoffringe of that ſame for the Lorde: euen the tenthe of the tythe. And it ſhalbe reckened vnto you for youe heueoffringe, euen as thoughe ye gaue corne out of the barne or a fulloffringe frō the wyne preſſe.

And in this maner ye ſhall heue an heueoffringe vnto the Lorde, of al youre tythes whiche ye receyue of the childzen of Iſrael, and ye ſhall gyue therof the Lordes heueoffringe vnto Aaron the prieſte. Of all youre gyftes, ye ſhall take out the Lordes heueoffringe: euen the fat of all their halowed thinges.

And thou ſhalte ſaye vnto them: when ye haue take awaye the fat of it frome it, it ſhal be counted vnto the Leuites, as the encreaſe of corne and wyne. And ye ſhall eate it in all places both ye and your houſholdes, for it is youre rewarde for youre ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ye ſhal beare no ſynne by the reaſon of it, when ye haue taken frome it the fat of it: neyther ſhall ye vnhalowe the halowed thinges of the childzen of Iſrael, and ſo ſhall ye not dye.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him alſo that toucheth any vncleane thynge.

CAPI. XIX.

And

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayenge: this is the ordinaunce of the lawe which the Lorde commaūdeth, ſayenge: ſpeake vnto the childzen of Iſrael and let theym take the a red kowe without ſpot whiche neuer bare yocke vpon her. And ye ſhall gyue her vnto Eleazar the prieſt and he ſhall bringe her without the hoſt and cauſe her to be ſlayne before him.

And Eleazar the prieſte ſhall take of her bloude vpon his fynger, & ſprynkle it ſtreyght towarde the tabernacle of wytnes. vij. tymes. And he ſhal cauſe the kowe to be burnt in his ſight: both ſkynne, fleſche and bloude, with the dounge alſo. And let the prieſt take Cedar woode, and Iſope and purple clothe, and caſt it vpon the kowe as the burneth. And let the prieſt waſche his clothes and bathe his fleſhe in water, and then come into the hoſte, & the prieſt ſhalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth her, ſhall waſche his clothes in water and bathe his fleſhe alſo in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And one that is cleane, ſhall go and take vp the aſſhes of the kowe, and put them without the hoſte in a cleane place, where they ſhall be kept to make ſprynklynge water for the multitude of the childzen of Iſrael: for it is a ſynneoffering. And let him that gathereth the aſſhes of the kowe, waſche his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And this ſhall be vnto the childzen of Iſrael and vnto the ſtraūger that dwelleth amonge them, a lawe for euer.

He that toucheth any dede perſone, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuen dayes. And he ſhal purify him ſelfe with the aſſhes the thyrde daye, and ſo he ſhalbe cleane the ſeuenth daye. And yf he purifye not him ſelfe the thyrde daye, then the ſeuenth daye, he ſhall not be cleane. Wholoeuer toucheth anye perſone that dyeth and ſprinkleth not him ſelfe, defyleth the dwellynge of the Lorde: and therfore that ſoule ſhall peryſhe out of Iſrael, becauſe he hathe not ſprinkled the ſprynklynge water vpō him, he ſhalbe vncleane, and his vncleanneſſe ſhall remayne vppon him.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: all that come into the tēt and al that is in the tent, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuen dayes. And all the veſſels that be open whiche haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them, are vncleane. And who ſo euer toucheth one that is ſlayne with a ſworde in the feldes, or a dead perſone, or a bone of a dead man, or a graue: ſhall be vncleane ſeuen dayes.

And they ſhall take for an vncleane perſon of the burnt aſſhes of the ſynneoffringe, and put runnynge water thereto into a veſſell. And a cleane perſone ſhal take Iſope and dyppe it in the water, and ſprynkle it vpon the tent & vpon all the veſſels and on the ſoules that were there, and vpō him that touched a bone or a ſlayne perſone or a dead body or a graue. And the cleane perſon ſhall ſprynkle vpon the vncleane the. iij. daye and the. vij. daye. And the. vij. daye he ſhall purify him ſelfe waſche his clothes and bathe him ſelfe in water, and ſhalbe cleane at euen.

Yf any be vncleane and ſprynkle not hym ſelfe the ſame ſoule ſhalbe deſtroyed forth of the congregacion: for he hath defyled the holy place of the Lorde and is not ſprynkled wt ſprynklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this ſhalbe a perpetual lawe vnto them. And he that ſprinkleth the ſprynklynge water, ſhall waſche his clothes.

And he that toucheth the ſprynklynge water, ſhall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what ſo euer the vncleane perſonne toucheth, ſhall be vncleane. And the ſoule that toucheth it, ſhalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

¶ Wyr Iam dyeth. The people murmure. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denyeth the Iſraelites paſſage thorow his realme. The dethe of Aaron in whoſe roume Eleazar ſucceedeth.

CAPI. XX.

AND the hole multitude of the childzen of Iſrael, came into the deſerte of Sin in the firſt moneth, & the people dwelt at Cades. And there dyed Mayre, and was buryed there. Moreouer there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them ſelues together againſte Moſes and Aaron. And the people chode with Moſes and ſpake, ſayenge: wolde God we had periſhed, when our brethre periſhed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregacō of the Lord vnto this wyldernes, that both we and our catell ſhulde dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to bringe vs into this vngracious place, which is no place of ſeed nor of figges nor vines nor of pomgranates, neither is there any water to drynke?

And Moſes and Aaron went frome the congregacion vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayenge: Take the ſtaffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregation togyther, and ſaye vnto the rocke before their eyes, that he gyue forth his water. And thou ſhalt bringe them water out of the rocke and ſhalt gyue the cōpany drynke and their beaſtes alſo.

And Moſes toke the ſtaffe frome before the Lorde, as he commaunded him. And Moſes & Aaron gathered the congregation togyther before the rocke, and he ſayde vnto the, heare ye rebellyons, muſte we fet you water oute of this rocke? And Moſes lyfte vp his hande wt his ſtaffe and ſmote the rocke. ij. tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude dranke and their beaſtes alſo.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarō becauſe ye beleued me not, to ſanctifie me in the eyes of the childzen of Iſrael, therfore ye ſhal not bringe this congregacion into the lande which I haue gyuen them. This is the water of ſtryfe, becauſe the childzen of Iſrael ſtroue with the Lorde, and he was ſanctifyed vpon them.

And Moſes ſent meſſengers frome Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus ſayth thy brother Iſrael: Thou knoweſte all the trauelyng

hathe happened vs, howe oure fathers went downe into Egypte, and how we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed bothe vs and oure fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde, and he herde oure voyces, and sent an aungell and hathe fet vs out of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Cades a cyty harde by the borders of thy coûtrey, let vs go we pray the thorow thy coûtrey we will
*Num.xxi.c not go thorow the feldes nor thorow ꝑ vyneyardes, neither will we drinke of the water of ꝑ fountaynes, but we will go by the hye way & neyther turne vnto the righthand nor to the left, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Edom answered him: Se thou come not by me, lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde. And the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto him: we wyll goo by the beaten waye: and yf eyther we or oure catell drynke of thy water, we wyll paye for it, we will do no more but passe thorowe by fote onely. And he sayde: ye shall not go thorow. And Edom came out
D agaynste him with moche people and with a myghtye power. And thus Edom denyed to gyue Israel passage thorowe his countreye. And Israel turned awaye frome him.

And the children of Israel remoued frome Cades and wente vnto mount Hor with all the companye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mounte Hor, whiche is vpon the borders of the lande of Edom, sayenge: let Aaron be put vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande whiche I haue gyuen vnto the children of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryfe.
Deut.xxxii.g Take Aarõ and Eleazar his sonne, and bringe them vp into mount Hor, and stryppe Aaron out of his vestimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and let Aaron be put vnto his people and dye there.

The death of Aaron. Deute.xxvi.b. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded: and they went vp into mount Hor in ꝑ sight of all the multitude. And Moses toke of Aarons clothes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moses & Eleazar came down out of the mount. And all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron. xxx. dayes.

¶ Israel vanquysheth kyng Arad. The fyrye serpentes stynge them: but when they loke at the brasen serpent whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses to lyft vp, they are healed. The kynges, Sehon and Og are ouercome in battell.

CAPI. XXI.

A Nd when kynge Arad the Chananite, whiche dwelt in the south partyes, herde tell that Israel came by the way that the espyes had founde out, he came and foughte with Israel and toke some of them pryssonners. Then Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou wilt gyue this people into our handes, we will destroye their cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and delyuered vnto them the Chananytes. And they destroyed both them and their cyties, and called the place Horma.

Then they departed frome mount Hor towarde the red see: to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soules of the people fainted by the waye. And the people spake against God and against Moses: Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse, for here is neyther bread nor water, and oure soules lothe this * lyghte bred.
Then the Lorde sent fyrye serpentes amõg the people, which stonge them: so that moch people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses, and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken against the Lord and against the, make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes frome vs. And Moses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a sygne, and let as manye as are bytten loke vpon it, and they shall lyue. And Moses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a sygne. And when the serpentes had bytten any man, he went and beholde the serpent of brasse and recouered.

And the children of Israel remoued & pytched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth and laye at Ege-barim in the wyldernes whiche is before Moab on the eastsyde. And they remoued thence, and pytched vpon the ryuer of Zared. And they departed thence & pytched on the other syde of Arnon, whiche ryuer is in the wyldernesse, and commeth out of the coostes of the Ammonytes: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Ammonytes. Wherfore it is spoken in the * booke of the warre of the Lorde: goo with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whiche shooteth downe to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the coostes of Moab.
And frome thence they came to Beer, whiche is the well, whereof the Lorde spake vnto Moses: gather the people together, that I may gyue them water. Then Israel sange this songe: Aryse vp well, synge therto: The well which the rulers dygged and the cappytaynes of the people with the helpe of the lawgyuer and with their staues.

And frome this wyldernesse they went to Matana, and frome Matana to Nabaliel, & frome Nabaliel to Bamoth, and frome Bamoth to the valay that is in the felde of Moab in the toppe of * Phasgah which boweth towarde * Jesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Ammonites, sayenge: let vs go thorow thy lande: we wil not turne into thy feldes nor into thy vynyardes, ne drynke of the water of the welles: but goo alonge by the common waye, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Sehon wolde gyue Israell no lycence to passe thorowe his countreye, but gathered all his people together and made out against Israel into the wildernesse. And he came to Jahesa and foughte with Israel.
And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde and conquered his lande, frome Arnõ vnto Jabock: euen vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon, mon, are stronge. And Israel toke all these cyties, and dwelt in all the cyties of the Ammonites / in Hesbon / and in all the townes therevnto belongynge. For Hesbon was the cyte of Sehon the kynge of the Ammonites, who had fought before with the kynge of the Moabytes, and had taken all his lande forth of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the cyte of Sehon be buylt and made redy, for there is a fyre gone forth of Hesbon and a flame from the cyte of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the men of the hyllis of Arnon. Wo to the Moab: o people of Chamos ye are vndone. His sonnes are put to flyghte, and his doughters brought captyue 6 vnto Sehon kynge of the Ammonites. Their lyght is out frome Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyldernesse euē vnto Nopha whiche reacheth vnto Medida. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amorites. And Moses sent to serche out Jazer, and they toke ꝑ townes belongynge thereto, and conquered ꝑ Amorites that were there.

And then they turned and went vp toward Basan. And Og the kyng of Basan came out against them, bothe he and all his people, to warre at Edrei. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: feare him not, for I haue deliuered him into thy handes with all his people and his land. And thou shalt do with him as thou dyddest with Sehon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him and his sonnes and all his people, vntyll there was nothinge left him. And they conquered his lande, and the children of Israel remoued & pytched in the feldes of Moab, on the other syde of Jordan, by Jericho.

¶ Kynge Balac sendeth for Balam, to curse Israel: but Balam can do nothynge against the will of the Lorde, Balams asse speaketh to him in the waye.

CAPI. XXII.

A Nd Balac the sonne of Ziphor sawe al that Israel had vsed to the Amorites, and the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Madian, nowe shall this company lycke vp al that are rounde about vs as an ox lycketh vp the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.
And he sent messangers vnto * Balam the sonne of Beor, the ꝑ interpreter which dwelt vpon the ryuer of the lande of the children of his folke, to call him, sayenge: Beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte which couereth the face of the earth and lyeth euen hard by me. Come nowe I praye the, and curse me this people. For they are to myghtye for me: so peraduenture I myghte be able to smyte them, and to dryue them out of the lande. For I wote that whom thou blessest, shall be blessed, and whome thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Madian, hauinge the rewarde of the sothesayenge in their handes. So they came vnto Balam and tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he sayde vnto the, tary here al nighte and I will bringe you worde, euen as ꝑ Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.
And God came vnto Balam & sayd: What men are these which are with the? And Balã sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Ziphor kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayenge: Beholde, there is a people come forth of Egypte and couereth the face of the earth: come nowe therfore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome them in battell, and to dryue them out. God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalte not go with them, neyther curse the people for they are blessed.
So Balam rose vp in the mornynge & sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: Get you vnto your lande, for the Lorde will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of Lordes, and more honorable then they. And they came to Balam and told him: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of Ziphor Oh, let nothinge let the, to come vnto me, for I will highly auaūce the vnto great honour, and will do what so euer thou sayest vnto me, come therfore I praye the, curse me this people.
And Balam answered and sayde vnto the seruauntes of Balac. * Yf Balac wold gyue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can go no further, then the worde of the Lorde my God, to do lesse or more. Neuertheles tarye ye here all nyght: that I maye wete, what ꝑ Lorde wil saye vnto me ones more. And God came vnto Balam by nyghte and sayde vnto him: Yf the men come to fet the, aryse vp and go with them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt do.
And Balam arose vp early, and sadled his asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab. But God was angrye because he went. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye against him. And he ryd vpon his asse and two seruauntes with him. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde stande in the waye & his swerde drawen in his hande, she turned a syde out of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.
And the aungell of the Lorde went & stode in a path betwene ꝑ vyneyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wal and thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. But the aungell of the Lorde went further, & stode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the righthand or to the lyfte. And when the asse saw the angell of the Lorde, she fell downe vnder Balam: & Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the Asse, and the sayde vnto Balam: What Balams asse speaketh. haue I wone vnto the, that thou smytest me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the Asse: because thou hast mocked me? I wolde that I hadde a swerde in myne hande, that I myght now kyll the. And the Asse sayde vnto Balam: am not I thyne Asse which thou hast

F ryden vpon sythes thou wast borne vnto this daye? Was I eure wont to do so vnto the?
And he sayde, naye.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balam,
that he sawe the angell of the Lorde standing in the waye, with his swerde drawen in his hande. And he bowed him self and fell flat on his face. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherfore smytest thou thyne asse
thus thre tymes? Beholde I came oute to resist the, for thy waye is frowarde and contrary vnto me, and the Asse saw me and auoyded me thre tymes: or else (hadde she not turned frome me) I had surely slayne the and saued
her alyue. And Balam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the way againste me. Now therfore yf it displease thyne eyes, I will turne
againe. And the aungell sayde vnto Balam, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went wt
the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balam was G come, he went out againste him vnto a cytie of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whi-
che was the vttermost parte of his countrey.
And Balac sayde vnto Balam: dyd I not sende
for the, to call the? wherfore camest thou not vnto me? thinkeste thou I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam sayd vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothinge at all, saue what God put-teth in my mouthe, that muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, and they came vnto the large cytie. And Balac offred oxen and shepe, and sent for Balam and for the lordes
that were with him.

¶ Balam blesseth the people, where he was requyr-
ed to curse them and prophesieth that they shall be a greate people.

CAPI. XXIII.

1 ANd on the morowe, Balac toke Ba-lam, and brought him vp into ye hyghe
place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the vttermost parte of the people. And Ba-lam sayde vnto Balac: buylde me here seuen altares and prouyde here seuen bullockes and seuen Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balã sayd
So Balac and Balam offred on euery altare a bullocke and a Ram. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: Stande by the sacrifice, whyle I go to wette whether the Lorde will come and mete
me, and what so euer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wente forthwith. And God came vnto Balam, and Balam sayd vnto him
I haue prepared seuen altares, and haue of-
fred vpon euery altare, a bullocke and a ram.
And ye Lorde put a sayeng in Balams mouth
and sayde: goo agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he went agayne vnto him and lo, he stode by his sacrifice, both he and al the lordes of Moab. And he began his parables sayde: Balac the kynge of Moab hath fet me
frome Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes
of the East, sayenge: Come and curse me Ja- B cob, come and defye me Israel. How shall I curse whome God curseth not, and how shal
I defye whome the Lorde defyeth not? from the toppe of the rockes I se him and from the hylles I beholde him: loo, the people shall dwell by him selfe and shall not be reckened C amonge other nations. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel. I praye God my soule may dye the death of the ryghteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Ba-lam, What hast thou wone vnto me? I dyd fet
the to curse myne enemyes: and beholde thou blessest them. And he answered and sayde:
must I not kepe that and speake it, whyche Lorde hathe put in my mouthe? And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I praye the with me
vnto an other place whence thou shalte se the
and shalt se but the vttermoste parte of them and shalt not se them all, and curse me them D
there. And he brought him into a playne feld,
where men myght se farre, euen to the toppe
of Phasgah, and buylt seuen altares and of-
fred a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.
And he sayde vnto Balac: Stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lorde met Balam, & put wordes in his mouth, and sayde: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye.
And when he came to him: beholde, he stode
by his sacrifice and the lordes of Moab with him. And Balac sayde vnto him: What sayth the Lorde?

And he toke vp his parable and sayde: ryse
vp Balac and heare, and herken vnto me thou sonne of Zephor. The Lorde is not a man, yt E
he can lye, neyther the sonne of man, that he can repent: shulde he saye and not do, or shuld
he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I haue begon to bleste and haue blessed, and can not go backe therfro. He beholde no wickednesse in Jacob nor sawe I waywerde in Israel:
The Lorde his God is with him, and the triumphe of a kynge amonge them. God that brought the out of Egypte, is as the strength of an vnycorne vnto them, for there is no sorcerer, in Jacob, nor sothsayer in Israel. Whe
the tyme commeth, it will be sayde of Jacob and of Israel, what God hath wrought. Be-holde, the people shall ryse vp as a lyonesse &
heue vp him selfe as a lyon, and shall not lye downe agayne, vntyll he haue eaten of the praye and dronke of the blonde of them that are slayne.

And Balac sayde vnto Balã: neyther curse them nor bleste them. And Balam answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the sayenge / all that the Lorde bydeth me, that I must do? And Balac sayde vnto Balam, come I praye the, I will bringe the yet vnto an other place, so peraduenture it shal please God that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac brought Balam vnto the toppe of Peor,
that

that boweth towarde the wyldernesse. And Balam sayde vnto Balac / make me here. vij.
altares, and prepare me here. vij. bullockes &
vij. Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balam had sayde, and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.

¶ Balam prophesyeth of the kyngdome of Israel
and of the commynge of Christe. Balac is angrye with Balam. The destruccion of the Amelickites and of the kenytes.

CAPI. XXIIII.

1 WHen Balam sawe that it pleased the Lorde that he shulde bleste Israel, he went not as he dyd twyse before to fet sothsayenge, but set his face towarde the wil-
dernesse, and lyft vp his eyes and loked vpon
Israel as he laye with his tribes, & the spyrite of God came vpon him. And he toke vp his parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hathe sayde, and the man whose eye is open hath sayde: he hath sayde which heareth the wordes of God, and seeth the visions of the almyghty, which falleth downe and his eyes are opened.

How goodly are the tentes of Jacob and thyne habitation Israel, euen as the brode
valeyes and as gardens by the ryuers syde, as B the tentes which the Lorde hath pitched, and as Cypres trees vpon the water. The water
shal flowe out of his bouket and his seed shal
be many waters, and his kynge shalbe higher
then Agag, And his kyngdome shalbe exalted.
God that brought him oute of Egypte, his strength is as the strength of an vnycorne, and he shall eate the nations that are his enemies
and breake their bones & perce them thorowe
with his arowes. He couched him selfe & laye downe as a lyon and as a lyonesse, who shall stere him vp? blessed is he that blesseth the, &
cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wrothe with Balam, and smote his handes togither, and sayde vnto
him: I sent for the to curse myne ennemyes: &
beholde, thou hast blessed them this thre ty-
mes, and now get the quickly vnto thy place.
I thought to haue auaunced the vnto honour,
C but the Lorde hath kept the backe frome worshyp. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers whiche thou sentest vnto me sayenge. * If Balac wolde gyue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can not passe
the mouth of the Lorde, to do eyther good or bad of myne owne mynde. What the Lorde speaketh, that must I speake. And now beholde,
I go vnto my people: come let me shewe the,
what this people shall do to thy folke in the latter dayes. And he began his parable & sayd: Balam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, and the man that hath his eye open hath sayde, & he hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God,
and hath the knowlege of the moste hyghe, &
beholdeth the vysion of the almyghtye, and when he falleth hath his eyes opened D I se him but not nowe, I beholde him but not nyghe. There shall come a sterre of Jacob & ryse a scepter of Israel, which shall smyte the

coastes of Moab, and vndermyne all the children of Seth. And Edom shall be his possessiõ and the possession of Seir shall be there ennemyes, and Israel shall do mankully. And out of Jacob shall come he that shall destroye the residue of the cyties.

And he loked on Amaleck and began his parable and sayde: Amaleck is the first of the nations, but his latter ende shal perysshe vtterly.
And he loked on the Kenites and toke his parable and sayde: stronge is thy dwellynge place and put thy nest vpon a rocke, Neuer the lesse thou shalt be a burnynge to Kain, vntyl Assur take the pyssonner: And he toke his parable and sayde: Alas, who shall lyue when God weth this? The hyppes shall come out of the coste * of Chittim, and subdue Assur,
and subdue Eber, and he vpon selfe shall perysshe at the last. And Balam rose vp & went and dwelt in his place: and Balac also went his waye.

¶ The people committeth fornycacyon with the daughters of Moab. Phinehes killeth Zamri and Cozbi. God commaundeth to kyll the Madianites.

CAPI. XXV.

1 AND Israell dwelte in Sittim, and the people bega to commit horedome with the doughters of Moab, whyche called
the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddes.
And the people ate and worshipped their god-
des, and Israel coupled him selfe vnto Baal Peor. Then the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and sayde vnto Moses: take all the he-des of the people, and hange them vp vnto
the Lorde against the sonne, that the wrathe
of the Lorde maye turne awaye frome Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: go and slay those men that ioyned them
selues vnto Baal Peor.

Iosue. xxii. d. Deute. xxxi. a

And beholde, one of the children of Israel B
came and brought vnto his brethren, a Madianitish wyfe in the sight of Moses and in the sight of all the company of the children of Israel, as they were weppynge in the dor of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And when Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast sawe it, he rose vp out of the companye
and toke a weapon in his hande, and went after the man of Israel into the horehouse, and thrust them thorow: both the man of Israel
and also the woman euen thorow the bely of her. And the plage ceased frome the children of Israell. And there dyed in the plage. xxiiij.
thousande.

1. Macha. ii. f. Eccle. xlv. d.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: C Phinehes ye sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast, hath turned myne angre away
frome the children of Israell, because he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the children of Israel in my gelousye. Wherfore saye: Beholde, I gyue vnto him my couenaunte of peace, and he shall haue it, and his seed after him, euen the coue-naunt of the preastes office for euer. because he was gelous for his Gods sake and made

attonement for the children of Israel.

The name of the Israelyte which was slayen with the Madianitish wyfe, was Zamri the sonne of Salu, a lorde of an auncient house among the Simeonites. And the name of the Madianitish wyfe, was Cozbi the daughter of Zur a heed ouer the people of an auncient house in Madian.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Vere the Madianites smyte them, for they haue troubled you with their wyles wherwith they haue beguyled you, throw Peor & throw their sister Cozbi the daughter of a lorde in Madian, which was slayne in the daye of the plage for Peors sake.

¶ The children of Israel are nombred ageyne when they shulde entre in to the lande of Canaan.

CAPI. XXVI.

And the nombre of them was. xxiij. thousande, of all the males frome a moneth olde and aboue. For they were not nombred amonge the children of Israel, because there was no enheritaunce gruen them amonge the children of Israel. These are the nombres of the children of Israel which Moses and Eleazar the preest nombred in the feldes of Moab, fast by Jordane nyghe to Jericho. And amõge these there was not a man of the nombre of the children of Israel which Moses and Aaron tolde in the wyldernesse of Sinai. For the Lorde sayd vnto them, that they shulde dye in the wyldernesse and that there shulde not be lefte a man of them: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune & Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ The law of the heritage of the daughters of Zelaphead. The land of promyssis shewed vnto Moses: in whose stede is appointed Josue.

CAPI. XXVII.

AND the wughters of * Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Galead, the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynredes of Manasse the sonne of Joseph (whose names were Mahela, Noha, Hagla, Melcha and Thirza) came and stode before Moses and Eleazar, the preest and before the lordes and all the multitude in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, sayenge / our father dyed in the wyldernesse, and * was not amonge the companye of them that gathered them selues togither against the Lord in the congregation of Corah: But dyed in his own synne, and had no sonnes. Wherfore shuld the name of our father be taken away forth of his kynred, because he had no sonne? * Gyue vs a possession amonge the brethren of our father. And Moses brought their cause before the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: The wughters of Zelaphead speake right: thou shalt grue them a possessiõ to enherete amonge their fathers brethren, and shalt turne the enheritaunce of their father vnto them. And speake vnto the children of Israel sayeng: If a man dye and haue no sonne ye shal turne his enheritaũce vnto his wughter. If he haue no wughter, ye shall gyue his enheritaunce vnto his brethrẽ. If he haue no brethrẽ, ye shall gyue his enheritaũce vnto his fathers brethrẽ. If he haue no fathers brethrẽ ye shall gyue his enheritaunce vnto him that is nere to him of his kynred, and let him possesse it. And this shalde vnto the children of Israel an ordinaunce, and a lawe, as the Lorde hath commaunded Moses.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: get the vp into this mount Abarim, and beholde the lande which I haue gruen vnto the children of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, then shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aaron thy brother was gathered vnto his people. For ye were disobedient vnto my mouthe in the desert of Sin in the stryfe of the congregation, that ye sanctified me not in the water before their eyes. That is the water of stryfe in Cades in the wyldernesse of Sin. And Moses spake vnto the Lorde sayenge: let the Lord God of the spirites of all fleshe, set a man ouer the congregacyon, whyche maye goo in and out before them, and to leade them in & out that the congregacio of the Lorde be not as a flocke of shepe without a shepeharde. And

D the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: take Josua the sonne of Nun in whome there is a spirite, & put thyne handes vpon him, and set him before Eleazar the preast and before all the con-
Deute.m.d gregacio and gyue him a charge in their sight. And put thy prayse vpon him, that all the co-pany of the children of Israel may heare. And he shall stande before Eleazar the preast whiche shall aske counsell for him after the iudgement of Urim before the Lorde: And at the mouth of Eleazar shall both he and all the children of Israel with him and all the congregation, go in and out.

And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded him, and he toke Josua and set him before Eleazar the preast and before all the congregation, and put his handes vpon him and gaue him a charge, as the Lorde commaunded thorow the hande of Moses.

¶ what must be offered on euery feast daye.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A Nd the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Gyue the children of Israell a charge and saye vnto them, that they take hede to offer vnto the offerynge of my breed in the sacrifice of swete sauoure, in his due season. And saye vnto them. This is the offerynge which ye shall offer vnto the Lorde two lambes of a yere olde with out spot day by daye to be a burntofringe perpetually.
One lambe thou shalt offre in the morninge, and the other at euen, And therto the tenthe parte of an Epha of floure for a meatofringe myngled with beaten oyle, the fourth parte of an hin: which is a daily offring ordeyned in the mount Sinai for a swete sauoure in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And the drynkofringe of the same: the fourth parte of an hin vnto one lambe, and poure the drynkofringe in the holy place, to be good drinke vnto the Lorde.
16 And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, with the meatofringe and the drynkofringe after the maner of the morning: a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And on the Sabboth daye two lambes of a yere olde a pece and without spot, and two tenthdeales of floure for a meatofringe myngled w oyle, & the drinkofringe therto. This is the burnt-offringe of euery Sabboth, besydes the daily burntofringe and his drinkofringe.

And in the first daye of your monethes, ye shall offer a burntofringe vnto the Lorde: ij. younge bullockes, and a ram, and seuen lambes of a yere olde without spot, and.xl. tenth deales of floure for a meatofringe myngled with oyle vnto one bullocke, and two tenthdeales of floure for a meatofringe myngled with oyle vnto one Ram. And euermore, a tenthdeale of floure myngled with oyle, for a meatofringe vnto one lambe. That is a burntofringe of a swete sauoure in the sacri-
E fice of the Lorde. And their drinkofringes shalbe half an hin of wyne vnto one bullock and the thirde part of an hin of wyne vnto a Ram, and the fourth parte of an hin vnto a lambe. This is the burntofringe of euery moneth thorow out all the monethes of the yere, and one he gote for a synnofringe vnto the Lorde, which shalbe offred with the dayly burntofringe and his drynkofringe. ✳ And ✳ Exo. the. xiij. daye of the first moneth shalbe Passe ouer vnto the Lorde. And the. xv. daye of the same moneth shall be a feast, in whiche seuen dayes men must eate vnleuended bread. The first daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall
B no maner laborious worke therin. And ye shall offer a burntofringe vnto the Lorde. ij. younge bullockes, one Ram, and seuen lambes of a yere olde without spot, & their meatofringe of floure myngled with oyle. iij. tenthdeales vnto a bullocke, and two tenthdeales vnto a Ram, and euermore one tenthdeale vnto a lambe, thorow out the. vij. lambes: & an he gote for a synnofringe to make attonement for you.

And ye shall offer these, besyde the burnt-offeringe in the morninge that is alwaye offred. And after this maner ye shall offer thorowout the seuen dayes, the lode of the sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And it shalbe wone besyde the dayly burntofringe D and his drynkofringe. And the seuenth day shal be an holy feast vnto you, so that ye shal
B no laborious worke therin. And the day of your first frutes when ye bringe a new meatofringe vnto the Lorde in your weekes, shall be an holy feast vnto you: so that ye shall wo no laborious worke therin. And ye shall offre a burntofringe of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde two younge bullockes, and a Ram, & seuen lambes of a yere olde a pece, with their meatofringes of floure myngled with oyle. iij. tenthdeales vnto a bullocke. ij. tenthdeales to a Ram, and euermore one tenthdeale vnto a lambe thorow out the seuen lambes, & an he gote to make attonement for you. And this ye shall w besydes the dayly burntofring and his meatofringe: and they shalbe with out spot, with their drinkofringes.

¶ what muste be offered the eyght fyrste dayes of the seuenth moneth

And the thyrde daye eleuen bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene perelynge lambes, withoute spotte: and their meate and drynkeofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, after the nombre of them, and accordynge to the maner. And an he goote for a synneofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge, and his meate and drynkeofferynges.

And the fourthe daye ten bullockes, two rammes, and. xiiij. lambes perelynges pure, and their meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordyng to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he gote for a synofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge and his meate and drynkeofferynges.

And the fifte daye, nyne bullockes, two rammes, and fourtenene lambes of one yere olde a pece, without spotte. And their meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synne offerynge, besyde the dayly burnt offeryng and his meat and drink offrynges.

And the sixte daye, eyghte bullockes, two D
rammes, & fourtene perelynge lambes without spotte. And their meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to the maner. And an he goote for a synneofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

And the seuenth daye, seuen bullockes, two rammes, and thirtene lambes that are perelynges and pure. And their meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to their nombre, and to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offerynge, besyde the dayly burnte offerynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

And the eyghte daye shall be the conclusion of the feast vnto you, and ye shall do no maner laborous worke therin. And ye shall offer a burnt offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: one bullocke, one ramme, and seuen perelynge lambes without spotte. And the meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullocke, ramme, and lambes, accordynge to their nombres, and accordynge to the maner. And an he gote for a synofferynge, besyde the dayly burnt offerynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

These thynges ye shall doo vnto the Lorde in your feastes: besyde your vowes and free-wyll offerynges, in youre burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, drinke offerynges, and peax offerynges. And Moses tolde the children of Israel, accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded him.

¶ Of vowes when they shall be kepte, and when not.

CAPI. XXX.

A Nd Moses spake vnto the heades of A
the trybes of the children of Israel, sayinge: this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaundeth. Yf a man bowe a bowe vnto the Lorde, or swere an othe, and bynde his soule, he shal not go backe with his worde but shall fulfyll all that proceedeth oute of his mouthe.

Yf a damosell bowe a bowe vnto the Lorde, and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house and vnmaried: yf her father heare the bowe and bonde, whiche she hathe made vpon her soule, and holde his peace therto: then all her bowes and bondes whiche she hath made vpon her soule, shall stande good. But yf her father forbydde her the same daye
B that he heareth it, none of her bowes ne bondes whiche she hath made vpon he soule, shal be of value, and the Lorde shall forgyue her, bicause her father forbad her.

Yf she hadde an husbande when she bowed or pronounced oughte oute of her lyppes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and her husbande, and herde it, and helde his peace there at the same daye he herde it: Then her bowes and her bondes wherwith she bounde

her

her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande forbadde her the same daye he herde it, then hathe he made her bowe which she had vpon her, of none effecte, and that also whiche she pronounced with her lippes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and the Lorde shall forgyue her.

c The bowe of a wedowe, and of her that is deuorced, and all that they haue bounde theyr soules with, shall stande.

Yf she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande herde it, and helde his peace and forbadde her not: then all her vowes and bondes wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande disanulled them the same daye he herde them, then nothynge that proceded oute of her lippes in vowes and bondes wherwith she bounde her soule shall stande: for her husbande hathe loosed them and the Lorde shall forgyue her.

All vowes and othes that bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablysshe or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace frome one daye vnto an other, then he stablysshyeth all her vowes and bondes which she had vpon her, bicause he helde his peace the same daye he herde them. And yf he afterwarde breake them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe.

d These are the ordynaunces whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses, betwene the man and his wyfe, and betwene the father and his doughter, beynge a damsell in her fathers house.

¶ The Madianytes and Balam are slayne. The praye was brought to Moses and equally diuyded A present gyuen of Israel because none of theyr men were slayne.

CAPI. XXXI.

a *Nu.xxv.d And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: * Auenge the chyldren of Israel of the madianytes, and afterwarde be gathered vnto thy people. And Moses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Harnesse some of you vnto warre, and lette them goo vpon the Madianytes, and aueng the Lorde of the Madianytes.

Ye shall sende vnto the warre a thousande of euery tribe thorowe oute all the tribes of Israel. And there were taken oute of the thousendes of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery tribe a thousande. And Moses sente them a thousande of euery tribe, with Phinees the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste to warre, and the holye vessellis and the trompettes to blowe in his hande.

*Iosue.xiii.c *And they warred agaynste the Madianytes, as the Lorde commaunded Moses / and slewe all the males. And they slewe the kynges of Madian, amonges other that were slayne: Eui, Rekem, Sur, Hur, and Reba: fiue kynges of Madian. And they slewe Balaam the sonne of Beor with the sworde. And the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madian prysoners, and theyr chyldren, and spoyled all theyr catell, theyr substaunce and theyr goodes. And they burnt all theyr cityes wherin they dwelte, and all theyr castels with fire. And they toke all the spoyle, and all they coulde catche, bothe of men and beestes, and dyonght the captyues, and that whiche they hadde taken, and all the spoyle vnto Moses and Eleazar the Preest, and vnto the companye of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the hoste, in the feldes of Moab by Iordan nere to Jericho.

And Moses and Eleazar the Preeste, and all the lordes of the companye wente out of the hoste agaynste them. And Moses was angrye with the officers of the hoste, with the capitaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, whiche came frome warre and battayle, and sayde vnto them: Haue ye saued the women alyue? beholde, * these caused the children of Israel thorowe * Balam, to commyt trespace agaynst the Lorde, by reason of Peor, and there folowed a plage amonge the congregacion of the Lorde.

Nowe therfore * slee all the men chyldren and the women that haue lyen with men fleshelye: But all the women chyldren that haue not lyen with men, kepe alyue for youre selues. And lodge without the hoste seuen dayes, all that haue kylled anye persone, * and all that haue touched anye deade bodye, and purifye bothe youre selues and youre prysoners, the thyrde daye and the seuenth. And syfynckle all youre rayments, and all that is made of skynnes, and all worke of gootes here, and all thynges made of wodde.

And Eleazar the Preest sayde vnto the men of warre whiche wente oute to battayle: this is the ordynaunce of the lawe whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses: Golde, syluer, brasse, yron, tynne, and leedde, and all that maye abyde the fyre, ye shall make it go thorowe the fyre, and then it is cleane. Neuertheles, it shall be syfynckled with syfynckynge water. And all that suffereth not the fire, ye shall make go thorowe the water. And washe youre clothes the seuenth daye, and then ye are cleane. And afterwarde come in to the hoste.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: take the summe of the praye that was taken, bothe of women and of catell, thou and Eleazar the Preeste, and the heades of the people. And diuyde it in to two partes, betwene them that toke the warre vpon them, and wente oute to battayle, and all the congregacion. And take a porcion vnto the Lorde of the men of warre whiche wente oute to battayle: one of fyue hundred, of the women and of the oxen and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of theyr halfe and gyue it vnto Eleazar the Preeste, an heue offeryng vnto the Lorde. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, take one of fyfty, of the women, of the oxen, of the asses, and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes, and gyue them vnto the

e And Moses and Eleazar the Preeste dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the botye and praye whiche the men of warre had caught was fyue hundred thousande, and thre score and fyftene thousand shepe: and thre score and twelue thousande oxen, thre score and one thousande asses: and. xxxij. thousande women that had lyen by no man.

And the halfe whiche was the parte of them that wente out to warre was thre hundred thousande, and. xxxvij. thousande, and fiue hundred shepe: And the Lordes parte of the shepe was fyue hundred and thre score and fyftene. And the oxen were. xxxvi. thousand. of whiche the Lordes parte was thre score and twelue. And the asses were thyrtye thousande, and fiue hundred, of whiche the Lordes parte was thre score and one. And the women were fyftene thousande, of whiche the Lordes parte was. xxxij. soules.

f And Moses gaue that somme whiche was the Lordes heue offeryng vnto Eleazar the preest, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moses seuered frome the men of warre, (that is to wete, the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregacion) was thre hundred thousande, and. xxxvij. thousande, and fiue hundred shepe: and. xxxvi. thousande oxen: and thirtye thousande asses and fiue hundred: and fyftene thousande women.

And Moses toke of this halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldren of Israel: one of euery fyfty both of the women and of the catel, and gaue them vnto the Leuytes whiche gaue theyr attendaunce vpon the habitacion of the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoste, the capytaynes ouer the thousandes, and the capitaynes ouer the hundredes came forth and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruauntes haue taken the summe of the men of warre, which were vnder oure hande, and there lacked not one man of them. We haue therfore brought a present vnto the Lord what euery man found of Jewels of golde, cheynes, bracelets, rynges, earynges and iuangels to make an attonement for oure soules before the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them: Jewels of all maner facyons. And all the golde of the heue offeryng of the Lorde, of the Capytaynes ouer thousandes, and hundredes: was fyftene thousande, seuen hundred, and fyfty sycles: for the men of warre hadde spoyled euery man for him selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the Preest, toke the golde of the Capytaynes ouer the thousandes and ouer the hundredes, and brought it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse: to be a memoryall vnto the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde.

¶ To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the tribe of Manasses, is promysed the possession beyonde Iordan eastward: yf they bringe theyr brethren in to the lande of promyse.

CAPI. XXXII.

THe chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad hadde a verye greate multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lande of Galaad that it was a good soyle for catell, they came and spake vnto Moses and Eleazer the preest, and vnto the Lordes of the congregacyon, sayinge. The lande of Ataroth, and Dibo, and Jazer, and Nemrah, and Hesbon, and Eleale, and Sabam, and Nebo, and Beon whiche countrey the Lorde smote before the people of Israel: is a lande good for catell, and we thy seruauntes haue catell: Wherefore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syghte, lette this lande be gyuen vnto thy seruauntes to possesse, and bringe vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moses sayde to the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: shall youre brethren goo to warre, and ye tarye here? Wherfore discourage ye the hertes of the chyldren of Israel, for to go ouer in to the lande which the Lorde hath gyuen them. * This dyd youre fathers, when I sent them from Cades barne to se the lande. And they wente vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the lande, and discouraged the hertes of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not go in to the lande whiche the Lorde hadde gyuen them. * Num.xiii.a

And the Lorde was wrothe the same tyme and sware, sayinge. * None of the men that came oute of Egypte frome twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, bycause they haue not continually folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesyte, and Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me continually. And the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and made them wandre in the wyldernesse fortye yere, vntyll all the generacyon that hadde doone euyll in the syghte of the Lorde, were consumed. * Nu.xiiii.b

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers stede, to the increase of synfull men, and to augemente the feerce wrathe of the Lorde towardes Israel. For yf ye do tourne awaye from him, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, so shall ye destroye all this folke.

And they wente nere hym and sayde: we wyll buylde shepefoldes here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and cyties for oure chyldren: But we oure selues wyll goo redye armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyll we haue brought them vnto theyr place. And oure chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cyties, bicause of the inhabyters of the lande. And we wyll not returne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue enherited: euerye man his enheritaunce. For we wyll not enherite with them on yonder syde Jordane forwarde, bycause oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordane eastwarde.

And Moses sayd vnto them: *Yf ye wyll do this thyng, that ye wyl go al harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyll goo all of you in harnesse ouer Iordane before the Lorde, vntyll he haue caste oute his enemyes before hym, and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne agaynst the Lorde and agaynst Israel, and this Lande shall be youre possession before the Lorde.

But yf ye wyll not doo so: beholde, ye synne agaynste the Lorde: and be sure youre synne wyll synde you out. Buylde youre cyties for youre chyldren, and foldes for youre shepe, and se ye doo that ye haue spoken. And the children of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruauntes wyll doo as my Lorde commaundeth. Our chyldren, oure wyues, our substaunce, and all our catell shall remayne there in the cyties of Galaad. But *we thy seruauntes wyll go all harnessed for the warre vnto batayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde hath sayd.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the preest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient heedes of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and said vnto them: Yf the children of Gad and of Ruben wyll go with you ouer Iordan al prepared to fyght before the Lorde, then when the lande is subdued vnto you, gyue them the land of Galaad to possesse, but yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse then they shal haue theyr possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and Ruben answered, sayinge: that whiche the Lorde hathe sayde vnto thy seruauntes we wyll doo. * We wyll go harnessed before the Lorde in to the lande Canaã and the possession of our inheritaunce shall be on this syde Iordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben, and vnto halfe the trybe of Manasse the sonne of Ioseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorytes, and the kyngdome of Og kyng of Basan, the land that belonged vnto the cityes therof in the costes of the countrey rounde about. And the chyldren of Gad buylt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Jazer, Jegabea, Bethnimra, and Betharan tenenge cities, and they buylt folds for the shepe. And the children of Ruben buylte Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned three names, & Sibama also: and gaue names vnto the cities whiche they buylt.

And the * chyldren of Machir, the sonne of Manasse wente to Galaad and toke it, and put oute the Amorytes that were there. And Moses gaue Galaad vnto Machir, the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelte therin.

And * Iaire the sonne of Manasse, wente and toke the small townes therof, and called them the townes of Iaire. And Nobah went and take Kenath with the townes belongynge therto, and called it Nobah after his owne name.

¶ The iourneyes and departynge frome place to place of Israell are nombred. They are commaunded to kyll the Canaanites.

CAPI. XXXIII.

THese are the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel, whiche went out of the lande of Egypte with theyr armyes vnder Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote theyr goyng out by theyr iourneys at the commaundement of the Lorde: euen these are the iourneys of theyr goynge out. The chyldren of Israel * departed frome Rahemses the fyftene daye of the fyrste moneth, on the morowe after * Passeouer, and went out with an hyghe hande in the syghte of all Egypte, whyle the Egyptians buryed all theyr fyrste borne whiche the Lorde hadde smytten amonge theym. And vppon theyr Goddes also the Lorde dyd execution. And the chyldren of Israel remoued frome Rahemses, and pytched in Socoth.

And they departed from * Socoth and pytched theyr tentes in Ethan, whiche is in the edge of the wyldernesse. And they remoued frome Ethan, and tourned in to the entrynge of * Hiroth whiche is before Baall Zephon, and pytched before Migdol. And they departed frome before Hiroth, and * wente thorowe the myddes of the see in to the wyldernesse, and wente thre dayes tourneye in the wyldernesse of Ethan, and pytched in Marah. And they remoued from Marah, & wente vnto * Elim, where were twelue fountayns and thre score and ten paulme trees, and they pytched there.

And they remoued frome Elim, and laye fast by the redde see. Frome whence they remoued, and laye in the * wyldernesse of Sin. And they toke theyr tourney oute of the wyldernesse of Sin, and sette vp theyr tentes in Daphka, from whence they departed, and laye in Alus, and they remoued frome Alus, and laye at * Raphedim where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Raphedim, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

And from thence they remoued, and lodged at the * graues of luste. And they departed from the sepulchres of lust, and laye at * Hazeroth. And frome Hazeroth, and pitched in Rithma. And departed frome Rithma, and pytched at Rimon Parez. And they departed from Rimon Parez, and pytched in Libna. And they remoued frome Libna, and pytched at Rissa. And they tourneyed from Rissa, and pytched in Kehelatha. And so pytched in mount Sapher. And they remoued frō mount Sapher and laye in Harada. And they remoued frome Harada, and pytched in Makeheloth.

And remouynge frome Makeheloth, and laye at Tahath, and they departed frome Tahath, and pitched at Tharath. And they remoued frome Tharath, and pitched in Mithca. And they wente frome Mithca, and lodged in Hasmona. And they departed from Hasmona and laye at Moseroth. And they departed from Moseroth, and pytched in Bane Jakan, and laye at Hor gadgad. And they went from Hor gadgad, and pytched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and lay at Abrona. And they departed frome Abrona, and laye at Ezeon Gaber. And they remoued fro Ezeon Gaber, & pytched in the * wyldernesse of Sin, whiche is Cades. And they remoued from Cades, and pytched in mount Hor in the edge of the lande of Edom.

* And Aaron the Preeste wente vp in to mounte Hor at thappoyntment of the Lorde, And dyed there, euen in the fortyeth yere after the chyldren of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and in the fyrste daye of the fyfte moneth. And Aaron was an hundred & thirtye and thre yere olde, when he dyed in mounte Hor. And kynge Arad the Canaanyte, whiche dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, herde that the chyldren of Israel were come.

And they departed frome * mount Hor, & pytched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pytched in Phimon. And they departed frome Phimon, and pytched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth, and pytched in Jeabarim in the borders of Moab. And they departed frome * Jeabarim, and pytched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almon Diblathama. And they remoued frome Almon Diblathama, and pytched in the mountaynes of Abarim before Nabo. And they departed frome the mountaynes of Abarim, and pytched in the feldes of Moab fast by Jordane, nygh to Jericho. And they pitched vpon Jordane, frome Beth Hasimoth vnto the playne of Abel Satim in the feldes of Moab.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the feldes of Moab by Jordane nyghe vnto Jericho, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye are come ouer Jordan in the Lande of Canaan, seye dryue oute all thinhabytauntes of the lande before you, and destroye theyr * chapelles, and all theyr Images of metall, and plucke downe all theyr auters buylte on hylles: And possesse the lande and dwell therin, for I haue gyuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall diuyde the enheritaunce of the lande by lotte amonges youre kynredes, and gyue to the moo the more enheritaunce, and to the fewer, the lesse enheritaunce. And your enheritaunce shall be in the trybes of youre fathers, in the place where euerye mans lotte falleth.

That yf ye wyll not dryue oute the inhabyters of the lande before you, then those whiche ye lette remayne of them, shall be thornes in youre eyes, and dartes in youre sydes, and shall vexe you in the lande wherin ye dwell. Moreouer it wyll come to passe, that I shall doo vnto you, as I thoughte to doo vnto them.

¶ The costes and borders of the lande of promysse. Certayne are assygned to deuide the lande.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye come in to the lande of Canaan, this is the lande that shall fall vnto youre enheritaunce the lande of Canaan with all her costes.

And * youre southe quarter shall be frome the wyldernesse of Sin alonge by the coste of Edom, so that youre southe quarter shall be frome the syde of the salte see eastwarde, and shall fet a compasse frome the south vp to Acrabim, and reache to Zinna. And it shall goo oute on the south syde of Cades Barne / and go oute also at Hazar Addar, and go alonge to Azmon. And shall fette a compasse frome Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall goo out at the see.

And your west quarter shal be the great see, whiche coste shall be your west coste.

And this shall be youre northe quarter: ye shall compasse frome the greate see vnto mount Hor. And frome mounte Hor, ye shall compasse and go vnto Hemath / and the ende of the coste shall be at Zedada, and the coste shall reache oute to Ziphron and goo oute at Hazar Enan. And this shall be youre northe quarter.

And ye shall compasse youre East quarter, from Hazar enan to Sepham. And the coste shall goo downe frome Sepham to Ribla on the East syde of Ain. And then descende and goo oute at the syde of the see of Cenereth eastwarde. And then goo downe alonge by Jordan, and leaue at the salte see. And this shall be youre lande with all the costes therof rounde about.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the lande whiche ye shall enherite by lotte, and whiche the Lorde commaunded to gyue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: * for the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben haue receyued in the housholdes of theyr fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad, in theyr fathers housholdes / and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receyued theyr enheritaunce / that is to wete, two trybes and an halfe haue receyued theyr enheritaunce on the other syde of Jordan by Jericho eastwarde, towarde the sonne rysynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: These are the names of the men, whiche shall diuyde you the lande to enherite, Eleazar the Preeste / and * Josua the sonne of Nun. And ye shall take also a lorde of euerye trybe to de vyde the lande, whose names are these: In the trybe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon, Semuel the sonne of Amiud. And in the trybe of Ben Jamin, Elidad the sonne of Cilon. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Dan / the lorde Bucki the sonne of Jagli.

And amonge the chyldren of Joseph: in the tribe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lorde Haniel the sonne of Ephod. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel the sonne of Siphtan. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lorde Elizaphan the sonne of Phuenach. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Isachar, the lorde Paltiel the sonne of Asan. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Ahihud the sonne of Salomi. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Nephthali, the lorde Peda El the sonne of Ammihud. These are they whiche the lorde commaunded to diuyde the enheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel, in the lande of Canaan.

¶ Vnto the Leuites must be gyuen Cities and suburbes. The Cytes of refuge or sanctuaryes. The lawe of manquellynge. For one mannes witnesse shall no man be condemned.

CAPI. XXXV.

N

AND the Lorde spake to Moses in the feldes of Moab by Jordane ouer against Jericho, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they gyue vnto the Leuytes of the enheritaunce of their possession: * cytyes to dwell in. And ye shall gyue also vnto the cityes of the Leuytes, suburbes rounde aboute them. The cityes shall be for theym to dwell in, and the suburbes for their catell, possession, and all maner beastes of theyrs.

* Iosu. xxi.a

And the suburbes of the cityes whiche ye shall gyue vnto the Leuytes, shal reache from the wall of the cyte outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shall measure without the cyte, and make the vttermoost border of the east syde, two thousande cubytes And the vttermoost bozder of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And the vttermoost bozder of the west syde, two thousande cubytes: and the vttermoost bozder of the northe syde, two thousande cubytes also, and the city shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbes of their cityes.

And amonge the cityes which ye shal gyue vnto the Leuytes, * there shall be sixe cityes of fraunchyes, whiche ye shall gyue to that intent, that he whiche kylleth maye flee thyther. And to them ye shall adde fourtye and two cityes moo: so that all the cityes whiche ye shall gyue the Leuytes, shall be fourty and eyght with their suburbes.

* Iosue xxi.a Deuter.xix.b Sanctuaryes.

B And of the cityes whiche ye shall gyue out of the possessyons of the chyldren of Israel, ye shall gyue manye oute of their possessyons that haue moche, and fewe oute of them possessions that haue lytle: so that euerye tribe shall gyue of his cityes vnto the Leuetes, accordynge to the enheritaunce whiche he enheritith.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Jordan in to the lande of Canaan, ye shall deuyde cytyes, whiche shall be priuileged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flee thyther. And the cityes shall be to flee from the reuenger of bloude, that he whiche killeth dye not, vntyll he stande before the congregation in iudgement.

* Deut. xix.a Iosue.xx.a

And of these sixe free cityes whiche ye shall gyue, three ye shall gyue on this syde Jordan, and three in the lande of Canaan. And these sixe free cityes shall be for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whiche kyll anye person vnwares, maye flee thyther.

If any man smyte an other with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murtherer: and shall dye for it.

If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that he dye therwith, then he shall dye, for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

If he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wodde that he dye therwith, then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

The iustyce of bloude shall slee the murtherer, as soone as he fyndeth him: If he thrust at him * of hate, or hurle at him with lynge awayte that he dye, or smyte hym with his hande of malice that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The iustyce of bloude shall slee him as soone as he fyndeth hym.

But if he pusshed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym with anye maner of thynge, and not lynge of wayte: or caste anye maner of stone at hym that he dye therwith, and sawe him not: And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, but was not his ennemye, neither soughte hym anye harme: then the congregacion shall iudge betwene the sleer. and the reuenger of bloude in suche cases. And the congregacion shall delyuer the sleer oute of the hande of the reuenger of bloude, and shall restore hym agayne vnto the fraunchesed cytye whither he was fledde. And he shall remayne there * vnto the deathe of the hyghe Preest whiche was anoynted with holy oyle.

But yf he came without the symptes of his priuileged cyte whyther he was fledde, yf the auenger of bloude fynde hym without the precincte, of his free towne, he shall slee the murtherer, and be giltlesse / because he sholde haue kepte hym selfe in his free towne vntyll the dethe of the hyghe preest, and after the dethe of the hyghe preest, he shall returne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. And this shall be an ordynaunce and a lawe vnto you, amonge youre chyldren after you, in all youre habitacions.

Who so euer sleeth, shall be slayne by the mouthe of wytnesses. For one wytnesse shall not prouowne agaynste one person to put him to dethe. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murtherer whiche is worthy to dye: but he shall be put to deathe. Also ye shall take none attonement for him that is fledde to a free cyte, that he sholde come ageyne and dwell in the lande before the death of the hyghe Preeste. And se ye defyle not the lande whiche ye are in / for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clensed of the bloude that is shedde therin, but by the bloude of hym that shedde it. Defyle not therfore the lande whiche ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whiche, I also dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

¶ An order for the mariage of the daughters of Zelaphead. One of the tribes maye not marye with an other: but euerye one muste take him a wyfe of his owne tribe.

CAPI. XXXVI.

A

AND the heedes of the chyldren of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldren of Joseph, came forthe and spake before Moses and the princes which were auncient vcedes amonge the chyldren of Israel, and sayd: * The Lorde commaunded my lorde to gyue the lande to inheryte by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And then my lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde, to gyue the enheritaunce of * Zelaphead our brother vnto his doughters.

* Num.xxvi.b

* Num.xxvii.a

B Nowe when any of the sonnes of the tribes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall their inheritaunce be taken fromе the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe in whiche they are, and shall be taken fromе the lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of Jubelye commeth vnto the chyldren of Israel, then shall their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wherin they are and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the tribe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel at the mouth of the Lorde, saying: the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue sayd wel. This therfore dothe the Lorde commaunde the doughters of Zelaphead, sayinge: * Let them be wiues to whom they them selfe thinke belle, but in the kynred of the tribe of their father shall they mary, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel roule not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israel may abyde euerye man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers.

* Tobi.vii.b

And euery doughter that possesseth any enheritaunce, amonge the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one of the kynred of the tribe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerye man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce goo not fromе one tribe to an other: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel may abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

C And as the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa, and were maried vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph, and so they badde their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kynred of their father. These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thorowe Moses vnto the chyldren of Israel in the feldes of Moab vpon Jordanneee vnto Jericho.

CAPI. I

THese be the wordes
which Moses spake vn
to al Israel on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernes: in the feldes by the red see, betwen Pha
ran & Thophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab
xi. dayes iourney frome
Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the way that ledeth vnto mount Seir. And it happened vpon
the first daye of the. xi. moneth, in the. xl. yere that Mo ses spake vnto the children of Israel according vnto all that the Lord had gyuen him in com-
maundement vnto them after he had smytten Numeri.xxi.e Hehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moses began to declare this law, sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in a Horeb and Sinai are both one. a Horeb, saying: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore and take your iourney and go vnto the hylls of the Amorptes, and vnto all places nye there vnto: both feldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the southe
and vnto the sees syde of the lande of Canaan,
and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande beb fore you: go in therfore and possesse the lande
which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to gyue vnto them,
and their seed after them.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this daye as the sterres of heuen in nom bre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and bielle you as he hath promysed you) how (sayd
I) can I my self alone beare the accombraunce
* Exo.xviii.c charge and strife that is amonges you: bring therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstan-dynge and of experience, knowne among your tribes, that I maye make them rulers ouer
you. And ye answered me and sayd, that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of your tribes men of wis-dome and experience, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten, and officers amonge your tribes.

c And I charged your Iudges the same tyme, Judges. saynge: heare your brethren, and iudge right-
eously betwene euerye man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se ye * Leui.xix.c Prou.xxviii.c Eccl.xxxv.a know no mans personage in iudgement, * but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods.
And the cause that is to harde for you, bringe
vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same season al thinges whiche ye sholde do. And then we departed frome Horeb, and walked thorow all that great and terrible wyldernesse as ye haue sene alonge
by the waye that leadeth vnto the hylles of the Amorytes, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylles of the Amorytes whiche the Lorde our God dothe gyue vs.

Beholde, the Lorde thy God hathe set
the lande before, goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers sayethe vnto thee: feare not, neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and sayde.
Lette vs sende men before vs, to inserche out
the lande, and to bringe vs worde agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo vs by, and vnto what cytyes we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I take twelue men of you, of euerye tribe one. And they departed and wente vp in to the byghe countrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in their handes, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne and sayd: It is a good lande which the Lorde our God dothe gyue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consent to goo vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured
in youre tentes, and sayde: bycause the Lorde
hateth vs, therfore he hath broughte vs oute
of the lande of Egypte, to delyuer vs into the handes of the Amorites, and to destroye vs.
Howe shall we goo vp? Oure brethren have discouraged oure hertes, sayinge: The people
is greater and taller then we, and the cityes
are greate and walled, euen vp to heuen: and more ouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayde vnto you: dred not, neyther be afrayde of them. The Lorde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyght for you according to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypte, before your eyes, and in the wyldernesse, as thou hast sene how the Lorde thy God bare the as a man sholde beare his sonne thorowe out all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this, ye dyd not beleue the Lorde youre God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to serche you oute a place to pytche youre tentes in, * in fire by nyght, that ye myght se what waye to go and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of youre
wordes, and was wrothe and sware, saynge:
there shall not one of these men of this fro-
warde generacion se that good lande whiche
I sware to gyue vnto youre fathers, saue
Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it:
and to hym will I gyue the lande whiche he
hathe walked in, and to his children bycause
he hathe continually folowed the Lorde.

Likewise

Lykewyse the Lorde was angrye with me for Deut.i.d your sakes, saynge: thou also shalte not goo
in thyther. But Josua the sonne of Nun why-che standeth before the, he shall go in thyther.
Holden him therfore for he shall diuyde the herytage vnto Israel.

Deut.i.c * Moreouer youre children which ye sayd sholde be a praye, and youre sonnes whi-
che knowe neyther good nor bad this daye,
they shall goo in thyther, and vnto them I will gyue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take youre iourneye in to the wyldernesse: euen the waye to the redde see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: We haue sinned against the Lorde
we will goo vp and fyghte, according to all 6 that the Lorde oure God commaunded vs.
And when ye hadde gyrde on euerye man his weapons of warre, and were redye to goo vp
in to the hylles, the Lorde sayd vnto me: saye
vnto them, se ye go not vp and that ye fyghte
not, for I am not amonges you: lest ye be scour ged before your ennemyes. * And when I told you ye wolde not heare: but disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and wente presumptu-
ously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amorytes whiche dwelt in those hylles, came out against you and chased you
as bees do, and hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came againe and wept before the Lorde: but the Lord wold not heare your voyce, nor gyue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

¶ Brefe rehersall of that which was done frome the tyme that they departed frome Cades barne, vnto
the battell againste the kynges Sehon and Og.

CAPI. II.

1 THen we turned and toke oure iourneye
in to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the redde see as the Lorde commaunded
me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir
a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountaynes longe ynoughe, turne you northwarde. And warne the people, saying: Ye shall go thorow
the costes of your brethren the children of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: But take good hede vnto
youre selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I will not gyue you of their lande, no not so moche as a fote breade: bycause I haue gruen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money to eate,
and ye shall bye water of them for money to drynke. For the Lorde thy God hathe blessed
b thee in al the workes of thyne hand, and knew
the as thou wentest thorow his great wylder nesse. Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath ben with the this fourtye yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when we were departed from our brethren the children of Esau whiche dwelte in Seir by the felde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we turned and wente the waye to the wyldernesse of Moab. Then the Lorde sayd vnto me, se that thou vexe not the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to battayle, for I will not gyue the of their lande to possesse:
bycause I haue gruen Ar vnto the children of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for gyauntes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims.

In like maner the Horims dwelte in Seir
before tyme whiche the children of Esau cast
out, and destroyed them before them & dwelte
there in their stede: as Israel dyd in the lande
of his possession whiche the Lorde gaue them.
Now ryse vp (sayd I) and get you ouer the ry-
uer Zared/ and we wente ouer the ryuer Za-
red. The space in which we came from Cades
Barne, vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was. xxxviij. yeres, vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted oute of the hoste as the Lorde sware vnto them. For in dede the hand of the Lorde was against them to destroye them oute of the hoste, tyll they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of warre were d consumed and dred for the of the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge. Thou shalte go thorowe Ar the coste of Moab this daye, and shalt come nere vnto the children of Ammon: se thou vexe them not, nor prouoke them. For I will not gyue the of the lande of the children of Ammon to possesse, bycause I haue gruen it vnto the children of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a land of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelt therin
in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummims. A people that was greate, many and talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before the Ammonytes, and they calle them out, and they dwelte there in their stede: as he dyd for the children of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they calle them oute and dwell in their stede vnto this daye. And the Auims which dwelte in Hazerim euen
vnto Aza, the Caphthorims whiche came out of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelte in their rowmes.

Rise vp, take youre iourneye and goo e
ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue gruen in to thy hande Sehon the Amorite, * Num.xxi.c

quere, and prouoke him to battayle. This daye I will begyn to sende the feare and dred
of the vpon all nations that are vnder al pa-
rtes of the heauen: so that when they heare speake of the, they shal tremble and quake for feare of the.

Then I sente messengers oute of the wyl-dernesse of the caste vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon with wordes of peace, saynge: * Let * Num.xxi.c me goo thorowe thy lande. I will goo al- f wayes alonge by the hye waye, and will neither turne vnto the right hand nor to the left.
Sell me meat for money to eate, and gyue me
drinke for money to drinke. I wyl go thorow
by fote onely (as the children of Esau dyd vn
to me which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwel in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer

But Sehon the kyng of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his spirite, and made his herte tough because he wolde deliuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde I haue begon to set Sehon and his lande ℣ before the: go to and conquere, that thou mayst possesse his lande. Then bothe Sehon and all his people came out agaynst vs vnto batayle at ℣ Jahaza. And the Lorde set him before vs, and we smote hym and his sonnes and all his people.

And we toke all his cityes the same season and destroyed all his cityes, with men, women and chyldren, and let nothynge remayne saue the catell onely we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cityes whiche we toke, frome Aroer vpon the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the citye in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one citye to stronge for vs. The Lorde our God delyuered all vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the chyldren of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto all the coste of the ryuer Jaboche, nor vnto the cityes in the mountaynes, nor vnto what so euer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

CAPI. III.

A THen we turned and wente vp the ware to Basan: ✳ And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: bothe he and all his people to battell at Edzai. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: feare hym not, for I haue delyuered him and all his people and his lande in to thy hande, and thou shalte deale with hym as thou dealedst with Sehon kynge of the Amorytes whiche dwelte at Hesbon. And so the Lorde our God delyuered in to our handes, Og also the kynge of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote him, tyll noughte was lefte hym.

Nume. xxi. g.

And we toke all his cityes the same season (for there was not a citye which we toke not from them, euen thre score cityes, all the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. All these cityes were made stronge with hye walles, gates, and barres/ besyde vnwalled townes a greate meyny. And we vtterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bringynge to noughte all the cyties with men, women, and chyldren. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cityes, we preserued for our selues.

B And thus we toke the same season, the lande out of the hande of two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan, frome the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amorytes call it Senyr) all the cityes in the playne, and all Galaad, & all Basan vnto Salecha and Edzai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. For onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the rest of the gyauntes/ beholde his yron bed is yet at Rabah among the chyldren of Ammon, nyne cubytes longe, and four cubytes brode, of the cubytes of a man.

And when we had conquered this land the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, which is vpon the riuer of Arnon, and halfe mount Galaad, and the cityes therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og / I gaue vnto the halfe tribe of Manasse, all the region of Argob with all. Basan was called the lande of gyauntes. Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob vnto the costes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan ℣ Hauoth Jair vnto this daye. And I gaue halfe Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue ℟ Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe the valley and the coste, euen vnto the ryuer Jaboche, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon, and the feldes and Jordan with the coste from Cenereth vnto the see in the felde, whiche is the salt see vnder the springes of Phasgah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lorde your God hathe geuen you this lande to enioye it: se you goo harnessed before your brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are men of warre amonges you. Your wyues onely, your chyldren and your catell (for I wote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in your cityes which I haue geuen you, vntyll the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande which the Lorde your God hath geuen them beyonde Jordan: and then returne agayne euery man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme, sayinge: your eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lorde wyll doo vnto all kyngdomes whyther thou goest. Feare them not, for the Lorde your God it is, that fyghteth for you.

And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy mighty hande, for there is no God in heuen nor in erth that can doo after thy workes, and after thy power: let me goo ouer and se the good land that is beyonde Jordan, that goodly hyr countrey, and Libanon. But the Lorde was angry with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: be content, and speake hence forthe no more vnto me of this matter. ✳ Get the vp in to the top of Phasgah and lyfte vp thyne eyes west, north, south and east, and beholde it with thyne eyes / for thou shalte not goo ouer this Jordan. Moreouer charge Josua and incourage him, and bolden him, For he shall go ouer before his people, & he shall diuyde the lande, whiche thou shalte se, vnto them. And so we abode in the valley besyde Bethphgor.

A NOw herken Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes which I teache you for to doo them, that ye maye lyue and go and conquere the lande whiche the Lorde God of your fathers geueth you. Ye shall put nothyng vnto the word whiche I commaunde you, neyther do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God, whiche I commaunde you. ✳ Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd to Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde youre God hathe destroyed amonge you. But ye that claue vnto the Lorde your God are alyue euerye one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shulde do in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfore and do them, ✳ for that is your wysdome and vnderstandynge in the sight of the nacions: whiche when they haue herde all these ordynaunces, shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstandynge people is this greate nacion. For what nacion is so greate that hathe Goddes so nye vnto him: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nacions so great, that hathe ordinaunces and lawes so rychteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore onely, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes, and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb when he sayd vnto me, gather me ℣ people together, that I may make them heare my wordes to thintent they may learne to feare me as long as they lyue vpon the erth, and that they may teache there chyldren: ye came and stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fire: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, & there was derknes cloudes and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herd the voyce of the wordes: but saw no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, whiche he commaunded you to doo, euen ten sayinges, and wrote them in to tables of stone And the Lord commaunded me that same season to teache you ordinaunces and lawes, for to doo them in the lande whyther ye goo to possesse it.

Take hede vnto youre selues diligently, concernynge youre soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the day whē the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire, lest you marre your selues, and make you grauen ymages after what so euer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenes of man or woman, or anye maner beest that is on the erth, or of any maner fethered foule that fleeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that crepeth on the erth, or of any maner fysche that is in the watere benethe the erth: yea and lest thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vn to heuen, and when thou seest the sonne and ℣ mone and the sterres, and what so euer is contayned in heuen, shouldest be disceyued, and shouldest bowe thy selfe vnto them, and serue ℣ thynges whiche the Lorde thy God hath diuyded vnto all nacions, that are vnder all quarters of heuen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you out of the yron fornace of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes and sware, that I shulde not goo ouer Jordane, and that I shulde not go vnto that good lande, which the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheritance. For I muste dye in this lande, and shall not goo ouer Jordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande. Deute. i. c

Take hede vnto youre selues therfore that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of what so euer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbyden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God. D

Ye after thou haste gotten chyldren, and chyldrens chyldren, and haue dwelte longe in the lande, ye shall marre youre selues and make grauen ymages after the lykenesse of what so euer it be, and shalte worke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him, I call heuen and earthe to recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall shortly perysshe forthe of the lande whyther ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge youre dayes therin, but shall vtterly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall scatter you amonges nacions, and ye shall be lefte fewe in nombre among the people whyther the Lorde shall dryuge you: and there ye shal serue goddes whiche are the workes of mannes hande, wodde and stone whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. Neuerthe lesse, ye shall seke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym, yf thou seke hym with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule. In thy tribulacyon, and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes; thou shalte tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pitefull God: he wyll not forsake the, neyther destroye the, nor forget the appoyntment made with thy fathers whiche he sware vnto them. E

AND Moses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Heare (Israel) the ordynaunces and lawes whiche I speake in the eares this daye, and learne them, and se ye do them. The Lorde our God made an appointment with vs in Horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: we are they whiche are all here alyue this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the mount out of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. For ye were afrayde of the fire, and therfore went not vp in to the mounte, and he sayd. *I am the Lorde thy God, which brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therfore none other goddes in my presence.

Thou shalte make the no grauen ymage of anye maner lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, or in erth benethe, or in the water beneth the erth. *Thou shalt neyther bowe thy selfe vnto them nor serue them: for I the Lorde thy God am a gelouse God, visityng the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thyrde and fourthe generacyon, amonge them that hate me: and shewe mercye vpon thousandes amonges them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalte not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne: For the Lorde will not holde him giltelesse that taketh his name in vayne.

*Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe dayes thou shalte labour, and do all that thou hast to do, but the seuenth daye is the Sabath of the Lorde thy God: thou shalte doo no maner worke, neyther thou nor thy sonne, nor thy daughter, nor thy seruaunt, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy catell, nor the straunger that is within thy cyte, that thy seruaunte and thy mayde may rest as well as thou. And remembre thou wast a seruaunt in the lande of Egypte, and how that the Lorde God brought the oute thence with *a myghtye hande, and a stretched oute arme. For which cause the Lorde thy God commaunded the to kepe the Sabath daye.

*Honoure thy father and thy mother, as the Lorde thy God hathe commaunded the: that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes, and that it maye go well with the on the lande which the Lorde thy God giueth the.

*Thou shalte not slee.

Thou shalt not commyt aduoutrye.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt not beare false witnesse against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neyghbours wyfe: thou shalte not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaunt, mayde, oxe, asse, nor ought that is thy neyghbours.

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all youre multitude in the mounte, oute of the fyre, cloude, and darkenesse, with a loude voyce, and added no more therto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and delyuered them vnto me.

But as soone as ye herde the voyce, oute of the darkenesse, and sawe the hyll burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of youre tribes and youre elders: and ye sayd, Behold, the Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glory and his greatnesse, and *we haue herde his voyce out of the fyre, & we haue sene this daye that God may talke with a man and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shulde we dye & this great fyre shuld consume vs: If we shulde heare the voyce of the Lorde oure God anye more, we shulde dye. For what is any flesshe that he shulde heare the voyce of the lyuynge God speakynge oute of the fyre as we haue done and shulde yet lyue: Go thou and heare all that the Lorde our God sayeth, & tell thou vnto vs all that the Lorde oure God sayeth vnto the, and we will heare it and do it.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of your wordes when ye spake vnto me, and he sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people whiche they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayde al & they haue sayd. *Oh that they had suche an herte with them to feare me and kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myght go well with them and with their children for euer. Go and say vnto them: Get you into your tentes agayne but stande thou here before me and I will tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the lande whiche I gyue them to possesse.

Take hede therfore ye do, as the Lord your God hath commaũded you, and *turne not aside: eyther to the righthande or to the left: but walke in all the wayes which the Lorde your God hath commanded you, that ye may lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes in the land which ye shall possesse.

¶ The lawe must be earnestly printed in theyr hartes and to kepe it in memorye they must wryte it on the dores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr children.

CAPI. VI.

THese are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes which the Lord your God commaunded to teache you, that ye myght do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest feare the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his ordinaunces and his commaundementes whiche I commaũde the, both thou and thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel and take hede that thou do thereafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease mightely euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a lande that floweth with mylke and hony.

Heare Israel, the Lorde thy God is Lord only and thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, with all thy soule and with all thy myght. And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thyne herte and thou shalt whet them on thy chil-

And they shalbe papers of remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt wrote them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whe the Lorde thy God hath brought the into the lande whiche he sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to gyue the: with great and goodly cytes which thou buyldest not, and houses full of all goodes which thou fillest not, and welles dygged which thou diggedest not, and vynes & oliue trees whiche thou plantedest not, and when thou haste eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget the Lorde which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. When thy sonne asketh the in tyme to D

Thou shalt saye vnto thy sonne: We were bonden vnto Pharao in Egypt, but the Lord brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande. And the Lorde shewed signes and wondres bothe great and cuyll vpon Egypte, Pharao & vpon all his house, before our eyes & brought vs from thence: to bringe vs in, and to giue vs the land which he sware vnto our fathers. And therfore commaunded vs to do all these ordinaunces and to feare the Lorde our God, for our welthe alwayes, and that he myght saue vs, as it is come to passe this daye. Moreouer it shall be righteousnes vnto vs before the Lorde our God yf we take hede to kepe all these commaundementes as he hath commaunded vs.

For they will make youre sonnes departe frome me and serue straunge goddes, and then will the wrath of the Lorde waxe hote vpon you, and destroye you shorely.

But thus ye shall deale with theym: ouerthrowe their altares, breake downe their pylers, cut downe their grouis, and burne their ymages with fyre. For thou arte an holy nation vnto the Lorde thy God, the Lorde thy God hathe chosen the, to be a seuerall people vnto him selfe, of all nations that are vpon the earthe. It was not because of the multitude of you above all nations, that ✠ Lorde had lust vnto you and chose you. For ye were fewest of all nations. But because the Lorde loued you, and because he wold kepe the othe which he had sworne vnto youre fathers, therfore he brought you oute of Egypte with a myghty hande, and redeuered you forth of the house of bondage: euen frome the hande of Pharao, kynge of Egypte. Deute.xliij.a and xxvi.d

Understande therfore, that the Lorde thy God is God, and that a true God, whiche kepeth appoyntement and mercy vnto them that loue him and kepe his commaundmētes, euen thorow out a thousande generations, & rewardeth them that hate him before his face so that he bringeth them to noughte, & will not differre ✠ tyme vnto him that hateth him: but will rewarde him before his face. Kepe therfore the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes which I commaunde you this day, that ye do them.

If ye shall herken vnto these lawes & shall fulfill and do them, then shall the Lorde thy God kepe appoyntement with the & the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers, and will loue the, blesse the, and multiplye the: he will blesse the frute of thy wombe, & the frute of thy felde, thy corne, thy wyne, and thyne oyle the frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe in the lande which he sware vnto thy fathers to gyue ✠. Moreouer the Lorde will ✠ take frome the all maner infirmities & will put none of the euyll diseases ✠ of Egypte (which thou knowest) vpon the, but will sende theym vpon theym that hate the. ✠Exo.xxiij.d ✠ Exod.ix.a.

Thou shalte bringe to noughte all nations, whiche the Lorde thy God deliuereth the, thyne eye shall haue no pite vpon them, neither shalte thou serue their goddes, for that shalbe thy decaye. If thou shalt saye in thyne herte, these nations are mo than I, how can I cast them out? Feare them not, but remember, what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Pharao, and vnto all Egypte, and the greate tētations which thyne eyes sawe, and the tokens and wondres and myghtye hande & stretched arme / wherewith the Lorde thy God, brought the out: euen so shall the Lorde thy God do vnto all the nations of whiche thou arte afeayde.

Therto, the Lorde thy God will sende hornetes amonge them vntyll they that are left and hyde them selues frome the, be destroyed. Be not feare theym not, for the Lorde thy God is amonge you a myghty God and a terrible. The Lorde thy God will put out these nations before the by lytle and lytle, thou mayst not consume them at ones least the beastes of the felde encrease vpon the. And the Lorde thy God shall delyuer them vnto the and smyte by a myghty tempest amonge them vntyl they be brought to nought. And he shal delyuer their kynges into thyne hande, & thou shalt destroye their names alwaye vnder heauen. There shall no man stande before the, vntyll thou haue destroyed them. The ymages of their goddes thou shalt burne with fyre, & se thou couet not the ✠ syluer or golde that is on them nor take it vnto the, least thou be snared therwith. For it is an abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God. Bringe not therfore the abhominacion to thyne house, lest thou be accursed as it is: but vtterlye detest it, and abhorre it / for it is a thinge that must be destroyed.

¶ Moses putteth the Israelites in remembraunce of the afflictions and displeyres that they hadde this foretyme were whiche they were in the wildernesse.

CAPI. VIII.

ALl the commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shal kepe to do them, that ye maye lyue and multyply and go and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers. And thinke on all the waye which the Lorde thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in thyne herte, whether thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no, He humbled the & made the honger, and fed the with Manna, which neyther thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe that a man must not lyue by bread only: but by all that proceedeth oute of the mouthe of the Lorde must a man lyue. Thy rayment waxed not olde vpon the, neyther dyd thy fete swell this. xl. yere.

Understand therfore in thyne herte: that as a man nourtereth his sonne, euen so the Lorde thy God nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the commaundmētes of the Lorde thy God that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes that springe out bothe in valeyes and hylles: a land of wheate and of barly, of vynes, fyggetrees and Pomgranates, a lande of olyue trees of oyle and of hony: a lande wherin thou shalte not eate breed in skarcenesse, and where thou shalt lacke nothinge, a lande whose stones are yron, and out of whose hylles thou shalt dygge brasse. When thou hast eate therfore and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lorde for the good lande which he hath gyuen the.

But beware thou forget not the Lorde thy God, that thou woll not kepe his commaundementes, lawes and ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this day: yee and when thou hast eaten and fylled thy selfe and hast buylt goodly houses and dwelte therein, and when thy beastes and thy shepe are waxed manye & thy syluer and golde is multiplied and all that thou hast encreased, then beware least thyne herte ryse and thou forget the Lord thy God which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage, and which led the in ✠ wylderneesse both greate and terrible with fyrye serpentes and Scorpions, & drouth where was no water which brought the water oute of the rocke of flynt: which fed the in the wildernesse with Manna, whereof thy fathers knewe not, for to humble the, and to proue the, that he myghte do the good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saye not in thyne herte, my power and the myght of myne owne hād hath done me all these actes: But remembre the Lorde thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to be manfullye, for to make good the promyse which he sware vnto thy fathers as it is come to passe this daye.

For yf thou shalt forget the Lorde thy God and shalt walk after straunge goddes & serue them and worshyp them, I testifye vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe. As the nations whiche the Lorde destroyeth before the, so ye shall perysshe, because ye wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God.

¶ They are forbidden to trust in theyr own strength by rehersall of certayne thynges that were done after the lawe was gyuen, vnto the murmuryng at the Graues of Lust.

CAPI. IX.

HEare Israel, thou goest ouer Iordā this daye, to go and conquere nations greater and myghtyer then thy selfe, and cyties great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Enakims, which thou knowest & of whome thou hast herde saye, who is able to stande before the children of Enach? But understande this daye that the Lorde thy God which goeth before the, a consumynge fyre, he shall destroye them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & bringe them forth and destroye quyckely as the Lorde hath sayd vnto the.

Speake not in thyne herte, after that the Lorde thy God hath cast them out before ✠, Deut.viij.d saying: for my righteousnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse this lande. Naye, for the wyckednesse of these nations ✠ Lorde

Understande therfore that it is not for thy ryghteousnes, that the Lorde thy God wthe gyue the this good lande to possesse, for thou arte a styffenecked people. Remembre and forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wyldernesse: for sythens the daye that thou camest out of the lande of Egypte vntyll ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. ✠ Also in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth with you, euen to haue destroyed you, after ✠ I was gone vp into the mount, to fet the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntement which the Lord made with you. And I abode in the hyll. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes & neyther ate bread nor dranke water. ✠ And the Lorde delyuered me two tables of stone wrytten with the fynger of God, and in them was contayned accordinge to all the wordes whiche the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mounte, out of the fyre in the daye, when the people were gathered togither. ✠Exo.xxxi.d

And when. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and sayde vnto me. ✠ Aryse, and get the downe quyckely from hence, for thy people which thou hast brought oute of Egypte, haue marred theym selues. They are tourned attonce out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a God of metall. Furthermore ✠ Lorde spake vnto me, sayenge: I se this people, howe it is a styffenecked people, let me alone that I maye destroye them and put out the name of them vnder heauen, and I will make of the, a nation bothe greatter and mo than they. ✠Exo.xxxii.b

And I turned away and came downe from the hyll (and the hyll burnt with fyre) & had the two tables of the appoyntement in my handes. And when I loked and sawe that ye had synned against the Lorde your God, and had made you a calfe of metall, and had turned all togithers out of the waye whiche the Lorde had commaunded you. ✠ Then I toke the two tables, and cast them out of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. ✠ And I fell before the Lorde: euen as at the first tyme. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bread nor dranke water, ouer all your synnes whiche ye had synned in wynge wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde and in prouokynge hym. For I was afrayed of the wrath and feruentnesse wherewith the Lorde was angry with you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the Lorde herde my petition at ✠ tyme also. ✠Exo.xxxii.d ✠Exo.xxxiiij.d and.xxxviij.d

The Lorde was very angry with Aarō also, euen for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aarō also the same tyme.

same season the Lorde semered the tribe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appoyntement
of the Lorde, and to stande before the Lorde,
and to minister vnto him, and to bleste in his name vnto this daye. Wherfore the Leuites haue no part nor enheritaunce with their brethren. The Lorde he is their enheritaunce, as the Lorde thy God hath promysed them.

And I taryed in the mount, euen as at the first tyme. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, and the Lorde hearkened vnto me at that tyme also, so that the Lorde wolde not destroye the. And Lorde sayde vnto me: Aryse and goo forth in the iourney before the people, and let them go in, and conquere the lande which I swarc vn
to their fathers to gyue them.

And now, Israel, what is it that the Lorde thy God requireth of the, but to feare the Lorde thy God, & to walke in all his wayes,
and to * loue him, and to serue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde and his ordinaunces whiche I
commaunde the this daye, for thy wealth.
Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens,
is the Lordes thy God, and the earthe with all that therin is: onely the Lorde had a lust
vnto thy fathers to loue them, and therfore
chose you their seed after them of all nations,
as it is come to passe this daye.

Circumcyse therfore the foreskynne of your hertes, and be no longer styffenecked. For the Lorde youre God, he is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a great God, a myghty and a terrible, whiche regardeth no mans person, nor taketh gyftes: but wyth ryghte vnto the fatherlesse and wydowe, and loueth the stran ger, to gyue him fode and raymēt. Loue there fore the straunger, for ye were straungers your selues in the lande of Egypte. Thou shalte feare the Lorde thy God, and serue him, and cleaue vnto him, and swere by his name, for he is thy prayse, and he is thy God that hath wrought these greate and terrible thinges for the,
which thyne eyes haue sene. Thy fathers wet downe into Egypte with. lxx. soules, & now
the Lorde thy God hath made the as the stares of heauen in multitude.

¶ An exhortacion to regarde the Lawe, and howe they ought to haue it in their hertes alwayes and before their eyes, and to talke of it when they rise, when they sit downe and when they walke by the waye.

CAPI. XI.

LOue the Lorde thy God, and kepe his obseruaunces, his ordinaūces, his lawes and his commaundmentes alwaye. And call to mynde this daye that which your children haue neyther knowen nor sene: euen the nourture of the Lorde youre God, his greate
nesse, his myghty hand, and his stretched out arme: his myracles, and his actes whiche he dyd amonges the Egyptians, euen vnto Pha
rao the kynge of Egypte, & vnto all his lan:
and what he dyd vnto the host of the Egyp tians, vnto their hyrses and charettes, howe

he brought the water of the reed see vpon
the as they chased you, and howe the Lorde
hath brought them to nought vnto this daye:
and what he did vnto you in the wildernesse,
vntyll ye came vnto this place: and what he dyd vnto * Dathan and Abiram the sonnes
of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, howe the erthe opened her mouth and swalowed them with their housholdes and their tentes, and all their substaunce that was in their possession,
in the myddes of Israel.

For youre eyes haue sene all the greate
deades of the Lorde which he dyd. Kepe therefore all the commaundementes which I com-
maunde the this daye that ye maye be stronge
and go and conquere the lande whether ye go to possesse it, and that ye may prolonge youre
dayes in the lande which the Lorde swarc vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them, & to their seed, a lande that floweth with mylke & hony.
For the lande whether thou goest to possesse
it, is not as the lande of Egypt whence thou camest out, where thou sowedest thy seed and waterest it with thy fete as a garden of her-bes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to pos-sesse, is a lande of hilles and baleyes and drin-
keth water of the rayne of heauen, and a land which the Lord thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, frome the begynninge of the yere vnto the later ende of the yere.

If you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde youre God and serue him with all youre hertes, and with all youre soules: then he will gyue rayne vnto
your lande in due season, both the first & rayne
and the later, and thou shalte gather in thy corne thy wyne and thyne oyle. And he will sende grasse in thy feldes for thy catell: & thou shalt eate and fyll thy selfe. But take hede to youre selues, that ye be not wrapped that ye turne aside and serue straunge Goddes & worshyp them, & so the wrath of the Lorde ware
hote vpon you, and shut vp the heauen that there be no rayne and that youre lande yelde
not her encrease and that ye perysshe shortely frome the good lande which the Lorde gyueth
you.

But vp therfore these my wordes in youre hertes and in your soules, and bynde them for a signe vnto your handes, and let them be as papers of remembraunce betweene your eyes,
and * teache them your children: so that thou
talke of them when thou sittest in thyne house
and when thou walkest by the ware, & when thou liest downe, and when thou risest vp:
yea and wryte them vpon the wrepostes of thyne house and vpon thy gates, that youre dayes mare be multeplyed, and the dayes of your children vpon the erth which the Lorde
swarc vnto your fathers to gyue them, as lōg
as the dayes of heauē endure vpon the earth.
For yf ye shall kepe all these commaūdmētes
which I commaunde you, so that ye do them,
and loue the Lorde your God, and walke in all his wayes and cleaue vnto him: Then will the Lorde cast out all these nacions, & ye shall conquere them whiche are both greattee and myghtyer then your selues. * All the places
where on the soles of youre fete shall treade, shalbe yours, euen frome the wyldernesse and frome mount Libanon, and frome the ryuer Euphrates, yea vnto the vttermoste see shall your costes be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: the Lorde your God shal
cast the feare and dreade of you vpon all landes whether ye shall come, as he hathe sayde
vnto you.

* Beholde I set before you this day, a bles-
singe and a curse: a blessynge: yf ye herken
vnto the cōmaundementes of the Lorde your God, which I commaunde you this daye.
And a curse: yf ye will not herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde your God:
but turne out of the waye (which I cōmaund
you this daye) to walke after other goddes whome you know not.

When the Lorde thy God hathe brought
the into the lande whether thou goest to pos-
sesse it, then put the blessinge vpon mounte Garizim, and the curse vpon mounte Ebal,
which are beyonde Jordan on the backe syde
of the waye towarde the goynge downe of sonne in the lande of the Cananytes whiche dwell in the feldes ouer against Galgall besyde the oke groue of Moreh. For ye shall go ouer to take season of lande which the Lord
your God giueth you, and shall conquere it, and dwell therein. Take hede, therfore, that ye w all the lawes, both ecclesiasticall & tem-
porall which I set before you this daye.

¶ Idolatrye muste the Israelites destroye and flee
fro. They must eate no bloude. They muste onely w that thynge which God commaundeth.

CAPI. XII.

THese are the ordinaunces and lawes
which ye shall obserue and do hereafter
in the lande whiche the Lorde God of thy fathers gyueth the to possesse, as longe as places where the nacions which ye shall conquere serue their goddes, whether it be vpon hyghe mountaynes or on hyghe hylles or vn-

der any grene tree, Ouerthrowe their altares
and breake their pylers and burne their gro-ues with fire and hewe downe the ymages of their goddes, and bringe the names of them to nought out of that place. Se ye worship not so vnto Lorde your God, but ye shall enquire the place whiche the Lorde youre God shall haue chosen out of all your tribes, to put his name there and there to dwell. And * thither thou shalte come, and thither ye shall bringe
your burntsacrifices and your offringes, your tythes and heueoffringes of your hāndes, your vowes and freewill offringes & the firste borne of your oxen and of your shepe. And there ye shall eate before the Lorde youre God, and re
ioyse in al that ye your lay handes on, both ye and your housholdes, because the Lorde thy God hath blessed the.

Therfore when the Lorde your God hath chosen a place to make his name dwell there, thyther ye shall bringe al that I commaund you, your burntesacrifices and your offringes, your tythes, and the heueofferinges of youre handes and all your godly vowes whiche ye vowe vnto the Lorde. Yf there aryse amonges you a prophete or a dreamer of dreames and gyue the a signe or a wondre, & that signe or wonder which he hath sayde come to passe and the saye: let vs go after straunge goddes whiche thou hast not knowen, and let vs serue them hearken not vnto the wordes of that prophet or dreamer of dreames. * For the Lorde thy God temteth you to wete whether ye loue ꝑ Lorde your God with all your hertes & with all your soules. Foloe ye must walke after the Lorde your God, and feare him and kepe his commaundementes and herke vnto his voyce and serue him and cleaue vnto him. And that prophete or dreamer of dreames shall dye because he hathe spoken to turne you awaye frome the Lorde your God whiche brought you out of the land of Egypte and deliuered you out of the house of bondage, to thrust the out of the waye which the Lorde thy God commaunded the to walke in: and so thou shalte put euyll awaye frome the.

And he shalbe stoned to death, because he hath gone about to thrust the awaye frome ꝑ Lorde thy God whiche brought the forthe of Egypte the house of bondage. and all Israel shall heare and feare, and shal do no more any suche wyckednesse as this is, amonges them.

Yf thou heare it reported of any of thy cyties which the Lorde thy God hath geuen the to dwell in, that certayne children of Belial are gone out amonge you, and haue moued ꝑ inhabitantes of their cytie, saying: let vs go and serue straunge goddes whiche ye haue not knowen: then seke and make inquirie diligētly. And gather all the spoyle of it vnto the myddes of the streates therof, & burne with fire both the cytie and all ꝑ spoyle therof euery whit vnto the Lorde thy God. And it shalbe an heape for euer, and shall not be buyld agayne. And se there cleaue nought of the damned thinge in thyne hande that the Lorde maye turne frome his fearce wrath / & shewe the mercy and haue compassion on the, and multiply the, as he hath swoorne vnto thy fathers: when thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye so that thou do that is right in the eyes of the Lorde thy God.

¶ The maners of the gentiles may not be followed. what beastes are cleane to be eaten and what not.

CAPI. XIIII.

Ye are the children of the Lorde youre God, cut not youre selues, nor make you any baldnes betwene the eyes for any mans death. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, and the Lorde hathe chosen the to be a seuerall people vnto him selfe, of al the nations that are vpon the erth.

Ye shall eate no maner of abhominacion. These are the beastes whiche ye shall eate of: oxen, shepe and gootes, herte, roo and bugle, wyldegoote, vnicorne, origen and Camelion. And all beastes that cleaue the hoffe and syet it in to two clawes and chewe the cud, them ye shall eate. Neuertheles, these ye shall not eate, of them that chewe cud / and haue not their hoffe syt in two clawes as he the camel the hare and the conye. For they chewe cud, but deuyde not the hoffe: and therfore are vncleane vnto you: & also the swyne, for though he deuyde the hoffe, yet he cheweth not cud, & therfore is vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesshe of them, nor touche the deed carkettes of them.

* These ye shall eate, of all that are in the waters: All that haue fynnes and scales. And whatsoeuer hath not fynnes & scales, of that ye may not eate, for ꝑ is vncleane vnto you.

* Leuitt.xi.b Fysshe.

And all creepynge soules are vncleane vnto you and may not be eaten: but of all cleane foules ye may well eate. Ye shall eate of nothinge ꝑ dyeth alone: But thou mayst gyue it vnto the straunger that is in thy cytie ꝑ he eate it, or mayst sell it vnto an Alian. O how fearce is this great wrath And men shal saye: bycause they left the testament of the Lorde, God of their fathers wh he made with them when he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. And they went and serued straunge goddes and worshipped them: goddes which they knewe not, & which hadde gyuen them noughte. And therfore the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon that land to bringe vpon it all the curses that are written in this boke. And the Lorde cast them out of their lande in angre, wrath, and great furyousnesse, and caste them in to a straunge lande, as it is come to passe this daye. The secretes of the Lorde our God are opened vnto vs and our chyldren for euer, that we do al the wordes of this lawe.

¶ The worde of God is not farre fro me them that seke for it, but in their mouthes and herte.

CAPI. XXX.

When al these wordes are come vpon the, whether it be the blessynge or the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thyne hert among all the nacions whyther the Lorde thy God hathe thrust the, and come agayne vnto the Lord thy God and harken vnto his voyce, accordynge to all that I commaunde the this daye: both thou, and thy chyldren with all thyne herte, and all thy soule: Then the Lorde thy God wyll tourne thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and go and fet the agayne fro me all the nacions amonges whych the Lorde thy God shal haue

haue scatered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heuen: euen fro me thence wyl the Lord thy God gather the, and from thence fet the & bringe the in to the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it. And he wyl shew the kyndnesse & multiply the about thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God will circumcise thyne hert, and ✠ hert of thy seed for to loue the Lord thy God with all thyne hert, & all thy soule, that thou maist lyue. * And the Lorde thy God will put all these curses vpon thyne ennemyes and on them that hate and pursue the.

But thou shalt turne and harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde and to all his commaundementes which I cōmaunde the this daye. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plentious in all the workes of thyne hand, and in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catel, and frute of thy lande, and in ryches. * For the Lord wil turne agayn and reioyce ouer the, to do ✠ good as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. Yf thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, wht are wrytten in the boke of this law, if thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God with al thyne herte, and all thy soule.

* For the commaundement whiche I commaunde the this daye, is not dyd from the, ne farre of. It is not in heuen that thou needest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it and do it. Neither is it beyonde the see: that thou sholdest saye: who shal go ouer see for vs & fet it vs that we maye heare it and do it. But the worde is verye nye vnto the, euen in thy mouth & in thyne hert that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, deth and euyll: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lorde thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, his ordynaunces and his lawes: that thou maiste lyue and multiplye, and that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the in the lande whyther thou goest to possesse it.

But if thyne hert turne awaye, so that thou wylt not heare: but shalt go aweape and worshyp straunge goddes, and serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe, and that ye shal not prolong your dayes vpon the land whyther thou passest ouer Jordan to go and possesse it.

* I call to recorde this daye vnto you heuen and erth, that I haue set before you lyfe and deth, blessynge and cursynge: but chose lyfe, that thou and thy seed may lyue, in that thou louest thy Lorde thy God, harkenest vnto his voyce, and cleauest vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayste dwell vpon the earth which the Lorde swore vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to gyue them.

¶ Moses being ready to dye, ordereth Josue to rule the people in his stede. This boke Deuteronomye is written and layde in the tabernacle beyde the arcke. The Leuytes are charged to reade it to the people.

CAPI. XXXI.

A And Moses went and spake these wordes vnto al Israel and sayd vnto them. I am an hundred and twentye yere olde this daye, and can no more go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayd vnto me, thou shalte not goo ouer this Jordan. The Lorde youre God he wyll go ouer before the, and he wyl destroy these nations before the, and thou shalte conquere them. And Josua shall goo ouer before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shall goo vnto them, as he dyd to Sehon and Og kynge of the Amorytes, and vnto their landes, which kynges he destroyed. And when the Lorde hath delyuered them to you, se ye do vnto them accordyng vnto all the commaundementes whiche I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp your hertes and be stronge, drede not, nor be afrayde of them, for the Lorde thy God him selfe will go with the, and will neither let the go, nor forsake the.

A Josue is made capitayne.

Josue.i.a Numeri.xx.b Deuter.iii.a and.xx.a B Josue.i.a

And Moses called Josua and sayd vnto him in the syght of all Israel, * Be stronge & bolde for thou muste goo with this people vnto the land which the Lorde hath swore vnto their fathers to gyue them, and thou shalte gyue it them to inherite. And the Lorde shall goo before the, and he shall be with the, and wyl not let the goo, nor forsake the, feare not therfore, nor be discomforted.

*Josue.i.b iii.Regū.ii.a

And Moses wrote this lawe and deliuered it vnto the preestes the sonnes of Leui, which * bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, and vnto all the elders of Israel, and commaunded them saying, * At the ende of the.vij. yere, in the tyme of the fre yere, in the feast of the tabernacles, when al Israel is come to appere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he shal chose: se thou rede this lawe before all Israel in their eares. Gather the people togyther, men, women, and chyldren and the straūgers that are ī thy cities, that they may heare lerne and feare the Lorde youre God, and be diligent to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and that their children which knowe nothing may heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde your God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande whyther ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

*Num.iii.d. and.iiii. C *ii.Esd.viii.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses. Beholde, thy dayes are come, that thou muste dye. Call Josua and stande in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I may gyue hym a charge. And Moses and Josua went and stode in the tabernacle of witnesse. And the Lorde appered in the tabernacle, euen in the piller of the cloud. And the pyller of the cloude stode ouer the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: beholde thou must slepe with thy fathers, and this people wyl rise vp and go a hooryng after straunge goddes of the land whyther they go, and wil forsake me and breke the appoyntment which I haue made with them. And then my wrath wil waxe hote agaynst them, and I wyl forsake them, and wyll hyde my face from them in that daye, and they shal be consumed. And when moche aduersitie and tribulation is come vpon them, then they wyll saye: by cause our God is not among vs, these trybulacions are come vpon vs. But I wyll hyde my face that same tyme for all the cuyls whiche

they haue wrought in that they are turned vn-
to straunge Goddes.

Deute.xxxi.a. Nowe therfore wryte thou this songe, and teache the chyldre of Israel, and put it in their mouthes, that this song maye be my witnesse vnto the chyldren of Israel. For when I wyll brynge them in to the lande whiche I sware
vnto their fathers that floweth with mylke, &
honye, and they haue well eaten & filled them
selues, and waxen fat, then shal they turne vn-
to straunge Goddes and serue them, and raple on me, & breake my testament. And then when moche mischefe and tribulacions is come vpō them, this song shal answere before them and be a witnesse. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their seed/ for I know their imagination whiche they go about euen now before I haue brought them in to the land whiche I haue promised them. And Moses wrote this songe that same daye, and taughte it the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde gaue Josua
the sonne of Nun a charge, and said: *be bold
*Iosue.i.b
xi.Regū.ii.a. and stronge, for thou shalt brynge the children of Israel in to the lande which I promised the,
and I wyl be with the.

The worke is put the arck When Moses hadde written the wordes of this lawe in a boke, vnto the end of them, he commaunded the Leuites which bare the arke of the testament of the Lorde, saying: take the boke of this law, and put it by the syde of the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God
and let it be there for a witnesse agaynste the.
For I know thy stubbornes, & thy stiffe necke/
beholde whyle I am yet alyue and in compa-
nye with you this daye, ye haue ben stately a-gaynst the Lorde, how moche more after our deth?

Gather vnto me all ye elders of your tribes
G and your officers, that I may speke these wor-des in their eares, and call heuen and erth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my deth, ye will be wickedly, & euerne from the waye which I commaunded you, and tribula-
cion shall come vpon you in the latter dayes
when ye haue wrought wickednesse in ye sight
of the Lord to prouoke him with the workes
of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares
of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes
of this songe vnto the ende of them.

¶ The songe of Moses. He goeth vnto the toppe of Abarim to se the land of promyse.

CAPI. XXXII.

A HEare, o heuen, what I speake, and heare (o earth) the wordes of my mouthe. My Elaye.i.a doctrine dropp as doth the rayne, and my Michæ.i.a speche sloweth as dothe the dewe, as the my-Elaye.xl.a. selynge vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: Magnifye the myghte of oure God.

Genesis.i.d Perfect are Gods dedes, and all his wayes Eccles.xlii. are righteousnes/ God is faithful and without wickednes, both righteous an iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwarte generacion hathe trespased agaynste him, and are not his sonnes by reason they are disfigured. Deest thou so rewarde the Lorde? O folysshe nacion and vnwyse. Is not he thy father, and thyne owner? hath he not made the and ordened the?
Remembre the dayes that are passe: consider the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father and he wyll shewe the thy auncestours, & they shal tell the, when the most highest sequestred
the nacions, and diuided the sonnes of Adam,
he put the borders of the nacions fast by the company of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes part is his folke, and Jacob
is the portion of his inheritaunce.

He founde him in a desert land, in a voyde ground and in a wylde wildernes. He led him about and gaue him vnderstanding, and kepte
him as the apple of his eye.

As an Egle that stereth vp her nest to fle,
and flotereth ouer her yonge, he stretched out
his wynges, and toke him vp and bare hym on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was his gyde, and there was no straunge God with him.

He set him vp vpon an hye land, and he ate
the encrease of the feldes. And he gaue him honye to sucke out of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone. With butter of kyne, & mylke
of the shepe, with fat of the lambes, and fatte
rammes of Basan, with gotes & wheate flour.
And of the bloud of grapes thou dronkest wyne
wyne.

And Israel waxed fat, and kycked. Thou wast fat, corpulent and smothe. And he let God go that made him, and turned his backe from God that saued him. They stirred vp his displeasure thorow their straunge goddes, & with abhominacions prouoked him.

They offered vnto deuyls, and not to God
and to Goddes whiche they knewe not, euen
to newe Goddes that came newly vp, whiche
their fathers neuer worshypped.

Of the God that begat the thou arte vn-myndfull, and hast forgot God that made the.
And when the Lorde sawe it he was angry/because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and doughters.

And he said, I will hyde my face from them and wyl se what their ende shall be. For they are a frowarde generacion & children in whom is no fayth. They haue angred me with him that was no God, & prouoked me with their vanities. * And I agayne wyll angre them
with them which are no people, and wyl pro-
uoke them with a folysshe nacion. * For fyre
is kyndled in my wrath, and shall burne vnto
the botome of hell. And shal consume the erth
with her encrease, and set a fyre the botomes
of the mountaynes. I wyll heape my scheuts
vpon them, and wyll spende all myne arowes
amonges them.

They shall pyne awaye by kamyn, byrdes
shall deuour them with a bytter gnawynge.
* I wyl also sende the tety of beestes vpon them, and poyson serpentes of ye erth. Without doores the swerde shal destroye them, and with in in the chamber, feare: both yonge men and yonge

yonge women, and the suckelynges, with the men of grey heedes. I haue determined to scatter them thorowe out the worlde, and to abolysshe their name from amonge men, but for their enemyes cause I haue forborne the,
lest their aduersaries wolde take vpon them
and saye: our hye hande hathe done all these workes, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacion that hath no forecast, and hath no vnderstandyng in them: I wolde they were wyse, and vnderstode this, and wolde con-
syder their latter ende.

Howe it commeth, that one shall chase a thousande, and two put ten thousand of them to flyghte: but that their God hathe solde
them, and because the Lord hath geuen them
vpp.

For our rock is not as their rock, no though our enemyes be iudges. Our they vynes are of the vynes of Sodom, and of the feldes of Gomorra. Their grapes are grapes of gal, & their clusters be bytter.

Their wyne is the poyson of dragons, and the cruell gal of addees. Are not suche thynges layd in store with me, and sealed vp amonges
my treasures? * Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll acquyte: Their feete shall slyde when the tyme commeth. For the tyme of their destruction is at hande, and the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste.

For the Lorde wyll be myxed vnto his people, and haue cōpassion on his seruaunces. For it shall be sene that their power shall fayle, &
them prisoners be lost, and the reskoue wanted.

And * that he sayd: where are their goddes
whom they trusted?

The fat of whose sacrifices they ate, & drāke
the wyne of their wessaynes, let them ryse vp
and helpe you, and be your shylde.

Se nowe howe I am alone, and that there is no God but I. I can kyll and make alyue,
and wout I haue smytten, that can I heale:
neyther is there that can rescue any man oute
of my hande.

For I wyll lyfte vp myne hande to heuen,
and wyll saye, I lyue euer.

If I whet the edge of my swerde as it were a thonderbolt, & myne hand goth about to do iustice, I wyl shewe vengeaunce on myne ene-
myes, and wyl reasquite them that hate me.

I wyll make myne arowes dronken with bloude, and my swerde shall eate flesshe of the bloud of the slayne, and of the captyue, and of myne ennemyes bare heed.

Prayse (ye hethen) his people, for he wyl auenge the bloude of his seruaunces, and wyll reuenge him of his aduersaries, & wil be mercyfull vnto the lande of his people.

Moses wente and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, both he and Josua the sonne of Nun. When Moses had spoken all these wordes vnto the ende to all Israel, he sayd vnto them. Set your hertes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: that ye commaunde them vnto your children to obserue and doo all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a bayne worde vnto
you: but it is your lyfe, & thorowe this worde
ye shall prolonge your dayes in the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, the same daye, saying: get the vp in to this mountayne Abarim, vnto mount Nebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab ouer against Jericho. And be-holde the lande of Canaan whiche I geue the
to the chyldren of Israel to possesse. And dye in the mounte whiche thou goest vpon, and be thou put vnto thy people: As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor, and was put vnto his people. For ye trespased against me among the chyldren of Israel at the waters of stryfe,
at Kades in the wildernesse of Zin: because ye halowed me not amonge the children of Israel. Thou shalt se the land before the, but thou shalte not goo vnto the lande whiche I geue
the chyldren of Israel.

Moses goeth vp vnto mount Nebo.

¶ Moses dyinge blesseth all the trybes of Israel.

CAPI. XXXIII.

I This is the blessynge wherewith Moses Gods man blessed the chyldren of Israel before his deathe, sayinge:
Moses blessynge.

The Lorde came from Sinai, and shewed his beames from Seir vnto them, and appeared gloryously frome mounte Pharan. And he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryght hande a lawe of fyre for them. How loued he the people?

*All his sayntes are in his hande. They that *Sapi.iii.a.
ioyne them selues vnto this sorte, shall receyue
his wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe whiche is the enheritaūce of the congregation of Jacob.
And he was in Israel kynge, and gathered the heades of the people and the tribes of Israel togyther.

Ruben shall lyue and shal not dye: but his people shall be fewe in nombre. This is the blessynge of Juda: Heare Lorde the voyce of Juda, and brynge him vnto his people, fyght
his handes fight for him, but be thou his help agaynst his enemyes.

That is, this tribes seruice be acceptable afore the lord both in prayer & preching as was Moses.

And vnto Leui he sayd: * thy perfectnes and thy lyght be after thy mercyfull man whome
thou temptedst at Massah with whom thou stri-uedst at the waters of stryfe. He that sayth vnto his father and mother, I saw him not, and vnto his brethren, I knewe not/ and to his sonne, I wote not/ for they haue obserued thy wordes, and kepte thy testament. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes, and Israel thy lawes. They shal put incense before thy nose,
and hole sacrifices vpon thyne aulter. Blesse Lorde their power, and accepte the workes of their handes/ smyte the backes of them that rise agaynst them, and of them that hate the:
that they rise not agayne.

Vnto Benjamin he sayde. The Lordes beloynge shall dwell safelye with him/ and kepe him safe all the chambre by hym contynually, and shall dwell betwene his shoulders.

And vnto Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Lorde is his lande, with the goodly fruites
of heuen, with dewe and with springes that

lye benethe: and with frutes of the encrease of the sonne, and with ypye frute of the monethes, and with the toppes of mountaynes that were frome the begynnynge, and with the daynteyes of hylles that laste euer, and with goodly frute of the earth, and of the fulnesse therof.

And the good wyll of him that dwelleth in the * bushe, shall come vpon the heed of Ioseph, and vpon the toppe of the heed of hym that was separated frome his brethren, his beautie is as a firstborne ore, and his hornes as the hornes of an vnycorne. And with them he shall pusshe the nations togither, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. Loke are the manye thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasses,

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goynge oute, and thou Issachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto the hyll, and there they shall offre offeringes of righteousnes. For they shall sucke of the ryches of the see, and of treasure hydde in the sande.

And vn to Gad he sayde: Blessed is the prowme maker Gad. He dwelleth as a lyon and caughte the arme and also the toppe of the heed. He sawe his dominion that in his part there was a teacher hyd, and came with the heades of the people, and executed ỹ righteousnes of the Lorde, and his iudgementes with Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a lyons whelp, he shall flow plentiously from Basan.

And vnto Nephthali he sayd: Nephthali he shall haue abundance of pleasure, and shal be filled with the blessyng of the Lorde, and shal haue his possessions in the southwest.

And of Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shal be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shal dyp his fote in oyle: Yron and brasse shall hange on thy shoes, and thine age shall be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel he that ryteth vpon heuen, shal be thyne helpe whose glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwellyng place of God from aboue, and vnder the armes of the worlde: he hath caste out thyne enmyes before the and sayd: destroy. And Israel shall dwell in safetye alone. And the eyes of Jacob shall loke vpon a lande of corne and wyne. Moreouer his heuen shall droppe with dewe. Happy arte thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? A people that art saued by ỹ Lorde, thy shylde and helper, and a swerde of thy glorye. And thyne enmemyes shal hyde themselues frome the, and thou shalte walke vpon theyr hyghe hylles.

¶ Moses dyeth. Israel wepeth. Iosua succedeth in Moses rowme.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND Moses wente frome the feldes of Moab vp, in to mounte Nebo, whiche is the toppe of Phasgah, ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lorde shewed him al the land of Galaad, euen vnto Dan, and al Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the land of Juda: euen vnto the vttermost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the citye of palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the Lord sayd vnto him. * This is the land which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: I wyll gyue it vnto thy seed. I haue shewed it the, before thyne eyes: but thou shalt not go ouer thyther.

So Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab, at the commaundement of the Lorde. And he buryed hym in a valey in ỹ lande of Moab beside Bethphegor: but no man wyste of his sepulchre vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twentye yere olde when he dyed, and yet his eyen were not dymme, nor his chekes abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moses in the feldes of Moab thirtye dayes. And the dayes of weppynge and mournynge for Moses were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spirite of wysdome: * for Moses had put his hand vpon him. And all the chyldren of Israel herkened vnto him, and dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. But there arose not a Prophete lyke that tyme in Israel lyke vnto Moses: whom the Lorde knew face to face, in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lorde sent him to do in the lande of Egypt vnto Pharao and all his seruauntes, and vnto all his lande: and in al the mygh tye dedes, and greate wonderfull thynges which Moses did in the syght of all Israel.

¶ The ende of the fyrst boke of Moses.

THE BOOKE OF IOSVA.

¶ The Lorde comforteth Josue to inuade the lande of promysse, and commaundeth him contynually to reade deuteronomye.

CAPI. I.

After the deth of Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde: the Lorde spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, Moses seruaunt, saying: Moses my seruaunt is deed. Nowe therfore aryse & go ouer Jordan, bothe thou and all this people vnto the lande whiche I gyue vn to the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that the soles of your fete shall tede on, haue I gyuen you, as I sayd vnto Moses: from the wyldernesse & Libanon, vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: and all the land of the Hethites euen vnto the greate see towarde the goynge downe of the sonne, shall be youre bounders. There shall not a man be able to withstande the, all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the * and wyl neyther leaue the, nor forsake the. * Be strong and bold: for vnto this people shalt thou dispose the land by lot, which I sware vnto their fathers to gyue them.

Be stronge, and harden thy selfe to obserue and to do, accordynge to all the lawes which Moses my seruaunte commaunded the. * Tourne from them neyther to the ryght hand nor left: that thou mayst haue vnderstanding in all thou takest in hande, * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouthe: But studye therin daye and nyght, that thou mayst performe and kepe al that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalte haue vnderstandyng. Beholde, I haue sayd vnto the, be strong and bolde: neyther feare nor dreade. For the Lorde thy God is with the, whyther so euer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge. Go thorowe the myddes of the hoste, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioye the lande, which the Lorde your God gyueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Josua, sayinge: Remembre that, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you sayinge. The Lorde your God hath gruen you rest, and all this lande. Let your wyues, your chyldren and your catell remayne in the lande whiche Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But go ye before your brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and fyghte for them, tyll the Lorde haue gyuen your brethren rest, as he hathe you, and tyll they also haue obteyned the lande which the Lorde your God gyueth them. And then returne vnto the lande of youre possession and enioye it, whiche Moses the Lordes seruaunte gaue you on this syde Jordan, towarde thy sonne eysynge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou bydden vs we wyll doo, and whyther so euer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so we wyll obeye the. Onely the Lorde thy God be with the, as he was with Moses. And who so euer disobeye thy mouthe, and wyll not herken vnto thy wordes in all thou commaundest hym, lette him dye. Onely be stronge and of good courage. Obedyence twoyne to Iesus. * Deute. v. d Iereem. xlii. a.

¶ Josua sendeth searchers or spyes to Jericho, whi che were lyfte of Rahab and is ckaped the handes of the pursuars. Rahab beleeueth and confesseth the God of Israel.

CAPI. II.

THen Josua the sonne of Nun sent oute of Setim two spyes secretly, sayinge: Go and vewe the lande, and also Jericho. And they went and came in to a vitelyng house of a woman named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, sayinge: Beholde there came men in hyther to nyght of the chyldren of Israel, to espye out the countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sente vnto Rahab, saying: bryng forth the me that are come to the, which are entred in to thyne house: they be spyes, for they be come to serche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men and hyd them. And sayd, in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not frome whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke they went out, whyther I wote not: but folowe after them quickly and ye shal ouertake them. And she brought them vp vnto the rofe of the house, and * hyd them vnder flaxe (yet in the stalkes) which she had lynge abrode vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after them the waye to Jordan euen vnto the ỹ passage, and as sone as they which pursued after them were gone forthe, they shut the gates. * Josue. vi. c ỹ Or ferye.

And or euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the rofe, and sayde vnto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath giuen you the lande, bothe bycause that the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and bicause that the inhabitantes of the lande fayne at your bryther reporte, for we haue herd how the Lorde * dryed vp the water of the red see before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd vn to the two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan * Sehon, and Og whiche ye vtterly destroyed. And as sone as we had herd these thynges, our hertes dyd fayne. And there remayned no more courage in anye man for feare of youre commynge. For the Lorde youre God is the God in heuen aboue, and on the erthe benethe. * Exod. xiiii. f * Nu. xxi. f. g.

Now therfore swere vnto me by the Lorde

that lykewyse as I haue shewed you mercye, ye shall also shewe mercye vnto my fathers house and geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alyue bothe my father, and my mother, my brethren, and my systers, and all that pertayne vnto them. And that you shal rescue our soules from deth.

And the men answered her, oure lyues for you to dye, so thou do not betraye vs. And so when the Lorde hath geuen vs the lande, * we wyll deale mercyfully and truly with the. Iosue.vi.c And then she let theym downe with a coorde throwe a wyndowe. For her house was annexed to the townes walle. And she sayde vnto them: get you in to the mountaynes, lest the pursuers mete with you, and hyde youre selues there thre dayes, vntyll the pursuers be returned, and then maye ye go your wayes.

And the men sayde vnto her, we wyl be discharged of this othe, whiche thou hast made vs sweare, when we come in to the lande, excepte thou bynde this purple threden corde in the wyndowe, whiche thou lettest vs downe by. And thou shalte bynge thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers housholde, euen in to the house to the. And then who so euer go out at the dores of thy house in to the streate, his bloude shall be vpon his owne heed, and we gyltelesse. And who so euer shall be with the in the house, his bloude D be on oure heedes yf anye mannes hande be vpon hym: But yf thou disclose vs or betray these oure wordes, we wyll be quyte of thy othe whiche thou hast made vs sweare. And she sayde, accordynge vnto youre wordes, so be it: and so sente them awaye, and they departed. And she bounde the purple corde in the wyndowe.

And they departed and got them in to the mountaynes, and there abode thre dayes, tyll the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought thorowe oute all the waye, and founde them not. And the two men returned and descended fromte the mountaynes, and passed ouer, and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that hadde chaunsed them. And they sayde vnto Iosua, the Lorde hath delyuered in to oure handes all the lande, for al the inhabitauntes of the countrey thinke for feare of vs.

¶ The water of Iordan dryeth vp, and Iosua with the people passe ouer.

CAPI. III.

A And Iosua rose early: and they remoued from Sethim, and came to Iordan, both he and the chyldren of Israel, and lodged there thre dayes before they wet ouer. And after thre dayes the heroldes went thorowe out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayinge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the preestes that are Leuytes bearynge it: then departe ye from your places and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousande cubytes by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye may knowe the waye by whiche ye muste goo: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes past. And Iosua sayde vnto the people, * purifye youre selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall shewe wonders amonges you.

Then Iosua spake vnto the preestes, sayinge, Take vp the arcke of the couenaunt, and goo before the people. And they toke vp the arcke, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua: this daye wyll I begyn to auaunce the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe that as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the. And commaunde thou the preestes that beare the arcke of the testament, sayinge: when ye are entered a litle in to the water of Iordan, stande styll in it.

Then spake Iosua to the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: come hyther, and heare the wordes of the Lord your God. And Iosua sayd: Hereby ye shall knowe that the lyuynge God is amonges you, and that he wyll vndoubtedly caste oute before you the Cananytes, the Hethites, the Heuites, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Iebusytes. Beholde, the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde of all the worlde shal go before you in to Iordan. And nowe take you twelue men of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man. And as soone as the soles of the fete of the preestes that beare the arcke of the omnypotent Lorde of all the worlde, treade in the water of Iordan, the water of Iordan shall deuyde it selfe: and the waters that come fromte aboue, shall stande vpll vpon an heape.

And when the people were departed fromte theyr tentes to go ouer Iordan (* the preestes bearyng the arcke of the couenaunt before the people) as soone as they that bare the arcke came vnto Iordan, and the fete of the preestes that bare the arcke were dypped in the brym of the water, * Iordan beynge full ouer al his bankes, al the tyme of haruest: the water that came downe fromte aboue dyd stoppe, and stode vpon an heape, a greate waye from Adam, a cyte beside Zarthan. And the water that went downe, vanyshed in to the see of the wyldernesse, called the salte see, as soone as it was diuided: and the people * went right ouer agaynste Iericho. And the preestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lorde stode styll vpon drye lande in the myddes of Iordan, tyll all the people were cleane ouer Iordan.

¶ Twelue stones are reared vp for a remembraunce that Iordane was dryed, and it returneth agayne to his course.

CAPI. IIII.

And as soone as the people were al gone ouer Iordan, the Lord spake vnto Iosua sayinge. Take twelue men oute of the people, of euery tribe a man, and commaunde them, sayinge: Take you hence oute of the myddes of Iordan, euen oute of the place where the preestes stode, twelue harde stones. And

And take ye theym awaye with you and put them in the place where you pytche your tentes this night. And Iosua called vnto the.xij. men which he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man, and sayde vnto them: * get you before the arcke of the Lord Iosue.iii.a your God euen into the myddes of Iordan, & take vp euery man a stone vpon his shoulder, accordinge to the nombre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonges you. And when your children aske you in tyme to come, sayenge: What meane these stones: saye vnto them, that the water of Iordan wonke backe at the commynge of the arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde: B euen whyle it went ouer Iordan. And these stones shalbe a token of remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel for euer.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd as Iosua cōmaunded, and toke vp twelue stones forth of the myddes of Iordan, as the Lorde sayd vn to Iosua, accordynge to the nombre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, and caryed the awaye with them, vnto the place where they lodged, & layde them downe there. And therto Iosua set vp twelue stones in the myddes of Iordan in the place where the fete of the preestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stoode.

And there they be vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare the arcke stoode in the myddes of Iordan, tyll all was accomplyshed the Lorde commaunded Iosua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to all that Moses charged Iosua. And the people hasted and went C ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then wente ouer the arcke of the Lorde, and also the preestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged theym. Fourtye thousande trymmed for warre, wente before the Lorde vnto battayle vnto the playnes of Ierecho. That daye the Lord magnified Iosua in the sight of al Israel and they feared him as they feared Moses al dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Iosua, sayinge: commaunde the preestes that beare the arcke to come forth of Iordan. And Iosua commaunded the preestes, sayinge, Come forthe of Iordan. And when the preestes that bare the D arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde were ascended out of Iordan: as soone as the soles of the preestes fete were brought to drye lande, the water of Iordan returned agayne vnto his place, and went ouer all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came vp out E of Iordan the tenthe daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal, euen in the easte borders of Ierecho.

And the twelue stones, whiche they toke out of Iordan, Iosua pitched in Galgal. And he spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come what meane these stones? shewe your children and saye: Israel came ouer this Iordan on drye lande. For the Lord your God dryed vp the water of Iordan before you, tyll ye were ouer, as the Lorde youre God dyd vnto the red see, whiche he dryed vp before vs, tyll we were ouer / that all the people of the worlde may know the hand of the Lorde how mighty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lorde your God for euer.

The Cananytes be aferde. The seconde circumcision of Iosua.

CAPI. V.

And when all the kynges of the Amorytes whiche are on this syde Iordan to the seewarde, and all the kynges of the Cananytes, whiche lye on the see, herde how the Lorde hadde dryed vp the water of Iordan before the chyldren of Israel, Iosue.xv.a tyll they were ouer, they were kayneted in them. And there was no spirite in them any more for feare of the commynge of the children of Israel.

That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: Make the knyues † of stone, and go to Circumcision B agayne, and circumcise the chyldren of Israel the seconde tyme. And Iosua made hym knyues of stone, and circumcised the chyldren of Israel in the hyll of foreskynnes. And this is the cause why Iosua agayne circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypte that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in the wyldernesse, by the waye after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people that were borne in the wyldernesse by the waye after they came out of Egypt, they circumcised not. For the chyldren of Israel walked forty yeres in the wyldernesse, tyll all the people of men of warre that came out of Egypte were consumed, which harkened not vnto the voyce of God, to that the Lorde sware, that he wolde not shewe them the lande, whiche he sware vnto their fathers that he wolde geue vs, euē a lande * that floweth mylke and honny. And their chyldren he set vp in their stede: them Iosua circumcised: for they were † vncircumcised, bycause they circumcised them not by the waye.

* Nu.xiiii.d † That is, their foreskinnes were not cut away

And when all the people were circumcised, they abode tyll in their places in the hoste, tyll they were hole. And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua, this day I haue taken awaye † shame of Egypte fromte you: and called the name of the same place Galgal vnto this day. And the chyldren of Israel pitched their tentes in Galgal, and helde the feast of Passeouer the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen in the playne of Ierecho. And they ate of the corne of the D lande on the seconde daye of Easter, swete cakes and frumenty the same daye. And Manna ceased on the morowe after they had eaten of the corne of the lande, neyther hadde the chyldren of Israel Manna any more, but dyd eate of the fruites of that yere in the lande of Cananaan. Here feareth Manna.

In sunges apperteyn to succoure the Israelites.

And when Iosua was come to Ierecho, he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and behold there stode a man before him with his sweord drawe

in his hande. And Josua wente vnto him and sayd vnto hym. Art thou on our syde, or on our aduersaryes? He answered. Naye, but I am the capitayne of the hoste of the Lorde, and am nowe come. And Josua fell on his face to the erthe and dyd reuerence, and sayde vnto hym, what sayeth my Lorde vnto his seruaunt. And the capitayne of the Lordes hoste sayd vnto Josua, * put thy shoes of thy fete, for the place whereon thou standest is holye. And Josua dyd so.

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

CAPI. VI.

AND Jericho was shut & kept for feare of the children of Israel, so that no man was so hardy to go out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen in to thyne hande, Jericho and her kynge and the men of warre. And ye shall compasse the cite all that be men of warre, and go round about it once a daye, and so shall you doo sixe dayes. Vpon the seuenth day seuen preestes shal beare seuen trompettes of yeammes hornes, & shall go before the arcke. And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the cite seuen tymes, and the preestes shall blowe with theyr trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowen, assone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, let all the people shoute a myghtye shoute. And then shall the walles of the cite fall downe, and the people that stand, euery man streyght before hym.

& After the hebrue the cõmon translacion of the text of Arabely

And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preestes and sayd vnto them: take vp the arcke of the appoyntment, & let seuen preestes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And ye sayd vnto the people, go and compasse the cite, and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people the seuen preestes that bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde went forth and blewe the trumpes, and the arcke of the testament of the Lorde followed after them. And the men of armes went before the preestes that blewe with the hornes, and the common people came after the arcke: and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge, shoute not, nor let youre voyce be herde, or anye worde procede oute of youre mouthes, tyll the daye I byd you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the arcke of the Lorde compased the cite, and went about it ones: and then they returned in to the hoste and lodged there. And Josua arose early in the mornynge, and the preestes toke vp the arcke of the Lorde, and seuen preestes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went blewe the hornes. And the men of armes went before them and the common people came after the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And the seconde daye they compassed the cite ones, and returned agayne in to the hoste, and so they dyd sixe dayes.

And the seuenth daye they rose early: euen with the dawnynge of the daye, and compased the cyte after the same maner seuen tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme the preestes blewe the hornes, and Josua sayde vnto the people, shoute, for the Lorde hath geuen you the cite. But the cite shall be cursed, bothe it and all that is therin vnto the Lorde: onely Rahab the harlot shall lyue, bothe she and all that is with her in the house, because she * hyd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse beware that ye touche nothynge at all, that is forbyd you, lest ye be founde transgressours, and cause all the hoste of Israel to be vnder curse and myshappe. But the syluer, golde, vessels of brasse and yron, shall be holye vnto the Lorde, and shall go in to his treasury.

And the people cryed, and blewe with hornes: for when the people herde the sounde of the hornes, they shouted a great shoute: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went vp in to the cite, euery man forth right, and toke the cite. And they vtterly destroyed all that was in the cite, bothe man and woman, yonge and olde, oxe, shepe and asse, with † edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that went to espye out the countrey: * go in to the harlottes house, and bringe out thence, bothe the woman, and all that pertayneth to her, * as ye sware to her. And the yonge men that were espyes, wente in and broughte oute Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren, & all that she had. And they brought out all her housholde, and put them without the hoste of Israel.

And they burnt the cite with fire, and all that was therin. Onely the syluer, the golde, and the vessels of brasse and yron, they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. * And Josua sayd Rahab the harlot, her fathers housholde, and all that pertayned vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel vnto this day, because she hyd the messengers whiche Josua sent to espye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, sayinge: Cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this cite Jericho: so that he laye the foundacion with the dethe of his eldest sonne, and with the deth of his yongest, set vp the gates. And the Lord was with Josua, and his fame was herde, throwe out all landes.

¶ Achis spyed out. Achan is stoned because he toke of the excommunicate thynges.

CAPI. VII.

BVT yet the children of Israel trespased in the cursed thynges: For * Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, of the tryde of Juda, toke of the cursed thynges. And the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote agaynste the children of Israel.

Then

Then Josua sent men frome Jericho to Ai, whyche is beside Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, and spake vnto them, sayinge / get you vp, and vewe the countrey. And the men went vp and espyed out Ai, and returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not the people goo vp, but let as it were two or three thousande men goo vp and destroye Ai, and make not all the people to laboure thyther, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente vp thyther aboute a thre thousande men, whyche fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thirty and sixe men, and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Sabarim, and smote them downe the waye. And the herres of the people, were discouraged and melted lyke water. And Josua rente his clothes and fell to the earthe vpon his face before the arcke of the Lorde tyll the euen tyde, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put erth vpon theyr heades.

And Josua sayde: Ah, Lorde almyghtye wherfore hast thou broughte this people ouer Jordan, to delyuer vs in to the handes of the Amorytes to destroye vs: Wolde God that as we began, so we hadde aduentured and dwelte on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backes before theyr ennemyes. Moreouer the Canaanytes, and all the inhabitantes of the lande, shall heare it / and shall come about vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wylte thou doo vnto thy myghtye name.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, get the vp wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hathe synned, and also transgressed myne appoyntment whyche I commaunded them, and haue taken of the cursed thinges, & haue stolen and hyd them amonges theyr owne stuffe. And therfore the chyldren of Israel can not stande before theyr ennemyes. They shall tourne theyr backes before theyr ennemyes, because they be cursed. Neyther wyll I be with you anye more, excepte ye destroye the cursed amonges you.

Aryse and † sanctifye the people, and bydde them sanctifye them selues agaynste the morowe: for so sayethe the Lorde God of Israel, the curse is amonges you Israel, and therfore ye can not stande before your ennemyes, tyll ye haue put to deathe hym that hathe taken of the damned thynges, amonges you. To morowe morynynge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tryde whyche the Lorde shall fynde giltye, shall come by kynredes. And the kynrede whyche the Lorde shall fynde giltye, shal come by housholdes. And the household which the Lorde shall fynde lautye, shall come man by man. And he that is found in the curse, shal be burnte with fire, bothe he and all his goodes, because he hath transgressed the couenaunt of the Lorde, and because he hathe wrought folye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp early in the mornynge and broughte Israel by theyr tribes: and the tribe of Juda was attached. Then he broughte the kynredes of Juda, and founde the kynred of the Zarehites giltie. And he broughte the kynred of the Zarchites by housholders, and Zabdi was caught. And he broughte his household mã by man, and Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, in the tryde of Juda was founde giltye.

And Josua sayd vnto Achan: my sonne, geue glory to the Lorde God of Israell, and gyue him prayse, and shew me what thou hast wone and hyde it not from me. And Achan answered Josua and sayde: of a treuthe I haue synned against the Lorde God of Israell / and so and so haue I wone. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodly skarlet cloke, and two hundred sicles of syluer, and a rule of golde of fyfty sycles weyght: and I coueted them, & I toke them. And beholde they lye hydde in the earth in my tente, and the syluer vnder them.

And then Josua sent messengers which ran vnto the tent. And beholde, it was hyd in his tente, and the syluer vnder it. And they toke them out of the myddest of his tent, & brought them vnto Josua and vnto all the children of Israell, and powred them, oute before the Lorde.

And Josua toke Achan the sonne of Zareh, & the syluer, and the garment, and the rule of golde, and his sonnes and his doughters, his oxen, asses, shepe, his tente, and all that he hadde, and all Israell with hym, and brought them vnto the valeye of Achor.

And Josua sayde: forasmoche as thou hast troubled vs: the Lorde shall trouble the this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burnt all that he had with fyre. And they cast vpon hym a great heape of stones that remayneth vnto this day. And so the Lorde turned frome his fearce wrathe. Wherfore the name of the place is called the valeye of Achor vnto this daye.

Achis stoned

¶ The spye and wynnyng of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an aulter on which is written the boke of Deuteronomye. He blesseth the people.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: feare not, ne dreade? but take all the men of warre with the, and aryse and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue geuen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and his people, his cyte and his lande. And thou shalt do to Ai & her kyng as thou hyddest vnto * Jericho and her kyng. Neuertheles the spoyle and catell therof, ye shall take vnto your selues. But laye a watch vnto the towne on the backsyde therof.

* Josua.vi.b and.xii.c

Then Josua arose, & all the men of warre, to go vp vnto Ai. And Josua chose out thyrty thousand men of warre, & sent them by nyght. And commaunded them, sayenge: Se ye lye awayte vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. Go not very farre frome the cyte, and se ye be all redye. As for me and all the people that are with me, we wyll approche vnto the cyte on the other syde. And when they come forth for the agaynst vs, *as at the first tyme, then will we flé before them. And they will come out after vs, tyll we haue plucked the a good space from the cite, for they will saye they flée before vs, as at the fyrste tyme: therfore when we flée, and they pursue after, then shall ye ryse vp from your pryuye watche, and slaye out the inhabitauntes of the cite. For the Lorde your God wyll delyuer it to youre handes. As sone therfore as ye haue taken the cite, se ye set it on fyre. Accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde, se ye do/beholde, I haue charged you.

And Iosua sent them forthe, and they went to the place of their pryuye watche, and laye betwene Bethel and Ai, on the weste syde of Ai. But Iosua lodged that nyght amonges the people, and he rose vp early in the morning and arayed his companye and went vp, both he and the auncientes of Israel in the forefróte of the folke, with a garnison of fyghtyng mẽ. And al the men of warre that were with him wente vp and drue nye, and came before the cite, and pitched on the northe syde of Ai, a valleye betwene them and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande men, and put thē to lye in awaite betwene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of the cite. And he set in order all the folke on the northy syde of the cite, and the vtmost watche on the weste. And Iosua went the same nyght in to the myddes of the valleye.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that he hasted and rose vp early, and with all the folke of the cite, wente forwarde agaynste Israel to battayle, euen before the playne/ and wyste not that there were anye that laye in awayte on the backe syde of the cite.

Iosua and Israel shonke backewarde, as they had ben afrayde, and fledde towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne cryed to folowe after them/ and they folowed after Iosua, tyll they were drawen away from the cyte: So that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they lefte the cite open, and folowed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua reache out the speare that is in thyn hande towarde Ai, for I haue gyue the it. And Iosua stretched out the speare that was in his hand, toward the cite. And the vtmost watche rose quickelye out of theyr places, and ranne / as soone as Iosua had shaken his speare, and they entred in to the cite, and toke it, and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai loked back after the and sawe: Beholde, the smoke of the cite ascended vp to heuen. And they had no place to flée either this waye or that, for the people that fledde to the wyldernesse turned backe vpon the folowers and fiercly fought.

And when Iosua and all Israel sawe that they that lay awayte had taken the cite and that the smoke of it ascended: They tourned and layed on the men of Ai. And the other issued out of the cite agaynst theym. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, these beynge on the one syde of them, and the other on the other. And they layde vpon them, so that they let none escape ne saue or scape.

The kyng of Ai they toke a lyue & brought him to Iosua. And when Israell hadde made an ende of slayenge all the inhabitours of the who chased theym ouer the feldes and in wyldernes. So when they were all slayne in the same place, Israel returned vnto Ai: & smote it. And there was slayne that daye, of men & women, twelue thousande, all men of Ai.

For Iosua plucked not his hande backe agayne wherwith he helde vp his speare, tyll they had vtterly destroyed all the inhabiters of Ai. *Onely the catell & spoyle of the same cytie, Israel toke vnto them selues, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, which he cõmaunded Iosua. And Iosua set Ai on fyre, & made it an heape and a wyldernesse for euer, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Ai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And assone as it was sonneset, at the commaundement of Iosua they toke the carkas downe of the tree, & cast it in the enterynge of the gate of the cite, and *cast theron a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Iosua buylded an aultare vnto the Lord God of Israel, in mount Ebal, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded the children of Israel, as it is written in the boke *of the law of Moses: an altare of rought stone, ouer which no toole of yron was lyfte. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifice, and offred peaxofferynges. And he wrote there vpon the stones the *seconde lawe of Moses, whyche he wrote in the presence of the children of Israell.

And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers and Iudges stode parte on this syde the arcke, and parte on that syde, before the preestes: that were Leuytes whiche bare the arcke of the Testament of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe on the forefronte of the mount of Garizim, and halfe on the forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded, and Iosua first blessed the people Israell. And after that, he red all the wordes of the lawe, both the blessinge & cursinge, accordinge to all that is written in the boke of the lawe: so that there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded, whyche Iosua red not, before all the congregation of Israell, with wemen and children, and the straungers that were amonge them.

¶ The Gabaonites obtayne peax of Iosua by subtelte, but are after accursed.

CAPI. IX.

AND when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Iordan, in the hylles and valeyes, and a longe by all the costes of the great see, euen vnto Libanon, the Hethites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites the Heuites, and the Iebusites, herde of this they gathered them selues together to fyght agaynst Iosua and Israell, with one accorde.

But when the inhabitoures of Gabaon herd what Iosua had wrought vnto Jericho, and Ai, they playedd wyplye, and went and sente ambassadours, and toke old sackes vpon their Asses, and wyne bottelles olde and rent and knyt together agayne, and olde clouted shoes vpon their fete, and olde rayment vpon them and all their prouysion of breed was dryed vp and hored. And they came vnto Iosua into the hoste, to Galgall and sayde vnto him & vnto the men of Israell: we be come frome a farre countreye, nowe therfore make a peax with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the Heuites, peraduenture you dwell amonge vs, and then howe shulde we make peaxe with you.

And they sayde vnto Iosua, we are thy seruauntes. And Iosua sayde vnto them, what are ye: and whence come ye. And they answered him. Frome a very farre countreye thy seruauntes are come in the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue herde the fame of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and al that he dyd to the two *kynges of the Amorites beyonde Iordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Wherfore our elders and all the inhabitours of our countrey spake to vs, sayenge: take vi tayles with you to seruе by the waye, and go against them, & saye vnto them, we are youre seruauntes. Now therfore make a couenaunt alpeax with vs. This our prouision of breed we toke with vs out of our houses, hote, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dryed vp and hored. And these bottelles of wyne which we fylled were new: and se they be broken. And these our garmentes and shoes are waxen olde by reason of the very longe Journeye.

*And the men toke of their victayles, and counseled not with the mouth of the Lorde. And Iosua made peax with them, and *made a leage with them, to saue their lyues: & the elders of the congregation sware vnto them. But three dayes after they hadde made peax with them, they herde that they were neyghboures vnto theym, and that they dwelte amonges them. For the children of Israel toke their iourneye, and came vnto their cyties the thirde daye: and their cyties were Gabaon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Kariath Iarim. And the children of Israel slewe them not, because the Lordes of the companye had sworne vnto theym by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore all the commons murmured against the Lordes. But the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregation: We haue sworne vnto theym by the Lorde God of Israell, and therfore we maye not hurte theym. But this we wyll we to them let them lyue: & so shall no wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe whiche we sware vnto them: but let them haue their lyues, that they maye be *hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto all the congregation.

Then Iosua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled vs whereas in dede ye dwel amonges vs? now therfore cursed be you, & there shall not cease to be of you, bondmen and hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the howse of my God.

And they answered Iosua, and sayde: it was told thy seruauntes, that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruaunt Moses to geue you all the lande, and to destroye all the inhabitoures therof out of youre syghte, and therfore we were sore afrayed of our lyues because of you, and now beholde, we are in thyne hande, as it semeth good, and right in thyne eyes to we vnto vs, so we.

And he dealte as it is sayde, with them, & eyded them out of the handes of the children of Israel, that they slewe them not. And Iosua made them that same daye hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the company and vnto the aulter of God vnto this day, in the place which God shulde chose.

¶ The amorittes are ouercome of Iosua it rayneth stones. The sonne standeth styll and the daye is lengthened. The fyue kynges are hanged.

CAPI. X.

AND when Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem had herde, howe Iosua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe as *he had wrought to Jericho and her kynge, euen so he had wrought to Ai and her kynge, and howe the inhabitours of Gabaon hadde madepeax with Israell and dyd remayne amonges thē: they feared exceadigly, for Gabaō was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, and therto greater then Ai, & al her men were mighty. *Iosue.vi.a and.viii.a

Wherfore Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Pharam kynge of Jerimoth, and vnto Japhia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, sayenge. Come vp vnto me & helpe me, that we maye smyte Gabaon: for they haue made peax with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then the .v. kynges of the Amorites, the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jerimoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon gathered theym selues togither, both they and all their hostes & went vp and beseged Gabaon, & made warre against it.

But the men of Gabaon when they were beseged sent vnto Iosua, vnto the host to Galgal, sayenge: withdrawe not thy handes frō thy seruauntes, but come vp to vs: and rescue vs: for all the kynges of the Amorites which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered togyther against vs.

The faythfulnes of Iosua,

And Iosua ascended frome Galgall, he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua, feare them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hande, there shal not a man of them stande before the. So Iosua came vpon them sodenly, for he had iourneyed frome Galgall all nyght. And the Lorde toke their spirite awaye before Israel, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gabaon, and chased them a long

the

the waye that goeth vp to Bethoz̄ and slew them, tyll they came to Sleka and Makeda. And as they fledde frome Israell, euen in the goynge downe to Bethoron, the Lorde caste downe great stones frome heauen vpon them tyll they came vnto Sleka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with hayle stones, then the children of Israell slewe with the swerde.

Hailestones from heauen.

Then spake Josua vnto the Lorde, the day when the Lorde gaue ouer the Amorites before the children of Israell, and sayde in the sight of all Israell: Sonne, stande thou styll vpon Gabaon, and thou Mone, in the valey of Ayalon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode styll, tyll the people had auenged them selues vpon their ennemyes. Is not this wryten in the booke of the ryghtwyse, howe the sonne abode in the myddes of heauen and hasted not to goo downe by the space of a hole daye. And there was no daye so longe as that before it, ne after it, that the Lorde obeyed the voyce of a man: and all because the Lorde fought for Israell.

Exod. xiiii. a The Sonne & mone stande styll.

And Josua returned & all Israel with him, vnto the hoste to Galgall: but the fyue kynges fled and hyd them selues in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Josua, sayenge: The fyue kynges are founde hyd in a caue at Makeda. And Josua sayde, rowle greate stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and appoynt hye by men thereto, to kepe theym. And stande ye not styll, but folowe after your ennemyes, & smyte the hyndermost of them. And suffre the not to entre into their cyties, for the Lorde your God hath delyuered them into your handes. And when Josua and the children of Israel had made an ende of slayeng them with a great slaughter, tyll they were wel nere wasted yet there remayned a certen of them, that had escaped Israels handes and entered into the walled cyties.

D The kynges be vpe

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Josua at Makeda in peace, hole and without losse of one man so that no man durste moue his tonge against the children of Israel. Then sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe oute vnto me fourth of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto him, out of the caue: The kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jerimoth, the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israell, and sayd vnto the captaynes of the men of warre, whiche came with him, come nere and put your feet vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put their feet vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them feare not, ne dreade: But be stronge plucke vp youre hertes, for so shall the Lorde serue al your enemyes against whych ye fight.

E

The fyue kinges be vsyne.

And then Josua smote them and slew them and hanged them on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the goyng downe of the sonne, Josua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, & caste them into the caue, where they hyd them selues, and layde great stones on the caues mouthe, whiche remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Josua toke Makeda & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof also, and vtterly destroyed them and al the soules that were therein, & not one escaped. And he dyd to the kynge of Makeda, as he dyd to the kynge of Jericho.

Then Josua went frome Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, and fought against Libna. And the Lorde delyuered it also in their handes, with the kynge also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therin, and let nought remayne in it, and dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

After that Josua departed frome Libna, & all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and besieged and assaulted it rounde about. And the Lorde delyuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, & al the soules that were therin, according to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: But Josua smote him and his people, tyll he left him naught remaynynge.

And frome Lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with him, and there besieged, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, & smote it with the edge of the swerde and all the personnes that were therin: and vtterly destroyed them the same daye, according to all that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Josua departed vp from Eglon and all Israell with him, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that belonged to it, and all the soules that were therin, so that they left nought remaynynge: but in all thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterly.

Then Josua returned and all Israell with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, and toke it, and the kynge therof and al the townes that appertayned therto. And smote them with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therin, & let nought remayne. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

And Josua smote all the hill countreyes and the southe countreyes, and the valeyes, & the springes of water, with all their kynges and let nought remayne, but vtterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded, frome Cades barne, vnto Gasah, and all the countrey of Gosan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those kynges and their lande, Josua toke at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israell. And then Josua returned and all Israel with him vnto the host to Galgall.

¶ The battayle of Josua with diuers kynges, whiche God gyueth in to his handes.

CAPI. X.I.

AND when Jabin kynge of Hazor herde hereof: he sent to Jobab kynge of Madon, and to the kynge of Someron, and to the kynge of Achaph. And vnto the kynges that ley by northe in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the south syde of Cineroth, and in the lowe countreyes, and in the regions of Dor vpon the see, & vnto the Cananites both by Easte and weste: and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the lande of Mizphah: whiche came oute and all their hostes with theym a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the see in nombre, with hozses and charettes a wonderous sorte. And all these kynges mette to gether, and came and pitched to gether vpon the water of Merom, to fight with Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afrayde of theym: for to morowe about this tyme, I will deliuer them all for wounded, before al Israel: and thou shalt houghe their hozses, and burne their charettes with fyre.

And Josua came and all his men of warre with him against them, vnto the water of Merom sodenly, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde delyuered them into the handes of Israel: & they smote them and chased them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the * hote waters, and vnto the valeye of Mizphah eastwarde, & smote them tyll they had none lefte of theym. And Josua serued them as the Lorde bad him, houghed their hozses, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

Then Josua at that tyme turned backe and toke Hazor and smote her kyng with ye swerd for Hazor before tyme was the head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therin and left not one alyue in it, vtterly destroyenge them, that no breathe was let remayne. And burnt Hazor with fire, and all the cyties round about, whose kynges Josua toke and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed them * as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of the cyties that stode vpon hilles, saue Hazor onely, that Josua burnt: but all the spoyle of the sayde cyties & the catell, the children of Israel caught vnto theym selues: But the men onely they smote with the edge of the swerde vntyll they had destroyed them, and had left no breth remaynynge. As the Lorde commaunded Josua and euen so dyd Josua * and mynysched no thinge of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke al that lande, the hylles and all the south countreye, and all the lande of Gosan, and the lowe countrey, and ye west countrey, the playnes, and the mountayne of Israel, with the lowe countreye of the same, euen frō mount Halak that goeth vp to Seir vnto Baal Gad in the valeye of Libanon, vnder mount Hermon. And all the kynges of ye same he toke and smote them, and slewe the.

Josua made warre longe tyme with those kynges: for there was no cytie that had not yelded her to the children of Israel, saue those Hethites that enhabited Gabaon: All other they toke with battayle: for it was the Lordes will to harden their hartes, that they shulde come agaynste Israel in battayle: euen to destroye them vtterly, that they shulde haue no mercy, but to bringe them to nought As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season, Josua went and destroyed the * Enakites out of the mountaynes, and out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, & out of all the mountaynes of Juda, and oute of all the mountaynes of Israell, And Josua destroyed them vtterly with their cyties. So that there was not one Enakite left in ye land of the children of Israel: only in Gasah, Gath and Asod, there remayned of them.

* Judi. i. 3

And Josua toke the hole lande, according to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it a possession vnto Israell euery mā his parte in their tribes: and the lande ceased frō warre.

¶ What kynges Josua and the children of Israel slewe, whiche were in nombre xxxi.

CAPI. XII.

THese are the kynges of the lande which the children of Israell smote, and conquered their landes, on the other syde Jordan eastwarde, from the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, and all the playne eastwarde: Sehon kynge of the Amorites, that dwelt in Hesbon, and ruled frō Aroer, which lyeth on the brym of the ryuer of Arnon, and to the myddell of the ryuer, and halfe Galaad vnto the ryuer Jabock, the border of the children of Ammon: And in the playne vnto ye see of Cineroth eastwarde, & vnto the see in ye wyldernesse called the salt see eastwarde, the waye to Beth Jesymoth and by south vnder the sprynges of Phalgah.

A

And the coastes of Og kynge of Basan which was of the remnaunt of the Raphaites & dwelt at Asharoth, & Edrai: and raygned in mount Hermon, and in Selecah, and thorow out all Basan, vnto the borders of the Gessurites, and the Macathites and halfe Galaad vnto the borders of Sehon kynge of Hesbon. * Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde and the children of Israell smote them, and Moses ye seruaunt of the Lorde, gaue their landes & possession vnto the Rubenites, Gaddites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses.

¶ Josua is commaunded to diuyde the lande to the chyldren of Israel.

CAPI. XIII.

A When Josua was ware olde, and stryken in yeres, the Lorde sayd vnto hym, thou art olde and stryken in yeres, and there remaynyth yet exceadinge moche lande to be possessed / This is the lande that remaynyth/ all the coostes of the Philistines / and all the Gesurites / frome Nilus in Egrpte vnto the bozders of Akaron northwarde, which lande was counted to pertayne vnto the Canaanites, euen to ỹ fyue Lozdes of the Philistines, the Asathites, Asdadites, Ascalonites, Gethites, Akaronites, with the Euites, frome the southe All the lande of the Canaanites, and Maara that appertayneth to the Sidons, euē vnto Aphek, and to the bozders of the Amorites. And the lande of the Giblytes, and all Libanon towarde the sonne rysinge, frome Baal Gad vnder mount Hermon, tyll thou come to Hemath, all the enhabitoures of the hyll countrey, frome Libanon vnto the hote waters euen all the Sidons. I wyl cast them out frome the face of the chyldren of Israell, and se thou in any wyse diuyde it by lot vnto the chyldren of Israel to enherete, as I haue cōmaunded the. Now therfore dyuide this land to enherete, vnto the nyne trybes / and the halfe trybe of Manalles. For the other halfe with the Rubenites and the Gaddites, haue receyued their enheritaunce alredy, * whiche Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastward euen as Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue theym / frome Aroer that lyeth on the bryym of the ryuer Arnon / with the cyte in ỹ myddes of the valleye.

* Nu xxxii. Deut. iii.

And all the playne of Medba vnto Dibon, and all the cytes of Sehon, kynge of the Amorites which raygned in Hesbon, euen vnto the bozders of the chyldren of Ammon / and Galaad, and the landes that bozder vpon the Gesurites and the Machathites, ỹ all mount Hermon and all Basan vnto Salcah, euen al the kyngdom of Og in Basan which raygned in Astaroth and Edrai whiche same remayned yet of the resi of the Raphaites. But Moses smote them and destroyed them.

Neuertheles the chyldren of Israel expelled not the Gesurites nor the Machathites: But the Gesurites ỹ Machathites dwelt amonge the Israelites euen vnto this daye. Onely vnto the trybe of Leui, he gaue none enheritaunce: * for the offrynge of the Lorde God of Israel is their enheritaunce as he sayde vnto them.

* Deut. x.

And Moses gaue ceasyn vnto the trybe of ỹ chyldren of Ruben by their kynredes. And their bounds were frome Aroer that lyeth on the banke of the ryuer Arnon, and the cyte that lyeth in the myd valley of the ryuer, and all the playne about Medba, Hesbon, and all her townes that lye in the playne: Dibon * Bamothbaal, and Bethbaalmeon: Jahazah, Kedemoth and Mephaath Kiriathaim, Sabamah and Zarath Zahar in mount Emak: and Bethphegr and the sprynges of Phasgah, and Bethiesimoth: and all the cytes in the playne. And all the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Ammonites which raygned in Hesbon, whome Moses smote * with the Lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur and Reba, the Lordes of Sehon, and ỹ inhabitaunces of the countreye. And Balam also the sonne of Beor the sothesayer, the chyldren of Israel slewe with the swerde, amonges other that were slayne. And the bozders of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordan with ỹ contreye that lyeth thereon. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben in their kynredes, with the cytes and villages pertayninge thereto.

And Moses gaue vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto the chyldren of Gad an enheritaūce by kynredes, and theyr costes were Jazer, and all the cytyes of Galaad, and halfe the lande of the chyldren of Ammon vnto Aroer that lyeth before Rabah: and frome Hesbon vnto Ramoth Maspheh, and Betonim: and from Mahanaim vnto the bozders of Debir. And in the valleye they hadde Betharam, Bethnimra, Socoth and Zaphon / the resi of the kyngdom of Sehon kyng of Hesbon, and Jordan, and the costes that lye theron, euen vnto the edge of the see of Cenereth on the other syde Jordan Eastwarde.

This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Gad in their kynredes, the cytyes with their villages.

And Moses gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manalles, and to his sonnes an enheritaunce by theyr kynredes. And their costes were frome Mahanaim, euen all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jahir whiche lye in Basan, euen thre score cytyes, and halfe Galaad and Astaroth, and Edrai, cytyes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan, * whiche pertayne vnto the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manalles, and that vnto halfe the chyldren of Machir by their kynredes.

These are they to whom Moses gaue enheritaūce in the feldes of Moab, on the other syde Jordan by Jericho eastwarde. But vnto the trybe of Leui, Moses gaue none inheritaunce, for the Lorde God of Israel is their inheritaunce, * as he sayde vnto them.

¶ Caleb requyreth the heritage that was promysed hym, and Hebron was geuen hym.

CAPI. XIIII.

A And these are the countreyes which the chyldren of Israel inhereted in ỹ lande of Canaan, vnto whiche Eleazar the preest, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, gaue them their enheritaunce by lot as the Lorde commaūded by the hande of Moses, to gyue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe of Manalles. For Moses had geuen enheritaunce vnto two trybes and an halfe on the other syde Jordan: But vnto the Leuytes he gaue none enheritaunce amōges theym. For the chyldren of Joseph were two trybes, Manalles and Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the lande, saue cytyes to dwell in and the suburbes of the same, for their beastes and catell.

B As the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so ỹ chyldren of Israell dyd when they deuyded ỹ lande.

B And the chyldren of Juda came vnto Josua in Galgall. And Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesyte sayde vnto hym: thou wottest what the Lorde sayde vnto Moses the man of God, concerninge me and the in Cades Barne. * Fourtye yere olde was I when Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde sent me frō Cades Barne to espie out the lande. And I brought him worde agayn euen as I thought in myne hert. Neuertheles my brethren that went vp with me discouraged the hertes of the people. But I followed ỹ Lorde my God euen vnto the ende.

C And Moses sware the same season, sayeng * the lande whereon thy fete haue trode, shalbe thyne enheritaunce and thy chyldren for euer because thou hast followed the Lorde my God continually. And now behelde, ỹ Lord hath kept me lyue (as he sayde) * this fourty and fyue yeares, euen sythens the Lord spake vnto Moses, whyle the children of Israell wandered in the wylderneslle. And nowe se I am this daye foure skore and fyue yeres: and yet am as stronge at this tyme, as I was whē Moses sent me: loke how stronge I was thē, so stronge I am nowe, to warre and to fourneye.

D Nowe therfore gyue me this mountayne whiche the Lorde at that tyme promysed, for thou herdeste at that tyme, howe the * Enakims were there, and howe the cytyes were greate and walled. I trust the Lorde will be with me, and I shall dryue theym oute as the Lorde sayde. And Josua blessed Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and gaue vnto hym Hebron to enheret. And Hebron became the enheritaūce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite, vnto this daye: because he followed the Lord God of Israel perpetually. And the name of * Hebrō was called in olde tyme, Kariath Arbe which was a huge man among the Enakims And the lande ceased frome warre.

¶ The lot of the chyldren of Juda and the names of the cities and vyllages of the same.

CAPI. XV.

A And the lot of the trybe of the childre of Juda in their kynredes was the wildernesse of Zyn that stretcheth to the costes of Edom southwarde, and is the vttermost part of the south costes. And their south costes were from the drinke of the salt see and frome a certen poynte of the see that leaneth southwarde. And it wēt out on the south syde of the gopnge vp to Acrabim, and went along to Zimma, and ascended vp on the south side of Cades Barne, and went alonge to Hezron and wente vp to Adar, and fet a compasse to Karca, and went a longe to Azmon, & it went out to the ryuer of Egypt: so that the ende of that coste is the see. And these are their southe costes.

B And their easte costes are the salt see euē vnto the edge of Jordan. And their bozders in the nozth quarter were frome an other poynt of the see where Jordan endeth. And went vp to Bethhagla and went a longe by the nozthside of Betharabah and went vp to the stone of Boben the sonne of Ruben. And then went vp to Debir frome the valeye of Achor, and so northwarde, turnynge towarde Galgal that lyeth before the gopnge vp to Adonim, which is of the southside of the ryuer. And then wēt a longe to the water of Ensemes, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hennō, euen vnto the south syde of the Jebusytes the inhabitoures of Jerusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hyll that lyeth before the valeye of Hennō westwarde, and by the edge of the valeye of Raphaim northwarde: And then it drawyth frome the same hyll vnto the fountayne of water called Nephtoah, and goeth out at the cytes of mount Ephron: and drawyth to Balah, otherwyse called Kariathiarim: and then it compasseth from Balah westwarde, vnto Syr, and then goth alonge vnto the syde of mount Jarim, otherwyse called Chesalon, on the nozthe syde therof. And then C goeth downe to Bethsames and goth to Thanah, and goeth oute on the syde of Akaron northwarde: And then drawyth to Sicron & goeth a longe to mount Balah, and goth out at Jabniel / and the ende of the borders is the see. And the west bozders are the great see and the costes that lye thereon. And these are the costes of the chyldren of Juda rounde about in their kynredes.

* And vnto Caleb the son of Jephune was Iudic. 1.

there a part allotted amonge the chyldren of Juda, by the mouthe of the Lorde to Josua, euen the citie of Kiriatharbe father of Enach whyche Cytie is called Hebron. And Caleb dryue thence the thre sonnes of Enach, Sesai Ahiman, and Thalmai, the sonnes begotten of Enach. And he went vp thence, to the inhabiters of Dabir, whose name in the olde tyme was Kiriath sepher. And Caleb sayde, *he that smyteth Kiriath sepher and taketh it: to hym wyll I gyue Achsah my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue him Achsah his doughter to wyfe. And as she went she moued him, to aske of her father a felde. And she alyghted of her asse. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what ayleth the. And she sayde, gyue me a blessinge: for thou hast gyuē me a southwarde and drye lande: gyue me also springes of water. Then he gaue her springes of water, both aboue and beneth. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Juda in their kynredes.

And the cyties of the tribe of the chyldren of Juda in all quarters, towarde the coostes of Edom southwarde, were: Kabzeel, Eder, and Jagur: Kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: Kedes, Hazor, and Ithnan: Ziph, Telem, and Bealoth: Hazor, Hadattah, & Kerioth: Hesron, otherwyse called Hazor, Eman, Sema, and Moladah: Hazargadah, Hasmon, and Bethpheleth: Hazarsual, Berseabe, and Baziothiah: Baalah, Iim, and Ezem: Eltholad Chesil, and Horma: Ziklag, Medemenah, and Sansenah: Lebaoth, Selhim, Ain and Remon: all these cyties are .xxix. with their villages. And in the lowe countreye they had Esthaol, Zarah, and Asnah: Zanoah, Engannim, Thaphuah & Enam: Jermoth, Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah: Saarem, Adithaim Gederah, and Gederothaim: fourtene cyties with their villages.

Zenan, Hadasah, and Migdalgad: Dilean, & Mizpah, and Jokthel: Lachis, Bazcath, and Eglon: Cabon, Lahamam, and Kithlis: Gaderoth, Bethdagon, Naamah, and Makkedah: Sixtene cyties with their villages.

Libnah, Ether, and Asan: Iephthah, Asnah, and Nezib: Keilah, Achzib, and Mareshah: nyne cyties with their villages.

Ekron with her townes and villages. And frome Ekron out to the see, all that lye about Asdod with their villages. Asdod with her townes and villages. Gaza with her townes and villages, euen vnto the ryuer of Egypte: and the greate see, with the coostes that lye therein.

And in the mountaynes, they had Samir Jathir, and Socoh: Danah, and Kiriath sennah, whiche is Dabir: Anab, Eshemoh, and Anim: Gosen, Holon, and Giloh: eleuen cyties with their villages. Arab, Dumah, and Eshean: Janim, Bethtaphuah, and Aphekah: Humatah, and Kiriath Arbe: which is Hebron and Zior: nyne cyties with their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, and Jutah: Jesreel, Jokdeam, and Zanoah: Cain, Gibeah and Thamnah: ten cyties with their villages. Halhul, Bethzur, and Gedor: Maarath Bethanoth, and Eltekon: sixe cyties with their villages. Kiriath Baal which is Kiriath Jarim, and Harabba two cyties with their villages.

And in the wyldernesse they had Bethrabah, Middin and Secacah: Nibshan, the cytie of salt, and Engadi: sixe cyties with their villages. But the Jebusites that were then habiters of Jerusalem / the chyldren of Juda coulde not cast out. Wherfore the Jebusites dwel amōg the chyldren of Juda vnto this day.

¶ The Lotte or part of Ephraim.

CAPI. XVI.

And the lotte of the chyldren of Joseph fell frome Jordan by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho eastwarde, and the wylderneſſe that goth vp frome Jericho thorowe mounte Bethell / and then gothe out frome Bethel to Lus, and runneth a longe vnto the borders of Ataroth: and gothe downe westwarde, to the coostes of Japhlethi, and vnto the coostes of Bethhoron the nether, and gothe vp by the see syde to Gaser, & the endes of their coostes came to the greate see. And so the chyldren of Joseph Manasses and Ephraim toke their enheritaunce.

And the chyldren of Ephraim toke their lotte by kynredes. And the coostes of their enheritaunce eastwarde were, Ataroth Adar, euen vnto Bethhoron the vpper, and their marches went out westwarde to Machmathah that lyeth on the Northside, and set a compas eastwarde vnto Thaanath Silo, and passeth fro the eastside vnto Janoah, and wente downe frome Janoah to Ataroth and Naarath, and met at Jericho, and went out at Jordan. And their borders went fro Thaphuah westwarde vnto the ryuer Kanah, and the endes were salt see. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim by their bondsides. The chyldren of Ephraim, had their cyties and villages shattered amonge the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Manasses: Notwithstandinge the chyldren of Ephraim slewe not the Cananites that dwelt in Gasor: but the Cananites dwelt among the Ephraites vnto this daye, and paye tribute.

¶ The portion of the half trybe of Manasses. The Cananites become tributaryes to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephraim requyre a greater portion of heritage.

CAPI. XVII.

And the tryde of Manasses which was the eldeſte sonne of Joseph receyued a lot. And Machir the eldeſt son of Manasses which was the father of Galaad (and a man of warre) had to his enheritaunce Galaad and Basan. And the rest of the chyldren of Manasses receyued by their kynredes / which were the chyldren of Abiezer / the chyldren of Helek / the chyldren of Asriel / the chyldren of Sichem, the chyldren of Hepher: the chyldren of Hemida. These are the male chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph in their kynredes. * But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Galaad, the sonne of Machir, the sonne Manasses had no sonnes but onely daughters. And these are the names of his daughters: Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha, & Thirza: which came before Eleazar the preest, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, & before the lordes, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded Moses to gyue vs an enheritaunce amonges oure brethren. And he gaue them at the mouth of the Lorde, an enheritaunce amonges the brethren of their fathers. And there fell ten portyons to Manasses beside the lande of Galaad and Basan which are on thother syde Jordan: because the doughters of Manasses dyd enherit amonge his sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes had the lande of Galaad.

And the borders of Manasses reached from Aser to Machmathah that lyeth before Sichem, and went a longe on the right hand, euen vnto the enhabyters of the fountayne Thaphuah, and the lande of Thaphuah belonged to Manasses, which Thaphuah laye in the borders betwene Manasses & the chyldren of Ephraim. And the coostes descended vnto the ryuer of Kede, on whose southside Ephraim hath cyties that lye amonge the cyties of Manasses. For the coostes of Manasses were on the northside of the ryuer and the endes of them was the see: so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the see is both their borders. And they met together in Aser northwarde, and in Issacar eastwarde. And Manasses had his enheritaunce in Issacar and in Aser, Bethsean, & her townes: and Jeblaam with her townes: and the enhabitours of Dor, with the townes pertayninge to the same: and the enhabitours of Endor with the townes of the same: and the enhabitoures of Thaanath with her townes & the enhabitours of Mageu with the townes of the same, and the third part of the cytie Nopheth, yet the chyldren of Manasses coulde not ouer come thole cyties: But the Cananites began to dwell in the same lande. Neuertheleſſe assone as the chyldren of Israel were waxed stronge, they put the Cananites to tribute, but they slew them not.

And the chyldren of Joseph spake vnto Josua sayenge: Why hast thou gyuē vs but one lot and one portion to enherete, seynge we be moche people, and for asmoche as the Lorde hath blessed vs so: and Josua answered the: yf ye be moche people then get you vp to the wode countreye, and prepare for your selues there in the land of the Pherezites and of the * Raphaites, yf mount Ephraim be to narowe for you. Then the chyldren of Joseph sayde agayne, the hill will not be goten of vs: for all the Cananites that dwell in the lowe countreye haue charetes of yron, and so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valeye of Jezreel. And Josua answered the house of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasses sayenge: ye be moche people and haue great power and shall not therfore haue one lot. But the hyll shalbe yours, thou shalt hew downe the wode, and make a space to buylde vpon, for it shalbe yours euen vnto the endes of it, ye shalbe able to cast out the Cananites for all their yron charettes, and for all they be so stronge.

¶ Certayne are sente to diuyde the lande to the other seuen tryben. The Lott of the chyldren of Ben Jamin.

CAPI. XVIII.

And the hole congregacō of the chyldren of Israel came together at Silo, and set vp the tabernacle of wytnesse there, and the lande was in subiection before them. But there remayned amonge the chyldren of Israel seuen tryben which had not their enheritaunce deuyded out. And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israell, howe longe are ye so slacke to go and possesse the lande whyche the Lorde God of your fathers hath gyuen you? chose ye of euery tryde three men that I maye sende them. And that they may ryse and walk thorow the land and dewyde it after the inhabitantes therof & come agayn to me. Deuide it into vij. partes. For Juda shal abyde by their coostes in the south, & the house of Joseph shal stande to their coostes in the northe. Describe ye the lande therfore into. vij. partes, & bryng the description to me hyther, that I maye cast lottes for you here before the Lorde our God. The Leuites haue no parte amonge you for the preasthyp of the Lorde is their enheritaunce. And Gad, Ruben, and halfe the tryde of Manasses haue receyued their enheritaūce beyōd Jordan eastwarde, which Moses the seruaūt of the Lorde gaue them.

Iosue.xviii.a Iosue.xiiii.a

And the men arose and went their waye. And Josua charged them that went to describe the land sayeng: hence & go thorow the land & describe it, & come agayne to me hyther: and I will cast lottes for you before the Lorde in Silo. And the men departed, & walked thorow the lande and described it by cyties into seuen partes in a boke, and retourned to Josua into the host at Silo. And Josua cast lottes for them in Silo before the Lorde, and there he deuyded the lande vnto the chyldren of Israell, into seuen partes to eche their portion. And the first lot of the tryde of the chyldren of Ben Jamin came vp accordynge to their kynredes. And the coostes of their lotte came out betwene the chyldren of Juda, and the chyldren of Joseph. And their north coostes were frome Jordan and went vp to the syde of Jericho on the northside, and went vp thorow the mountaynes westwarde, and they ended at the wylderneſſe of Bethauen: & went frome thence to the southside of Lus, otherwyse called Bethel: and descended to Ataroth Adar vpon the hil that lyeth on the southside of the nether Bethoron. And the weste coaste draweth and compaseth southwarde, euen frome the hyll that lyeth before Bethoron, &

gothe out at Kariathbaal which is Kariath-Jarim, a cytie of the chyldren of Juda: & this is the West quarter: towarde the see and the south coste goeth frome the edge of Kariathiarim westwarde, and goeth out to the watere-well, of Nephthoah and commeth wwne to the edge of the hyll that lyeth before the valeye of the sonnes of Hennon, which is in the valeye of Raphaim Northwarde, and descendeth thorow the valeye of Hennon vnto the syde of Jebusi southwarde, and goeth wwne to the well of Rogell. And compaseth frome the north and goth forth to Enlames, that is the sonnes well: and to the heapes that lye before the gopnge vp vnto Adummim: and goth downe to the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben: and then goth alonge towarde the syde of * the playne, northwarde: and goth wwn vnto the playne: and goth a longe to the syde of Bethhaglah northwarde, & endeth at the poynte of the salt see north therfrome, and at the ende of Jordan south therfrome. This is the southcoste.

* Gree. Ara-bathal.

And Jordan is their east coste, this is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Benjamin by their costes roundeaboute and by their kynredes. And these are the cyties of the trybes of the chyldren of Benjamin in their kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, and the valeye of Kasis: Betharabah, Zamarim, and Bethel: Auim, Pharah, and Ophrah: Chepar Ammonai, Ophni, and Gaba, twelue cyties with their villages. Gabaõ, Ramah, and Beroth: Mizphah, Caphirah, and Mozah: Rekem, Jarephel and Thareiah, Zela, Eleph, & the cyetie of the Jebusites which is Jerusalē, Gabaath, and Kariath, fourten cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Benjamin in their kynredes.

¶ The lottes or partes of Zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Nephthali, Dan, and Josua.

CAPI. XIX.

A Nd the seconde lotte came oute vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon by their kynredes. And their enheritaunce felle in the middes of the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda. And their inheritaūce was, Berlabe, Sabe, and Moladagh, Hazorsuia, Bilagh, and Azem, Eleholad, Bethul, and Hormagh, Ziklag, Bethmarcaboth and Hazersusagh, Bethlebaoth, & Saruhen thertene Cities with their villages. Aim, Remon Ether, and Asan, foure Cities with their villages: and therto all villages that lye round aboute these Cities, euen vnto Balalath, Beor, and Ramath, southwarde. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Simeon in their kinredes out of the portion of the chyldren of Juda, came the inheritaunce of the children of Simeon. For the part of the children of Juda was to moch for them: and therfore the children of Symeon had their inheritaunce in the inheritaunce of them.

1 Parali. b. 6

And the thyrde lotte came vnto the chyldren of Zabulon accordynge vnto their kynredes. And the costes of their inheritaunce came to Sarid, and went vp to the see, and to Marralah, and touched at Dabaseth, and met at the ryuer that lyeth before Jokneam: and turned frome Sarid Eastwarde towarde the sonne rysynge, vnto the border of Chisloth in mounte Thabor: and then goeth out to Daberath and goeth vp to Japhia: and frome thence goeth alonge Eastwarde towarde the sunne rysynge, to Geth, Hepher, and Tacasin, and goeth to Remon, Methoar and Neah. And compaseth it on the Northe syde, and goeth to Nathan, and endeth in the valleye of Jephthahel. And Cateth, Nahalol, and Semeon, Jedalah, and Bethlem: twelue cities with their villages This is the enheritaunce of the children of Zabulon, in their kynredes. The sayde cityes with their villages.

And the fourthe lot came oute to the chyldren of Issachar by their kynredes. And their costes were Jesreelah, Casuloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, Anaharath, Rabboth, Rision, and Abez. Rameth, Engannim, Enhadah, and Bethphazez. And his costes met at Thabor, Sahazimah and at Bethsames, & endeth at Jordan, sixtene cityes with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar by their kynredes the cytyes and their villages.

And the fifte lot came out vnto the tribe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes. And their coostes were Helkath, Hali, Beten, and Achsaph: Alamaleth, Amaad and Missal: and met at Carmel on the see, and at Sihor, and at Labanath, and turneth towarde the sunne rysing to Bethdagon, and met at Zabulon, and in the valleye of Jephthael, and towarde the north syde of Bethemek and Negel, and goeth out on the left side of Cabul: and Abian Robob, Hamon, and Kanah, euen vnto great Sidon. And then the cost turneth to Ramah and to the strong citye of Tire, and turneth to Hosah, and endeth at the see: by the possession of Achzibah: Amah, Aphek, and Rohob: Twentye and two cityes with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the tribe of the children of Aser by their kynredes. These cityes with their villages.

And the sixte lotte came oute vnto the chyldren of Nephthali by their kynredes. And their coostes were frome Helepb, and frome Sion in Zaananim, and Adami, Nekeb and Jabneel, euen to Lakum, and goo oute at Jordan. And then the coostes turneth Westwarde to Asanoth in mounte Thabor, and then goeth oute frome thence to Hukokah, and meteth with Zabulon on the southe syde, and with Aser on the West, and at Juda vpon Jordan towarde the sunne rysynge. And their strong citeyes are Zidim, Ber, Hamath, Kacath, and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah, and Hasor: Kedes, Edrai, and Enhasor: Iron, Magdiel: Horem, Bethanah, & Bethsamesnynetene cityes with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali by their kynredes: these cityes and their villages.

And

D And the seuenth lot fell to the trybe of the chyldren of Dan by their kynredes. And the costes of their inheritaunce was Zarah, Elhaol, & Jelames, Baclabin, Ataion, and Jethlah: Eglon, Themnathah, and Akaron: Elthekeh, Gibethon, and Baalath: Jehud, Banebarah, and Gatherman, and the waters of Jercon and Racon, with the countreye that lyeth before Joppe, and there it hath an ende. And the chyldren of Dan wente vp and fought against Leten and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and conquered it, and dwelt therin, and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan in their kynredes: these cityes with their villages. When they hadde made an ende of diuydynge the lande to euerye trybe by lotte, then the chyldren of Israel gaue an enheritaunce vnto Josua the sonne of Nun amonge them: at the mouthe of the Lorde they gaue him the citie whiche he asked, euen Thamnath Serah in mounte Ephraim. And he buylte the citye and dwelte therin.

These are the enheritaunces whiche Eleazar the Preeste and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the children of Israel diuyded by lotte in Silo before the Lorde, in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and so made an ende of diuydynge the countreye.

¶ The Cytyes of refuge or Sanctuaryes.

CAPI. XX.

THen the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commen with the chyldren of Israel and saye: * Appoynte oute free cytyes, of whiche I spake vnto you by Moses, that the slear that kylleth anye person vnwares, and vnwittyngly, maye flee thither. And those cityes shall be youre refuge frome the auenger of bloude. And the slear shall flee vnto one of those cityes, and shall stande in the entrynge of the gate of the citye, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the sayd citye, that it was no wylful murder. & they shall take him in to the city vnto them, and shall gyue him a place that he may dwell amonge them.

And when the auenger of bloude followeth after him, they shall not delyuer the slear in to his hande, bycause he smote his frende ignorātly, and that can not be proued that he bare him malyce of two or thre dayes afore.

And he shall dwell in the sayd citye vntyll he stande before the congregation in iudgement, sayinge for his discharge, and vntyl the deth of the hyghe Preest that shall be in those dayes. And then shall the slear retourne and come vnto his owne citye, and vnto his owne house, and vnto the citye frome whence he fledde.

E And they appoynted Kedes in Galile, in mounte Nephthali, and Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and Kariatharbe, whiche is Hebron in the mountaynes of Juda. And on the other syde Jordan ouer against Jericho Eastwarde, they gaue Bosor in the wyldernesse, vpon the playne wyldernesse out of the trybe of Ruben and Ramoth in Galead out of the trybe of Gad, and Golam in Basan out of the trybe of Manasses. Deuter. iiii. g

These were the cityes appoynted for all the chyldren of Israel, and to the straungers that sojourned amonge them that who so euer killed anye person ignorantly, the same myght flee thyther and sholde not dye by the hande of the auenger of bloude, vntyl he stode before the congregacion. D

¶ The Cityes giuen to the Lenites, in nombre foure and eyght. The prophecyes of gyuynge the landes of Canaan are fulfylled. The Israelites are at rest.

CAPI. XXI.

A Nd then came the principall heedes of the Leuytes vnto Eleazar the preeste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heedes of the trybes of the children of Israel, and spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded by Moses, to gyue vs cityes to dwell in, and the feldes about them for our cattell. A * Numer. b. Deuter. xii. b Josu. xx. a

And the chyldren of Israel gaue vnto the Leuites out of their inheritaunces, at the bidding of the Lorde, these cities following with their suburbes.

And the lotte came oute vnto the kynredes of the Cahathytes: and the chyldren of Aaron the Preeste whiche were of the Leuytes hadde gyuen them by lotte, oute of the trybe of Juda, oute of the trybe of Symeon, and oute of the trybe of Benjamin thirtene cityes. And the reste of the chyldren of Cahath hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Ephraim, oute of the trybe of Dan, and out of the halfe trybe of Manasses ten cityes.

And the chyldren of Gerson hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Issachar oute of the trybe of Aser, oute of the trybe of Nephthali, and out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basan, thirtene cityes. And the chyldren of Merari by their kynredes, hadde oute of the trybe of Ruben, out of the trybe of Gad, and oute of the trybe of Zabulon, twelue cityes. And the chyldren of Israel gaue by lot vnto the Leuites these cityes with their suburbes, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses. 13

And they gaue oute of the trybe of the chyldren of Juda, and out of the trybe of the children of Symeon, these cityes by name: whiche the chyldren of Aaron beinge of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the chyldren of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the first lotte. And they gaue them Kariah Arbe of the father of † Enacke, whiche is Hebron in the hyll countreye of Juda, with the suburbes of the same rounde aboute it. But the countreye that pertayned to the citye and the villages therof

† Troba was the father of Enack. Josua. xiii. b. 1 Parali. vi. b

thyr

they gaue to Caleb the sonne of Iephunne, to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to the chyldren of Aaron the preste, the fraunchesed cityes of the lear, Hebron with her suburbes: and Libna with her suburbes, and Jathir with her suburbes, and Eshtemoa with her suburbes, and Holon with her suburbes, and Dabir with her suburbes, and Ain with her suburbes, and Juttah with her suburbes, and Bethshames with her suburbes: nyne cityes oute of those two tribes.

And oute of the tryde of Benjamin they gaue Gabaon with her suburbes: Geba with suburbes: Anatoth with her suburbes: Almon with her suburbes, foure cityes. All these cities of the chyldren of Aaron preestes were, thyrteene cityes with theyr suburbes.

And the kynredes of the chyldren of Kahath that were Leuytes / that is to saye the other chyldren of Kahath had the cities of their lot, oute of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free citye of the lear: Sichem with her suburbes in mounte Ephraim/ and Gazer with her suburbes / and Kadzaim with her suburbes / Bethhoron with her suburbes/ foure cityes.

And oute of the tryde of Dan: Eltheke with her suburbes, Gibethon with her suburbes, Aialon with her suburbes, and Gathremon with her suburbes, foure cityes. And out of the halfe tribe of Manasses: Thanach with her suburbes, Gathremon with her suburbes, two cityes. So that all the cityes which were geuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldren of Kahath, were ten with theyr suburbes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson, whiche were of the kinredes of the Leuites, they gaue out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses, the citye of refuge for the slear, Golan in Basan and Bolcam with her suburbes: Beesthera with her suburbes, two cityes. And oute of the tryde of Issachar, Kision with her suburbes, Dabereth with her suburbes, Jarmoth with her suburbes, Engannim with her suburbes, foure cityes. And out of the tribe of Aser Misheal with her suburbes, Abdon with her suburbes, Helkath with her suburbes, Rehob with her suburbes, foure cityes.

And out of the tryde of Nephthali, the city of refuge of the slear, Kedes in Galile, with her suburbes: Hamothdor, with her suburbes Karthan with her suburbes: three cityes. So that all the cityes of the Gersonytes in theyr kynredes were thirteene with their suburbes.

And vnto the kynredes of the chyldren of Merari the rest of the Leuites, they gaue out of the tribe of Zabulon: Jeremam with her suburbes, Carthah with her suburbes: Damna with her suburbes, and Nahalal with her suburbes, foure cityes. And oute of the tribe of Ruben, they gaue Bozor with her suburbes: Jahelah with her suburbes / Kedmoth with her suburbes/and Mephaath with her suburbes, foure cityes.

And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchesed citye of the slear, Ramoth in Galaad with her suburbes, Mahanaim with her suburbes, Hesbon with her suburbes, and Jaser with her suburbes, foure cityes in all, so that all the cityes of the chyldren of Merari in their kynredes, whyche were the rest of the kynredes of the Leuites, were by theyr lotte, twelue cityes. And all the cityes that the Leuites had in the possession of the chyldren of Israel were fortye and eyght with their suburbes. And these cityes haue echo their suburbes rounde about her thyrowe oute all the sayd cityes.

And the Lorde gaue vnto Israel, all the lande whiche he swore to gyue vnto theyr fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelte therin. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about, according to all that he swore vnto theyr fathers. So that there stode not a man of all theyr enemyes before theym. But the Lorde delyuered all theyr enemyes into theyr handes. There slaped nothynge of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde had sayde vnto the house of Israel. But all came to passe.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses returne agayne to theyr possessions. They buylde an alter for a memoryall.

CAPI. XXII.

THen Iosua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gadites, and to the halfe tryde Manasses, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue kepte all that Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not lefte youre brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kepte the commaundement of the Lorde your God. And now the Lorde hathe geuen rest vnto youre brethren, as he promysed them. Wherfore returne and goo vnto youre tentes, and vnto the lande of youre possession, whiche Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in anye wyse take exceadynge good hede that ye do the commaundement and lawe whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde charged you / whiche is, that ye loue the Lorde your God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all your hertes, and all your soules. And so Iosua blessed theym, and sente them awaye. And they wente vnto theyr tentes.

¶ Vnto the one halfe of the tryde of Manasses Moses gaue possession in Basan/and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Iosua with theyr brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And also when Iosua sent them awaye vnto theyr tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, returne with moche ryches vnto youre tentes and with very moche catell, with syluer, golde, brasse, yron, and with rayment aboue measure and diuide the spoyle of youre ennemyes with youre brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tryde of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Silo, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countreye of Galaad, and to the lande of theyr possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouthe of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the tyles of Jordan that lye in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylte an aulter fast by Jordan, and that a great aulter to se to. And when the chyldren of Israel herde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the childre of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylt an aulter in the lore ffronte of the lande of Canaan in the bordres of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Israel: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Israel gathered them togither to Silo to go vpon them with batayle.

And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses in to the lande of Galaad, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preste, and with him tenne lordes, of euerye chefe house a lorde, thorowe oute all the trydes of Israel, whyche heades of theyr fathers housholdes were ouer the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the children of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe tryde of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayinge.

Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: what trāsgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynste the God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye from after the Lorde, and to buylde you an aulter for to rebell this daye agaynst the Lorde? Is the wycked dede of Bel Phegor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not clensed vnto this daye, and moche people were slayne, but that ye also wolde tourne awaye this daye frome folowynge the Lorde? Ye shall rebell to daye agaynste the Lorde, & to morowe he shall be wroth with all the congregacion. Notwithstandynge yf the lande of your possession be vncleane, then come ouer vn to the lande of the possession of the Lorde, where the Lordes tabernacle dwellerth, and be possessed amonges vs. But rebell not agaynste the Lorde, nor agaynste vs, to buylde you anye other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God. Dyd not Achan the sonne of Zareh transgresse the commaundement of the Lorde, and wrath fell on all the congregacion of Israel, so that he alone perysshed not for his wyckednesse?

Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tryde of Manasses, answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel. The mygtye God, the almyghtye Lorde he knoweth, and Israel shall knowe yt: be it rebell or transgressyon agaynst the Lorde, saue vs not this daye.

Or elles yf we haue buylte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge oute Lorde, or to offer vpon hym brent offrynges or meate offrynges or to offer peaceoffrynges therin, let the Lorde require it: And haue not rather doone it for feare of this, lest in tyme to come youre chyldren shoulde saye vnto ours: What haue ye to doo with the Lorde God of Israel, seynge that the Lorde hathe made Jordan a border betwene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde / and so shall youre children make oure chyldren cease frome fearynge the Lorde.

Therfore we thoughte it better, and sayde: Lette vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifyces, but it shall be a token betwene vs and you, and oure generacyons after vs, that we shoulde serue the Lorde, with oure offerynges, sacrifyces, and peace offerynges: and that youre chyldren shoulde not saye to ours in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde. Genes.xxxi.g Deuter.xxx.a Iosue.xxiiii.f

And we thought, yf they wolde so saye to vs, or to oure generations in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the facyon of the aulter whiche oure fathers made, nether for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifyces, but that it wolde be a wytnesse betwene vs and you. God forbyd that we shulde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and that we shulde turne this daye frome after him, and buylde an aulter for burnt offerynges or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preeste and the Lordes of the congregacyon, and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whiche were with hym, herde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this daye we perceyue that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not doone this trespace agaynste the Lorde. And nowe ye haue rydde the chyldre of Israel oute of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste and the Lordes returned frome the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, and broughte them worde agayne. And the answere pleased the chyldren of Israel well, and they praysed God, and dyd not intende to goo agaynste them in battayle, to destroye the lande whyche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelte in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter ✠ Ed, because it is a wytnesse betwene vs, that the Lorde is God.

✠ After the Hebrew. The cōmen translatiō our witnesse that the Lord is God.

AND it came to passe a longe season after that the Lorde had gyuen rest vnto Israel frome all theyr ennemyes rounde aboute that Iosua waxed olde and was stryken in yeres. Wherfore he sent for all Israel, & for theyr elders, theyr heades, theyr Iudges and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and stryken in yeres. Iosua exhorteth the people to the keppynge of the law. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buryed. Eleazar dyeth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND Iosua gathered all the trybes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr heades Iudges and officers, whiche presented them selues before God. And Iosua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayethe the Lorde God of Israel. * Youre fathers dwelte on the other syde of the floude in olde tyme, euen Thareh the father of Abrahām and Nachor, and serued straunge goddes. But I toke your father Abrahām frome the other syde of the floude and broughte him in to the lande of Canaan, and multiplyed his seed, and gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac, Iacob, and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir to possesse it. But Iacob and his chyldren wente downe to Egypt.

* Then I sente Moses and Aaron. And I stroke Egypte in many signes and wonders, and after y I brought you your fathers out of Egypte. And ye came vnto the see, and the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charettes and horsemen, vnto the redde see. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And he put darkenesse betwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpon them & couered them.

And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelte in the wyldernesse a longe season. And I broughte you in to the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelte on the other syde Iordan. And they foughte agaynste you: and I gaue them in to your handes. And ye conquered theyr countrey, and ye destroyed them.

Then Balak the sonne of Zephor, kynge of Moab, arose and warred agaynste Israel, and sente and * called Balam the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not agree to harken vnto Balam and therfore he blessed you: And so I deliuered you oute of his hande. And when ye wente ouer Iordan, and came vnto Iericho, the citezyns of Iericho foughte agaynste you: the Amorytes, Pherezites, Chanaanites, Hethites, Gergesites, Heuytes, Iebusites, whiche I deliuered into your handes.

And I sent * hornettes before you and dyd caste oute before you: euen the two kynges of the Amorytes, but not with youre owne swerde, or with your owne bowe. And I gaue you a lande in whiche ye dyd no labour, and cytyes whiche you buylte not, and ye dwelte in them. And vynes, and oliue trees whiche ye planted not.

And now feare the Lorde and serue hym in pureneſſe and truthe. And put away the goddes whiche youre fathers serued in Mesopotamia, and in Egypte, and serue the Lorde. But yf it seme cuyll vnto you to serue the Lorde then chose you this day whom you will serue whether the Goddes, whiche youre fathers serued that were on the other syde of ỹ floude, eyther the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwelt, and I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayde, God forbyd that we sholde forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde our God he it is that brought vs and our fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in our syghte, and preserued vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thorowe. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorytes whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is our God.

But Iosua sayd vnto the people: ye can not serue the Lorde, for he is an holye God, mighty and gelous, and can not beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsake the Lorde, and haue serued straunge goddes, he wyl turne and do you cuyll and consume you, after that he hathe doone you good. And the people answered Iosua: not so / but we wyll serue the Lorde.

Then Iosua sayd vnto the folke, ye are witnesses vnto your selues that ye haue chose you the Lorde to serue hym: and they sayd we are witnesses. Then put away, sayd he, ỹ straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe your hertes vnto the Lord God of Israel. And the people answered Iosua: the Lorde oure God we wil serue, and his voyce we wil obeye. And so Iosua made a couenaunt with the people the same daye, and set ordinaunces and lawes before them in Sichem.

And Iosua wrote these wordes in the boke of the lawe of God, and toke a great ỹ stone and pytched it on ende in the sayd place / euen vnder an ooke that stode in the sanctuarye of the Lorde. And Iosua sayd vnto all ỹ people: Beholde, this stoone shall be a wytnesse vnto vs, for it hathe herde all the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake with you. It shall be therfore a wytnesse vnto you, lest ỹ after this tyme ye wyll denye and lye vnto your God. And so Iosua let the people depart euery man vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thynges the tyme came that Iosua the sonne of Nun and the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed, being an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buryed in the border of his inheritaunce, euen in Thamnath Sareh, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north syde of the hyll of Gaas.

¶ After Josua was dead, Juda was constitute Lorde ouer the army when Jerusalem was besieged. The people that were not destroyed became tributaryes.

CAPL. I.

Josue.xvii.a

2 After the deathe of Josua, the chyldren of Israel asked the Lorde sayinge: Who shall go vp first vnto the Canaanites to fyghte agaynst them? And ✠ Lord sayde: Juda shall goo vp: beholde, I haue deliuered the lande in to his handes. Then Juda sayde vnto ✠ Simeon his brother: come with me in to my lot, and let vs fight against the Canaanites. And I lykewyse will go with the in to thy lot. And so Simeon went with him.

✠ Simeon for the tribe of Simeon.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde deliuered the Canaanytes and the Pherezites in to theyr handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousande men. And they founde Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought against him and slewe ✠ Canaanites and Pherezites. But 6 Adonibezek fled, and they followed after him/ and caught him. And cut of his thombes and his greate toes. Then Adonibezek sayde: three score and ten kynges, hauynge their thombes and great toes cut of, gathered their meat vnder my table: wherfore as I haue done, so god hath reacquited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem. And there he dyed.

Leuith. xxiiii. and.xxvi

The chyldren of Juda fought agaynste Jerusalem and toke it, and smote it with ✠ edge of the swerde, and set the hole citye on fyre.

Josue.xv.a

And after that, the chyldren of Juda wente euen to fyghte agaynste the Canaanytes that dwelte in the mountayne, in the southe, and in the lowe countreye. And Juda wente vnto the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron, which before tyme was called Kariath Arbe, & slewe Sesai, Ahiman, and Thalmai. And frō thence they went to the inhabiters of Dabir, whose name in old tyme was called Kariath Sepher that is the citye of lernynge.

Josue.xv.d & Parall.vii. & Iere.xxvii.c

And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth Kariath Sepher and taketh it, to him will I gyue Achsah my doughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenez Calebs younger brother take it: to whome he gaue Achsah his doughter to wyfe, and as they wente her husbande counseyled her to aske of her father a felde.

And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde vnto him: gyue me a blessynge, for thou hast gyuen me a Southwarde and dry lande gyue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes both aboue and benethe. And the chyldren of the Kenite Moses wyues father wente vp out of the citye of palme trees, with the chyldren of Juda, in to the wylderneße of Judea lotte that lyeth in the Southe of Arad, and dwelte amonge the people.

And Juda went and Simeon with him, and they slewe the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and vtterly destroyed it, and called the name of the citye Horma, that is a curse. And Juda toke Asah with ✠ coostes therof, & Askalon with the coostes therof, and Akaron with the costes therof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered ✠ mountaynes, but they couldne not dryue out the inhabiters of the valleys, because they hadde chaarettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caled, as Moses sayd. And he expelled thence the three sonnes of Enack.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd not caste oute the Jebusites that enhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with ✠ chyldren of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto this daye.

And in lyke maner the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, and the Lord with them, and when they besieged the citye which before tyme was called Lus, and sawe a man come out of the citye, they sayde vnto hym, Shewe vs the waye in to the citye, and we will shewe the mercye. And he shewed them the waye in to the citye, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but they dyd let the man and all his household goo free. And the man went in to the lande of the Hethites, and buylte a citye and called the name therof Lus, which is the name therof vnto this daye.

Neyther dyd Manasses expelle Bethsan with her townes / neyther Thaanach with her townes, neither the inhabitours of Dor, with her townes/ neyther the inhabitoures of Jeblaem with her townes / neyther the inhabitours of Magedo, with her townes. and so the Canaanites went to and dwelt amonges them. But as sone as Israel was wexed mighty, they put the Canaanites to tribute, but expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwelt styll in Gazer amonge them.

Neither did Zabulon expel the enhabitours of Ketron, neither the enhabitours of Nahalol. But the Canaanites dwelt amonge them and became tributaryes.

Neither dyd Aser caste out the enhabitours of Acho, neyther the inhabitours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Aczib, Dalbah, Aphek, nor of Rehob, but the Aserites dwelte amonge the Canaanites the inhabitoures of the lande, and dyde them not out.

Neyther dyd Nephthalim dryue oute the enhabitours of Bethsames, nor the enhabitoures of Bethanath, but dwel amonges the Canaanites the inhabitoures of the lande. Neuertheleße the enhabitours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became tributaryes vnto them.

And the Amorites kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountayns, and suffered them not to come wonne to the valeyes. And so the Amorytes wente to and dwelled in mounte Heres that is to saye a witnesse in Dalon and in Salabim. Neuertheleße the hande of Joseph waxed heuye vpon them, so that they became tributaryes. And the coostes of the Amorytes was from the goyng vp to Acrabim, and from the rocke vpwarde.

¶ The Aungell rebuketh the people because they had made peace & the Canaanites. Idolaters are punished, but yet leaue not their inuentions. God sendeth them Judges to delyuer them.

CAPL. II.

2 And the aungell of the Lorde came vp from Galgall to Bochim, and sayde/ I broughte you out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayd that I wold neuer breke myne appoyntement with you, so that ye shold make no couenaunt with ✠ inhabitoures of this lāde, but breke down their aulters: But ye haue not obeied my voice, why haue ye this done? wherfore I haue lykewyse determined that I will not cast them out before you / but they shall be your ennemyes, and their goddes shall be your destruction. And when the aungell of the Lorde hadde spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people 5 cryed oute and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place Bochim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua hadde sente the people awaye, the chyldren of Israel went euery man in to his inheritaunce to possesse the lande. And the people serued the Lord all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and hadde sene all the great workes of the Lord that he did to Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the costes of his inheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mount Ephraim, on the northe syde of the hyll Gaas. And euen so al that generation were put vnto their fathers/ and there arose an other generation after them, which neither knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wickedly in the sight of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Astaroth. Wherfore the Lorde waxed angrye with Israel, and delyuered them in to the handes of raueners to spoyle them, and solde them in to the handes of their ennemyes rounde about them. So that they had no power any longer to stande before their ennemyes but vnto what so euer thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them with cursed lucke / euen as the Lorde promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were sore vexed.

Neuertheleße, the Lorde raysed vp Judges which delyuered them out of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not herken vnto their Judges: But wente a hoorynge after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quickly out of the waye which their fathers walked in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

Exod.xx.d

And when the Lorde raysed them vp Judges in their dayes, he had compassion of them, and herde the lamentacion of the oppressed, and delyuered them out of the handes of their ennemyes/ yet for all that, as sone as ✠ Judge was dead, they tourned and dyd worse then their fathers in folowynge straunge goddes, and in seruynge them, and ceased not frome their inuentions, nor frome their malicious wayes.

D Jud.vi.b

Wherfore the Lorde was angrye with Israel and sayd: because this people hath transgressed my couenaunte which I made with their fathers, and haue not obeyed my voice, therfore henceforthe I will not caste oute one man before them of the nations which Josua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israel thorough them whether they will kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therin as their fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde left those nacyons alone, and dyde them not oute immediatly, neyther delyuered them in to the handes of Josua.

Deuter.viii.a; and.xvi.a

¶ Certayne nations are left among the Israelites to the intent to vexe and assaye them. Othoniel deliuereth Israel. Ehud kylleth kyng Eglon. Samgar kylleth the Philistines.

CAPL. III.

A These are the nacions whiche the Lorde lette to scourge Israel: euen as manye of Israel as had not knowen warres of Canaan: Onely for the lernynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Israel: which before knewe nothyng of warre, be left the fiue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonites, the Heuites ✠ dwelt in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those God suffered to remayne to proue Israel by, to wete whether they wolde harken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moses, or no.

Deuter.vii.a; and.xii.a

And as the chyldren of Israel dwelte amonge the Canaanytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites, they toke the doughters of them to be their wyues, and gaue their owne doughters to their sonnes, and serued their goddes. And so the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgat the Lord their God and serued Baalim and Astaroth. Therfore the B Lorde was angrye with Israel, and delyuered them in to the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kynge of ✠ Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rasathaim eyght yeres.

thaim, and the lande hadde reſte fourtye yeres.
And Othoniel the ſonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Iſrael wente to agayne,
and commytted wyckednelle in the ſyghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynſte the chyldren of Iſrael, bycauſe they hadde com-mytted wickednelle before the Lorde. And this Eglon gadvered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and ſmote
the chyldren of Iſrael, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Iſrael yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/and the Lorde ſtered them vp a ſauer, Ahud

the ſonne of Gera, the ſonne of Jemini, a man that coulde doo nothynge handſomlye
with his ryght hande.

¶ By whome the chyldren of Iſrael ſent a preſent vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made hym a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd
gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygye
and carped the preſent vnto Eglon the kynge
of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde preſented the preſente, he ſente the people that bare it awaye, but he hym ſelfe tourned agayne frome
the ydolles by Galgall, and ſayde: I haue
a ſecrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge
commaunded hym to holde his peace, vntyll
all that ſtode aboute hym, were gone oute
frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a ſommer
ii.Regū.iii.c chamber, where he ſate alone, and ſayde: I haue a meſſage vnto the frome God. And he aroſe out of his ſeate/ and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ygyte thygh, and thruſte it ſo harde in to his belye, ſo that the hafte went in after the blade.
D And the hafte ſtopped in the fat, for he drewe
not the dagger out of his bely, but as he ſtroke
him, ſo lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll
that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat hym out at a poſterne wore, and ſhut the dores of the parloure vpon
him, and locked them. The kynges ſeruaunres came and loked, and ſe the wores of the parloure were locked, they ſayde: A, he is a doyng of his eaſement in his ſommer chamber. And when they had tarried tyl they were aſhamed,
for no man dyd the wores of the parloure open,
then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead vn
to the erth. But Ahud eſcaped whyle they ta-reyed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and Nume.x.a eſcaped into Seirath.
& xiij.f.g

And when he was come, he blewe a trom-pet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Iſrael went down with him, & he before them,
and ſayd vnto them: folow me/ for the Lorde
hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they deſcended after hym, and ſtopped the feryes of Jordan frome
the Moabites, and ſuffered not a man to paſſe
ouer. And they ſlewe of the Moabites ſame tyme vpon a ten thouſande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there eſcaped not a man,
and ſo the Moabites were ſubdued that daye vnder the handes of Iſrael/ and the lande had reſte foure ſcore yeres.

And after him came Samgar the ſonne of Anath, whiche ſlewe of the Philiſtines ſix hundred men with an ore gode, and delyue-red Iſrael alſo.

¶ Iſrael is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, becauſe they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Siſara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Iſrael began agayn
to wo wickedly in the ſyght of the Lord
when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde
ꝓ ſolde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge
of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor/ whoſe Capitayne of warre was Siſara, whiche dwelte in Haroſeth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Iſrael cryed vnto the Lorde/for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ he oppreſſed the chyldren of Iſrael with powre
twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetelle, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Iſrael the ſame tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, be-twene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Iſrael came to her for iudgement. And ſhe ſent and called Barak the ſonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim
and ſayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Iſrael commaundeth
the that thou goo and leade an hooſte vnto
mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thouſande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kiſon, Siſara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his cha-rettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them
in to thyne handes. And Barak ſayd vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And ſhe anſwered/ I wyll ſurely goo with the, but then the prayſe ſhall not be thyne in the waye which thou goeſt, for the Lorde ſhall de-liuer Siſara in to the handes of a woman. And ſhe aroſe and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, out of with ten thouſande men: & Debora went with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde
from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝓ Hobab who was father to Moſes wyfe, and pitched his tente vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was ſhewed vnto Siſara how
that

that Barak the ſonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Siſara called for all his charettes, euen ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroſeth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kiſon. Then ſaid Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath del
uered Siſara in to thyne handes/ for the Lord
C is gone oute before the. And ſo Barak wente
downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thouſande men after hym.

But the Lorde trouſled Siſara and all his charettes, and all his hoſte with the edge of the ſwerde before Barak. And Siſara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Ba rak followed after the charettes, and after the hoſte, euen vnto Haroſeth of the Gentyles.
And all the hoſte of Siſara fell vpon the edge of the ſwerde, that there was not a man lefte.
Howbe it Siſara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor,
and the houſholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynſte Siſara and ſayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & ſhe couered him with a mantel. And he ſayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel wa ter to drynke, for I am thirſty. And ſhe opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he ſayd vnto her, ſtande in ſ
D wore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aſke
the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye
man here, ſaye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a naple of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went ſoftlye vnto him, and ſmote the naple with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed
in to the grounde, and as he ſlombered dyed Deuter.xxv.b & dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Siſara, Jael came oute agaynſte him, and ſayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll ſhewe the the man whome thou ſeekeſt. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Siſara laye deed, and the naple thorowe his temples. And ſo God brought Jabin the kynge of Canaan in to ſubiection that daye before the chyldren of Iſ-rael. And the hande of the chyldren of Iſrael proſpered, and was ſore vpon Jabin the kynge
of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

¶ The ſonge and thankes gyuynge of Debora and Barak, after the victorye.

CAPI. V.

THen Debora & Barak ꝥ ſonne of Abino-
am, ſang the ſame daye ſaying: Becauſe
he hathe auenged the vengeaunce wone
to Iſrael, the people offering them ſelues wyllyngly: prayſe ye the Lorde. Heare kynges, & darken Lordes, I am the, I am the that wyll of Iſrael.

Lorde, when thou departedſt out of Seir, &
cameſt thorow the countreys of Edom, ꝥ erth

In the dayes of Samgar the ſonne of A-

The champions of Iſrael were diſcouraged & taynt hearted, vntyll I Debora aroſe, vntyll I aroſe a mother in Iſrael.

God choſe new factions of warre, for when F they had warre at their gates/ there was not ſene amonge fourtye thouſande, eyther ſhelde or ſpere in Iſrael. Myne hert loueth the mainteners of the lawe in Iſrael, ye that willingly
haue put youre ſelues in aduenture, bleſſe ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly aſſes, and dwell deſyre Middin. And ye ꝥ walke by the wayes, make dities. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoſte of oure aduerſaries was choked, there ſhall they tell of the iuſtice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the ſtronge God of Iſrael: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan
the maſtrye.

Vp vp Debora, vp vp and ſynge a ſonge, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou ſonne of Abi-noam. Then they that had eſcaped, vnder Iſra el paigned ouer the prouell of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the ſtronge.

Ephraim was the fyrſt that deſtroyed Ama
lek. And after hym Benjamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came learned men in the lawe, Iudi.iii.b and of Zabulon that well coulde conueye an hoſte to warre.

The Lordes of Iſakar were with Debora.
G And as Barak, euen ſo was Iſakar ſente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in auenture.
But in the diuiſions of Ruben were great ima
ginacions of herte.

Wherfore abodeſt thou amonge the ſhepe
foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes.
In the diuiſyons of Ruben greate were the ymaginacions of herte. Galaad abode on the other ſyde Jordā, and taryed Dan in ſhyppes.
And Aſer ſate in the hauens of the ſee, and abode ſtyll in his owne cooſtes. But Zabulon is a people that put their lyues in iopardye
of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes, kynges came and fought. Then fought the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magedo.
But the ſpiuer that they couered, they taryed
not awaye.

From heuen came batayle: for the ſterres
beyng in their courſe, fought agaynſt Siſara.
The ryuer of Kiſon caught them awaye: that auncient riuer, the riuer Kiſon.

My ſoule, treade thou the myghtye vnder fote. Then their hoofes ſtombled as they fledde, that their mighty courſers lefte praunſynge.

Curſe ye Meroz, ſaid ꝥ aungell of the Lorde curſe, curſe ꝥ inhabitours therof, becauſe they came not forthe to helpe the Lorde, to helpe
the Lorde amonge the myghty.

Bleſſed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Ke-

nyte, aboue other women: aboue other wome bleſſed be ſhe in the tente.

Judi.iiii.c He aſked water, but ſhe gaue him mylke, and broughte butter in a goodly diſſhe. She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a wo-kynge hammer in her ryghte, and nayled Sisara and wounded his heed, and perſed and went thorowe his temples. Betweene her fete he bowed him ſelfe, fell downe and laye ſtyll: Betweene her fete he ſprauled and laye dead lyke a wretche.

Thorow a wyndow loked Siſaras mother and houled out of her chambre, why abideth his charet ſo longe that it commeth not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The wyſeſt of his wiues anſwered her: yea, and ſhe anſwe red her owne wordes her ſelfe, happye they haue founde, and diuyde the ſpoyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a ſpoyle of dyuers colours for Siſara, a ſpoyle of dyuers colours with broudered wo-kes, dyuers coloured, broudered wo-kes for the necke for a prape. So periſſhe all thyne ennemyes Lorde / but they that loue the, let them be as the ſonne ry ſynge in his myghte.

And the lande had reſt fourtye yeres.

¶ Iſrael is oppreſſed of the Madianites, becauſe he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is ſent of God to be their deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPI. VI.

A Nd the chyldren of Iſrael committed wyckednes in the ſyghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites ſeuen yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was ſore vpon Iſrael, the chyldren of Iſrael made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and ſtronge holdes. For when Iſrael had ſowen, the came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Eaſte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynſte them, and deſtroyed the encreaſe of the erth euen vn to Azah, and left no ſuſtinaunce in Iſrael, neither ſheep, ore, or aſſe/for they came with their cattell and houſholdes, euen as grethoppers in multitude/ſo that both they and alſo their camels were without nombre, and waſted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entred the lande to deſtroy it. And ſo was Iſrael exceadyngly impouriſhed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Iſrael cryed vnto the Lorde by cauſe of B the Madianites, the Lorde ſent a prophet vnto them, and ſayd vnto them. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael, I fet you from Egypte and brought you out of the houſe of bondage, and I ryd you out of ye hand of the Egyptias, and out of the handes of al that oppreſſed you, and caſt them out before you, & gaue you their landes. And I ſayd vnto you, I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes (iii. Mo. xxiii. g. Deut. vii. g. Iere. v. g.) of the Amorites (in whoſe land you dwel. But you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lorde came and ſate vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eſerites. And his ſonne Gedeon threſſed out wheate oute of the eares in a preſſe, for to flee from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and ſayd: the Lorde is with the, thou man of myghte. And Gedeon anſwered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and ſayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lord hathe forſaken vs, and delyuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde lo ked vpon him, and ſayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and delyuer Iſrael out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue ſent the. And he anſwered him. Oh Lorde, wherwith ſholde I ſaue Iſrael? Beholde my kynred is the pooreſt in Manaſſes, and I am the leaſt in my fathers houſe. But then the Lorde ſayde vnto him: I wyl be with the/ and thou ſhalt ſmyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he anſwered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyghte, then ſhewe me a ſygne, that thou art the Lorde that talketh with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn to the, and bynge myne offeryng, and ſet it before the.

And he ſayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went and made redy a kydde, and ſwete cakes of an Ephs of flour, & put the fleſhe in a baſket, and the broth in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ye oke and preſented it. And the aungell of God ſayd vnto him: take the fleſh and the ſwete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and pourre out the broth. And he dyd ſo. Then the aungell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the ſtaffe that was in his hande, and touched the fleſhe and the cakes. And there aroſe vp fyre oute of the rocke and conſumed the fleſhe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde vaniſhed out of his ſyght. And whē Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he ſayd: alas my Lorde almyghtye, that I haue ſene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde ſayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not/ for thou ſhalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lorde, and called it Jehouah, Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eſerites. And the ſame nyght the Lorde ſayd vnto him, take an ore of thy fathers, and an other of ſeuen yeres olde, and deſtroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and turniſhe it. And take the ſeconde ore and offre burnte ſacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou ſhalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his ſeruauntes, & dyd as the Lorde bad him. But becauſe he durſte not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers houſholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mornyng: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was broken, and the groue that ſtode aboute it cut downe. And the ſeconde ore offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they ſayd one to another: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and aſked for him that ſholde haue done ſo? It was tolde them that Ge don the ſonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye ſayde vnto Joas, bynge oute thy ſonne that he maye dye, becauſe he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut down the groue that was aboute it. And Joas ſayde vnto all ſ ſtode by him/will ye fight for Baal, or wil ye be his defenders? he that defendeth for him, ſhall dye afore to morow. If he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that caſt downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jero baal the ſame time ſaying: let Baal reacquyte him, becauſe he hath broken downe his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalekites and they of the Eaſt were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Je zrael, the ſpirite of the Lorde entred in to Ge deon. And he blewe a trompet and called togy ther the houſe of Abiezer to folowe him, and ſent meſſengers thorow out al Manaſſes, and called them vp to folow him alſo. And he ſent other meſſengers vnto Aſer, Zabulon & Neph thalim, whiche came alſo to mete him.

And Gedeon ſayd vnto God: yf thou wilt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou haſt ſayde. Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threſſhynge place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beſyde: then I ſhal be ſure that thou wylt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou ſaydeſt. And it came ſo to paſſe. And he roſe vp erly on the morowe, and he preſſed the fleece togither, & wrong the dewe therout, and filled a diſſhe full of water. And Gedeon ſayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ſpeake ones more, let me proue onely ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye onely vpon the fleece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd ſo that ſame nyghte: for that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The ſouldyers that ſholde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp water. Gedeon with three hundred men ouercōmeth the Madianites. Oreb and Zeb are ſlayne.

CAPI. VII.

THen Jerobaal, otherwiſe called Gedeon roſe erlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beſide the wel of Ha rad, ſo that the hoſte of the Madianites were in a valey on the north ſyde of the hyll Hamo reh. And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to giue the Madianites in to their handes, leſt Iſrael make their vaunt to my diſhonour, and ſay, our owne hande hath ſaued vs. Now therfore make a proclamation in the eares of the people, and ſaye: * yf any man dreade or be afeard, let him returne, and get him ſone from mounte Galaad / and there departed and returned of the people xxij. thouſande, and there abode ten thouſande.

And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon the people are yet to many, bynge them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall goo with the, the ſame ſhall goo with the. And who ſo euer I ſaye vnto the, this ſhal not go with the/ the ſame ſhall not goo. And when he hadde broughte downe the people vn to the water. The Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with their tonges, as dogges do, them put by them ſelues/ and ſo do them that knele downe vpon their knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were thre hundred men / and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I ſaue you, and delyuer the Madianites in to thyne hande / and all the other people ſhall goo euery man to his owne E home.

And they toke victayles with them for the folke, and their trompettes / and he ſente all the reſte of Iſrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the thre hundred with him / and the hoſte of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the ſame nyght the Lorde ſayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoſte, for I haue delyuered it in to thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoſte, and Pharah thy lad, and heare what they ſaye, and ſo ſhall thyne handes be ſtronge, and then thou ſhalte ſafely go downe vnto the hoſte.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the watche men of armes that were in the hoſte. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the Eaſte, laye a longe in the valeye lyke vnto grethoppers in multitude, and their camels were without nombre, euen as the ſande by the ſee ſyde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and ſayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a D dreame, and me thoughte that an barlyhakte lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the hoſt of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and ſmote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe anſwered and ſayde, this is nothing els ſaue the ſwerde of Gede on the ſonne of Joas a man of Iſrael. in to whoſe hande the Lorde hathe delyuered Ma dian and all the hoſte.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meanynge therof, he bo wed him ſelfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoſte of Iſrael, and ſayde: vp, for ſ Lorde hathe delyuered in to youre handes the hoſte of the Madianites. And he diuyded the thre hundred men in to three rempan.yes, and gaue euery man a trompet in his hande, with an empoye pytcher, and lampes therin, and ſayde vnto them: loke on me, and do lyke wyſe/ and beholde, when I come to the ſyde of the Judi.vii. hoſte / euen as I doo, ſo do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes alſo on euery

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde stered them vp Jud.i a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the spirete of the Lorde came vpon hym/ and he iudged Israell, and wente oute to ii.Para.xv.c warre. And the Lorde ꝑ solde Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Syre in to his hand. So that ꝑ That is delyuered. his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande hadde reste fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Israel, bycause they hadde commytted wickednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cyte of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel Deuter.xxx.c serued Eglon the king of the Moabites.xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/ and the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that couldе dod nothynge handsomlye with his ryght hande.

¶ By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygye and caryed the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the ydolles by Galgall, and sayde: I haue a secrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that stode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a sommer chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I vi.Regū.iii.e haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate/ and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thygbe, and thrust it so harde in to his belye, so that the hafte went in after the blade.
ꝺ And the hafte stopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his bely, but as he stroke him, so lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the fylthe partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a posterne wore, and shut the dores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The knyges seruaunte came and loked, and se the wores of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doyng of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had tarried tyl they were ashamed, for no man dyd the wores of the parlour open, then they toke a kaye and opened them. And beholde, the Lord was fallen downe dead vn to the erth. But Ahud escaped whyle they tarryed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and Numer.x.a escaped into Seirath.
& xxi.f

And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, & he before them, and sayd vnto them: folow me/ for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferryes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites ꝑ same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel/ and the lande had reste foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of the Philistines syx hundred men with an ore gode, and delyuered Israel also.

¶ Israel is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jud.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Israel began agayn to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde ꝑ solde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor/ whose Capitayne of warre was Sisara, whiche dwelte in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde/ for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ & oppressed the chyldren of Israell with power twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoste vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, ꝑ thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and ꝑ thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered/ I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne in ꝑ waye which thou goest, for the Lorde shal deliuer Sisara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, out vp with ten thousande men: & Debora went with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde frome the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝓ Hobab who was father to Moses wyfe, and pitched his tent vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then sayd Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara in to thyne handes/ for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trouysed Sisara and all his charettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. Howbeit Sisara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the housholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Sisara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a mantel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and ꝺ couered him. And he sayd vnto her, Stande in ꝑ wore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Haders wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went softlye vnto him, and smote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng wery, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou sekest. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Sisara laye deed, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And so God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to subiection that daye before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was sore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

¶ The songe and thankes gyuynge of Debora and Barak, after the victorye.

CAPI. V.

THen Debora & Barak ꝑ sonne of Abinoam, sang the same daye saying: Bicause he hathe auenged the vengeaunce woone to Israel, the people offering them selues wyllyngly: prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kynges, & harken Lordes, I am we, I am the that wyll synge, and gyue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, when thou departedst out of Seir, & camest thorow the countreys of Edom, ꝑ erth trembled, and the earthe rayned, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupied, and they that walked by pathes, wēt by wayes that fet compasses about. The champions of Israel were discouraged & tayntt herted, vntyll I Debora arose, vntyll I arose a mother in Israel.

God chose new factions of warre, for when they had warre at they gates/ there was not sene amonge fourtye thousande, eyther sheilde or spere in Israel. Myne hert loueth the mainteners of the lawe in Israel, ye that willingly haue put youre selues in aduenture, bleste ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell beside Aijodin. And ye ꝑ walke by the wayes, make dities. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of oure aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maistrye.

Vp vp Debora, vp vp and synge a songe, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel gayned ouer the proudest of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the fyrst that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well couldе conueye an hoste to warre.
Judi.iii.b

The Lordes of Isakar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Isakar sente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great imaginactons of herte.

Wherfore abodest thou amonge the shepe folds, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes. In the diuysions of Ruben greate were the ymaginactions of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jorda, and caryed Dan in shyppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, and abode styll in his owne coostes. But Zabulon is a people that put their lyues in leopardye of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes, kynges came and fought. Then fought the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magedo. But the spuce that they coueted, they caryed not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the sterres beyng in their course, fought agaynst Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient ryuer, the riuer Kison.

My soule, treade thou the myghtye vnder fote. Then their hoofes stombled as they fledde, that their mighty coursers lefte prauncynge.

Curse ye Meroz, bad ꝑ aungell of the Lorde curse, curse ꝑ inhabitours therof, bicause they came not forthe to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghty.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Ke-npte, aboue other women: aboue other wome bleſſed be ſhe in the tente.

Iudi.iiii.c He aſked water, but ſhe gaue him mylke, and brought butter in a goodly dyſſhe. She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a wo-kynge hammer in her ryghte, and nayled Si-ſara and wounded his heed, and perſed and went thoroowe his temples. Betwene her fete he bowed him ſelfe, fell downe and laye ſtyll: Betwene her fete he ſprauled and laye deed lyke a wretche.

Thoroow a wyndow loked Siſaras mother and houled out of her chambre, why abideth his charet ſo longe that it commeth not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The wyſeſt of his wiues anſwered her: yes, and ſhe anſwe-red her owne wordes her ſelfe, haplye they haue founde, and diuyde the ſpoyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a ſpoyle of dyuers colours for Siſara, a ſpoyle of dyuers colours with broudered workes, dyuers coloured, broudered workes for the necke for a prape. So perysſhe all thyne ennemyes Lorde / but they that loue the, let them be as the ſonne ry-ſynge in his myght.

And the lande had reſt fourtye yeres.

¶ Iſrael is oppreſſed of the Madianites, becauſe he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is ſent of God to be theyr deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPI. VI.

1 AND the chyldren of Iſrael committed wyckednes in the ſyghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites ſeuen yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was ſore vpon Iſrael, the chyldren of Iſrael made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and ſtronge holdes. For when Iſrael had ſowen, the came the Madianites, the Amale-kites, and they of the Eaſte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynſte them, and deſtroyed the encreaſe of the erth euen vn-to Azah, and left no ſuſtinaunce in Iſrael, nei-ther ſheep, ore, oz aſſe / for they came with their cattell and houſholdes, euen as grethoppers in multitude / ſo that both they and alſo their camels were without nombre, and waſted all that euer they layde handes on. And they en-tred the lande to deſtroy it. And ſo was Iſrael exceedyngly impouerliſhed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyl-dren of Iſrael cryed vnto the Lorde becauſe of
B the Madianites, the Lorde ſent a prophet vn-to them, and ſayd vnto them. Thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael, I fet you from Egypte and brought you out of the houſe of bondage, and I ryd you out of ye hand of the Egyptias, and out of the handes of al that oppreſſed you, and caſt them out before you, & gaue you theyr landes. And I ſayd vnto you, I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes Iiii.Reg.xvii. Ieremi.x. of the Amorites in whoſe land you dwel. But you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aun-gell of the Lorde came and ſate vnder an oke in Ephrah that perteyned vnto Ioas the fa-ther of the Eſerites. And his ſonne Gedeon pyckled out whete oute of the eares in a pyckle, for to flee from the Madianites. And the an-gell of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and ſayd C the Lorde is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon anſwered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and ſayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lord hathe forſaken vs, and delyuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde lo-ked vpon him, and ſayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and delyuer Iſrael out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue ſent the. And he anſwered him. Oh Lorde, wherwith ſholde I ſaue Iſrael? Beholde my kynred is the pooreſt in Manaſſes, and I am the leaſt in my fathers houſe. But then the Lorde ſayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the / and thou ſhalt ſmyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he anſwered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyghte, then ſhewe me a ſygne, that thou art the Lorde that talketh with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne in-to the, and bringe myne offerynge, and haue ſet it before the.

And he ſayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kydde, and ſwete cakes of an Epha of flour, & put the fleſſhe in a baſket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ſhis and preſented it. And the aungell of God ſayd vnto him: take the fleſh and the ſwete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd ſo. Then the aungell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the ſtaffe that was in his hande, and touched the fleſſhe and the cakes. And there aroſe vp fyre oute of the rocke and conſumed the fleſſhe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde vaniſſhed out of his ſyght. And whē Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he ſayd: alas my Lorde al-mightye, that I haue ſene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde ſayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not / for thou ſhalt not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lorde, and called it Iehouah, Halom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eſe-rites. And the ſame nyght the Lorde ſayd vnto him, take an ore of thy fathers, and an other of ſeuen yeres olde, and deſtroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and turniſſhe it. And take the ſeconde ore and offre burnte ſacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou ſhalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his ſeruauntes, & dyd as the Lorde bad him. But becauſe he durſte not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers houſholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mornynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was broken, and the groue that ſtode aboute it cut it cut downe. And the ſeconde ore offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they ſayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and aſked for him that ſholde haue wonē it. It was tolde them that Ge-deon the ſonne of Ioas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye ſayde vnto Ioas, bringe oute thy ſonne that he maye dye, becauſe he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut down the groue that was aboute it. And Ioas ſayde vnto all ſ ſtode by him / will ye fyghte for Baal, o: wil ye be his defenders? he that defendeth for him, ſhall dye afore to morow. If he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that hath-wone his aulter. And he called Gedeon Iero-baal the ſame time ſaying: let Baal reacquyte him, becauſe he hath broken wone his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalchites and they of the Eaſt were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Je-zael, the ſpirite of the Lorde entred in to Ge-deon. And he blewe a trompet and called toge-ther the houſe of Abiezer to folowe him, and ſent meſſengers thoroow out al Manaſſes, and called them vp to folow him alſo. And he ſent other meſſengers vnto Aſer, Zabulon & Neph-thalim, whiche came alſo to mete him.

And Gedeon ſayd vnto God: yf thou wilt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou haſte ſayde. Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threſſhynge place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the erth beſyde: then I ſhal be ſure that thou wylt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou ſaydeſt. And it came ſo to paſſe. And he roſe vp erly on the morowe, and he pyckled the fleece togither, & wrong the dewe therout, and filled a dyſſhe full of water. And Gedeon ſayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ✱ſpeake ones more, let me proue onely-ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye one-ly vpon the fleece, and dewy vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd ſo that ſame nyghte: ſo that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The ſouldyers that ſholde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp by water. Ge-deon with three hundred men ouercōmeth the Ma-dianites. Oreb and Zeb are ſlayne.

CAPI. VII.

1 THen Ierobaal, otherwiſe called Gedeon roſe erlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beſide the well of Ha-rad, ſo that the hoſte of the Madianites were in a baley on the north ſyde of the hyll Hamo-reh. And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon, the peo-ple that are with the, are to manye for me to geue the Madianites in to their handes, leeſt Iſrael make ryote vaunte to my diſhonour, and ſay / our owne hande hath ſaued vs. Nowe ther-fore make a proclamacion in the eares of the
3 people, and ſaye: ✱ yf anye man drede or be a-fearde, let him returne, and get him ſone from mounte Galaad / and there departed and re-turned of the people xxij. thouſande, and there abode ten thouſande.

And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon the peo-ple are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall goo with the, the ſame ſhall goo with the. And who ſo euer I ſaye vnto the, this ſhal not go with the / the ſame ſhall not goo. And when he hadde brought wone the people vn-to the water. The Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with theyr tonges, as dogges do, them put by them ſelues / and ſo do them that knele downe vpon theyr knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lap-ped, were thre hundred men / and all the rem-naunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I ſaue you, and delyuer the Madianites in to thyne hande / and all the other people ſhall goo euery man to his owne home.

And they toke vitaples with them for the folke, and theyr trompettes / and he ſente all the reſte of Iſrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the thre hundred with him / and the hoſte of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the ſame nyght the Lorde ſayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoſte, for I haue delyuered it in to thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoſte, and Pharah thy lad, and herke what they ſaye, and ſo ſhall thyne handes be ſtronge, and then thou ſhalte ſafely go wonne vnto the hoſte.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the warde men of armes that were in the hoſte. And the Madianites, the Ama-lechites, and all they of the Eaſte, laye a-longe in the valeye lyke vnto grethoppers in multitude, and theyr camels were without nombre, euen as the ſande by the ſee ſyde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and ſayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a D dreame, and me thoughte that an harthabte lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the hoſt of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and ſmote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe anſwered and ſayde, this is nothing els ſaue the ſwerde of Gede-on the ſonne of Ioas a man of Iſrael. In to whoſe hande the Lorde hathe delyuered Ma-dian and all the hoſte.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meaninge therof, he bo-wed him ſelfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoſte of Iſrael, and ſayde: vp, for ſ Lorde hathe delyuered in to youre handes the hoſte of the Madianites. And he diuyded the thre hundred men in to thre compani-es, and gaue euery man a trompet in his hande, with an empeye pytcher, and lampes therin, and ſayde vnto them: loke on me, and do ſyke wyſe / and beholde, when I come to the ſyde of the Iudicū hoſte / euen as I doo, ſo do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes alſo on euery

lyde the hoste and saye: here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the lyde of the hoste in the begynnyng of the myddell watche and rayſed vp the watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers that were in theyr handes. And all thre companyes blewe with trompettes and brake the pytchers, and helde the lampes in theyr lefte handes, and the trompettes in theyr ryght, to blowe with all. And they cryed, the ſwerde of the Lorde and of Gedeon. And they stode ſtyll euerye man in his place rounde aboute the hoste / and all the hoste ranne and cryed and fledde.

And as the thre hundred blewe with trompettes, the Lorde ſent his ſwerde thorow all the hoste, ſo that euerye one ſlewe other. And the hoste fled, vntyll they came to Bethſitah, to Zererath, and to the edge of Abelmeholah beſyde Tabath. And the men of Iſrael gathered togyther of the tryde of Nephthalim, of Aſer, and of all Manaſſes, and folowed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had ſent meſſengers thorowe out all mount Ephraim, ſaying: come downe againſt the Madianites, and take from them the waters bothe of Bethbarath and alſo of Jordan.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered togyther, and came downe and toke the waters bothe of Bethbarath, and alſo of Jordan. And they toke two capitaynes of the Madianites, Horeb, and Zeb, and ſlewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the preſſe Zeb, and folowed after Madian / and brought the heedes of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the other ſyde Jordan.

¶ Ephraim maketh inſurrection againſt Gedeon, but is ſone pacifyed. The inhabiters of Soroth refuſe to gyue Gedeon and his armye breed. The towre Phanuel is deſtroyed. Gedeon is conſtitute rular ouer the Iſraelites. He hathe thre score and .xvii. ſonnes. He dyeth.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the men of Ephraim ſaid vnto him. Why haſte thou ſerued vs thus, that thou calledſt vs not when thou wenteſt to fyghte with the Madianites / and they chode with him a good, and were welnygh at daggers drawyng. And he ſaid vnto them: What dede haue I doone lyke vnto you: are not the cluſters of Ephraim better then the wyne harueſt of Abiezer? God hathe deliuered in to youre handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb, & Zeb. And what was I able to doo lyke as you haue doone? And then their ſpirites were pacified, and they well content with him, whe he hadde ſayd that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and paſſed ouer bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with hym very fayne and yet folowed the chaſe.

And he ſayd vnto the men of Soroth: giue I praye you cakes of breede vnto the people that folow me: for they be faynty, that I may folowe after Zebah and Zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Soroth ſayd, are the hādes of Zebah and Zalmona now in thyne handes that we ſhulde gyue breed vnto thy companye? And Gedeon ſayde, therfor when the Lorde hath deliuered Zebah and Zalmona in to myne hande, I wyll teare the fleſſhe of you with the thornes of the wyldernelle and with briers. And he went thence to Phanuel, and ſpake vnto them lykewiſe. And the men of Phanuel anſwered, as dyd the men of Soroth. And he ſayde alſo vnto the men of Phanuel, when I come agayne in peax I will breake down this towre. Zebah and Zalmona were in Karkar, and their hoſtes with them, vpon a fyftene thouſande, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hoſtes of them of the Eaſt. And they that were ſlayne, were a hundred and twentye thouſande men that drewe ſwerde.

And Gedeon went thorow them that dwelt in tabernacles on the Eaſt ſyde of Nobah and Jebahah, and ſmote the hoste: for the hoſt dyd call no peryll. Zebah and Zalmona fled. But he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona, and diſcomfyted all the hoſte.

And Gedeon the ſonne of Joas returned frome batayle, the ſonne beynge yet vp, and caught a lad of the men of Soroth, and enquyred of him the names of the chiefe lordes and elders of Soroth. And he wrote the lordes and elders of Soroth, thre score and ſeuētene men. Then he came vnto the men of Soroth and ſayde: Beholde Zebah and Zalmona, with whiche he caſte me in the reche, ſaynge: are the handes of Zebah, and Zalmona alredye in thyne hande, that we ſhulde gyue breed vnto thy fayntye men. And he toke the elders of the cytye, and thornes of the wyldernelle and bryers, and all to tare theym therwith. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuel, and ſlewe the men of the cytye.

And then ſayd vnto Zebah and Zalmona, what maner men were they which ye ſlewe at Thabor? & they anſwered: they were moche lyke the in fauoure / and one of them eyen as he were a kynges ſonne. And he ſayde: They were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, and as truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had ſaued their lyues, I wolde not ſlee you. And he ſayd vnto Jether his eldeſt ſonne, vp and ſlee them, but the ladde drewe not his ſwerde / for he feared, bycauſe he was yet ponge. Then Zebah and Zalmona ſayd. Ryſe thou, and fall vpon vs, for as the man is, ſo is his ſtrengthe. and Gedeon aroſe and ſlewe them: & he toke awaye the trapurey and chaynes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Iſrael ſayde vnto Gedeon. Raynge ouer vs, bothe thou, thy ſonne, and thy ſonnes ſonne, for thou haſt deliuered vs oute of the handes of the Madianites. And Gedeon ſayde vnto them / I wyll not raygne ouer you, neyther ſhall my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Lorde ſhall raigne ouer you.

Neuertheleſſe Gedeon ſayde vnto them / I wolde deſire a certayne requeſt of you, euen that that you wolde gyue me euery mā the earerynges of his praye. For they had golden earringes, becauſe they were Iſmaelites. And they ſayde we will gyue it. And they ſpred a mantell and dyd caſt there into euery man the earerynges of his praye. And the weyght of the golden earrynges was a thouſand and ſeuen hundred ſydes of golde, beſydes brouches, ouches and garmentes of ſcarlet that were of the kynges of Madian, and beſyde the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cyte Ephrah. And all Iſrael went a horynge after him there, which thynge was the ruyne of Gedeons houſe. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the children of Iſrael, ſo that they lyfte vp their heddes no more. And the contreye was in quyetneſſe fourty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the ſonne of Joas went and dwelte in his owne houſe. And Gedeon had. lx. ſonnes of his body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubyne that dwelt in Sichē bare him a ſonne alſo, whoſe name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the ſonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the burial of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But as ſone as Gedeon was deed, the children of Iſrael turned awaye and went a horynge after Baal, and made Baal a promyſe that he ſhulde be their God, and thought not on the Lorde their God which had delyuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery ſyde. Neyther ſhewed they mercy on the houſe of Jerobaal, otherwyſe called Gedeon, accordinge to all the goodneſſe whiche he ſhewed them.

¶ Abimelech is ordeyned a kynge after he had kylled ſeuēty his brethren. He him ſelfe was after killed of a woman when he beſeged Thebes. The parables of Joatham concerning his brother Abimelech.

CAPI. IX.

FOr Abimelech the ſonne of Jerobaal wēt to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, & comuned with them and with al the hole kynred both of his fathers ſyde and mothers alſo, ſayenge: ſaye I praye you, in the eares of all the enhabitoures of Sichem: whether is better for you that all the ſonnes of Jerobaal whiche are. lxx. perſonnes raygne ouer you, eyther that one raygne ouer you. And remember therto, that I am your bones & your fleſſhe. And his mothers brethren rehersed of him in the audience of all the cytezens of Sichem, all theſe wordes, and moued their hertes to folowe Abimelech, in that they ſayde how he was their brother. And they gaue him lxx. peces of ſiluer out of the temple of Baal Berith, with which Abimelech hyred Jebel & vyght perſonnes whiche went with him. And they went vnto his fathers houſe at Ephrah and ſlewe all his brethren, the ſonnes of Jerobaal, euen. lxx. perſonnes vpon one ſtone.

Notwithſtandinge yet Joatham the ponge ſt ſonne of Jerobaal eſcaped, for he hyd hym ſelfe. And all the cytezēs of Sichem gathered togither with all the houſe of Mello, & went and made Abimelech kynge * at a certen oke that was by Sichem. * Some in the playne.

And when it was tolde Joatham, he went and ſtode in the toppe of mount Garizim, and lyfte vp his voyce and called, and ſayde vnto them: Herken vnto me you cytezens of Sichem, that God maye herken vnto you. The trees went to annoynt a kynge ouer them, & ſayde vnto the olyue tree, rayne ouer vs. But the olyue tree ſayde vnto theym: ſhulde I leaue my fatneſſe whiche both God and man prayſeth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then ſayde the trees to the fygge tree, come thou and be kynge ouer vs. And the fygge tree anſwered them, ſhulde I forſake my ſwetnes and my good frute, & ſhulde go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then ſayd the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be kyng ouer vs. And the vyne anſwered, ſhulde I leaue my wyne that cheereth both God & man and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then ſayde all the trees vnto the * thorne buſſhe: come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the thorn buſſhe ſayde vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will annoynt me kynge ouer you, the come and reſt vnder my ſhawwe, and yf ye wyl not ye ſhall ſe that a fyre ſhall come oute of the thorne buſſhe and waſte the Cyper trees of Libanon. * In ſom places it is called Gozle.

And euen ſo now, yf ye haue wone truly and vncorruptlye to make Abimelech kynge. And yf ye haue dealt well with Jerobaal and his houſe, and haue wone vnto him accordinge to the deſerynge of his handes, for as moche as my father fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, And dyd you out of the handes of the Madianites. And ye are ryſen vp againſte my fathers houſe this daye. And haue ſlayne his chyldren, euen. lxx perſonnes * with one ſtone and haue made Abimelech the ſonne of his mayde ſeruaunt kynge ouer the cytezēs of Sichem, becauſe he is youre brother, yf then ye haue dealt dewe and truely with Jerobaal & with his houſe this daye: then reioyſe ye in Abimelech, and let him alſo reioyſe in you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech and conſume the lordes of Sichem and the houſe of Mello. And that there come a fyre oute of the cytezens of Sichem, and out of the houſe of Mello and conſume Abimelech. And Joatham when he had ſayde thus, ran away and fled and wente to Beer and dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yere, God ſent a ſpytefull malyce betwene Abimelech and the cytezens of Sichem. And the cytezens of Sichē began to defye Abimelech, and wyſhed that the wickednes mone to the. lxx. ſonnes of Jerobaal myghte come on him, and layde the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother which ſlewe theym, and vnto the other cytezens of Sichem whiche ayded him in the kyllynge of his brethren. And the cytezens of Si them set men to laye awayte for him in the toppe of the mountaynes and whiles they awayted his commynge they robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was telde Abimelech.

Then Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren came and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put theyr confidence in him. And they went oute in to the feldes and gathered in theyr grapes and troade them, and made merye: and went in to the house of theyr God, and dyd eat and drynke and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Obed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? & we shulde serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue suche as come of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? Wolde God this people were vnder my hãde then I wolde put downe Abimelech. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater and goo out. And when Zebul the ruler of the cytie herde the wordes of Gaal the son of Obed, he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, sayenge: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cytie against the. Now therfore aryse by nyght both thou and all the people that is with the and lye in wayte in the feldes. And ryse early in the morninge as sone as the sonne is vp, & come vpon the cytie. And when he and the people that is with him come forth against the, do him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people with him, by nyght. And they layde awayte to the cytie in foure companyes. And Gaal the son of Obed went out and stode in the enterye of the gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frome lyenge awayte. Now when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to Zebul: Beholde, there come people downe from the toppe of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shadowe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Gaal answered agayn and sayd: Se, there come folcke downe by the myddle of the lande and an other companye come a longe by the Wytchoke. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: Where is nowe thy mouthe that sayde, what felow is Abimelech that we shulde serue him? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fight with them. And Gaal went forthe before the citezens of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him so that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Arumah. And then Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, and wolde not suffre them to dwell in Sichem.

And on the morowe the people went forth in to the felde. And it was telde Abimelech. And he take his people & deuyded them into three companies, and layd awayte in the feldes. And when he sawe that the people were come out of the cytie, he ran vpon them and slewe them.

And Abimelech & the companyes that were with him, ran and stode in the enterynge of the gate of the cytie. And the two other companyes ran vpon all the people that were in the feldes and slue them. And then Abimelech fought against the cytie all that daye, & toke it, and slewe the people that was therin, and destroyed the cytie & sowed salt in the place. And when all the men of the towre of Sichem herde that, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of theyr God Baal Berith, when they made a conueyaunt to him and the place had Berythes name and was strongly fensed.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem, were gathered togither, he gat him to mount Zelmon, bothe he and all that were with him, & toke axes with him and cut downe an arme of a tree, and toke it vp, & put it on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folcke that were with him, what so euer ye se me do: spede your selues and do lykewyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of the towre of Sichem were slayne, about a thousand persones what of men and wemen.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strong towre in the myddes of the cytie, and thither ran all the men and wemen, and all the citezens of the cytie, and shut it to them, and gat them vpon the toppe of the towre, and stode vpon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre and fought against it, & went harde vnto the enteringe of the gate, to set it on fire. But a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpõ his heed and al to brast his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare his harneys, and sayd vnto him: drawe thy swerde and slee me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And his lad thrust him thorow and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed, euery man vnto his owne house. And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech which he dyd vnto his father, in slayenge his. lxx. brethren, & thereto all the wyckednes of the men of Sichem, god dyd bringe vpon their heedes: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

¶ Thola and Jair Judges of Israel. Israel sinneth and after cryeth on God for remission.

CAPI. X.

After Abimelech, arose to defende Israel one Thola, the sonne of Phuah, the sonne of Dodo, a man of Issakar, which dwelt in Samir, in mount Ephraim, who iudged Israel. xxiij. yere, and then dyed and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Galaadite, who iudged Israell. xxij. yere. And he had thirtye sonnes that rode on thirtye Asse colts, and hadde thirty cities for tyl, which are called the townes of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Galaad. And Jair dyed, & was buryed in Kamon.

And the children of Israel wrought wickednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddes of Syria, and the goddes of Sidon, the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the children of Ammõ, and the goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the Lord and serued him not, wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the children of Ammon: whiche pyned and oppressed the children of Israell in those dayes. xviij. yere, all that were on thother syde Jordan in the lande of the Amorites in Galaad. Moreouer the children of Ammon went ouer Jordan to fyghte against Juda, Ben Jamin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore encombred. Then the children of Israell, cryed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: We haue synned against the for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the children of Israel: dyd not the Egyptias, the Amorites, the children of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Maonites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, and I deliuered you forth of theyr handes. And this notwithstandinge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. But go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and let them helpe you in the tyme of your affliction. But the children of Israel sayde vnto the Lord we haue synned: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer pleaseth the, and deliuer vs onely at this tyme. And they put awaye the straunge goddes frõ them, and serued the Lorde. And he was sorowfull for the myserye of Israel.

Then the children of Ammon assembled & pyched in Galaad. And the children of Israel gathered them togither and pyched in Maspha. And the company of the Lordes of Galaad sayde one to an other, who so euer will begynne the battel against the children of Ammon, shalbe heed ouer all the inhabitauntes of Galaad.

¶ Jephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel frome the Ammonites after they asked forgyuenes, of the vowe of Jephthah.

CAPI. XI.

And there was one Jephthah a Galaadite, a stronge man, who was the son of an harlot: How be it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare him sonnes, which whe they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, & sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not enherete in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fled frome his brethren and dwelt in the lande of Tob. And vile people and robbers assembled them selues to Jephthah, and wet out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the children of Ammon made warre against Israel, then the elders of Galaad wet and fet Jephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come and be our capitayne, & let vs fight with the children of Ammon. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me oute of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulation? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, and fight against the children of Ammon, and be our heed ouer all the enhabitauntes of Galaad. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: Ye dyd me home agayne, to fight with the children of Ammon, then yf the Lord deliuer them before me, I shalbe your heed. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Jephthah, the Lorde that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, yf we w not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Galaad. And the people made him heed and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehersed all his wordes before the Lorde, in Maspha.

Then Jephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the children of Ammon, sayenge: What ayleth the with me, that thou comest vpon me to fight against my lande? And the kynge of the children of Ammon answered the messengers of Jephthah, because Israell toke awaye my lande, when they came forthe of Egypte: euen frome Arnon vnto Jabok, & frome thence vnto Jordan: Now therfore restore these landes agayne by faire meanes. And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the children of Ammon, and sayde vnto them: thus sayth Jephthah. Israel toke not awaye the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the children of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypte, they walked thorow the wyldernesse, euen vnto the red see, and came to Cades, and sent messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayenge: let vs (we praye the) go thorow thy lande. But the kynge of Edom wold not assent therto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israell abode still in Cades. And then they went a longe thorow the wyldernesse, and compased the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the East syde of the lande of Moab, and pyched their tentes on thother syde the ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the costes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their furthest border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and kyng of Hesbon, and sayd vnto him: Let vs haue passage thorow thy lande vnto our countreye. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorowe his costes: but gathered all his people togither & pyched in Jasah, and fought with Israel. But the Lorde God of Israel deliuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote them, and conquered all the lande of the Amorites, the inhabitauntes of the sayde contrey. And they conquered all the coostes of the Amorites, frome Arnō vnto Jaboh, & frō the wyldernes vnto Jordā. So now forasmuche as the Lorde God of Israel hath caste out the Amorites before his people, shuldest thou enioye the lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dispuetu out, that lande possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lorde oure God chaseth oute, ¶ lande oughte we to enioye. And therto, arte thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moabfor canst thou shewe vs, that he dyd stryue with Israel, or fyghte agaynste them? all the whyle Israel dwelt in Hesbon and her townes, and in Aroer and her townes and in all the citees that be a longe by the coostes of Arnon three hundred yeres? why dyddest thou not recouer them in al that space? wherfore I haue not offended against the, but thou wilt me wronge, to warre vpon me.

The Lorde therfore be iudge this daye, betwene the childzen of Israell, and the childzen of Ammon. Neuertheles the kynge of ¶ childzen of Ammon harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah which he sent him.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed oure Galaad & Manasses, and came to Maspha, that lyeth in Galaad, and frome thence vnto the childzen of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vn to the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou shalt delyuer the childzen of Ammon into my handes, eben that thinge that commeth out of the ores of my house against me, whē I come home in peax, frome the childzen of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offringe. And so Jephthah went vnto the childzen of Ammon to fyght with theym. And the Lorde delyuered them into his handes. And he smoote theym frome Aroer vnto Menith, twenty cyties. And so forthe to the playne of the vyneyardes, and made an exceding great slaughter. And thus the childzen of Ammon were brought vnder, before the childzen of Israell.

Then Jephthah came to Maspha vnto his house. And beholde his doughter came out against him, with tymberelles and daunses, whiche was his onely childe: so that beyde her, he had neyther sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes & sayd: Alas my doughter, thou hast made me stoupe and art one of them that vexe me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and cā not go backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto ¶ Lord, then do with me accordynge to that proceded out of thy mouth, for as moche as the Lorde hath auenged the of thyne ennemyes ¶ childzen of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this moche for me: let me alone for the space of two monethes, that I maye goo downe to the mountaynes, and bewayle my virginite with my felowes. And he sayd: go, and so he sent her awaye for two monethes. And she went with her companyons and lamented her maydenhed vpō the mountaynes. And after the twoo monethes, she turned again vnto her father, which dyd vō her accordyng to his vow which he had vowed, & so she knewe no man. And it became a custome in Israel yere by yere, that the doughters of Israell shulde goo, and lamente the doughter of Jephthah, the Galaadyte, foure dayes in yere.

¶ The battaple of Jephthah agaynste Ephraim. After the deeth of Jephthah succedeth Elon. After Elon Abdon.

CAPL. XII.

And the men of Ephraim made an insurrection, and went Northwarde, & sayd vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fight with the childzen of Ammon, & bydest not call vs to goo with the? we will therfore burne thyn house vpon the, with fire. And Jephthah sayde vnto theym: I and my people were at great stryfe with the childzen of Ammon. And I called you to haue ayded me, but ye wolde not come. And when I sawe that ye delyuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, and wente vpon the childzen of Ammon. And the Lorde delyuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me to fyght with me?

And Jephthah gathered togither all ¶ men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraimites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraimites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonges the Ephraimites and the Manassites. Moreouer the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan where the Ephraimites shulde come homewarde. And when those Ephraimites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer: then the men of Galaad sayd vnto them: Ye are Ephraimites, and they sayd, naye. Then the other answered: Then saye Sibboleth. And they sayde Sibboleth, & could not so pronounce, wherevpon the other toke them and slewe them at the passages of Jordan. And there were ouerthrowen at that tyme of the Ephraimites. xlij. thousande. And when Jephthah had iudged Israell sixe yere, he dyed, and was buryed in one of the cytes of Galaad. After this man, iuged Israell one Abzan of Bethlehem, who had thirty sonnes and thirty doughters, and sent also his thirty doughters out to mariage, and toke thirty other in, for his sonnes. And when Abzā had iudged Israell. vij. yeres he dyed, & was buryed at Bethlehem.

And after him, Elon a Zabulonite iudged Israell ten yeres, and he dyed and was buryed in Aialon, in the countrey of Zabulon.

And after him, Abdon the sonne of Hellel a Pharathonite iudged Israell. And he had fourtye sonnes, and thirty neuewes, that rode on threscore and ten asse colres. And whē Abdon the sonne of Hellel the Pharathonite had iudged Israel eyght yere, he dyed, and was buryed in Pharthon, the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

CAPL. XIII.

And the childzen of Israel beganne agayne to do wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Philistines. xl. yere. And there was a man in Zarah of the kynrede of the Dannites, named Manoah, whose wife was barre and bare not. And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto his wyfe, and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and bearest not: But thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and dyrnke no wyne, ne stronge dyrnke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for lo, thou shalt conceyue, and beare a sonne. And there maye no * rasor ō theres come on his heed: for the childe shal be a ‡ Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of his byrth. And he shall begyn to delyuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistines. The the wyfe went and tolde her husbande, saying A man of God came vnto me, and the facyon of him was lyke the facyon of an angell of God exceadynge fearefull. But I asked him not whence he was, neyther tolde he me his name. And he sayde vnto me: * Beholde, thou shalt be with childe and beare a sonne, & now dyrnke no wyne nor stronge dyrnke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for the childe shalbe ‡ an adherent to God euen from his byrth to the daye of his death.

Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the (my Lorde) let the mā of God which thou sendest come ones more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the childe, whē he is borne. And God hrede the boyce of Manoah, and the angell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the feldes: But Manoah her husband was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ran and shewed her husband and sayd to him: Beholde, the man hathe appeared vnto me, that came the other daye vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after his wyfe and came to the man and sayd vnto him Art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. Then Manoah sayd, now when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the maner of the childe, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thy wyfe muste abstayne from al that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothinge that cometh of the vyne tree, ne dzinke wyne or stronge dyrnke, nor eate any vncleane thinge: but muste obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungel of the Lorde: Graunt vs to tary tyll we haue made redy a kyd, and haue set it before the. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thoughe thou make me abyde I will not eate of thy meat. And moreouer yf thou wilt prepare a burntoffringe, that thou muste offer vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not that it was an aungell of the Lorde. And Manoah sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: What is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some worshyp? And the aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto him: why asked thou after my name? when it is marueilouse.

And Manoah toke a kydde with a meatoffringe, and offred it vpon a rocke vnto the Lorde which worketh wōders, Manoah & his wyfe loked vpon. And when the flame came vp out of the aultare, the angell of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and his wyfe loked theron, and fell flat on their faces vnto the grounde: But the aungell of the Lord syd no more appeare vn to Manoah and his wyfe. And then Manoah knewe that it was aungell of the Lorde: and sayde vnto his wyfe: We shal surely dye because we haue seue God. But his wyfe said vnto him: Yf the Lorde wolde kyll vs, he wolde not haue receyued a burntoffringe and a meatoffringe of oure handes, neyther wolde he haue shewed vs al these thinges, nor wold haue tolde vs as he hath of thinges to come.

¶ The marryage of Samson. He kylleth a Lyon. He propoundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thirtye men. His wife forsaketh him and taketh an other.

CAPL. XIIII.

Samson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines, and came & tolde his father and mother, and sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines. And now gyue her me to wyfe Then his father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the doughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people: but that thou must go and fet a wyfe of the vncircumcysed Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father, gyue me this woman, for she pleaseth me well. Now his father & mother wist not that it was the Lordes worknge, & that he sought an occasion vpon the Philistines, which at that tyme raygned ouer Israel. The wente Samson, and his father and mother, downe to Thamnath. So when they came to the vyneyardes of Thamnath: Beholde, a younge Lyon rored vpon him. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon Samson. And he tare him, as a man wolde rent a kyd, and yet had nothinge in his handē. Neuertheles he told not his father and mother what he had done, but went downe and talked with the woma whiche semed beautyful in the syght of Samson.

Deuter. vii. a

And within shorte space after, as he repayred thyther agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkasse of the Lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees in the carkasse of the Lyon, and hony: & he

he toke of the honye in his handes, and went eatynge, and came to his father and mother & gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye forth of the carkaile of the Lyon. And when his father was come vnto the woman: Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the young men to do. And when her frendes saw him, they brought thirtye companyons to beare him companye. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyll put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf ye can declare it within seuen dayes of the feaste and fynde it oute, I wyll giue you thyrtye sheetes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. But yf ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye giue me thyrtye sheetes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater came meate: and out of the strong came swetnesse. And they couldē not in thre dayes expounde the ryddle. So when the seuenth day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter thyne husbande, that he maye declare vs thy ryddle, or elles we wyll burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto him and sayd, it cā not be but that thou hatest me and louest me not, sythe thou hast purposed a ryddle vnto the children of my folke and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father ne yet my mother, and shulde I tell it the? And she wepte vnto him seuen dayes, whyle the feaste lasted. So the seuenth daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she agayn tolde it to the children of her folke. And then the men of the citye sayde vnto him the seuenth daye before the sonne went downe. What is sweeter then hony, and what is stronger then a Lyon? the sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed w my heifer, ye had not founde out my ryddle. Then the spyrite of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went downe to Askalon, and slew xxx men of them, and dispoyled them, and gaue their garmentes vnto them which expounded the ryddle. And he was wrothe, and went vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen in mariage to one of his companyons that accompanyed him.

¶ Samson tyeth fyre brandes to fox tayles, and letteth them runne into the corne with the Jawebone of an Asse he sleeth a thousande. Oute of a greate tothe in the Jawe, God geueth him water.

CAPI. XV.

A But it chaunced within a whyle after, in the tyme of whete hervest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a bydde. And whē he thought to haue gone in vnto his wyfe into the chamber, her father wolde not suffre him to go in: But sayde: I thought thou had vtterly hated her, and therfore gaue I her to one of thy companyons. Now be it, her younger sister is fayrer then she. Take her in stede of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto them: Now I am blameles concernynge the Philistines, though I wo them displeasures. And Samson went forth and caught thre hundred Foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, & fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyre brande in the mydde betwene two tayles. And he set the fire brandes on fyre, and put them into the corne of the Philistines, & burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standinge, with vynes and olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who hadde wrought this dede. And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnan, because he had herued him of his wyfe & geuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt bothe her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Shulde ye so? I will surely be auenged of you, & then I will cease. And he smote them legge & thygh with a myghty plage. And then he went and dwelt in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp and pitched against Juda and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde. Why are ye come against vs: And they answered to bynde Samson are we come, euen to w vnto him, as he hathe wrought vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wotest thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore then hast thou handled vs thus? And he answered them, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they vnto him, we are comen bynde the, and to deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: Swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, we will not hurte the, saue onely bynde the, and deliuer the vnto their handes: But we will not kyll the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him downe from ‡ rocke. And whē he came to Lehi, the Philistims shouted against him. And the spyrite of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vpō his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w fire, and the bandes lowsed from his handes. And he founde a Jawe bone of a rotten asse, & put forth his hande and caught it, and slewe thousande men therwith. And Samson sayd with the Jawe of an asse, haue I put them backe: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left thrynge, he cast awaye the Jaw out of his hād and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thirste, and called on the Lorde, & sayde. Thou Lorde hast geuen this great victory, thorow the hande of thy seruaunt. And now I must dye for thirst, and fall into ‡ handes of the vncircumcysed. But God brake a great tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, his spyrite came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name thereof was called, * the well of the caller on, whiche was Lehi, vnto this daye. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines twenty yeres.

¶ Samson lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza and carryeth them vp in to the mountayne. He was betrayed by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

CAPI. XVI.

A Then went Samson to Gaza, and sawe there an harlot & lay w her. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layd awayt for him all nyghte in the gate of the cyty, and were still abydynge for him all the nyght sayinge: tarye tyll the morynge that it be daye, and then let vs kyll hym as he cōmeth forth of the cytye. And Samson toke his rest tyll midnight, and arose at mydnight and toke the dores of the gate of the cytye, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that, he loued a woman, vpon ‡ ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her. Flatter him and se wherin his great strength lyeth, and by what meanes we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him and bringe hym vnder, and eche of vs shall geue the .xi. hundred siluerlinges.

B And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tel me where thy great strength lyeth, and what it is wherwith men myght bynde the and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto her. Yf men bound me, with seuen grene withthes, that were neuer dryed, I shulde be weake, and as another man. And the Lordes of the Philistines brought her seuē withthes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bound him with them. Notwithstandinge she had men lyenge in wayte with her in the chambre. And she sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a threde of towe breaketh, when it feleth fyre. And so it was not knowen wherin his stregth laye.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Now yet tell me I praye the, wherwith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: Yf I were bounde with newe ropes, that neuer were occupyed, then shulde I be weake, and as an other mā. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therwith, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers awayte in the chaumber, and he brake them from of his armes, as they hadde beue but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hytherto thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. Yf thou bynde seuen lockes of my heed with an hearre lace and fasten them with a nayle, I shall be weake. And Dalila dyd so, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked and went away with the nayle that was in the plattynge, and with the hearre lace.

D Then she sayde vnto him: Howe canste thou sayē thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this three tymes, and hast not tolde wherein thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him with her wordes continually vrgynge of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the deathe. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came rasor vpō theres vpon myne heed, for I haue bene a Nazare to God euen frome my mothers wombe. Yf myne heare were cut of, my strength wolde go frō me, and I shuld become, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe he had vttered vnto her all his hert, she sent for the Philistines, sayenge: come vp yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his hert.

Numeri vi.a. Judi.xiii.a

E Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the moneye in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, and sente for a barbar, & cut of the seuen lockes of his heed and began to vexe him, and to thrust him frō her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go out as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed frome him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him downe to Gaza, and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the hearre of his hed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, to offer a solemne offringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath betaken Samson our enemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified their God: for they sayd, our god hath geuen into our handes our enemy, which destroyed our countrey and slewe many of vs. And when their hertes were mery, they sayde: sende for Samson and let him playe before vs. So they let Samson oute of the prysonhouse, who played before them, & they set him betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that led him by the hande: set me that I may touche the pyllers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was ful furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouse there were about thre thousand men and women, that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two myddell pyllers on whiche the house stode, the one in his right hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my lyfe perisshe with the Philistines, and bowed them with myght. And ‡ house fell vpon ‡ lordes, & vpō all the people ‡ were therein. And so the dede which he slew at his deth, were mo then they which he slew in his life. And then his brethre & all ‡ house of his father came downe, & toke him vp, & brought, and buryed him, betwene Zarah and Eſthaol, in the buryenge place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Iſraell twenty yeres.

¶ Of Michas whose mother made him an Idoll of syluer. Of the younge preest of the lynage of Leui of Bethlehem.

CAPI. XVII.

A THere was a man in mounte Ephraim, named Michas, whiche sayde vnto his mother: the .xi. hundred syluerlynges that were taken from the, about which thou cursedst in myne eares: Beholde the syluer is with me, for I take it awaye. Then sayd his mother, blessed be thou my son in the Lorde. And so he restored .xi. hundred syluerlynges to his mother agayne. And his mother sayde: I vowed the syluer vnto the Lorde that my sonne shulde take it, of myne hande: to make a grauen Image and an Image of metall. Nowe therfore I render it the agayne. And he restored the money agayne vnto his mother.

B Then his mother toke two hundred syluerlynges and put them to a goldsmith, to make therof a grauen ymage and a molten ymage, which remayned in the house of Michas, who also made a chapell of gods, and made an Ephod and ymages, and filled the hand of one of his sonnes which became his preest. For in those dayes there was no kynge in Israell, but euery man dyd as he thought beu.

Ephod is a preestes apparell.

C And there was also an other a younge man of Bethlehem Juda, amonges the kynredes of Juda: and he was a Leuite and solourned there. And the yonge man departed out of the cytie of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where myght be most commodyous for him. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the house of Michas as he tourneyed. And Michas sayde vnto him, Whence comest thou? and the Leuite answered him: I am of Bethleyl Juda and go to dwell where I maye fynde a mooste mete place. And Michas sayde vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preest. And I wyll gyue the ten sheelynges by yere and double apparell and meat and drinke.

Judi.xviii.a and xix.b

D So the Leuite went and dwelled with the man, and was vnto him as dere as one of his owne sonnes. And Michas fylled the hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his preest, and contynued in his house, and sayde now I am sure that the Lorde wyll be good vnto me, sythens I haue a Leuite to my preest.

¶ The children of Dan take the goddes & the preest of Michas awaye. They destroye Lais, and buylde it agayne, and name it Dan.

CAPI. XVIII.

A IN those dayes there was no kynge in Israell. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, for vntil that tyme there fell none enheritaunce vnto them amonges the tribe of Israell. And the children of Dan sent forthe of their kynredes fyue men of actiuite, out of their coostes euen out of Zarah and Eſthaol, to bewey lande and searche it out, and sayde vnto the: go and searche out the lande. And they came to mount Ephraim, vnto the house of Michas and lodged there. And when they were come vnto his house, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, whose lodgyng they vsed, and sayde vnto him: Who brought the hyther? what makest thou in this place? why arte thou come hyther? And he sayd vnto the, thus and thus dealeth Michas with me, and hath hyred me to be his preest. And they sayd vnto him: Aske of God we praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye we go, shalbe prosperous, & whether the thinge shall take effecte. And the preest sayde vnto them: go in peas, the Lorde regardeth your waye & the iourney whiche ye go.

Dan.

Josue.x.b

E Then the fyue men departed and came to Lais, and sawe the people there dwellynge carelesse, and after the maner of the Sidons, stille, and without castinge of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande or wrapped any wemmon, and howe they were farre from the Sidons and had no medlynge with any nacion. And they came vnto them bythe to Zarah, and Eſthaol. And their brethren sayde vnto them: what tydinges bring you?

F And they sayde, aryse and let vs goo vnto them, for we haue sene the lande, and it is verye good. Hasten you therfore, and be not slouthfull to departe, and to come & conquere the lande: ye shall come vnto a people that feareth no parels, and vnto a large countrey: for God hath gyuē into your hādes a place where is no lacke of any thinge in the worlde.

G Then departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, out of Zarah and Eſthaol, vi. hundred men appointed in habilimētes of warre. And they went and pyched in Kariath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Mahanah Dan vnto this daye, which is on the backesyde of Kariath Jarim. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas house. Then answered the fyue men that went to espye out the countrey of Lais, and sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod and Images, and a grauen Image, and a molten Image? Loke therfore consyder, what ye haue to do.

H And they turned thytherward and came to the house of the young man the Leuite in the house of Michas, and saluted him peasably. And the. vi. hundred men wel kensed with weapons of warre which were of the children of Dan, stode in the entetinge of the gate. And the fyue men that went to espye out the land went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, & the Ephod, and the molten Image. And the preest stode in the enterynge of the gate with the sixe hundred men, that were armed vnto battayle, whyle the other went to Michas house, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephod the kerued Image, and the Image of metall. Then sayde the preest vnto them: what do ye? and they answered him, kepe silence, & + put thyne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a preest, whether is it better for the to be a preest vnto the house of one man, or to be preest vnto a tribe or kynred in Israell? And the preest was glad and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and wente with the people. And they turned and departed, & put the children, the cattell and their costlye thinges before them.

I When they were a good waye fromе the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the children of Dā and called vnto theym. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Michas, what ayleth the, that thou makest this outcrye? And he sayde, ye haue taken awaye my goddes which I made and also the preest, and go your wayes with them: And what haue I more, howe then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the children of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voyce be herde amonges vs, lest angry fellowes run vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne housholde also.

K And so the children of Dan wēt their wayes. And when Michas sawe they were to strong for him, he returned vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Michas had made, and the preest which he had, and went vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mystrust, and smote them in the edge of the swerde, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre fromе Sidon, and they had none affaires with any other nacyon. And the cytie stode in the valleye that lyeth by Bethzehob. And they buylt the cytie and dwelt therin.

L * And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father which was sonne vnto Israell. Howbe it in vnto dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynninge.

M And the children of Dan set theym vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the preestes vnto the tribe of the Danites, tyll they were caried awaye out of the lande prysonners. And they set theym vp the kerued Image whiche Michas made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Silo. In those dayes was no kynge in Israell.

¶ Of the Leuite whose wyfe was vyllanously kylled in Gabaah. She is diuyded in to .xii. partes and sent to euery tribe of Israel a pece.

CAPI. XIX.

A And a certen Leuyte dwellynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the hore in his house and went awaye fromе him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there contynued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speke frendly vnto her and to bringe her home agayne, and his ladde with him & a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe him, he reioysed of his commynge. And the Leuite abode with his father in lawe thre dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

B The fourth daye the younge man arose early in the morning, and wolde haue departed. But the damoselles father sayd vnto his son in lawe, comforte thyne herte with a morsell of breed, and then goo youre waye. And they sate downe and dyd eate and drinke both of them togyther. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, goo to, I praye the and tary all nyght and let thyne hert be mery.

Ecclesiast.xxvii.a Psalm.cxxi.b.

C Howbe it the man stode vp to departe: but his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne and to tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fyfth daye to departe. Then sayde the damoselles father, comforte thyne herte: and so made him tarye tyll after myddaye: & they dyd eate both of them togither.

D And then the mā arose to departe with his wyfe and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto him, behold the daye goeth fast awaye and drayeth towarde nyght, tary all nyght: at least tarye this daye here, and let thyne hert be mery.

E And to morowe get you early on your waye and get the to thy tent. Neuertheles the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, which is Jerusalem and his two asses laden, and his concubyne, and his lad with him. And when they were fall by Jebus, the daye was sore spent and the younge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the and let vs turne into this cytie of Jebusytes and lodge all nyght there. But his master sayde vnto him, we will not turne into a straunge cytie that are not of the children of Israell: we wyll go forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyght in Gabaah or in Ramah.

F And they went forth on their iourney, and the Sonne wente downe vpon theym when they were fast by Gabaah which is in Ben Jamin. So they turned thytherward to go and lodge all nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in they sat them downe in a strete of the cytie, for no man wolde take theym in, to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man fromе his worke, out of the feldes at euen whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and dwelt a straunger in Gabaah, for the men of the place, were of the children of Jemini. And when he had lift vp his eyen, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the stretes of the cytie, he sayd: whether goest thou? And whence commeste thou? And the other answered him, we come fromе Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: fromе thence am I, and went to Bethell Juda, and go now to the house of God. But there is no man that receyueth me to housing: yet I haue straw and prouender for our asses and bred and wyne for me and thy handmayd and thy lad that are with thy seruaunte, and lacke nothinge but lodgynge.

G The olde man sayde, prayde with the, all that thou lackest shalte thou fynde with me:

F only remayne not in ꝑ ſtreates all nyght, and
be brought him into his houſe, and gaue fodder
vnto his aſſes, And they waſhed theyr

were makynge good chere, the men of the cytye whiche were wycked, ſet the houſe rounde aboute, and thruſt at the doze, and ſpake to the good man of the houſe, ſayinge: bringe
forthe the man that came in to thyne houſe,
that we maye playe buggery with him.

But the man of the houſe went out to the,

vpon the threſſholde. And he ſayde vnto her:
aryſe and let vs be gorynge. But ſhe anſwered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an Aſſe & rode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto his houſe, he toke a

¶ The battayle of all the Iſraelites againſte the tribe of Beniamin for the Lewites wyfe ſlayne.

CAPI. XX.

THen all the children of Iſraell wente
A out, and there gathered a company to-Oſee.x.c gether, as it hadde ben but one man, euen frome Dan to Berſeba, and out of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Maꝛ-phah / and there rode folke oute of all quarters of all the tribes of Iſraell in the aſſemblie of the people of God, four hundred thou ſande foote men that drewe ſwerdes. And the children of Benjamin herde that the children of Iſrael were gone vp to Maꝛphah.
Then ſayd the children of Iſrael, tell vs how this wickednelle happened. And the Lewite the ſlayne womans huſbande anſwered and ſayd: I came in to Gabaah in Benjamin wi
my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the ci-tezens of Gabaah arose againſt me, and beſet
the houſe rounde about me by nyght, & thought to haue ſlayne me: but they caught my conc bine and forced her, that ſhe dyed. Wherfore
I toke my concubine and cut her in peces, an ſent her thrꝛow out all the landes of the inheritaunce of Iſraell. For they haue done aomination and folly in Iſraell. Beholde, ye are all children of Iſraell. Conſyder therfore, and gyue youre aduyſe in the caſe. Then all the people arose, as it had bene one man, ſay-
enge: there ſhall not one of vs go to his tent, ne turne in to his houſe. And now this is it
we will do to Gabaah and caſt lottes againſt
it. And we will take ten men of the hundꝛed thrꝛow out all the tribes of Iſraell, and an hundꝛed of the thouſande, and a thouſande of the ten thouſande, to fet vitayle for the people, to make that they maye goo againſt Gabaah Ben Jamin, accordinge to all the folye, that they haue wrought in Iſraell. And ſo all the men of Iſraell aſſembled vnto Gabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Iſraell ſent men thrꝛow all the tribe of Ben Jamin, ſayenge: What wickednelle is this,
that is happened amonges you? Now thꝛfore delyuer vs the men, thoſe wycked wre-ches of Gabaah to thintent we maye ſlee them
and put awaye euell frome Iſraell.

Neuertheleſſe the children of Benjamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of their brethren the children of Iſraell: but muſtred
out of the cyties vnto Gabaah, to come oute in batayle againſt the children of Iſrael. And the children of Benjamin were recounted at that tyme, oute of the cyties. xxvi. thouſande
men that drewe ſwerdes beſyde the inhabitauntes of Gabaah, which were nombꝛed ſeuen hundꝛed pyked men. And amonges all theſe folkes were ſeuen hundꝛed nymble han ded men, which euery one could ſlynge ſtones at an heare bꝛeadth, and not myſſe. And the children of Iſraell beſyde the children of Ben Jamin, were nombꝛed at foure hundꝛed thou ſande men that drew ſwerdes, and all men of warre.

And the children of Iſraell arose and went vp to Bethell, and aſked of God, who ſhuld
begyn the battell againſt the children of Ben Jamin, and the Lorde ſayd Juda ſhall be your capitayne. And the children of Iſrael roſe vp early and beſeged Gabaah. And the men of Iſraell went out to battell againſt Ben Jamin, and put theym ſelues in araye againſt them, to fight againſt Gabaah. And the children of Benjamin came out of Gabaah and deſtroyed in Iſraell that daye. xxii. thouſande men, and brought them to the grounde. And the folke of the children of Iſraell plucked vp their hertes, and yet eſtſones made battell in
the ſame place where they dyd the firſt daye:
but they went firſte vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and aſked of the Lorde, ſay-
enge: ſhall we go agayne to battell againſt children of Benjamin our brethren? And the Lorde ſayde: go vp vnto them, when the chil dren of Iſraell were come to the children of Benjamin the ſeconde daye, the children of Beniamin went agaynſte theym out of Gabaah,

baah, the ſecond day, and deſtroyed to the erth
of the chyldren of Iſrael ones agayne, xviij.
thouſande men that drewe ſwerdes euerye
man of theym.

Then the chyldren of Iſrael and all the people went vp and came vnto goddes houſe
and wept and ſat there before the Lorde, and faſted the ſame daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges and peax offerynges before the Lord. And they aſked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntment of God, in thoſe dayes. And Phinches the ſonne of Eleazar, the ſonne of Aaron attendinge vpon it
at that tyme: and they ſayde, ſhall we go out
ony more to battel againſt the children of Be Jamin our brethren, or ſhall we ceaſe? And I the Lorde ſayde go: for to morowe I wyll de-lyuer them into your handes. And Iſrael ſet
a pryuy watche againſt Gabaah roundabout
And the children of Iſrael went againſte the children of Ben Jamin the thirde tyme, and put them ſelues in araye againſt Gabaah, as they had done twyſe before. Then came the children of Ben Jamin againſte the people of Iſrael, and they were drawen a great waye frome the cytie. And they began to ſmyte of the people and wounded theym (as they dyd
twyſe before, ſo that Iſrael fled by two bye wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethell and the other to Gabaah thrꝛowe the feelde) and ſlewe vpon a thyrtye men of Iſrael. For the children of Ben Jamin thought that the other
had bene beaten before theym, as at the firſte tyme. But the children of Iſrael ſayde, let vs flee and plucke theym awaye frome the cytie,
vnto the hyghe wayes.

And then all the men of Iſrael roſe vp out of their ſtandynge, and put them ſelues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykewiſe the ly-ers in wayte of Iſrael came forth oute of their places, out of the medowes of Gabaah, and came before Gabaah: ten thouſande choſen
men out of al Iſrael, & there was a ſtrong bat tayle. But the other wyſt not that euyll was nygh theym. And the Lorde plaged Ben-Jamin before Iſrael, ſo that the chyldren of Iſrael deſtroyed in Beniamin the ſame daye
xxv. thouſande and a hundꝛed men, that drew ſwerdes euery one of theym. The chyldren of I Beniamin when they did ſe that they ſhulde be beaten downe began to flee. And the men of Iſrael gaue rome to Ben Jamen, becauſe
they truſted vnto the layers in wayte whiche
they had layd againſt Gabaah. And the layers in wayte haſted and ran out of their holes
vpon Gabaah, and went and ſmote al the citye with the edge of the ſwerde. And they of Iſrael gaue the preuye watche their watcheworde that as ſone as they hadde taken the cytye they ſhulde kyndle it, that by the ſmoke
they ſhulde ſhew that the cytye was wonne.
And the men of Iſrael fled in the battayle.
And Ben Jamin began to ſmyte deed of the chil dren of Iſrael, aboute thirtye perſonnes, for they ſuppoſed that as before had ben put to them before them, and in the firſt battell. The began to aryſe out of the cytie a pyller of ſmoke
And the Ben Jamites lokede backe: & beholde
the waſtynge of the hole cytye began to aſcende to heuen.

Then the men of Iſrael turned agayne, and the men of Ben Jamin were abaſſhed / for they ſawe that euyl approched them. And they fled before the men of Iſrael vnto the way that ledeth to the wyldrenes, the other folowing the
at the harde heles. And beſide that their pertakers of their cities aboute them were ſlayne in the ſame place. And they compaſſed Ben Jami and chaſed them to Menuah / and ouertranne
them before Gabaah on the eaſt ſide / and there were ſlayne of Ben Jamin. xviij. thouſande, and all men of might. And they turned and fledde towardes the wyldernelle, and vnto the rocke of pomegarnettes. And the other ſlewe by the waye of the reſte of them, fyue thouſande men / and ſtycked vnto them vntyll they came to Gadaam, and ſlewe two thouſande mo
of them / ſo that al that were ſlayne that ſame
daye of Ben Jamin, were. xxv. thouſande men
that drewe ſwerdes / and all men of myghte;
onely ſixe hundꝛed men tourned and fledde to
the wyldernelle, vnto the rocke of pomegernettes, and abode there foure monethes. And then the men of Iſrael tourned backe agayne
vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin / and ſmote
them with the edge of the ſwerde in the cities
bothe man and beaſte, and all that came to hande / and moreouer ſette all the cityes they couldе come by on fire.

¶ The tribe of Ben Jamin whiche was deſtroyed
for their tourmentation with the Lewites wyfe: is reſtoꝛed agayne.

CAPI. XXI.

AND the men of Iſraell ſware in Maz- A phah, ſaying / there ſhal none of vs giue
his doughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God / and lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte ſore, and ſayd. O Lorde God of Iſrael, why is this chaunced in Iſrael, that there ſholde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Iſrael? And on the morowe the people arose early, and made there an aulter, & offered burnt offerynges and prateofferinges.

And the children of Iſrael aſked who are they amonges al the tribes of Iſrael that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lord / for they had made a great othe concernynge them that came not vp to the Lord to Maꝛphah, ſayinge
they ſholde ſurely dye. And the children of Iſ-rael had pitye on Ben Jamin their brethre, and ſayd / there is one tribe cut of from Iſrael this day: what ſhal we do vnto the reſt of them, to get the wiues, for as moch as we haue ſworne
by the Lorde, that we will not gyue them any of our doughters to wyues. Then they ſayde / what are they of the tribes of Iſrael that came not vp to Maꝛphah to the Lord? And beholde
there came none of the inhabitant / of Jabes Ga
laad vnto the congregacion. So when the people were bewed / beholde there were none of the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion ſent thyther. xij. thouſande men of the ſtrongeſt of them, and commaunded the,

sayenge: Go and smyte the enhabitauntes of *Num.xxxi.c Jabes Galaad, with the edge of the swerde
as well women as chyldren, * And this is that ye shall do: vtterlye destroye all the males and al the women that haue lyen by men.
And they founde amonge the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad foure hundred damselles virgynes that hadde knowen no man by lyenge
with any male. And they brought them vnto
the host to Silob which is in the lande of Ca naan. And the hole congregacion sent & spake with the chyldren of Benjamin that were in Judi.xx.c the rocke of Pomgarnettes, and called peasa-
bly vnto them, and Benjamin came agayne
at that tyme, and they gaue them the wemen
which they had saued a lyue of the wemen of Jabes Galaad. But they so sufficed them not.
And the people had compassion on Benjamin because that God had made a gappe in the try bes of Israell. And then the elders of the con gregacion sayde: What shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seing
all the wyues of Benjamin are destroyed?
And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce
for them that be escaped of Benjamin that a tryde be not destroyed oute of Israell: howe be it, we maye not gyue theym wyues of our doughters. For the chyldren of Israell hadde made an adiuracion, sayeng: cursed be he that gyueth a wyfe to Benjamin. Then they said Beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde yerely
in Silob which is on the northsyde of Bethel
and on the eastsyde of the waye that goeth
frome Bethel to Sichem, and south frome Libanon. And they commaunded the childre of Benjamin, sayenge: go and lye in awayte
in the vyneyardes. And when ye se the dough
ters of Silob come forth to daunce in a rewe,
then come ye out of the vyneyardes, & catche
you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Si
lob, and get you vnto the land of Benjamin.
And yf their fathers or brethren come vnto vs
to complayne, we will saye vnto them, haue pytie on theym, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & moy-
ouer because ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd accordyngly: and toke them wynes after the nombre of the daunces whiche
they caught. And that done they went and re tourned vnto their enheritaunce, and buylte
there cyties and dwelt in them.

And the chyldren of Israell went thence at that tyme euery one to his tryde, and to his kynred, and departed thence euery man to his enheritaunce. In those dayes there was no
kynge in Israell:
but euery man dyd what semed hym
good.

THE BOOKE OF RVTH.

¶ Elimelec goth with his wyfe and chyldren in to the lande of Moab. After his death his wyfe Noemi returneth agayn in to her countrey, and with her with her daughter in lawe.

CAPI. I.

1 IN the tyme when the Judges iudged, there felle a derth in the lande. Wherfore a certayne man of Bethlehem Juda went to sotourne in the countreye of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi / and the names of his two sonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, and were Ephrates of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came in to the lande of Moab, they abode there. And Elimelec Noemis husbande dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, whiche toke them wyues of the nations of the Moabites: the ones name Orphah, and thothers Ruth. And when they had dwelled there aboute the space of ten yeres, Mahalon and Chilion dyed, so that the wyfe was bereued of her two sonnes, and of her husbande also. Then she rose vp with her
2 doughters in lawe, and returned frome the countrey of Moab / for she had herde saye, being in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, and gyuen them fode. Wherfore she departed forthe of the place where she was and her two doughters togy-ther with her. And as they wente by the waye returnynge vnto the lande of Juda, Noemi sayd vnto her two doughters in lawe: Goo and returne eyther of you vnto your mothers house, the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealte with the ded, and with me. And the Lorde graunte you maye fynde reste eyther of you in the house of youre husbande: and so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte, and sayd vnto her, we will go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne agayne my doughters / for
L what cause wolde ye goo with me? thynke you there be any moze chyldren in my bowels to be your husbandes? Tourne agayne (my doughters) and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande / also yf I toke a man this nyght: yea, thoughe I hadde alredye borne sonnes / wolde ye tarye for them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for them so longe refrayne frome takynge of husbandes? Not so, my doughters: for then ye shoulde be to olde to marye, and it greueth me moche for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone oute agaynste me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne / how be it, Orphah kyssed her mother in lawe and departed / but Ruth abode styll by her, then she sayde / se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people, and vnto her God: returne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to retourne frome the / for whyther thou goest, I wyll goo / and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I will dye, and there wyll be buryed. The Lorde do so and so to me / excepte that deathe onely departe the and me asonder.

When she sawe she wolde nedes goo with D
her, she lefte speakynge vnto her / and so they went bothe togyther, tyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed thorow all the cyte, and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them / call me not ✠ Noemi / call me ✠ Mara, for the almyghtye hath made me verye bytter. I wente oute full, but the Lorde hathe brought me home emptye. Why holde ye then call me Noemi, seinge the Lorde hath brought me low, & the almighty hath brought me vnto aduersitie. And the tyme when Noemi with Ruth the Moabitesse her doughter Tobyell.i in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begin-nynge of barley haruest.

✠ Noemi is sayde.
✠ Mara bytter.

¶ Ruth leseth corne in the feldes of Booz and fin deth fauoure in his syght.

CAPI. II.

AND Noemi had a kynsman of her hus-banndes, a man of mygthe, of the kynred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Noemi / let me goo to the felde and lease and gather eares, after whome so euer I kynde grace in his syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my doughter And she wente, and came and gathered after the haruest men, and her chaunce was to ga-ther in the felde that pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And be-holde, Booz came from Bethlehem and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lorde blesse the. Then sayd Booz vnto the yong man that had the ouersyght of the haruest men. Whose da-mosell is this? And the yonge man that was set to ouerse the haruest men answered & sayd: B
Je is the Moabitysh damosel that came with Noemi oute of the countreye of Moab / and we sayde: lette me I praye the, lease and ga-ther after the haruest men the eares that re-mayne. And so she came and hathe contynued euen from the morynge vnto nowe / & weute not ones home.

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: goo to none other felde to ga-ther, neyther go frome hence, but abyde by my maydēs. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shall be reped: goo after the maydens therfore / for I haue charged the younge men that they touche the not. Moreouer when thou arte a thyrst, go vnto thy vessels and drynke of that whiche the laddes haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, and * bowed her selfe to ꝑ ground Gene.xxxiii.b

and sayde vnto him: howe is it / that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an alien.

And Booz answered and sayd vnto her: all is tolde me that thou hast done to thy mother in lawe sence the deathe of thyne husbande, howe thou hast lefte thy father and thy mother, and the land where thou wast borne, and arte come vnto a nacion whiche thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde reacquyte thy worke, and a full rewarde be gyuen the of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come, to reuste vnder his wynges. Then she sayde vnto hym / lette me fynde fauoure in thy syght (my Lorde) for thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken iuetely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydes. And Booz when tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto her: come hyther and eate of the breed, and dyppe thy soppe in the vynegre. And she sate downe by the reapers, and he raught her * parched corne. And so she dyd eate and was fylled, and lefte parte. And when she was risen vp to gather, Booz sayde to the ponge men, sayinge: let her gather eye eares that remayne, and wo hre no dcrypre. And therto pull out of the sheues for her, and let it lye, that she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered tyll euen, and then threshed that she had gathered, and it was vpon an Epha of barleye. And she toke it vp and went to the cuye, and shewed her mother in lawe what she had gathered. And therto she plucked oute and gaue to her that she had reserued when she had eaten ynough. Then said her mother in law vnto her, where gatheredst thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed her mother in lawe with whome she had wrought, and sayde: the mans name with whome I wrought to daye, is Booz. Then sayd Noemi vnto her doughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the dead, that he did to the liuing. And Noemi sayd vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabyte said: he bad me also / I shold continue with his ponge men, vntyl they had ended all the haruest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her doughter in lawe, it is best my doughter that thou goo oute with his maydens, and that no man mete the in anye other felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barleye haruest and of whete haruest also, and returned to her mother in lawe.

¶ Ruth stoopeth at Booz fete, and is knowen his kynswoman.

CAPI. III.

THen Noemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my doughter I wyll seke reste for the, that thou mayste be in better state. For nowe this Booz our kynsman, with whose maydens thou waste, wynneweth his barleye to nyghte in the threshynge floure: washe thy selfe therfore and anoynte the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But lette not the man be ware of the, tyll he haue lefte eatynge and drynkynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his fete, and laye the downe / and so shal he tel the what thou shalt do. And she answered her / all that thou byddest me, I wyll doo. So she went vnto the floure, and dyd all that her mother in lawe bad her. And when Booz had eaten and dronken, and made hym merye, he went and lay downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softlye and lyfte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe / and at mynyght the man was afrayde and groped / and beholde, a woman laye at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? and she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde / sprede thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nerre of the kynne. And then he said, blessed be thou in ỹ Lorde (my wughter) for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge / in as moche as thou folowedst not ponge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And now (my wughter feare not, I wyll do to the all that thou requyrest / for al within the gates of this citye knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kynne / how be it, there is one nere then I. Tarye all nyght, and when morning is come, yf he will mary the, wel and good / let him so do. But if he wil not haue the, as sure as the Lord lyueth, I wil haue the / lye styl tyl the morninge / and so she laye at his fete tyll ỹ morning. And she arose vp before one could know an other. And he said / let no man know that there came any woman in to ỹ threshing floure. And he sayd bringe the mantell ỹ thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp / and she held it vp. And he met in sixe measures of barleye and layde it on her. And she gat her in to the cuye, and came to her mother in lawe whiche sayd / what tydynges, my doughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said moreouer, these sixe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not go empteye vn to thy mother in law. The said she, my wughter sye styll, vntyll thou knowe how the mater wyl procede. For the man wil not be in rest tyl he haue ended the mater this same daye.

¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begetteth Obed.

CAPI. IIII.

THen wente Booz vnto the gate, and sat him downe there: and beholde, the kynsman of whiche Booz spake came by. Vnto whome he sayd: come and sye downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and sate downe. Then he toke tenne men of the elders of the cuye, and sayd / sye ye downe here. And they sat downe. Then he sayd vnto the kynsman: Noemi that is come agayn out of the countreye of Moab, wyll sell a parte of lande whiche was our brother Elimeleks. And I thought to doo the to were, and bydde the bye it before the inhabytoures and elders of my people / yf thou be disposed to calenge it, for thou arte nerre of kynred: but yf thou wylt not purchase it, then tell me, that I may were it. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered I wyll purchase it.

Then sayd Booz / what daye thou byest the felde of the hande of Noemi, thou muste take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the deed, to stere vp the name of thy sted kynsman vpon his inheritaunce. Then sayd the kynsman / I can not purchase it for marrynge of my owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to lese my ryghte here. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concernynge purches and chaungynge, for to stablysshe all thynge: that a man muste plucke of his shoo and gyue it his neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel. Ruth.

And the kynsman said to Booz / bye it thou: and so drewe of his shoo. Then sayd Booz vn to the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimeleks, and all that was Chilions and Mahelons, of the hande of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabyte the wyfe of Mahelon, doo I take vnto me to wyfe, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his inheritaunce, that his name be not put forth among his brethren, and frome the gate of his cuye: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, ỹ the elders sayd, we are wytnesses: the Lorde make ỹ woman that is come in to thyne house lyke Rachel & Lea, whiche twayne did buylde the house of Israel, that she maye wo vertuously in Ephrathah, and be famous in Bethlehem, and that thyne house be lyke the house of Phares, whome Thamar bare vnto Iuda, euen of the seed whiche the Lorde shall gyue the of this ponge woman. And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he lay with her, and the Lord gaue that she conceyued and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, whiche hath not left the without an heyre this daye, that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shall bryng thy lyfe agayne, and cherysshe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law which louyth the, hath borne him that is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the chylde and layde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghboures gaue her a name, sayinge / there is a chylde borne to Noemi, & called it Obed: he is the father of Iesai, the father of Dauid. Gene.xxxviii

¶ Thus endeth the boke of Ruth.

THE FIRST BOKE OF SAMVEL CALLED THE FIRST BOKE OF THE KYNGES.

¶ Elkanah hath two wiues, Hannah and Phenennah. Phenennah vpbrayeth Hannah because she is childelesse. Hannah after prayer made to God, bringeth forth Samuel.

CAPI. I.

THere was a man of Ramathaim Zophim, of mount Ephraim named Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sonne of Thohu, the sonne of Zuph an Ephrathyte, which had two wiues, whose one called Hannah, thother Phenennah. And Phenennah had children but Hannah had none. And the same man went out of his citye euery feast daye, to praye and to offre vnto the Lord of hostes: where ¶ two sonnes of Eli (Hophni and Phinehes) were the Lordes Priestes. And it fell on a daye as Elkanah had offered that he gaue to Phenennah his wyfe, and to all her sonnes and doughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue an honourable portion with a heuye chere, for he loued her/ neuertheles the Lorde had made her barayn. And ther to her enemye Phenennah vexed her sore, casting her in the teethe how the Lorde had made her barayn. And so dyd she yere by yere as ofte as she went vp to the house of the Lorde. And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wept, and ate not. Then sayd Elkanah her husbande to her. Hannah, why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thyne hert so troubled? am not I better to the then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose vp after that they had eate, and dronke in Silo. And Eli the Priest sate vpon a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her spirites, and prayed vnto the Lorde & wept sore/ and vowed a vowe and sayd. Lorde of hostes yf thou wylt loke on ¶ wretchednesse of thyne handmayde, and thinke remembre me and not forget thyne handmayde, and thinke gyue vnto thyne handmayde a man chylde, I wyl giue him vnto the Lorde all the dayes of his lyfe, and there shall neyther rasor or sheres come vpon his heed. And she continued prayinge before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouthe. For Hannah she spake in her herte, and her lippes dyd but moue only, but her voyce was not heerde. And therfore Eli toke her for dronken and sayd vnto her/ howe longe wylte thou be dronken? put awaye frome the, the wyne that thou hast. Hannah answered and sayde: not so my Lorde/ I am a woman sorowfull in myne herte, and haue dronke neyther wyne nor anye stronge drynke/ but I haue powred out my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handmayde to be lyke a doughter of vnthryftynesse/ for oute of the aboundaunce of my meditation and grefe haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered and said: go in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt ¶ thy petition that thou hast asked of him. Then she sayde/ lette thyne handmayde fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eat and loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp early and bowed them selues before the Lord, and then returned and went to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah laye by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her. And in processe of time she conceyued and bare a son, and called his name * Samuel: because he sayde asked him of the Lorde. And Elkanah and all his house wente vp to offer vnto the Lorde yerlye the offeringes due for the frute and also his vowes: but Hannah went not vp for she sayde vnto her husbande: I wyll tarye vntyll the chylde be wened, and then I wyll bringe him, that he may appeare before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer. And Elkanah her husbande sayd to her: do what semeth the beste: tary tyl thou hast wened him, onely the Lorde make good his sayinge. And so the women abode and gaue her sonne suck, tyll she wened him. And then she toke him with her, when she had wened him, with three bullockes and an Epha of floure and a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto the house of the Lorde in Silo. Howbeit the chylde was yet younge. And they slewe the bullockes and brought in the chylde to Eli, & then she sayd: Oh my Lorde: as truelye as thy soule lyueth my Lorde: I am the woman that stode by the here, prayinge vnto the Lorde and for this chylde I prayed, and the Lorde hath gyue me my desyre whiche I asked of him: and therfore I also lend him the Lorde, as longe as he maye be lent the Lorde. And so they prayed there vnto the Lorde.

¶ The songe of Hannah. The offences of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vnmeasurable wickednesse of his children.

CAPI. II.

ANd Hannah prayed and sayde: myne heert reioyseth in the Lord, myne horne is hyghe in the Lorde, and my mouthe is wyde open ouer myne enemyes/ for I reioyce in that thou hast deliuered me. There is none so holye as the Lorde: no there is none saue thou. Neither is there any strengthe like vnto our God. Talke not so moche proudly, let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and by him are counsels prepared. The bowes of the stronge are broken: and the weake are girded with strengthe. They that were full haue hyred them selues for breed, and they that were hungry are satisfied/ in so moche that the barayn hathe borne seuen/ and she that hadde many children is waxed feble. The Lorde killeth and maketh aliue/ bringeth downe to helle, and fetcheth vp againe. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh ryche/ bringeth lowe, and heaueth vp on hye. He rayseth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the begger from the donge hylle, to set them amonge princes, and to enherite them with the seate of glory. For the pylers of the erthe are the Lordes, & he hathe sette the rounde worlde vpon them. He wyll kepe the feete of his holye, but the wycked shall kepe silence in darknesse. For in his awne myghte shall no man be stronge. The Lordes aduersaryes shall be made to feare him/ and oute of heuen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the borders of the worlde, and shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkanah wente to Ramath to his house, & the chylde did ministre vnto the Lord before Eli the preest.

But the sonnes of Eli were the sonnes of Belial, and knewe not the Lorde. For the maner of the preestes with the people was/ when ¶ euer anye man offered anye offeringes, the preestes lad came whyle the flesh was sething, and a fleshe hoke with three teethe in his hande, and thrust it in to the panne, kettle, caldron, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke brought vp, the preest toke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thyther to Silo. Yea and moreouer before they had offered the fat, the preestes lad came and sayd to the man that offred: gyue fleshe to rost for the preest/ for he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the but rawe. And yf any man sayd vnto him, let the fat be offred accordynge to the custome of the daye, and then take as moche as thyne herte desyreth. The lad wolde answere him, thou shalte gyue it me now, or els I wyl take it parforce. And the synne of the yonge men was verye greate before the Lorde. For they hyndred the peoples deuotion from offeryng vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuel ministred before the Lorde girded about with a lynnen Ephod. Moreouer his mother made him a lytle cote, and broughte it to him frome yeare to yeare when she came vp with her husbande to offre the offeryng of the sayde feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for that she hathe lente the Lorde. And they went vnto their owne house. And the Lorde vysyted Hannah, so that she conceyued and bare three sonnes and two doughters. But the chylde Samuel grewe, dwellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was verye olde and herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, and how they slept with the women that wayted in the doze of ¶ tabernacle of witnesse, & sayd vnto them/ why doye suche thynges? For I heare youre wycked dedes of al these people. Oh naye my sonnes, for it is no good reapporte that I heare, howe ye make the Lordes people to trespace. If one man synne agaynst an other, daysemen maye make his peace: but yf a man synne agaynst the Lorde, who can be his daysman? Notwythstandynge they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lorde wolde slee them. The chylde Samuel profited and grewe, and was in fauour bothe with the Lorde, and also with men.

And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto him/ thus sayth the Lorde. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father forthe of all the trybes of Israel, to be my preest for to offre vpon myne aulter, and to burne incense, and to were an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offeringes of the children of Israel. Wherfore kycke ye against my sacrifice and against myne offeryng whiche I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honourest thy children aboue me/ and make youre selues fatte of the fyrste frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people? Wherfore the Lord God of Israel sayth: I sayd that thyne house and the house of thy father shulde haue walked before me for euer. But nowe the Lorde sayeth that be farre from me/ for them that worshyp me, I wyll worshyp/ and they that despyse me, shall be despysed. * Beholde the dayes wyll come that I wyll cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house/ that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalte se thyne enemye in the tabernacle, in all that shall please Israel/ and there shall not be an elder in thyne house wyple the worlde standeth. Neuertheles I wyll not destroye all thy males from my aulter, to dase thy syght with all, and to make thyne herte melte. And all the multitude of thyne house shall dye yonge.

And this shall be a sygne vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes: euen in one daye eyther of them shall dye. And I wyll stere me vp a faythfull preest, that shall do after myne herte, and in my mynde/ and I wyll buylde him a sure house, and he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lefte in thyne house, shall come and crouche to him for a lytle pece of syluer, and a cake of bread/ and shal saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amonge the preestes, that I maye eate a morsell of bread.

¶ After the Lord had left to appeare by open vision in Silo for a long season: he cal eth Samuel in dremes, and sheweth him what shulde be fall on Heli.

CAPI. III.

AND the chylde Samuel ministred vnto the Lorde before Heli/ and the worde of the Lorde was derye in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme that Heli laye in his place, and his eyen beganne to waxe dymme that he couldo not se. And er the lampe of God went out, Samuel layde him downe to slepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the arcke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel/ and he sayd, here am I, and he ran vnto Heli & sayd/ here am I, for thou calledst me. But he sayde I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he went and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called ones agayne Samuel/ and Samuel

Samuel arose and went to Heli and said: I am here, thou diddest call me. And he answered I called thee not, my sonne/go agayn and take thy rest. But as yet Samuel knew not ℣ Lorde neither was the worde of the Lord opened vnto him. And the Lord proceeded and called Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Heli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Heli perceyued that the Lorde had called the chylde, and sayd vnto him/go & lye downe, and yf he call the agayne, then say speake on Lorde, for thy seruaunt heareth. And Samuel went & layd him downe in his place. And the Lord came and stode and called as afore, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel sayde/ speke on, for thy seruaunt heareth the. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel: beholde, I wyll do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I wil performe to Heli all that I haue spoken concernynge his house: I wyll begyn it and ende it. For I haue told him that I wyll iudge his house for euer. For the wyckednes wherof he knoweth howe his sonnes are vngracyous/ and he chastised theym not. And therfore I haue swoorne vnto the house of Heli, that the wyckednesse of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offeryng, whyle the worlde standeth. And Samuel laye tyll the mornyng, and then opened the wores of the house of the Lorde.

1 Regum.ii.g.

But Samuel feared to shewe Heli the vyson. Then Heli called Samuel and sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here I am. And he sayd what is it that the Lord hath vnto the? Se thou hide it not from me. * The Lorde do so and so to the, yf thou hyde anye thyng fro me of all that he sayd vnto the. And Samuel tolde him euery whyt, and hid it not from him. And he answerd: it is the Lord, let him do what semeth him good.

* Ruth.i.c

And Samuel grewe, and the Lorde was with him, and left none of his wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Berlabe wyst that the faythfull Samuel was truely made the Lordes Prophete. And the Lorde appeared agayne in Siloh/for the Lorde opened him selfe to Samuel in Siloh, thorow the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The battel of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arcke of the Lorde is taken. Elies children dye and he him self also.

CAPI. IIII.

AND Samuel spake vnto al Israel. And Israel wente oute agaynst the Philistines to battayle, and pytched beside the helpe stone. But the Philistines pytched in Aphek, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in the battayle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. For the Philistines slewe alonge by the feldes, about foure thousande men.

1 Regū.viii.c.

And when the people were come in to theyr tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? let vs fetche the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Siloh vnto vs, and let it come amonge vs and saue vs out of the handes of our ennemyes. And ℣ people sent to Siloh, and fet from thence the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes which dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni, & Phinehes, with the arcke of the appoyntmēt of God. And when the arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lord came in to the hoste, all Israel shouted a mighty shout, so that the erth rang agayne.

When the Philistines herde the noyse of the shout, they sayd: What meaneth the soud of this mighty shout in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode that the arcke of the Lorde was come in to the hoste. And the Philistines were afrayde/ when it was tolde that God was come in to the hoste, and sayd. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs, who shall deliuer vs out of the hande of this mighty God? this is the God that smote the Egyptians with all maner plages in the wyldernesse. Be stronge and quyte your selues lyke men ye Philistines, that ye be not seruauntes vnto the Hebrues, * as they haue bene to you. Be men therfore and fight. And the Philistines foughte, and Israel was put to the worse and fled euery man in to his tent. And there was a mighty great slaughter, so that there were ouerthrowē of Israel thirty thousande fotemen. And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni and Phinehes were ded. And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the araye and came to Siloh the same daye, with his clothes rente and erthe vpon his heed. And when the man came in, Heli sate vpon a stole by the wayes syde lokynge: for his herte feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the citye. And all the city cryed.

When Heli herd the noyse of the crying, he asked what the noyse of ℣ rumoure ment. And the man hasted, and came in and tolde Heli. Heli was foure score and eyghtene yere olde, & * his sight fayled him that he could not se. And the man said vnto Heli, I am he that came out from the araye, and fled oute of the hoste this day. And he said, how is it forfuned my sonne? And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fledde before the Philistines / and there is a great slaughter chaunced among the people/ and thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are ded/ and therto the arcke of God is take. And when he hadde ones named the arcke of God, Heli fell frome his stole backwarde towarde the gate / and his necke brake, and he dyed / for he was olde and vnweldye, and he iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was with childe, and nye the byrth. And when she herde these tidynges of the takynge of the arcke of God/ and that her father in lawe and her husbande were ded, she bowed her self and trauayled, for her paynes came vpon her. And about the tyme of her deathe / the women that stode about her, sayd vnto her, feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the chylde Ichabod, sayinge: honoure is departed from Israel. Because the arcke of God was taken, and her father in lawe and her husbande were ded. And therfore she sayd: Israel hathe lost his honour, bycause the arcke of God was taken.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arcke. The Philistines are plaged in the secrete places. The inhabitauntes of Azaron refuse to receyue the arcke.

CAPI. V.

AND the Philistines toke ℣ arke of God and caryed it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, and brought it in to the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And whē they of Asdod were risen in the morninge, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the erthe before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and set him in his place agayne. And whē they rose vp erlye in the next mornyng, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the grounde before the arcke of the Lorde, and his heed & his two handes cut of vpon the threshold, that ℣ body onely was lefte on him. Wherfore neither the priestes of Dagon, ne any man that commeth in to Dagons house might treade on ℣ threshold of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lorde was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them & smote them with Emerodes, both the Asdod and al the coostes therof. And when the men of Asdod saw that so, they sayd: the arke of the God of Israel shal not abyde here with vs/ for his hand is sore vpon vs, & vpon Dagon our God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and said: what shal we do with ℣ arcke of the God of Israel. Then sayd they of Geth, let the arcke of the God of Israel be caryed about. And they caryed ℣ arck of the God of Israel about. And when they hadde caryed it about, the hande of the Lorde was in the citye with a mighty great plage, & he smote the men of the citye both smal and great/ and they were impeched in their secrete places with the Emerodes. Then they sent the arcke of God to Akaron. And as soone as the arke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed oute, sayinge: they haue brought the arcke of the God of Israel to vs: to slee vs and oure people.

Then they sente and set all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and sayde: sende away the arcke of the God of Israel, and let it goo home agayne vnto his owne place, that it slee vs not with oure people. For there was a plage of deth throwout all the citye, and the hande of God was exceding sore there, in so moche that they which died not, were smitten with the Emerodes: so that the crye of the citye reached vp to heuen.

¶ The heyfers bringe home the arcke with the rewardes. The Bethsamites were plaged after they had sene the arcke.

CAPI. VI.

AND so when the arcke of the Lord had ben in the countrey of the Philistines seuen monethes/ the Philistines called for the preestes and the sothe sayers, sayinge: what shall we do with the arcke of the Lord? tell vs wherwith we shall sende it home agayne. They answered, yf you send the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it with a trespace offeryng/ and then ye shall be hole/ and it shall be knowen to you why his hande departeth not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the trespace offeryng, whiche we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: fyue golden arses with Emerodes, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of ℣ Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plage ℣ was on you all, and on your Lordes to. Wherfore ye shall make ymages lyke to youre arses with Emerodes, and ymages like to youre myce that destroyed your lande, and shall gyue glorye vnto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from youre goddes / and from your lande. Wherfore wolde ye harden youre hertes, as the Egyptians and Pharao hardened theyr hertes, whiche wo all that (when he was well scourged) was fayne to let the people goo and depart.

Exod.viii.d

Now therfore make a newe carte and take two mylche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And tye the kyne in the carte / and kepe theyr calues at home from them. Then take the arcke of the Lorde, and put it in the carte/ and put the Jewels of golde (which ye rewarde him with, for a trespace offeryng) in a coffer by the syde therof, and sende it awaye and let it go. And marke, yf he goeth vp by the waye that leadeth vnto his own coost to Bethsames, then it is he that hath done vs this great euyll. But yf he wo not, then it is not his hand that smote vs, but it was a chaūce that happened vs. And the men did euen so: they toke two kyne that gaue mylke and tied them in the carte, & kepte the calues at home; and they layde the arcke of the Lorde vpon the carte, and the coffer with the myce of golde, & the ymages of their arses with Emerodes. And the kyne toke ℣ streyght waye to Bethsames, both one waye/ and as thee went, cryed/ turnyng neyther to the right hande ne to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them, tyll they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reppynge theyr whete in the valey. So they lyft vp their eyes and espied the arcke, and reioysed when they saw it. And the cart came into the grene of one Josua a Bethsamite, and stode stil there. There was there also a greate stone. And they cleue the wodde of the carte, and offered the kyne a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke downe the arcke of the Lorde, & the coffer that was therby, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and put therm on the greate stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offerynges that same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the fyue Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akaron the same daye. These are the golden ardes with Emerodes, whiche the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespace offeryng, to the Lorde / for Asdod one / for Gaza one / for Askalon one / for Geth one / and for Akaron one. And the golden myce were accordynge to the nombre of all the cityes of the Philistines thorowe the fyue lordshyppes, bothe of walled townes, and of townes vnwalled, euen vnto the great stone whereon they sette downe the arcke of the Lorde: whiche remaineth vnto this daye in the feelde of Josua the Bethsamyte. And the Lorde plaged the men of Bethsames, bycause they hadde sene the iewels that were in the arcke of the Lorde. And he slewe of the people fyfty thousande, and thre score & ten persons. And the people lamented bycause the Lord had made so great a slaughter of the. And the men of Bethsames said, who is able to stande before the Lorde the holy a God, and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitantes of Kariath Jarim, sayinge: The Philistines haue broughte home agayne the arcke of the Lorde: come downe and fet it vp to you.

¶ The arcke is brought to kariathiarim. The people wepe, for whiche Samuel maketh intercession to the Lorde. The Philistines are smytten.

CAPL. VII.

AND the men of Kariathiarim came and a *ii. Reg vi.a fet vp the arcke of the Lord, & *broughte it in to the house of Abinadab in Gabaah, and sanctified Eleazar his sonne to attende vpon the arcke of the Lorde. And while the arcke abode in Kariathiarim, the dayes grewe so, that it was twentye yeres, and all Israel lamented after the Lorde.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel, sayinge
b pf ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde with all
*Jos. xxiiii.c Deute. vi.a Matth. iii. b. your hertes, then *put away the straunge goddes from you, Baalim, and Astaroth / and prepare your hertes vnto the Lord, and serue him alone, and so shal he eyd you out of the handes of the Philistines. And then the children of Israel did put away Baalim and Astaroth, and c Of this see haue. Jud. xi. serued the Lord onely. Then said Samuel / gather all Israel to Maspyah, that I may praye for you vnto the Lord. And they assembled at Maspyah, and drewe water and poured it out before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye, and sayd there: we haue synned against the Lord. And Samuel iudged the cautes of the children of Israel in Maspyah. When the Philistines herde that the children of Israel were assembled at Maspyah, the Lordes of the Philistines went vp against Israel, which when the children of Israel herde, they were afrayde of the Philistines, and sayd to Samuel: cease not to d crye vnto the Lorde oure God for vs, that he maye kepe vs out of the handes of the Philistines. And Samuel tooke a sucking lambe and offered it whole for a burent offeryng vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: & the Lorde herde him. And as Samuel offered the burnt offeryng / the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thondered a greate thunder that same daye vpon the Philistines, and turmoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued oute of Maspyah, and pursued the Philistines, and slewe them tyl they came vnder Bethcar. And then Samuel tooke a stone, & pitched it betwene Maspyah and Sen, and called the name therof ✱the stone of help, saying: thus farre hath the Lord holpe vs. And so the Philistines were broughte vnder & they came no more in to the coastes of Israel, for the hand of the Lorde was vpon the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Then the cityes whiche the Philistines hadde taken frome Israel, came agayne to Israel, from Akaron to Geth, with the coostes of the same, whiche Israel pluckt out of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peax betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went aboute yere by yere to Bethel, Galgal, and Maspyah, and iudged Israel in all those places / and came agayne to Ramath, for there was his house / and there he iudged Israel / and there he buylte an auter vnto the Lorde.

¶ Because Samuelles sonnes dyd mynyster evyl, the people requyre a kynge: and to them is delyuered the maner of a kynge.

CAPL. VIII.

WHen Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Iudges ouer Israell. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abiath, whiche were Iudges in Berlabe. Neuertheleile his sonnes folowed not his steppes / but tourned aside after lucre, and ✱ toke rewardes, and peruerted iudgement. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them togyther and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and sayd vnto hym / beholde, thou art olde, and thy sonnes folowe not thy wayes. Now therfore ✱make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nations haue. But that thyng displeased Samuel, when they sayde: Geue vs a kyng to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto the. For they haue not caste the away, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer them. And as they haue euer doone sythens I brought them out of Egypt vnto this daye, & haue forsaken me and serued other goddes, euen so do they vnto the. Now therfore harken vnto their voyce / howbeit yet testifye vnto them, and shewe them the power of the kynge that shal raygne ouer them. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people that asked a kynge of hym and he sayde: this shall be the ✱ power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer you: he shall take your sonnes and put them to his charettes, and make his horsemen of them / and they muste runne before his charet, and shal make him capitaynes of thousandes, and ouer hundredes, and to set them to eare his grounde / and to gather in his harueste, and to make ordinaunce of warre, and apparell for his charettes. And he will take your doughters & make them the dressers of his ointmentes, & his cookes & bakers. And he shall take the best of your feldes / & of your vyneyardes, and of your oliue trees, and geue them to his seruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your seed, and of your vines, and giue it to his lordes, and to his seruauntes. And he shall take the best of your menseruauntes and maydseruauntes, and yonge men, and of your asses, and vse his worke with them. And he shall take the tenth of your sheepe, and ye shall be his seruauntes. And when ye crye oute at that tyme vpon youre kynge whiche ye shall haue chosen vnto you, the Lord shal not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheleile the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd saye: naye not so: But there shall be a kynge ouer vs, and we will be lyke all other nacions. And oure kyng shall iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fight our battayles for vs. And Samuel herd all the wordes of the people, and rehersed the in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel, harken vnto their voyce, & make them a kyng. Then sayd Samuel vnto & men of Israel, go euery man vnto his city.

¶ Saul the sonne of Cis seketh his fathers Asses and is chosen kynge.

CAPL. IX.

NOw there was a mā of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne
g of Zeroz, the sonne of Bechozah, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a mā that was a Jemynite, a man of strength he, the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yonge man, so & among the children of Israel there was none goodlyer then he / and was therto from the shoulders vpwarde hyer then all the other people. And it chaunced & the asses of this Cis Sauls father were strayed. Then sayde Cis to Saul his sonne, take one of the seruātes with the, & go thy waye and seke the asses. And they went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the lande of Salisa, and founde them not. Then they went thorowe the lande of Salim, and there they were not. Then they went also thorowe the land of Jemini, and they found them not. Then when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saul sayd to the yonge man that was with him: come let vs returne, lest my father leaue carynge for the asses, and take thought for vs. And he answered him / beholde, there is in this cite a worshypfull man of God, and all that he sayth, commeth to passe. Now then let vs go thither, peraduenture he shal shewe vs what waye we may go. Then sayd Saul to his seruaunt, yf we go, what shal we bring the man? for our breed is all spent out of our h dampers, and there is none other presente to bryng the man of God, what haue we? And the yonge man answered to Saul agayne and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourthe parte of a sicle, that will we geue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man went to seke an answere of God, thus wyse he spake / come and let vs go to the Sear. For he that is now called a Prophet, was in & olde time called a Seer. Then sayd Saul to his yong man, well sayd of the / come let vs goo. And so they went vnto & city where the man of God was. And as they were going vp in to the city, they met with damosels that came oute to drawe water, & sayd vnto them: is there here a Seer? And the maydens answered them / yea, beholde he goeth before you. Make haste now, for he came this day to the city, for the people muste offre this day in & hye place. When ye be come into the city, incontinent ye shal fynde him, ere he go vp to the hyl to eate / for the people will not eate vntyll he come, bicause he must bleste the offeryng. And then eate they that be bedde to the feast. Now therfore get you vp, for euen nowe shall ye fynde hym. And they wente vp in to the cite / and when they were come in to the myddes of the cite / behold Samuel came out against the, to go vp to the hye place. But i the Lorde had tolde Samuel the daye before Saul came, sayinge: to morowe this tyme I will sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shalte thou annoynte capitayne ouer my people Israel, that he may saue my people from the hande of the Philistines / for I haue loked vpon my people / and their crye is come vnto me. When Samuel sawe Saul, the Lorde sayde to him: se, this is the man whom I spake to & of. This same shal raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and said / tell me I pray the where is the Sears house? And Samuel answered Saul, and sayd: I am the Sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And to morow I wil let the go cly / and wil tel the all that is in thyne hert / and as concerning thyne asses that were lost this dayes a go, care not for them, for they are found. And k to morowe who shall haue the beautifull thinges of Israel? belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and said: am not I the sonne of a Jemynite of the smallest tribe of Israel, and my kinred the lest of all the kinredes of the tribe of Ben Jamin? wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his seruaunt and brought them in to the parlour and made them sytte in the vpper place amonges them that were bydden / whiche were vpon a thirtye personnes. Then sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: Bryng for the that meate whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I sayde, reserue this to an other tyme. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder and broughte it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: Beholde, that is left set it before the, and eate / for I kepte it for the vnto this tyme, when I called the people. And so Saul did eate with Samuel that daye. And whē they were come downe from & hyll in to the cite, Samuel communed with Saul in the gallerye: and they arose erly. And about the sprynge of the daye Samuel called Saul in the galerye, saying / aryse that I may sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went out at the wyes, bothe he and Samuel. And when they were come almost to the townes ende/ Samuel sayd to Saul: byd thy seruaunt go before vs, and he went / but stande thou styll a lytle space, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

AND then Samuel toke a boxe of oyle, and poured it vpon his heed, and kyssed hym and sayd: the Lorde hath anoynted the to be ruler ouer his inheritaunce. And now when thou arte departed frome me, thou shalte mete two men by * Rachels sepulchre in the borders of Ben Jamin / euen at Zalczah. And they shal saye vnto the, the asses whiche thou wentest to seke, are founde / but beholde thy father hathe lefte the care of the asses, and soroweth for you, saying: what shal I do for my sonne? Then thou shalt go forth thence and come to the oke of Thabor. And there shalt thou mete thre men going to God to Bethel / one carynge thre kydde, another thre loues of breed/ and the thyrde a bottel of wyne. And they shall grete the, and giue the two loues of breed whiche thou shalte receyue of theyr handes. After this thou shalte come to the hylle of God, where the Philistimes kepe theyr watche. And when thou arte come thyther to the cyte, thou shalte mete a compayne of Prophetes commynge downe frome the hylle, with a psalter, a tymbrell, a pype, and a harpe before them / and they prophesienge. And the spirete of the Lorde shall rest vpon the, and thou shalte prophesie with therm, and shalte be tourned in to an other man. to seke the asses, and when we sawe them no where, we went to Samuel. Then sayd Saules vncle: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you. And Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome whereof Samuel spake, told he him not. After that Samuel called the people together vnto the Lorde to Maspha, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I brought you out of Egypt, and deliuered you forth of the hande of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kingdomes † oppressed you. And ye haue this day cast awaye your Lorde God that by him self holpe you out of al your aduersitties and tribulacions/ and ye haue said vnto him: * make a kyng ouer vs. Now therfore stande before the Lorde by youre tribes and youre houses. And when Samuel had brought all the trybes of Israel, the tribe of Ben Jamin was take with by lot. When he had brought the tribe of Ben Jamin by theyr kinredes, the lot fell vpon † kinred of Metri/ and so went † lot thorow vnto it came to Saul † son of Cis. And they sought him, but he could not be found. Then they asked the Lorde further, whether the man shold come thither or no. And the Lorde answered/ beholde, he hath hid him self among the stuff. And they ran and fet him thence. And when he stode among the people, he was hyer then any of the people, frome the shoulders vpward. And Samuel sayde to all the people: se ye, whome the Lorde hathe chosen, and how there is none lyke hym among all the companye. And the people shouted and sayde: God lende the kynge lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the lawe of the realme, and wrote it in a boke/ and layd it vp before the Lorde/ and so sent all the people awaye, euery man to his house. And Saul also went home to Gabaah. And there went with him an hoste, suche as God had touched their hertes. But the children of vnthankfulnesse sayd how shall he saue vs? and despysed hym, and broughte hym not presentes. And he made as though he had not herde it.

¶ The people beinge deliuered frome the tyranny of Nahas, renueth the kyngdome of Saul.

CAPI. XI.

THen Nahas the Ammonyte came and besieged Jabes in Galaad. And all the people of Jabes sayde vnto Nahas: make a couenaunt with vs, and we will be thy seruauntes. And Nahas the Ammonyte sayde: to this will I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thyuste oute all youre eyghe eyes, that I mare make all Israel ashamed of you. Then sayde the elders of Jabes: Giue vs seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messengers vnto all the costes of Israel. And then yf there come no man to helpe vs, we will come oute to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelte, and tolde this tidynges in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte vp their voyces and wept.

And beholde Saul came folowynge his oxen from the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidynges of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirete of God vpon Saul, when he herde those tydynges, and he was exceadyng angry. And toke a yoke of oxen and hewed them in peces, and sent them thorowe oute all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers, saying: who so euer commeth not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Lorde fell on the people, and they came out as it had ben but one man. And when they were nombred in Bezek, the children of Israel were thre hundred thousande/ and the men of Juda thirtye thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Jabes in Galaad: to morowe by that tyme the sonne be hoote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, and they were glad. And then the men of Jabes said/ to morow we will come out vnto you, that ye may doo with vs al † pleaseth you. And on the morow Saul put the people in thre partes. And they came in vpon the hoste in the morning watche, & slewe the Ammonites tyll the heat of the daye. And they that remayned, scattered: so that two of them were not lefte together. Then sayde the people to Samuel: what are they that sayde, shall Saul raygne ouer vs? bringe them that we maye slee them. But Saul sayd there shal no man dye this daye / for to daye the Lorde hath saued Israel.

Then sayd Samuel vnto his people: come and lette vs goo to Galgall, and renewe the kyngdome there. And the people went to Galgall, and made Saul kynge there before the Lorde in Galgall. And there they offered peas offerynges before the Lorde. And there Saul and all the people reioysed vyghly.

¶ Samuel being an innocent Judge, the people them selues in wretchednesse, argueth the people of vnkyndnes because they demaunded a kynge. Them they repenteth and beleueth, God forgyueth, because of his promyse.

CAPI. XII.

THen sayd Samuel vnto all Israel / beholde, I haue obeyed youre voyce in all ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kynge. And loo, youre kynge goeth before you. But I am olde and grey headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue lyued amonges you from my childhoode vnto this daye. Beholde, here I am: answere me before the Lorde, and before his anoynted/ whose oxe haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whome haue I done iniurye to? or whome haue I oppressed? And of whose hande haue I receyued eare bribe to blynde myne eyes therwith? and I will restore it you again. And they sayd, thou hast done vs no iniurye, nor oppressed vs, neyther hast thou taken ought of any mannes hande. Then sayde he to them: the Lorde is witnesse vnto you, and his anoynted is witnesse this daye, that ye haue founde nought in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesse. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people / it is the Lorde † that made Moses and Aaron, whiche brought youre fathers oute of Egypte. Now therfore stande styll/ and lette me reason with you before the Lorde, of all the mercyes of the Lorde, which he shewed bothe vnto you and youre fathers. After that Jacob was come in to Egypt, your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers oute of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. Neuertheles they forgate the Lorde theyr God. And he solde them in to the hande of Sisara chyefe captayne of Jabin kynge of Hazor, and in to the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the kynge of Moab whiche fought agayust them. Then they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue serued Baalim and Astharoth. But nowe delyuer vs oute of the handes of oure ennemyes, and we wyll serue the. And the Lorde sente Jerobaal † Badan, Jephthah, and Samuel, and deliuered you oute of the handes of youre ennemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled without feare. And for all this when you sawe that Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon came against you, ye said vnto me: not so, a kynge shal raygne ouer vs, when yet the Lord your God was your kyng. Now therfore beholde the king whom ye haue chosen, and whome ye haue desyred: se / the Lorde hathe geuen you a kynge. Oh that he wolde feare the Lorde and serue him, & heare his voyce, and not disobeye the mouthe of the Lorde: and that bothe ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you wolde folowe the Lorde youre God. For yf ye shall not harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but shall disobeye the Lordes mouthe/ then shall the hande of the Lord be vpon you, and on youre fathers. Now also stande and se this greate thynge whiche the Lorde will do before youre eyes: is it not nowe wheate harnest? And yet for all that, I wil call vnto the Lorde, and he shal send thunder and rayne. Whereby perceyue and vnderstande, how that youre wyckednesse is greate, whiche ye haue done in the sight of the Lord, in askynge you a kynge. And when Samuel called vnto the Lorde, the Lorde sente thunder and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuel exceadyngly. Then sayd all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruauntes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in askynge vs a kynge, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And thoughe ye haue done all this wyckednesse, yet depart not from the Lorde in any case: But serue hym with all youre hertes. Neyther turne ye after vayne thynges whiche shall not profyte you nor be able to deliuer you, for they are but vanities. And the Lorde will not forsake his people, because of his greate names sake: because the Lorde hathe

¶ The Philistines are smytten of Saul and Jonathas. Saul beynge disobedient to Goddes commaundement is shewed of Samuel that he shall not raygne.

CAPI. XIII.

A IT was nowe an hole yere after that Saul had begon to raygne. And when he hadde rayned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose him thre thousande men out of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Machmas & mount Bethell / and a thousande with Jonathas in Gabaah / Ben Jamin. And the rest of the people he sente home, euerye man to his house. So Jonathas slew the Philistines in an hold that they had in Gabaah / and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen thorowe oute all the lande, sayinge / let the Ebrues heare. And all Israel herd saye how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, and that Israel stanke afore the Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Galgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them selues togethter to fyghte with Israel, thyrtye thousande charettes, and sixe thousande horsemen, with other people lyke the sand by the sees syde in multitude / and came vp and pitched in Machmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel sawe them selues in a straycte / and that the people were discomforted, they hyd them selues in caues, in preuye holes, in rockes, dennes, and pyttes. And the Ebrues went ouer Jordan vnto the lande of Gad and Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal / and all the people that folowed hym were dismayed. And he taryed seuen dayes, as Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Galgal / and the people scattered from hym. Wherfore Saul sayd / bringe me burnte sacrifyce, and peax offrynges. And he offered burnt sacrifyce. And as soone as he had ended his burnt offrynges / beholde Samuel came. And Saul wente agaynste him to grete hym. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what haste thou wone? And Saul sayde, bycause I sawe that the people scattered frome me / and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted / and that the Philistines gathered them selues togethter to Machmas: then sayd I, the Philistines shal come down vpon me to Galgal or I haue made my prayer vnto the Lord. And therfore when they enforced me, I offered burnte offrynges. Then sayde Samuel to Saul / thou haste wone folysshly, and hast not kepte the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whyche he commaunded the / whiche thynge yf thou haddest not wone at this time wolde the Lorde haue stablysshed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall neuer florysshe agayne. The Lorde hath sought him a man after his owne hert, and hath commaunded him to be a capitayne ouer his people / bycause thou haste not kepte that the Lorde commaunded the. And Samuel arose and gat him frome Galgal to Gabaah Ben Jamin. And Saul nombred the people that were founde with him, aboute sixe hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and the people that were founde with them, hadde theyr abydynge in Gabaah Ben Jamin. But the Philistines had pytched in Machmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre companyes, to robbe / one company turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah vnto the lande of Saul / an other company turned the way to Bethoron / and the thyrde companye turned to the waye of the coste that turneth to the valeye of Zeboim towarde the wildernesse. But there was no smyth thorowe out all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines were ware that the Ebrues wolde not make them selues neither swerdes nor speres. And therfore muste all Israel go downe to the Philistines to mende euery man his share, his mattocke, his axe, or his sickle / as ofte as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, bongstokes, and axes were blunt, and muste be had vnto the stethye to be amended. And so in tyme of battayle, there was nyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas: saue for Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there somwhat found. And the ayre of the Philistines came out and stode on the other side before Machmas.

¶ Jonathas companyed with his esquyre passith the Philistines to fight. He calleth the Lorde which his father vnknowing to him, had forbidden the hole host, for which he shulde haue bene slayne, but the people deliuered him.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND it fell on a daye that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayde vnto his younge man that bare his harneste / come and lete vs goo ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are yonder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul taryed in the vttermoste parte of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree that was in Magron / and the people that were with him were aboute sixe hundred men. And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Ichabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Heli was the Lordes preest in Silo and bare an Ephod. But the people wyste not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the way by which Jonathas sought to goo ouer vnto the garrison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, thone on the one syde, and an other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, and the other Seneh. And the one leaneth northwarde towarde Machmas, and the other southwarde towarde Gabaah. Then sayde Jonathas to the younge man his harneyberer: come and lete vs go ouer vnto the standyng of these vncircumcised, parauenture the Lorde will worke with vs: for the Lord is able to saue eyther with many or with fewe. And his harneyberer sayd vnto him do all that is in thine herte: set the forwarde: for se, I am with the, as thine herte listeth. Then sayd Jonathas: beholde, whe we go ouer vnto the men, and shewe oure selues vnto them: yf they saye on this wyse to vs: taryе tyll we come to you, then we wyll stand tyll where we be and not goo vp vnto them. But yf they so saye vnto vs: come hyther vnto vs, then we will goo vp, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into our handes. And this shall be a signe vnto vs. And when they had both shewed theym selues vnto the garrison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayde: se, the Ebrewes come oute of the holes were they had hyd them selues in. And the men of the garrison answered Jonathas and his harneseberer and sayde: come vp to vs, & we will shewe you a thynge. Then sayde Jonathas vnto his harneseberer: come after me, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into the handes of Israell. And Jonathas clame vpon hands and fete, and his harneseberer after him. Then they fell before Jonathas: and his harneseberer slewe them after him. And the first slaughter which Jonathas and his harneseberer made, was vpon a twenty men, within the compasse as it were aboute an halfe aker of lande. And there was a feare in the hoste that was in the felde, and amonge all the people: also moche that they that kept the holde, and they that were gone to robbe, were afrayd also: and the earth trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaah Ben Jamin, sawe. And beholde, the people scattered and ran hyther and thyther. Then sayde Saul vnto the people that was with him: nombre & se who is gone away frome vs. And when they had tolde: behold, Jonathas & his harneseberer were not there. And then Saul sayde vnto Ahia: bringe hyther the Arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme with the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the preaste, a lowde sturre sprange in the host of the Philistines, and it encreased and was harde with a great noyse. And Saul sayde vnto the preast: withdrawe thyne hande. And Saul assembled all the people that were with him, and went to the holde. And se, euery mannes swerde was against his felowe, & there was great slaughter wone. Moreouer the Ebrewes that were with the Philistines before that tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the host, turned to the children of Israell that were with Saul and Jonathas. And they also which had hyd them selues in mount Ephraim, hearinge that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in preace with Sauls men, & pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battayle continued tyll they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell sorned them selues togithter that day: and Saul adiured the people sayeng: Cursed be he that eateth any fode vntyll nyght, that I maye be auenged of myne ennemyes. And so there was none of the people that tasted any fode. And all the land came to a wood, where hony laye vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wod: Beholde, hony dropped. Howbe it there was no man that moued his hande to his mouth, because that the people feared the curse. But Jonathas herde not when his father adiured the people, wherfore he put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hand and dypte it in an hony combe, and put his hande to his mouth and forthwith his eyen receyued their old vertue and courage. Then spake one of the people and sayde: thy father adiured the people, sayenge: Cursed be the man that eateth any fode this daye, and yet the people were fayne. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: for beholde my eyen haue recouered their power and strength, because I tasted a lytle of this hony: how then yf all the people had eaten of the spoyle of their ennemyes which they founde, had there not bene then a moche greatter slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layde on the Philistines that daye, frome Machmas to Aialon. But the people were exceadynge faynte.

Then the people gat them to the spoyle, & toke shepe oxen and calues, and slewe them on the grounde, and dyd eate with the bloud. Then men tolde Saul, sayenge: Beholde the people synne against the Lorde, in that they eate with the bloude. And he sayde: ye haue trespased. But rowle a greate stone vnto me now, and go abrode amonge the people and byd them bringe euery man his oxe, and euery man his shepe, and slay them here, & synne not against the Lorde / in eatynge with the bloude. And the people broughte euery man his oxe in his hande by nyght and slewe them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto the Lorde, And that was the first aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyghte / and let vs make hauoke amonge them tyll it be daye in the morenyng, and let vs not leaue one of them. And the people answered, do what soeuer thou thinkest best. Then sayde the preaste: Let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I goo downe after the Philistines? and wylt thou geue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then sayde Saul, let the people come hyther out of all quarters, & knowe and se, in whome this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde liueth, whyche hath saued Israell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he sayde vnto all Israell: Be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll be on an other. And the people sayde vnto Saul: What thou thinkest best that do. And Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israell: geue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas

G Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas told him and sayd: I eated a lytle honye vpon the ende of my staffe that was in myne hande, and se, I must dye.

Then sayde Saul God deale so and so with me, but yf thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so myghtely holpe Israel? God forbyd. As truelye as the Lorde liueth, there
The people rescue Jonathas that he dye not. shal not one heare of his head fal to the grounde: for he hathe wrought with God this daye. And so the people delyuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul ceased from followyng the Philistines. And the Philistines retourned to theyr owne place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and fought against all his enemyes on euery syde: against the Moabites: against the children of Ammon: against the Edomites: against the kynges of Zobah, and against the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him self, there he wanne, and demeaned him selfe valiauntely, and slewe the Amalechites, and dyd Israell ¶ Saul is commaunded to slay Amalech. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and saueth the spoyle for whiche the Lorde forsaketh him. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

CAPI. XV.

1. Regum. ix. e THen sayde Samuel vnto Saul: ℣ Lord sent me to annoynt the, kynge ouer his people Israell. Nowe therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde.

But slaye man and woman, infant and sucklyng, oxe and shepe, camell, & Asse.
Then Saul gathered the people together, & nombred them in Telaim, two hundreth thousande fote men, besides the men of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cyte of the Amalechites, & fought in a valley. But Saul sayde vnto ℣ Kenites: go & departe & get ye away from the Amalechites, lest I destroy you with them. For ye shewed mercy to Israell when they came out of Egypte. And the Kenites departed from the Amalechites. And Saul slewe the Amalechites frome Heuila to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalechites a lyue, and vtterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the best of the shepe and of the oxen and fat thynges and the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destroye them. But all that was nought worth and laggye, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, sayeng: it forthinketh me that I haue made Saul kynge. For he is turned frome me and hath not fulfilled my commaundementes, wherfore Samuel was cruel sory and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose earely, to mete Saul in the mornynge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and hadde set him vp
I pylles of triumphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue wone the commaundement of the Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleatinge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxe which I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought them frome the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice vnto the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease, and let me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto him: saye on. And Samuel sayd, when thou
K were lytle in thyne owne sight, wert thou not made the head of the tribes of Israell? And ℣ Lorde annoynted the, kyng ouer Israel. And then the Lorde sent the on a viage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterlye destroye those synners the Amalechites and fight against them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them, wherfore then hast thou nowe not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: But dydest turne to the praye and hast wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalechites. And the people take of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and the cheefest of the thinges which should haue bene destroyed, to offre vnto the Lorde thy God in Galgal. Then sayde Samuel, requireth the Lorde burntsacrifices and offrynges, and not rather that thou shuldest obaye his voyce? Beholde, to obaye is better then offrynge, and to gyue eare, is better, then the fat of Lambes. For rebellyousnesse is as the synne of wytchecraft: and stubbornesse is wyckednesse and Idolatrye. Because therfore thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also / frome beynge kynge. Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue synned, synned, for I haue offended the mouthe of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people and they obayed theyr voyce. But nowe take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshyppe the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel vnto Saul: I wyl not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the commaundement of God, and therfore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalte not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned to goo awaye, he caught the lappe of his coate, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde, the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel frō this daye, and hath gyuen it to a neyghboure of thyne that is better then thou. And therto, he that gyueth victorye to Israell, will not

L degayle nor repent, for he is not a man, that can repente. Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned agayn & followed Saul. And Saul prayd vnto ℣ Lord. The G sayde Samuel: Bringe ye hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag came vnto him trustely. And Agag sayde: truely ℣ bytternesse of death commeth on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemē childlesse, so shall thy mother be childelesse amonge other wemen. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Galgal. And the Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul wēt home to his house to Gabaah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul tyll the day of his deathe. Neuertheles Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kynge ouer Israell.

¶ David is anoynted kinge: and receyueth the holy ghost. An euyll spirite commeth vpon Saul whiche departeth when David playeth.

CAPI. XVI.

1 AND then the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel: How longe wilt thou mourne for Saul sythens I haue caste him awaye frome raygnynge ouer Israel? fyll an horne with oyntmente, and come: I wil sende the to Jesai the Bethlehemite, for I haue espyed me a kynge amonge his sonnes. But Samuel answered: how shall I go? For Saul shal heare it and will kyll me. And the Lord sayd: Take an heyfer with the, and say, thou goest to offer to the Lorde. And call Jesai to the offrynge, and I wil shewe the what thou shalte do: And thou shalte annoynte him, whome I shall assigne the. And Samuel dyd as ℣ Lord bad him. And when he came to Bethlehem, ℣ elders of the towne were astonyed at his commynge, and sayd: Betokeneth thy comming peace? and he sayde yea, for I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. * Cleanse your selues and
M come with me to the offrynge. And he purified Jesai and his sonnes, and bad them to the offring. And when they were come he loked on Eliab and sayd: the Lordes annointed is before him. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel N Loke not on his facyon nor on the heyght of his stature, for I haue refused him. Because it is not as man seeth. For man loketh on the outwarde appearaunce: but the Lorde beholdeth the herte. Then Jesai called Abinadab, & made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: Neyther hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then Jesai made Samah come, and he sayde: neyther yet hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then made Jesai seuen of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Jesai: Are here all thy children? And he sayde: The youngest is O yet behynde: Beholde, he kepeth the shepe. Then Samuel sayde vnto Jesai: sende and fet him for we will not sit downe to meat tyll he David. be come hyther. And he sent and brought him in. And he was ruddy and a goodly creature of makynge, and of a pleasaunt countenaunce. And then the Lorde sayde aryse and annoynte him: for this is he. And Samuel toke ℣ horne with the oyntement and annoynted him in ℣ presens of his brethren. And the spyrite of ℣ Lorde came vpon David, from that daye forwarde. Then Samuel arose vp and went to Ramath. But the spirite of the Lorde departed frome Saul, and an euyll spyrite sent of ℣ Lorde, vexed him. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Behold, an euyll spyrite sent of God vexeth the, let our Lorde therfore cōmaunde his seruauntes to seke a mā that is a conning player with an harpe. And then when the euil spirite sent of God, cōmeth vpon the, he may playe with his hand, and thou shalt be eased.
P And Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes: seke me a man that can well playe, and bringe him to me. Then answered one of his seruauntes & sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Jesai the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felow, and a man of warre, and wyse, and well made, & the Lord is with him, wherupon Saul sent messengers vnto Jesai, and sayde: Sende me David thy sonne which is with the shepe. And Jesai toke an asse laden with breed, and a flacket of wyne and a kydde, and sente them by David his sonne vnto Saul. And David went to Saul, and came before him, and he loued him very well, so that he was made his page. And Saul sente to Jesai, sayenge: Let David remayne with me, for he hath founde fauour in my sight. And when the spirite of God came vpon Saul, David toke an harpe and played with his hande, and so Saul was refreshed/ and dyd amende, and the euyll spirite departed frome him.

¶ The battaylle of the Philistines agaynste Israel. Goliath. David ouercommeth great Goliath.

CAPI. XVII.

1 THe Philistines gathered their hoste to battayle, and assembled at Socoh in Juda, and pytched betweene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Dommim. And Saul and the men of Israell came and pytched in Ochedale dale, and put them selues in arayе, to fyghte agaynste the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israel on an hyl on the other syde, and a valey betwene them. And there came a man and stode in the myddes, out of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth syx cubites and an handbreeth long, and had an helmet of braſſe vpon his heed, and a coote of mayle about him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was fyue thousande sycles of braſſe. And he hadde harneſſe of braſſe vpon his legges, and a shylde of braſſe vpon his shoulders. And the shafte of his spere was lyke a weuers beame. And his spere heed waged syx hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before hym. Goliath.

And he stode and called vnto the hoſte of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what neadeth that ye shuld come out in arayе to battayle? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saule? chose you a man, and lete hym come downe to me, yf he be able to fight with me and to beate me, then we wyll be youre seruauntes. But yf I can ouercom hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoſte of Israel this daye, gyue me a man and let vs fyght together. When Saul and all Israel herd those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greately afrayed. Now Dauid was ſ sonne of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Jsai, whyche Jsai hadde eyght sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saule amonge the people. And the three eldeſte sonnes of Jsai went and folowed Saul to battayle. And the names of his three sonnes that went to battayle, were: Eliab ſ eldeſt, and the myddemoſt Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and Dauid was the youngeſt. And when ſ three eldeſt were gone after Saul, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth the fourty morynge and euenynge, and continued thus fourtye dayes.

And Jsai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and run to the hoſte to thy brethren, and carye these ten freſshe cheeſes vnto the captayne, and loke how thy brethren fare, and fet out there pledges. And Saul and they and all the men of Israel were in the valey fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauid arose vp erlye in the morynge, and lefte the shepe with a keper, and toke and went as Jsai had commaunded him, and came where the hoſte laye. And the hoſte was goynge out in arayе, and shouted in ſ battayle. For Israell and the Philistines had put them selues in arayе, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put ſ parter from him, vnto the handes of the kepere of the veſſels, and ranne in to the hoſt, came and greeted his brethren. And as he talked with them beholde, there lode a man in the middes Goliath the Philistine, by name, of Geth, whiche came out of the arayе of the Philistines, and spake in the maner afore rehersed, that Dauid herde it. And all the men of Israel when they sawe the man, ranne away from him, and were sore afrayde. And euery man of Israel sayde: Se ye this man? he is comen forth euen to reuyle Israel is he come. And to hym that beateth him wyll the kyng gyue great riches, and wil gyue hym his daughter to wyfe, and make his fathers house free in Israel. Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayde: What shall the man haue that beateth this Philistine and taketh away the shame from Jsrael? for what is this vncircumcyſed Philistine, that he shuld reuyle the hoſte of the lyuynge God? And the people answered as is rehersed, sayenge: thus shall he be rewarded that ranne vpon and slayne him. And Eliab his eldeſt brother herde when he spake vnto the men, and was angrye with Dauid, sayde: Why cameſte thou awaye? and with whome haſt thou left those fewe sheepe in the wildernesse? I knowe thy pryde and the malice of thyne heere, that thou arte come to se the battel. And Dauid answered, what haue I now done? is there any more cause a worde? And ſparted from him vnto an other frome, and spake in the same maner, and the people answered him agayne, as before. And they that herde the wordes which Dauid spake, rehersed them before Saul, whiche caused him to be fet. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mans herte fayle, for my sake of him. Thy seruaunt will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne, thou art not able to go vnto this Philistine, to fight with him. For thou arte but a chylde, and he hath bene a man of warre euē from his youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon, a lykewyſe a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote him and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose against me, I caught him by ſ beerde and smote him, and slewe him. For bothe a Lyon and also a Beare hathe thy seruaunt slayne. And this vncircumcyſed Philistine shalbe as one of them, for he hathe rayled on the hoſte of the lyuynge God. And Dauid sayde moreouer, the Lorde that deliuered me out of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, shall deliuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid goo, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his harneſſe vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of braſſe vpon his heed, and put a coote of mayle vpon him, and gyrded Dauid with his owne sworde vpon his harneſſe. And he assayed howe he could go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed thereto, and put them of him. And toke his staffe in his hand, and chose him fyue stones out of a bricke, and put them in a shepeherdes bagge whiche he hadde, and toke his slynge in his hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drewe nere to Dauid, with the man that bare a shylde before him. And when the Philistine loked and sawe Dauid: he disdayned him, for he was but a younglynge, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou commeſt to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of his Gods. And he sayd to Dauid: come to me and I wyll gyue thy flesshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the feld. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou commeſt to me with a sworde a speare and a shilde: But I come to the, in the name of the Lorde of hoſtes, the God of the hoſte of Israel on whom thou haſt rayled. This daye shall the Lorde gyue the into my handē, and I shall smyte the and take thyne hed frome the, and I wil gyue the carkales of the hoſt of the Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, and all the worlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all this companye shall knowe, that the Lorde sauyth not with the sworde and speare. For the battayle is the Lordes, and he shall gyue you into our handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drewe nygh vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted and ranne to fyght against the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in his forhed that the stone sonke in to his hed, and he fell groueling to the earth. And so Dauid ouercom the Philistine with a slynge and a stone, and smote the Philistine and slew him. And because Dauid had no sworde in his hande, he ran and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke his sworde and drewe it out of his sheathe and slewe him and cut of his hed therwith. And when the Philistines sawe their champion dead, they fled. And the men of Israel and of Juda arose and shouted and folowed after the Philistines, tyll they came to the valey and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe dead by the waye to Saraim euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the children of Israel returned from chasyng after the Philistines, and spoyled there tentes. And Dauid toke the hed of the Philistine, and broughte it to Jerusalem: But he put his armoure in his tent. But when Saul saw Dauid yssue forth against the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the captayne of his hoſt: Abner, whose sonne is this yonge man? And Abner answered, as truely as thy soule liueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde ſ kynge: Enquere thou, yf he be some noble mans sonne. And so when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and broughte him before Saul, with the heed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne arte thou, thou yeung man? And Dauid answered the sonne of thy seruaunte Jsai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The loue betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul seketh about to slee Dauid. Dauid marieth Michol the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XVIII.

And when he had made an ende of spekynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. Jn so moche, that he loued him, as his owne sowle. And Saul toke him that daye & wold let him go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bound them selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as his owne syfe. And Jonathas put of his owne cote that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, and therto his mantle, his sworde, his bowe, and his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to all that Saul sent him, and behaued him selfe wyſely. And whē Saul had set him ouer his men of warre, he pleaſed all the people, and especyally them that were Sauls seruauntes. A Jonathas. B

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, that wemen came out of all cyties of Jsrael syngynge & daunsynge, against Saul, with tymbrelles, with ioye, and with instrumentes. And the wemen that played, sange vnto, and sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saul exceadynge wroth & the sayenge displeased him, and he sayd: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue the kyngdome? wherefore Saul loked a wrye on Dauid frome that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euyl spyrite sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he prophesyed in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrument with his hande, as he was dayly wont. And Saul had a speare in his hande, and houlde it, intendinge to haue nayled Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presence two tymes. For Saul was afearde of Dauid, because ſ Lorde was with him, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid frome him & made him a capitayne ouer a thousande, and he went out and in before the people. And Dauid was wyſe in all his wayes, and the Lorde was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw he was so exceadynge wyſe, he was afrayde of him. Ecclesiasticus. C D

But all Israel & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldeſt doughter Merob, her I will gyue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fight the Lordes battayles. For Saul thought myne hande shall not be vpon him, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: * what am I? and what is my life or the kynred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? But when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls doughter shulde haue ben gyuen to Dauid, she was gyuen vnto Adriel a Meholathite, to wyfe. Now dyd Michol an other of Sauls doughters loue Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thinge pleased him well. And he sayde: I will gyue him her, that she may be a snare to him, to bring the hande of the Philistines vpon him. And Saul E * 1. Reg. 18. 1

Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalte this daye be my sonne in law agayne. And Saule commaunded his seruauntes, to comen with Dauid secretelye and saye: Beholde the kynge hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruauntes lone the, be therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lyght thynge to be the kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of small reputacion? And Sauls seruauntes tolde him agayne, saying: in this maner answered Dauid. Then sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge careth for no nother dowrye but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall in to the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and went and slewe of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte their foreskynnes, and nombred them vnto the kynge for to become his sonne in lawe.

*1.Reg.18.iii.c. * And so Saul gaue him Michol his doughter to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, that the Lorde was with Dauid, & that Michol his doughter loued him, he was the more afrayde of Dauid, and became Dauids ennemye for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysely then all the seruauntes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

¶ Saul commaundeth to slee Dauid. Michal his wyfe tarieth him by a proper feat, and excuseth her father. Saul is also amonge the Prophetes.

CAPI. XIX.

THen Saul communed with Jonathas his sonne, and with all his seruauntes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jo-
*1.Reg.xviii.c. nathas Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to Dauid, and tolde Dauid sayenge: Saul my father gooth about to slee the. Now therfore take hede to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place and hyde thy self. And I will go out & stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and will comen with my father of the, and yf I can perceyue ought, I will tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul his father and sayde vnto him: let not the kynge synne against his seruaunt Dauid, for he hath not trespased against the, and his workes are towardes the very good. For he dyd put his lyfe in his hande and slewe the Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a great victory to all Israell. And thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherfore then wouldest thou synne against innocent bloude, and slee Dauid for nought? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas and sware: as truly as the Lorde liueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid and shewed him all those wordes,

and broughte him to Saul. And he was in the presence as in tymes paste. And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistines and made a great slaughter, and put them to flyght. And the euyll spirite of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house hauinge a Jauelynge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the wall with the Jauelynge: But Dauid eyd him selfe out of Sauls presence, and so he smote the speare in to the wall. But Dauid fled and saued him selfe that nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to lye in awayte of him and to slay him in the morninge. But Michol his wyfe tolde it him, sayenge: Yf thou saue not thy selfe this night, to morowe thou art a dead man. And so Michol let Dauid downe thorow a wyndow, and he went and fled and saued him selfe. And then she take an Image and layde it in the bed, and put a pyllow filled with gotes heare vnder the heed of it, & couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde that he was sicke: Then Saul sent the messengers to se Dauid, sayenge: bringe him to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne. And when the messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an Image in the bed, with a pyllowe of goten heare vnder the heed of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why halle thou mocked me so and sent awaye myne ennemy that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: Be sure vnto me, let me go, or els I will kyll the. So Dauid fled and escaped and went to Samuel to Ramath and told him al that Saul hath done to him. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul sayenge: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid. And when they saw a companye of Prophetes prophesyenge, and Samuel teachinge theym, the spyrite of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, & they prophesyed so. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesyed lykewyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme whiche prophesyed also. Then went he him selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greate well that is in Sechoth, he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: Se they be at Naioth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Naioth in Ramath the spyrite of God came vpon hym also, and he wente prophesyenge, till he came to Naioth in Ramath. And he stroppe of his clothes and prophesyed before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all daye and all that nyght, wherfore it is a comen sayenge: Is Saul also amonges the prophetes?

¶ Dauid beynge in ieopardye complayneth vnto Jonathas Jonathas delyuereth him. A pollye is vsed betwene them: by which Dauid vnderstode the intente of Saul.

CAPI. XX.

AND Dauid fled from Naioth in Ramath and went before Jonathas, and sayd: What haue I done? wherin am I faultye? what is the synne that I haue committed agaynste thy father that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalte not dye. For se, my father wyll do nothynge neyther great ne small, but that he wyll shewe me. For why shulde my father hyde this thynge from me? I knowe not. And Dauid sware agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thynketh, Jonathas shal not knowe it, lest he be sory. For in dede, as truly as the Lorde liueth, and as truely as thy soule liueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid, what so euer thy soule desyreth, I will do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morowe be the Kalendes, and I shulde sit with the kynge at meat. But let me goo that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto this daye thre dayes at euen.

If thy father mysse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to his owne cytie, for there is holden a yerely feaste for all his kynne. And yf thy father say thus: It is well wone, then thy seruaunt shall haue peace. But yf he be angrye: be sure, wickednesse is vtterlye concluded of him. And then shalt thewe mercy vnto thy seruaunt, for thou hast made with me thy seruaunt a bonde in the Lorde. Notwithstandinge yf there be in me any trespace, slay me thy selfe, for what nede thou to bringe me to thy father? And Jonathas answered: God kepe from the, that I shulde knowe, that wickednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answer cruelly? Jonathas sayde to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the feldes. And they went both of them into the feldes. The Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israell, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, within this three dayes, that it stande well with Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shew it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euyll towardes the be appointed of my father, I will shew the, and sende the away, that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lorde be with the, as he hath bene with my father. And thou shalte performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I liue, but also when I am dead, plucke not thy mercye away from my house for euer: No, not whe the Lorde hathe destroyed the ennemyes of Dauid euery one from the face of the earth. And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seke out of the handes of Dauids ennemyes their wickednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued him. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe shall be the Kalendes. And thou shalt be mist for, because the place shall appeare emptye. But on the thyrde daye come in any wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is workedaye: euen by the stone Esell. And I will shote three arowes by the one syde therof, as though I shote at a marke, and will sende after, a lad, and byd him goo seke the arowes. Yf I saye vnto the lad: Se the arowes are on this syde the, bringe them: then come thou: for it is peace, and nothinge to vs, as sure as the Lorde liueth. But yf I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde, the arowes are beyounde the, then flee, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this which thou and I haue spoken / beholde, the Lorde is witnesse betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when the Kalendes came, the kyng sat hym wonne at meate, to thintent to eate. And the kynge sat him wonne after the accustomed maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Sauls syde, and Dauids place was emptye, but yet Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thoughte, some thynge hadde chaunced him, whereby he was not cleane. But on the morowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne, wherfore commeth not the sonne of Jsai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul: Dauid asked lycence of me to go to Bethlehem sayenge / let me go I praye the, for our kynrede holde an offring in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And for this cause he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas and sayde vnto him / O frowarde and rebellious childe, thinkeste thou I know not how thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? For as longe as the son of Jsai liueth vpō the erth, thou shalt not be stablysshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, * for he is the childe of death.
*1.Reg.xvi.c. xvii.c.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father and sayde vnto him / wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to slee him, wherby Jonathas wiste well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slay Dauid. Then Jonathas arose from the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes, for he was sory for Dauid, because his father had done him shame. On the nexte morowe Jonathas went oute in to the felde, at the tyme appointed with Dauid, and a lytle lad with him. And he sayde vnto the boye, run and synde oute myne arowes whiche I shote. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arowe beyounde him. And when the ladde was come to the place whether Jonathas hadde shoote the arowe, Jonathas cryed after him, & sayd / the arowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad / haste, make spede and stande not stil. And Jonathas ladde gathered vp the arowe and came to his master. But the lad wiste nothinge thinge of the matter: Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad, and sayd vnto him: goo and carye them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was towarde the south and fell on his face to the grounde, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eyther other and wept togither, but Dauid more aboundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peax of suche thinges as we haue swoorne eyther of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayenge: The Lorde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy sede and myne for euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas went in to the towne.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to Nob to Achimelech the preest, and geteth hym breed to satisfye his honger. Eder he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth him selfe mad.

CAPI. XXI.

THen came Dauid to Nob to Achimelech the preest: And Achimelech was astonyed at his commynge and went to mete Dauid and sayde vnto him: Why commeste thou thy selfe alone, and no man with the? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the preest: ✠ kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thyng and sayde vnto me, lette no man knowe whereabout I send the and what I haue commaunded the to doo. And therfore I haue appointed my seruauntes to suche and suche places. And nowe what haste thou vnder thyne hande? gyue me fyue loues of breed or what so euer is to hande. And the preest answered Dauid and sayde: There is no comen breed vnder myne hande, but there is halowed breed, yf the younge men haue auoyded onely some women. And Dauid answered the preest and sayde vnto him: Of a truthe women hath bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes, when we came out: and the vessels of the younge men were holy. How be it yf we haue taken anye vnclennesse by the waye this daye, it shall be halowed in the vesselles. And so the preest gaue him halowed breed, for there was none other bred there saue shew breedes, that were taken from before the Lorde, to put fresshe bred there.

And there was the same daye a certen man of the seruauntes of Saul within the tabernacle of the Lorde named Doeg an Edomite, the chiefest of Sauls herde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyn hande eyther speare or swerde? for I haue neyther brought my swerde nor myne harnes in me, because the kynges busynes requred hast. Then the preest answered: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou slewest in Okedale, that is here wrapt in a cloth behynde the Ephod, yf thou wilte take that, take it: for there is none other saue that here. And Dauid sayde: there is none to that, gyue it me.

And Dauid arose and fledde the same daye from the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of him: Is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto this felowe in daunces, sayenge: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousand? And Dauid put those wordes into his hert and was sore afrayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his countenaunce before them, and raued in their handes, and scrabled on the wyes of the gate, and let his spittell fall downe vpon his bearde. Then sayd Achis vnto his seruaunt. Lo ye saw that this man was beside hym selfe, wherefore then haue ye brought him to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to the caue Odollam, and then in to Maspha to the kynge of Moab, And then in to Hareth. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Achimelech is accused of treason and slayne, and foure score and foure preastes mo with hym: because they receyued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

CAP. XXII.

SO Dauid departed thence and escaped, & came vnto the caue Odollam, whyther his brethren & all his fathers house hyrde of, they went thyther to him. And there vnto him all suche as were in distresse and in det and troubled in their hertes, & he was made their captayne, and there were with him aboute foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Maspha in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother (I praye the) haue their abydynge with you, tyll I know what God will do with me. And he brought them afore the kynge of Moab, and they dwelte with him all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophete Gad, sayde vnto Dauid: Abyde not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into ✠ forest Hareth. And Saul herde of it: for Dauid was knowen and also the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder a grene vpon an hyghe banckie with his speare in his hande, and all his men rounde about him, he sayde vnto his seruauntes that were about him. Heare me, ye sonnes of Jemini: Wyll the sonne of Jsai also gyue euerye one of you feldes and hyre patches, and make you all graunde capitaines and petye capitaines, that ye haue all conspired against me, so that there is none that wil shewe me any thinge, in so moche that my sonne hath made a confederacie with the sonne of Jsai? There is none of you that bewayleth my chaunce or sheweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruaunt to lye in wayte agaynste me, as appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, who che was chiefe of the seruauntes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Jsai, when he came came to Nob, to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whiche sought counsell of the Lorde for him, and gaue him victayles, & the swerde of Goliath ✠ Philistine also. Then the kinge sent to call Achimelech the preaste the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came all to the kynge. Then Saul sayde: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayde: here I am my Lord. Then sayd Saul to him: why haue ye conspired againste me, thou and the sonne of Jsai, in so moche that thou hast gyue him victayle and a swerde, & hast sought counsel of God for him, that he shoulde aryse agayne me, and lye awayt as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kynge & sayd: who is amonge all thy seruauntes as the faythfull Dauid and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddynge, and is had in honoure in thyne house? haue I this daye begone tyll to aske counsell of God for him? be this farre fromme me: lette not the kynge suspect agaynst his seruaunt any suche thinge in all the house of my father. For thy seruaunt knoweth nothinge of all this, eyther lytle or moche.

But the kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto his foteme that stode about him: turne and slay the preastes of the Lorde, bothe because their hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kyng wolde not moue their handes, to run vpon the preastes of the Lord. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: tourne thou and smyte the preastes. And ✠ Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preastes and slewe that same daye foure skore and fyue persones that dyd weare eche man a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preastes he smote with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, chylde and suckelynge, with ore asse and shepe. Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped and fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayn the Lordes preastes. Then Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it ✠ same daye, that whe Doeg the Edomite was there, he wolde surely tell it Saul. I am cause of ✠ death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shall seke myne, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

¶ Dauid delyuereth Keilah, and flyeth in to the wildernesse of Ziph. Here comforted of Jonathas. The Ziphiens wolde haue betrayed him.

CAPI. XXIII.

THen they tolde Dauid, sayenge: Beholde, the Philistines fight against Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Dauid therfore asked the Lordes aduyse, sayenge: shall I goo and smyte the Philistines? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: Go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayd Dauids men vnto him: Se, we be afrayde here in Juda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And ✠ Lorde answered him and sayde, aryse, and go to Keilah, for I wyll gyue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines / and draue awaye their catel and made a great slaughter of them. And so Dauid saued the inhabitauntes of Keilah. Nowe it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he broughte an Ephod in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayd Saul: God hath gyuen him into myne hande. For he is shut in sythe he is come into a towne where be bothe gates and barres. And Saul called all ✠ people to warre, for to goo to Keilah, to besyege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul pryuely imagined mischiefe against him, and sayde to Abiathar the preast: ✠ Bynge the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid, O Lorde God of Jsrael, thy seruaunt heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cytie for my sake: wyll the elders of Keilah delyuer me into his hande? or will Saul come as thy seruaunte heareth saye? Lorde God of Jsrael tell thy seruaunt. And ✠ Lorde sayde: He will come. Then sayde Dauid: Will the men of Keilah delyuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? & the Lord sayd: they will delyuer you.

Then Dauid and his men which were bp̄ a fyre hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here and there, they knew not whether. And when it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled frome Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the iourneye alone. And Dauid abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, & in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God delyuered him not into his hande. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe but Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Ziph in a couert. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to Dauid to the couert, and strengthed him in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shal not fynd the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Jsrael, and I muste be nert vnto the. Yea, and Saul my father knoweth that it shall be so. And they made ✠ a bonde togyther before the Lorde, & Dauid taryed styl in the wood, but Jonathas went to his house.

*1. Reg. xxii.

*1. Reg. xxiii. & 26. and. xx. b

Then came the Ziphites to Saul vnto Gabaah, sayenge: Dauid hydeth him selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a couert in the hyll of Hachilah on the eyghteside of the wildernesse. Nowe therfore syr kynge, come downe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And it shalbe our partes to delyuer him into the handes of ✠ kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. Goo, I praye you, and marke more narowly, and knowe and se his haunte, where his fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wyly. He therfore and knowe all the lurkynge places where he lourketh, and come agayne to me with the certentye, And I will goo with you. Yea and if he will vyde him selfe in the grounde, yet I will hunt him out, with all the thousandes of Juda. And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesse of Maon, in the wylde felde, on the ryght hande of the wyldernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a rocke and dwelt in the wyldernesse of Maon, whiche when Saul hearde, he pursued after Dauid in to the wildernesse of Maon. But Saule and his men went one the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to gette frome Saul. For Saul and his men had compassed Dauid & his men round about, to take them. Then there came a messengre to Saul, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue inuaded & do dispoyle the lande. Wherfore Saul returned frome pursuynge Dauid, and made agaynste the Philistines. And therfore the place is called * Hela Maherecoth. And then Dauid went thence and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

* That is the rock of partinge

¶ Dauid flyeth into Engaddi and there hideth him. Saul cometh in thyther to do his nesmens and Dauid cutteth of the lappe of his maters. Dauid goeth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

CAPI. XXIIII.

When Saul was come agayne frome the Philistines, there were that tolde him, sayenge: beholde, Dauid is in the wyldernesse of Engaddi. Then Saul toke thyrty thousande chosen men oute of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his men in the rockes, where nothinge haunted but wylde goates. And he came to the flockes of sheepe, by a wayes syde where was a caue. And Saul went in couer his fete. And Dauid and his men sat a longe by the sydes of the caue. And the men of Dauid sayde vnto hym: se, the daye is come of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will deliuer thyne ennemye into thyne hand, and thou shalt do with him what it pleaseth the. Then Dauid arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls cote priuely. And forthwith Dauids hert smote him, because he had cut of a lappe of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his men: ‡ Lorde kepe me frome doynge that thinge vnto my master that is the Lordes annoynted, to laye myne hande vpon him, sythe he is ‡ Lordes annoynted. And so Dauid kept of his seruauntes with wordes, and suffred them not to set vpon Saul. And when Saul was ryssen out of the caue, and went forward on his iourneye, Dauid arose and went out of ‡ caue and cryed after Saul, sayeng: My lord kyng. And Saul loked behynde him. And Dauid stouped to the earth and bowed him self, and sayd to Saul: Wherfore gyuest thou an eare to mens wordes, that saye, Dauid seketh the cuyll? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue sene, that the Lorde had deliuered the, into myne hande in the caue. And when they badde the, myne eye had compassion on them and I sayde: I will not lay my handes on my master, for he is ‡ Lordes annoynted, but rather my father, se yet and acknowledge this the lap of thy coote in my hande. And in almoste as I kylled the not also, when I cut of ‡ lap of thy coote, vnderstande and se, that there is neyther cuyll ne rebellion in me, and that I haue not synned agaynst the. And yet thou lyest after my soule to destroye it. The Lorde be iudge betweene the and me, and the Lorde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. According to the olde Prouerbe: Wyckednesse shall proceede out of the wycked: but myne hande shall not be vpon the. After whom arte thou come out, thou kynge of Israel? what is he whome thou chasest? certes thou a dede wogge, and a flee. The Lorde be iuge, and iudge my cause, and deliuer me oute of thyne hande. When Dauid had made an ende speakynge all these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and lyfte vp his voyce and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: Thou arte righteouser then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, & I him acquyted the with cuyll. And thou hast shewed this daye how louyngly thou hast dealt with me, that when the Lorde had locked me in thyne handes, thou slewest me not. For who when he shall fynde his enemy will let him departe in a good waye? Wherfore the Lord rewarde the with good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And now forasmuch as I know assuredly that thou shalt be kynge and that the kyngdome of Israel shalbe stablished in thyne hande: Sweare vnto me by the Lord, that thou shalt not destroy my seede after me, and that thou shalt not destroy my name out of my fathers house: & Dauid sware vnto Saul, So Saul went home, But Dauid and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

¶ Samuel dyeth. Dauid flyeth to the wildernesse of Pharan. He is angry with Nabal: but is appeased by the wysdome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth, and Dauid marryeth Abigail.

CAPI. XXV.

Then Samuel dyed, and al Israel assembled and lamented him and buryed him in his owne house at Ramath. But Dauid arose & gat him to the wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon / whose catell was in Carmell, & the man was very mighty, & had thre thousande sheepe & a thousand gotes. And he was shering his sheepe in Carmell. The name of the man was Nabal, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of good wysdome & beautyfull. But the man was churlysshe & of euyll conditions, & was a Calebite. And when Dauid

herde in the wildernesse, that Nabal share his sheepe, he sent out ten of his younge men, and sayd vnto them: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and greete him in my name. And thus wise saye vnto my frinde: peace be to the, peace be to thine house, and peace be vnto all that thou hast. I haue herde saye thou hast sheepe. Now, thy shepeherdes were with vs, & we did them no despite ne villanye, neyther was there ought mysinge vnto them, all the whyle they were with vs in Carmel: aske thy seruauntes, & they will shewe the. Wherfore let these yong men finde fauour in thyne eyes (for we come in a good season) & * giue (I praye the) whatsoeuer commeth to thine hande, vnto thy seruauntes and to thy sonne Dauid. So Dauids younge men came and tolde Nabal all those wordes in the behalfe of Dauid and then stopped. Then Nabal answered Dauids seruauntes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is the sonne of Jsai? there is plentye of seruauntes nowe a dayes, that breake away from their maisters. Shuld I take my breed, my water and my flesh that I haue killed for my sheepers, and geue it vnto men which I wote not whence they be? The Dauids seruauntes turned their waye / and went agayne, and came and tolde him according to al those sayenges. Then Dauid said vnto his men: gyrde euery man his sweorde a boute him. And they gyrded euerye man his sweorde on him, and Dauid therto gyrde on his sweorde. And so there folowed Dauid aboute foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the fusshe. But one of the seruauntes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se Dauid sent messengers vnto our master oute of the wyldernesse to salute him, & he rayled them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and did vs no displeasure, neyther myssed we any thinge, as longe as we were conuersaunt with them, when we were in the feldes. Yea they were a wall of defence vnto vs, both by nighe and by daye, all the whyle we were with the keepinge sheepe. Nowe take hede and se, what thou hast to do, for myschiefe is concluded to be done vnto our master and to all his housholde. And he is vngracious to speake to. The Abigail made haste and toke two hundred loues and two bottelles of wyne and fyue sheepe redye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of resynges, & two hundred frayles of figges, and laded them on asses, and sayde vnto her young men: go before me, and lo I come after you, & tolde her husbande Nabal nothinge therof. And as she rode on her asse, & was commynge downe in a slade of the hyll, Dauid and his men came downe against her, and she met them. And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this fellowe hadde in the wyldernesse: so that nought was myssed that pertayned vnto him, for he hathe acquyted me with cuyll for good. So and so God do vnto the ennemyes of Dauid, as I will not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, ought that pysseth against the wall. When Abigail sawe Dauid, she hasted and dyd alyte of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fell at his fete and sayde: Let this vnhappye dede be accompted myne, my Lorde, and let thyne handemayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lorde regarde this vnthryfty man Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I thyn handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lorde which thou sendest. And now my Lord as truely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lorde hath withholden the frome commynge to shede bloude, and frome auengynge thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne ennemyes and they that intende to wo my Lorde cuyll, maye be as Nabal. And now take this bleslinge, whiche thyne handemayde hathe brought to the my Lorde, let it be geuen vnto the younge men that folowe my Lorde. For-gyue the trespace of thyne handemayde that the Lorde maye make my Lorde a sure house because my Lorde fyghteth the battelles of ‡ Lorde, and there coulde none cuyll be founde in the, in all thy lyfe. And yf any man aryse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my Lorde mought be preserued as it were in a bondell of lyuynge thinges, with the Lorde thy God. And the soules of thy ennemyes be slonge in the myddle of a slynge. And when the Lorde shall haue wrought to my Lorde all the good that he hathe promysed the, and shall haue made the, ruler ouer Jsrael: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the or discourage of herte vnto my Lorde, that thou sheddest bloude causelesse, and auengest thy selfe.

And when the Lorde shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, thinke on thyne handmayde Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Jsrael which sent the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behauour, and blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye frome bloudshedinge, and frome auengynge my selfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede as surely as the Lorde God of Jsrael lyueth, who hath kept me backe frome hurtinge the, excepte thou haddest hasted and met me, there hadde not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a pisser against ‡ wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hande that she brought, and sayd to her: go in peace to thyne house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail returned to Nabal: behold, he helde a feast in his house lyke ‡ feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merye within him, for he was well dronke. Wherfore she tolde him naught neyther lytle nor moche tyll the morowe. But in the mornynge, when Nabal hadde digested the wyne, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. Which when Dauid herde that Nabal was dead, sayde: Blessed be the Lord that hath wroken the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euyll, and hathe turned the wickednesse of Nabail vpon his owne heed. So Dauid sent to commen with Abigail, to thintent to take her to his wife. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and fell on her face to the erthe and sayde: Beholde, thy hand mayde be a seruaunt to washe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lorde. And Abigail hasted and arose and gat her vp vpon an Asse, with. v. damoselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid and was his wyfe. Dauid also take Ahinoan of Jezrahel, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

¶ Saul sleapeth in his tent, And Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heade.

CAPI. XXVI.

A Fter that came ℣ Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah, saying: Dauid hydeth hym self in ℣ hill of Hachilah before ℣ wildernesse. Then Saule arose and went to the wyldernesse of Ziph and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saul pytched in the hill of Hachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul pursued him into the wildernesse, he sent forth espyes and vnderstode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and beheld the place where Saul lay with Abner the son of Ner, his chefe capitayne. For Saul laye within a rounde banke, and the people pytched rounde about him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah and brother to Joab, sayenge: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: I will goo downe with the. And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepinge within a sounde bancke, and his speare pytched in the ground at his heed, Abner & the people lyenge round about him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thyne ennemy vnto thyne hand this daye. Now therfore let me smyte him I pray the with my speare to the earth, but one stroke, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes annoynted and be giltelesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as truely as the Lorde liueth, oncles ℣ Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye or he shall descende into battell and there perysshe: the Lorde kepe me from layeng myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. Now the take the speare that is at his heed, and the crewse of water, and let vs goo. And Dauid toke the speare and the crewse of water that was at Sauls heed, and they gat them away and no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a slomber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to thother syde and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space betwene theym) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayeng: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayd: What art thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israel? But wherefore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kyng? For there came one of the folke to destroy the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast wone. As truely as the Lorde liueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes annoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water, that was at his heed.

Then Saul knewe Dauids voyce & sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde kynge. And he sayd further wherfore weth my Lord pursue his seruaunt? for what haue I wroken what euyll is in myne hande? Nowe heare therfore (my Lorde kynge) the wordes of thy seruaunte. Yf the Lorde haue stered the vp gainst me, let him smell the sacrifice. But yf they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue caste me out to that I can not dwell in the enheritaunce of ℣ Lord, sayeng: hence & go serue other Gods. And yet I hope my blonde shall not fal to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kynge of Israell be come out to hunt one lyce, as men hunte the partregis in the mountayns. Then sayd Saul: I haue synned: come again my sonne Dauid for I will no the no more harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue playd the fole and haue erred exceadinge moche. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer and fet it. The Lord reward euery man righteousnesse and faith: for the Lorde deliuered the into my hand this day, but I would not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was moche set by this tyme in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulations. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed arte thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a doer and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which geueth him Ziklag to dwell in. He killeth the Philistines. And when Achis demaunded agaynste whome he had roued, he craftely him a lubyll answere and deceyueth hym properlye.

CAP. XXVII.

Then thought Dauid in his hert: I shall perish at one daye or other by the hades of Saul. There is no better thyng for me then them to flee in to the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of verye despayre to fynde me, may ceasse sekynge me any more in all the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hand. And Dauid arose, and he and the fire hundred men that were with him went vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelte with Achis at Geth, both he & his men, euery man with his houshold, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezrahelite and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmell. So whē it was told Saul ℣ Dauid was fled to Geth, he sought no more for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: Yf I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the feldes, that I maye dwell there. For what sholde thy seruaunt dwell in the heed cite of the kingdome with the? Then Achis gaue him Zikeleg the same daye for which cause Zikeleg pertayneth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto this daye. And the tyme that Dauid dwelte in the countreye of the Philistines, was a yere and foure monthes. And Dauid and his men went and ran vpon the Gesurites, the Gerzites, and the Amalekites, whiche nacions were from the beynnynge the inhabitantes of the lande, as men go to Sur, and so forth to Egypt. And Dauid smote the lande, and lefte neither man ne woman alyue, and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and remoued & came to Achis. And Achis sayde: haue ye not done a roueng this daye? And Dauid answered: yes in the southe of Juda, and in the southe of the Jerahelites, and in the south of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neither man nor woman alyue to bryng to Geth, saying lest they shold speake agaynste vs: Thus dyd Dauid, and so was his maner all the whyle he dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis beleued Dauid, saying: He hath wrought moche mischefe agaynst his people Israel, and therfore he shall be my seruaunt for euer.

¶ The Philistines moue warre agaynste Saul and the Israelites. Saul requyreth councell of God but hath no answere: and then seketh after an enchaunter, who cayleth vp the spirite of Samuel.

CAPI. XXVIII.

It chaunced in those dayes that the Philistines gathered their host together to warre, inentoynge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to Dauid: Be sure thou shalte goo oute with me in the host, and thy men also. And Dauid said agayn to Achis: then thou shalt knowe what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I wyll make the keper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, and all Israel had lamented him, and buryed hym in Ramath his owne city. And Saul had put the women that had spirites of prophesye and the sorcerers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered togyther, and came & pitched in Sunam, and Saul and all Israel gathered togyther and pytched in Gelboe. When Saul sawe the host of the Philistines, he was afrayde, & his herte was sore astonyed. And Saul asked counsel of the Lorde: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame, nor by prestes, nor yet by the Prophetes.

Then said Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman hauing a spirite of prophesye, that I maye goo to her and aske of her. And his seruauntes sayd to hym: se, there is a wyf for that hath a spirite of prophesie at Endor. And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other rayment, and then went he & two men with him, and they came to the wyfe by nyght, and he sayde: prophelye vnto me by the spirite, and bring me him vp whom I shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that hadde prophesienge spirites, & the sorcerers out of the land. Wherfore then layest thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lord, sayinge: as surely as the Lorde liueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the wyfe: whome shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayd: bring me vp Samuel. When the woman sawe Samuel, she cryed with a loude voyce and spake to Saul, saringe: why hast thou mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kyng said vnto her, be not afrayde: But what seest thou? And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se a God ascendyng vp out of the erth. And he sayde: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde: there commeth vp an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and stouped with his face to ℣ grounde and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make warre agaynst me, and God is departed from me, and answered me no more, neyther by prophetes, neyther by dreames / & therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall doo. Then said Samuel: wherfore wilt thou aske of me whyle the Lorde is gone from the, & is thyne ennemye? the Lorde wyll do to the as he sayde by my hand. For the Lord wil rent the kyngdome oute of thyne hande, and gyue it thy neighbour Dauid, because thou obeyedst not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpō the Amalekites. Therfore hath the Lord done this vnto the this daye. And further the Lorde wyll delyuer Israel with the in to the handes of ℣ Philistines / & to morow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me / and ℣ Lorde shall gyue the hoste of Israel in to the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell forthwith flatte on the erth, and was sore a dredde of the wordes of Samuel.

And there was no strength in him, for he hadde not eaten all the daye before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe he was sore troubled, and sayd vnto him. Se, thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voice, and haue put my soule in my hande, & haue harkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou sayedst vnto me. Nowe therfore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of breed before the, and eate and get the strength to go thy iourneye. But he refused it and sayd: I wil not eate. But his seruauntes & the wyfe togitogyther compelled him, that he herde theyr voyce. And so he arose from the erthe and sate him on a bed. The woma had a fat calfe in the house, and that she hasted and killed, and toke flour & knedde it, and did bake him swete cakes, and brought them before Saul, and before his seruantes/and when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

¶ David goyng with kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul is sent agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

CAPI. XXIX.

A THe Philistines gathered al theyr hostes togyther vnto Aphek/and Israel pitched by a fountayn in Jezrahel. And the lordes of the Philistines wer forth by hundredes and by thousandes. But David and his men came beyonde with Achis. Then sayd the lordes of the Philistines: what wyl ye nder Hebrues? And Achis said vnto the lordes of the Philistines. Is not this David the seruaunt of Saul the king of Israel, which hath ben with me dayes or yeres, and I haue found no faute B in him sithens he fled vnto me vnto this daye. Neuertheles the lordes of the Philistines were wroth with him and sayde vnto him: Make this felow returne, & let him go againe to his 1.Parali.xi.d place whyche thou hast appoynted him. For he shall not goo with vs to battayle, lest he be an aduersarye to vs in the battayle, when we begyn to fyghte. For wherewith coulde he better obtayne the fauour of his master, then vpon the heedes of our men? Is this not Da- 1.Reg.xviii.a uid to whome they sange in daunces: ✻Saul and.xxi.d slewe in thousandes, but David ten thou- Eccli.xlvii.c. sandes? Then Achis called David and sayd vnto him: As truely as the Lorde lyueth thou arte honest, and it pleaseth me well that thou shouldest accompany me in the hoste/for I haue found none euyl with the from the tyme thou camest to me vnto this day. Neuertheles the C Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherfore returne and goo in peace, that thou displease not ✝ Lordes of the Philistines. And David said agayne to Achis: Why, what haue I done? and what hast thou founde in thy seruaunt as longe as I haue ben with the vnto this daye? that I maye not go fyght agaynste the enemyes of my Lorde the kynge.

Achis answered and sayd to David: I wot D well, thou pleasest me, as it were an aungell of God. Notwythstandynge the lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, that thou shalte not go with them to battayle. Wherfore aryse vp early in the mornyng with thy masters seruantes that are come with the. And when ye be vp early, as soone it begyn to be daye, departe. And so David and his men arose early to departe in the mornyng, and to returne in to the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Jezrahell.

¶ David returnynge from kynge Achis fyndeth Ziklag burnte. He pursueth after the burners therof and killeth them and recouereth the praye.

CAPI. XXX.

BVt er David and his men were come to Ziklag the thirde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the south part vpon Ziklag, and had smytten Ziklag & burnt it with fyre/and had taken the women there pri- soners, both smal & great, but slew not a man, but carryed them with them & departed. When David and his men came to the citye/behelde it was burnt with fire/and their wiues, their sonnes and their doughters were taken pri- soners. Then David and the people that was with hym lyfte vp their voyces and wept tyl they coulde wepe no more. And Davids two wyues were taken prysoners also/ Ahinoam the Jezrahelite/ and Abigail the wyfe of Na- bal the Carmelite. And David was sore trou- bled/for the people intended to stone him, be- cause the hertes of all the people were vexed for their sonnes and their doughters. But Da- uid toke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayd to Abiathar the preest Achime- lechs sonne: bynge me the Ephod. And Abi- that brought the Ephod to David. And David asked the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I pursue the companye? and shal I ouertake them? And he sayd to him: folowe, for thou shalte ouertake them and recouer the praye. So he went and the fyue hundred men that were with him, and they came to the ryuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheles David and fower hundred men folowed, but two hundred abode beyonde, being to wery to go ouer the ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought him to David and gaue him breed to eate, and water to drynke/& gaue him a fewe figges, and two clusters of reasynges, and when he hadde eaten, his spirites came a- gayne to him, for he had eaten no breed, nor dronke no water in three dayes and three nyghtes. Then David sayde vnto him: to whome belongeth thou, and whence art thou? And the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruaunt to an Amalekite: & my master lefte me behynde because it is three dayes a gone that I fell sicke we came a roning vpon the south of Cerethi, and vpon them of Juda, and on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt Ziklag with fyre. And David sayd to him: canste thou bynge me to this company? And he said: Sweare vnto me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyll me, nor de- lyuer me in to the handes of my master, and I wyll bynge the vnto them. And when he had brought him: se, they laye scattered all abroade vpon the erth, eatynge and drynkynge and tri- umphynge ouer all the greate praye that they had caryed awaye out of the lande of the Phi- listines, and out of the lande of Juda.

And David layde vpon them from the ey- lyght, vntyll the euen of the next daye/so that there escaped not a man, saue foure hun- dred yong men, which rode awaye vpon camels and fled. And David recouered all that the Amalekites had caried awaye, and his two wyues/so that there was no person lackynge small or great/ sonne or doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken awaye, but David brought all a- gayne. And David toke all the shepe and the oxen. And they dryue the cattell before & sayde

this is Davids praye. And then David came to the two hundred men that were ouer wery to folowe David, whiche they made to abyde at the riuer Besor. And they came to mete Da- uid and the people that were with him. And when David came to the people, he greeted the prandly. Then answered all the wycked and F the vnthryftes of the men that went with Da- uid, and sayd: because they went not with vs, therfore shall none of the praye that we haue recouered be gyuen vnto them, saue to euerye man his wyfe & his chyldren: whiche let them carye awaye and be walkynge.

Then sayd David: ye shall not doo so (my G brethren) with that the Lorde hath gyuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and delyuered the com- panye that came agaynst vs in to our handes. For who sholde herken vnto you in this mat- ter? But as his parte is that goeth and fyght- eth, so good shal his parte be that taryeth by the stuffe/they shal parte it alyke. And so from that day forwarde, was that made a law and a custome in Israel, and dureth tyl this daye. When David came to Ziklag, he sent of his G praye vnto the elders of Juda, and to his fren- des, sayinge: Se there a ✝ blessynge for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lord. He sent to them of Bethel, to them of south Ramath: to them of Gether: to them of Aroer: to the of Siphamoth/to them of Esthamo/to them of Rachal/to them of the cytyes of the Jerha- meelytes: to them of the cities of the Kenites/ to them of Haramah/to them of Bozalan/to them of Athach/ to them of Hebron/ and to all places where David and his men were wonte to haunte.

¶ The battayle betwene the Philistines and Isra- el. Saul byleth hym self, and his children are slayne in the battayle.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND ✝ Philistines fought agaynst Is- rael, the men of Israell fled away fro the Philistines, & fel downe deed in mount Gilboe. And the Philistines made after Saul and his sonnes/and slew Jonathas, Abinadab and Melchisua, Sauls sonne. And the battell went sore agaynst Saul, in so moche that the- ters with bowes had founde him, and he was sore wounded of the shoters. Then sayd Saul B vnto his harnes bearer ✻drawe out thy sworde * Jud.ix.g and thrust me thorow therwith, lest these vn- 1.Paralip.x.a circumcised come thrust me thorow, and make a mockynge stocke of me. But his harnes bea- Saul kylleth rer wold not/for he was sore afrayde. Where- him selfe. fore Saul toke a sworde and fell vpon it. And when his harnes bearer saw that Saul was deed, he fell lykewyse vpon his sworde & dyed with him. And so Saul dyed and his thre sonnes, and his harnes bearer, & all his men that same daye togyther. When the men of Israel C that were of the other syde the valeye, & they of the other syde Jordan herde that the men of Israel were put to flyght, and that Saul & his sonnes were deed/they lefte the cities and ran awaye, and the Philistines came & dwelte in them. ✻ On the morow when the Philistines ✻1.Par.xi.b were come to stryp them that were slayn, they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyinge in mount Gilboe. And they cut of his heed, & stripped him out of his harnesse, and sent in to the land of the Philistines euery where, to pu- blysshe in the houses of their goddes, and to the people. And they hanged vp his harnesse in the house of Asharoth, but they hanged vp his carkesse on the walles of Bethsan. When the inhabitantes of Jabes in Galaad herd what D the Philistines had doone to Saul, they arose as many as were men of warre, and went all nyght and toke the corps of Saul, and the corpses of his sonnes from the walles of Bethsan and brought them to Ja- bes, and ✻burnte them there, * Jeremiæ.xlviii.a and toke their bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Ja- bes, and fasted seuen dayes.

THE SECONDE BOKE OF SAMVEL, OTHERVVYSE CALLED, THE SECONDE BOKE OF THE KYNGES.

¶ Dauid commaundeth to slee the messenger, that sayde he hadde killed Saul. The Lamentacion of Dauid for Saul and Jonathas.

CAPI. I.

a After the deathe of Saul, whē Dauid was returned from ꝑ slaughter of the Amalekites, and had ben two dayes in Zikeleg: Beholde, there came a man the thirde daye oute of the hoste frome Saul with his clothes rent, and erthe vpon his heed. And when he came to Dauid, he fell to the erthe & did obeysaunce. To whom Dauid said, whēce commest thou? And the other answered hym: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayd to him agayne. How hath it chaūced? tell me. And he sayd: the people fled from the battell/ and many of the people are ouerthrowen and deed / and Saul and Jonathas his sonne are deed ther̄to. And Dauid sayd vn- b to the yong man that tolde him/how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne be deed? And the yonge man that tolde him said: I was by chaunce in mounte Gelboe. And se, Saul leaned vpon his speare/ and the charets and horsemen folowed him at the heles. And Saul loked backe and called me: And I answered: here am I. And he said vnto me: what art thou? And I sayd vnto him: I am an Amalekite. And he sayde vnto me: come on me and slee me. For anguisshe is come vpon me, and my lyfe is yet all in me. And I wente on him and slewe him: for I was sure that he coulde not lyue after that he was fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme. and haue brought them vnto ꝑ my Lorde hither. Then Dauid toke his clothes and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were with him/and they mourned, wepte, and fasted tyl euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne / and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowē with the sweorde. c Then sayde Dauid vnto the yonge man that broughte him tidynges. Whence arte thou? And he sayde: I am the sonne of a straunger, Psalm.ciiii.b an Amalekite. And Dauid sayde vnto hym. How is it that thou wast not afrayde to laye thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted to destroye him? And Dauid called one of his yong men, and sayd: Go and runne vpon him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde Dauid d vnto him: Thy bloudr be vpon thyne owne heed. For thyne owne mothe hathe witnessed agaynst the, saying: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted. And Dauid sang this song of mourning ouer Saul, and ouer Jonathas his son, and bad to teache the children of Israell the e lawes therof. And beholde it is written in the boke of the ryghteous. The glorye of Israel is slayn vpon thyne hygh hylles. Oh how were the myghty ouerthrowen? Tell it not in Geth, nor publysshe it in the stretes of Askalon/ leest the doughters of the Philistines reioyce, and the the doughters of the vncircumcised triumphe therof: Ye mountaynes of Gelboe, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, ne fieldes whence beauteous kynges come. For there the shyldes of the myghtye were caste from them: the shylde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathas, and the sworde of Saul tourned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, and from the fatte of the myghty warriours.

Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunte in theyr lyues, were in theyr dethes not deuided/ men swifter then egles, and stronger then Lyons. Ye doughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in purple and goodly mentes of pleasure / and bordered youre rayment with ornamentes of golde. How were the myghtye slayne in battayle? Jonathas in thy hye hilles was wounded to deth. Woo is me for the, my brother Jonathas: wretchednes me waill thou exceadynge. Thy loue to me was wonderfull passing the loue of women. How were thy mighty ouerthrowen, and how were the weapons of warre forlorne.

¶ Dauid is anoynted in Hebron. The battayle of the seruauntes of Dauid and Isboseth.

CAPI. II.

After this Dauid asked the Lorde, saynge: shall I go vp in to anye of the cyties of Juda? And the Lorde sayde vnto him: go vp. And Dauid answered: whyther shal I go? He answered, vnto Hebron. And so Dauid went thyther with his two wyues also / Ahinoam the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were with him, dyd Dauid carye vp also, euerye man with his house. And they dwelte in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Juda came & there annoynted Dauid kynge ouer the house of Juda. When it was tolde Dauid how the men of Jabes in Galaad had buryed Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed suche kyndnesse vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buryed hym. Wherfore the Lorde shewe you mercy and truthe agayn. And I wil do you good also, bycause ye haue doone this thynge. And nowe let your handes be strong and playe ye the men, thoughe youre master Saul be deed. And finallye vnderstande that the house of Juda haue annoynted me kynge ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that was capitayne of Saules hoste toke Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and broughte him to Mahannaim and made him kyng ouer Galaad and ouer the Assurites, and ouer Jezrahel, and ouer Ephraim and Benjamin, and ouer al Israel. And Isboseth Saules sonne was fourtye yeres olde when he began to raigne ouer Israel and raigned two yeres. But the house of Juda only folowed Dauid. ✳ And the tyme which Dauid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was vij. yere and sixe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim to Gabaon. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah and the seruauntes of Dauid went oute and met them by the pole of Gabaō. And they sate downe, the one parte on the one syde the pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayd to Joab/ let the yonge men aryse and playe before vs. And Joab answered: Be it. Then there arose & went ouer twelue of Benjamin by nombre, whiche pertayned to Isboseth the sonne of Saul/ and twelue of the seruauntes of Dauid. And they caughte eche his fellowe that came against him by the heed/ and thrust his sworde in his syde, and so fell downe all at ones. Wherfore the place was called ✳ Helath Zurim whiche is in Gabaon. And there began an exceadynge cruell battayle that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worsse of the seruauntes of Dauid.

And there was thre sonnes of Zeruiah: Joab, Abisai, and Asahel / whiche Asahel was as swyfte of fote as a wylde Roo, and folowed after Abner/ and tourned neyther to the ryght hande nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner loked behinde him, and sayd: art thou Asahel? And he sayd, yea. Then sayd Abner/ turne the eyther to the ryght hande or to the lefte/ and catche one of the yonge men, and take the his spoyle. But Asahel wolde not depart from hym, but pursued hym. And Abner sayd agayne to Asahel: tourne frome me, and folowe not me/ for I were lothe to smyte the to ꝑ ground. For then howe shulde I holde vp my face before Joab thy brother? how be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

✳ Then Abner with the hynder ende of the speare smote hym vnder the fyfthe rybbes, that the spere came out beyynde hym, that he felle downe in the same place and died there. And as many as came to the place where Asahell fell downe and dyed, stode styll. But Joab and Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sonne wente downe. And when they were come to the hyll Amah, that lyeth before Giah, in the waye that goeth thorowe the wyldernes of Gabaon the children of Benjamin assembled after Abner on a plumpe, and stode styll on the top of an hyll. Then Abner called to Joab, & said/ Shal the sweord deuour without ende? knowest thou not ꝑ bitternesse is wont to come in the latter ende? how longe shall it be er thou byd the people returne from folowyng theyr brethren? And Joab answered: as truly as God lyueth yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the morninge hadde the people departed eche frome folowynge his brother. And therwith ✳ Joab blewe a trompet, and all the people stode styll and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and his men walked all that nyght by the wylde feldes, and went ouer Jordan, and paste thorow all Bethhoron, and came to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned frome Abner and assembled all the people. And there lacked of Dauid seruauntes nyneteene persones and Asahel. But the seruauntes of Dauid hadde slayne of Benjamin and of Abners men, thre hundred and thre score men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buryed hym in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men wente all nyght, and came in the dawnynge to Hebron.

¶ Abner commeth to Dauid and bryngeth him his wife Michol. Joab killeth Abner. Dauid bewayleth his death, and curseth Joab.

CAPI. III.

There was longe stryfe betwene ꝑ house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. ✳ And Dauid hadde children borne him in Hebron. His eldest sonne was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite/ the secōde Cheleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite/ the thyrde Absalom the sonne of Maachah the doughter of Tholmai the kynge of Gessur/ the fourthe Adonijah the sonne of Haggith/ the fyfte Saphatiah the sonne of Abital/ the sixte, Jethraam by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battayle betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner the sonne of Ner helde by the house of Saul. And Saul hadde a concubyne named Rizpah, the doughter of Aiah. And Isboseth sayd to Abner. Wherfore hast thou with my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner verye wrothe for the wordes of Isboseth, and sayd: Am I not a ✳ dogges heed, whiche agaynste Juda haue shewed mercye this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes / and haue not delyuered them in to the hande of Dauid: fathens thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for a woman? ✳ So wo God to Abner/ and so onlesse as the Lorde hath swoone to Dauid, I so wo to hym/ and bryng the kyngdome from the house of Saul, and sette vp the seate of Dauid ouer Israell and ouer Juda, frome Dan to Berlabe. And he couldr gyue Abner not one worde to answere, bycause he feared hym. Then Abner sente messengers to Dauid forthwith, sayinge: Whose is the lande? And he sayd moreouer: Make a bonde with me / and se, my hande is with the, to bryng all Israell vnto the. And Dauid answered/ well sayde/ I wyll make a bonde with the. But one thynge I requyre the, that thou se not my face, onlesse thou fyrste bryngest Michol Sauls doughter, when thou commest to se me. And Dauid sent messengers to Isboseth Sauls sonne, sayinge: delyuer me my wyfe Michol, whiche I maryed with an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines. And Isboseth sent and toke her frome her husbande Phaltiel the sonne of Lais. And her husbande folowed her, and came wepynge behynde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym, goo and returne. And he returned. And Abner had communycacion with the elders of Israell, sayinge: Ye haue longe gone aboute that Dauid shoulde be kynge ouer you. Nowe then wo it: for the Lorde hathe sayde of Dauid, by the hande of my seruaunte Dauid, I will saue my people Israel oute of the handes of the Philistines, and oute of the hande of all theyr ennemyes. And semblable wordes hadde he with Benjamin. And then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israell was content with, and the hole house of Beniamin. So when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron, and twentye men with hym / Dauid made hym, and the men that were with him a feast. Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid: I will aryse and goo gather all Israel vnto my lorde the kynge, that they maye make a bonde with the, that thou mayste be a kynge ouer al that thyne herte desyreth / and so Dauid let Abner departe, and he wente in peace. And loo, the seruauntes of Dauid and Joab came from chasynge robbers, and broughte a greate botye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he hadde sente him awaye to departe in peace. When Joab and all the hoste with him were come, men tolde Joab saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kynge / and he hathe sent hym awaye that he is gone in peace. Then Joab wente to the kynge, and sayd: What hast thou wonne? Se Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sent him awaye that he shoulde escape free? Thou myghtest knowe Abner the sonne of Ner that he came to flatter the, and knowe thy conuersacion and bauour, and to knowe all thy dorynges. And when Joab was come oute from the kynge, he sente messengers after Abner, whiche broughte hym agayne from the well of Sirah vnbeknynge to Dauid. So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym aside in the gate to speake with hym gylefully, and there smote hym vnder the fyfte rybbes that he dyed, for the bloude of Asahel his brother. And when it afterward came to Dauids eare, he sayd: I and my kyngdome are gyltelesse before the Lorde for euer, concernyng the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner, It fall therfore on the heed of Joab, and on al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer without one or other that hathe runnynge issues or without lepers and goers on crouches, and that fall on the swerde, and that lacke breed. And the cause why Joab and Abisai slewe Abner, was that Abner had slayne theyr brother Asahel at Gabaon in battayle. And Dauid sayde to Joab, and to all the people that were with him, rent your clothes, and put on sacke cloth and mourne before Abner / and kynge Dauid him selfe folowed the bere. And when they hadde buryed Abner in Hebron, the kynge lyfte vp his voyce and wepte ouer the graue of Abner, and so dyd all the people. And the kynge bewayled Abner and sayde: Abner dyed not as a wycke dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled, nether thy fete shackled with fetters but as men falle before wycked chyldren, so fellest thou / and all the people wepte yet more ouer him.

And when all the people came to eate meate with Dauid, whyle it was yet daye, Dauid swore, sayinge: so do God to me and so, yf I taste breed or oughte elles, tyll the sonne be downe. And the people wyste it, and it pleased them, as wel as all other good thinges which the kynge dyd in the syghte of the people. And all the people, and all Israel vnderstode the daye how it was not of kynges myndе, to slo Abner the sonne of Ner. And the kynge sayd vnto his seruauntes: knowe ye not, there a Lorde, and that a greate, fallen this daye in Israel? And I am this daye tender, thoughe I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Zaruiah be to good for me to rule? But the Lorde rewarde the doer of euyll accordyng his wickednesse.

¶ Baanah and Rechab sley Isboseth the sonne of Saul,

CAPI. IIII.

When Sauls sonne herd that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes faynted and all Israell was troubled. Nowe, the Sauls sonne had two men that were theyr capitaynes ouer the souldyers, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Remon a Berothite / and of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to the pertayne to Beniamin. And these Berothites fledde to Gethaim, and sojourned there vnto the same tyme. And Jonathas Sauls sonne hadde a sonne lame on his fete: fyue yeres old was he, when tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas oute of Jezrahel. And his nourse toke him vp, and fledde awaye. And as she made haste to flee and was amased, the chylde fell and became halte and was called Mephiboseth. And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Isboseth, as he slepte on a bedde at noone. And when they came in to the house as though they wolde haue bought wheate, and smote hym vnder the fyfte rybbes, and fledde. For they came into the house as he slepte on his bedde in the hynder chamber, and smote him and slewe him and beheded hym, and toke his heed and gate them awaye towarde the Playne all nyghte. And they broughte the heed of Isboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron, and sayde vnto the kynge: Beholde here the heed of Isboseth Sauls sonne thyne ennemy, which sought thy life. But the Lorde hathe auenged my Lorde the kynge this daye, of Saul and of his seede. Then Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothyte, and sayde vnto them: as surely as the Lorde liueth, who hathe delyuered my soule oute of all aduersities: hym that told me and sayd Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue broughte me good tydynges, I caughte and slewe him

Ziklag,

Ziklag, to gyue hym a rewarde for his tydynges bryngyng. And how moche more ought I so to deale with wycked men that haue layne in a righteous person in his owne house vpon his bedde. Now therfore shynde ye that I will not requyre his bloude of youre handes, and take you frome the earthe? And Dauid gaue a commaundement to his seruauntes, and they slewe them and cut of their handes and their fete, & hanged them vp by the pole in Hebron. And they toke the heed of Isboseth, and buryed it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

¶ Dauid is yet agayne annoynted kyng: and taketh the Tirke from Sion. He calleth out the blynde and the lame. He marieth moo wyues and getteth moo chyldren. He fyghteth the Philistines.

CAPI. V.

Then came all the kynredes of Israel to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thy bones and thy fleshe. And further in tymes paste when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou ledest Israel in and out. And the Lorde hath sayde: thou shalte fede my people Israel, and thou shalte be a capitayne ouer Israell. And so all the elders of Israel came to the kynge to Hebron. And kynge Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the Lorde / and they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israell. Dauid was thyrtye yere olde what tyme he began to raygne, and he raygned fourty yeres. In Hebron he raygned ouer Juda, seuen yere, and fyue monethes / and in Jerusalem thyrtye and three yeres ouer all Israel and Juda.

Then went the kynge and his men to Jerusalem, vnto the Jebusites thinhabitaunces of the lande. And they sayde vnto Dauid: onlesse thou take away the blynde and the lame, thou shalt not come in hyther, meaning thereby that Dauid wolde not haue come in thyther. Neuertheles Dauid toke the holde of Sion, whiche is in the cyte of Dauid. Then sayd Dauid the same daye. Who so euer sleeth the Jebusite, and wynneth the toures of his house / and destroyeth the lame and the blynde ennemyes vnto Dauids soule. Wherfore it is a prouerbe: the blynde and the lame shal not come into the house. And Dauid dwelt in the tour, and called it the cyte of Dauid. And he buylte rounde about it from Millo inwarde. Dauid waxed greate, and the Lorde God of hostes was with hym. And Hyram kynge of Tire sent messengers to Dauid with Cedar trees and carpenters and masons, to buylde Dauid an house. Whereby Dauid perceyued, that the Lorde had stadfastned hym kynge ouer Israel, and had auaunced his kyngdome for his people Israels sake. And Dauid toke him mo concubynes and wyues oute of Jerusalem, after he was come frome Hebron, and mo sonnes and doughters were borne to Dauid. These be the names of the sonnes that were borne hym in Jerusalem: Hamua, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Jebahar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, and Eliphalet.

But when the Philistines herde that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel, they came all vp to seke Dauid. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he gat him to an holde. And the Philistines came and layde them along in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked of the Lord, saying: Shal I go to the Philistines? and wilt thou giue them in to my handes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: goo, for I will deliuer the Philistines in to thy handes. And Dauid came to Baal Perazim and smote them there and said: the Lorde hathe scuttred myne ennemyes asonder before me, as a man wolde diuide waters; and therfore he called the name of the sayde place Baal Perazim. And there they lefte theyr ymages, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines came yet agayne, and layde them in the valeye Raphaim. But Dauid asked the Lorde, and he sayde, goo not. But compasse theym on the backesyde, and come vpon them from the mulbreye trees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thynge goynge in the toppes of the trees, then moue. For then the Lorde is gone oute before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid dyd as the Lorde commaunded, and smote the Philistines from Gabaah to Geyer.

¶ The arcke is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is stryken and dyeth because he touched the arcke. The arcke is brought in to the house of Obed Edom, and frome thence in to Jerusalem. Dauid daunceth before it, and is therfore despysed of his wyfe Michol.

CAPI. VI.

After this, Dauid chose out all the chefe younge men in Israell to the somme of xxx. thousande, and arose and went, and all the folke that were with hym of the men of Juda, to fet awaye the arcke of God, vpon which is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth betwene the cherubyns. And they put the arcke of God on a new cart, & broughte it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabaah. And Ozah and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab dryue the new cart. And when they brought it oute of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah with the arcke of God / Ahio wente before the arcke / and Dauid and all the house of Israel playde before the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyne wodde, with harpes, psalteryes, tymbrelles, fydyles and symbals.

And when they came to Nachons threshynge floure, Ozah put his hand to the arcke of God and held it, for the oxen stombled. And the Lorde was wrathe with Ozah, and God smote him in the same place for his fault, and there he dyed by the arcke of God. And Dauid was displeased because the Lorde had rent Ozah. And the name of the place was called Peles Ozah tyll this daye. And Dauid was then afrayde of the Lord, and sayd: how shold the arcke of the Lorde come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bryng the arcke of the Lorde

with hym in to the citye of Dauid, but caried
it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite.
And the arcke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethite three monethes / and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom,
1 Paral.xv. and all his houshold. And when it was tolde kynge Dauid that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and al that belonged vnto hym, vpcause of the arcke of God, he went and broughte the arcke of God frome
the house of Obed Edom, vnto the citye of Dauid with gladnesse. And euer when they that bare the arcke of the Lorde hadde gone
sixe passes, he offered an oxe and a fatte shepe.
And Dauid daunced before the Lorde with al
his myghte in a lynnen Ephod gyrde vnto
hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel broughte the arcke of the Lorde with shoutyng
and trompet blowynge.

And as the arcke of the Lorde came in to the citye of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter
Michol. loked thorowe a wyndowe and sawe kynge
Dauid springe and daunce before the Lorde, and therfore dispised hym in her herte. And when they hadde broughte in the arcke of the Lorde, and had set it in his place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid hadde prepared for it:
D Dauid offered burntofferynges and prayseofferynges before the Lorde / and as soone as Da-uid had made an ende of offerynge burnt offerynges and prayseofferynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men euery one a cake of breed, and a peece of flesshe and a flacket of wyne. And so the people departed euery man to his house.
Then Dauid returned to salute his hous-holde. And Michol the doughter of Saul came oute agaynste hym and sayde. Oh how glorious was the kynge of Israell to daye, whiche strypte hym selfe this daye before the eyen of the maydens of his seruauntes, as a lyghte brayned felowe is wont to strippe hym selfe. But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol, I E will make sporte before the Lorde, whiche chose me before thy father, and before all his kynne, commaundynge me to be ruler ouer all this people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vile then so, and wil be meke in myne owne sighte:
and shall neuertheles of the verye same mayde seruauntes whiche thou speakest of, F be hadde in honoure. But the sayde Michol doughter to Saul, hadde no chylde vnto the daye of her deth.

¶ Dauid of a good purpose entendynge to buylde an house vnto the Lorde, is forbidden of God: he prayeth that the promyses of God may be fulfylled.

CAPI. VII.

A And in processe as the kynge dwelte in 1 Par.xvii. his house after that the Lorde had gyuen hym reste rounde aboute frome all his ennemyes, he sayd vnto Nathan the Prophet: beholde, I well in an house of Cedar trees, but the arcke of God dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan vnto the kynge: go and doo all that is in thyne
herte, for the Lorde is with the.
But that same nyght the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell my seruaunt Dauid, thus sayth the Lorde, shalt thou go buylde me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sithens the tyme I brought the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In any way where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel,
spake I one worde vnto anye of the kynrede
of Israel, whiche I commaunded to fede
my people Israel, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore shal
saye vnto my seruaunte Dauid: thus sayth
the Lorde of hostes, I toke the out of a shep-
cote from folowynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer
my people Israell. And I was with the wher thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne
ennemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made the a greate name, lyke vnto the renowme of the greate men of the worlde. And I will ap-poynt a place for my people Israel, and wyll
plante it, and they shall continue in one place
and shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnynge, and sithens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israel,
and I wyll geue the rest frome all thyne ene-myes. And the Lorde reherseth the that he wyll buylde the an houshold.

And when the dayes be fulfylled, and thou
layde to reste with thy fathers, then I wyll
set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall procede
out of thy body, and wyll stablysshe his king-
dome, he shall buylde an house for my name,
and I wyll stablysshe the seate of his kingdome for euer: I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne: in so moche that yf he synne
I wyll but rebuke hym with suche a rodde as men be rebuked with, and with suche plagues as the chyldren of men be plaged with. But my mercye wyll I not take away frome hym,
as I toke it frome Saul, whom I put downe
before the and thyne house, and thy kyngdome shall endure without ende after the, and thy seate shall be stablysshed for euer. When Nathan hadde tolde Dauid all these wordes, and all this vision, then went Dauid and satte
downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I Lorde almyghtye, and what is my kynne,
that thou woldest haue brought me thus fur-forth? And is this a small thynge in my syghte Lorde almyghtye, but that thou speakest
speake also of thy seruauntes house for a grete
whyle to come? Is this a lawe amonge men Lorde almyghtye? And what can Dauid saye
more vnto the, sithe thou knowest thy seruaun Lorde almyghtye? Euen for thy worde, and accordynge to thyne owne herte hast thou wro
all these great thynges to make them knowen
vnto thy seruaunt.

Wherefore thou art great, o Lorde God, for there is none lyke the, neither is there any G saue thou, according to all that we haue hear with oure eares. And what one people in earthe

earthe is lyke vnto thy people Israel, whiche
God delyuered to be his people / and to make him a name / and to shew them great and terrible thynges in the earthe, before thy people
whiche thou redemedst to the, out of Egypte /
euen from the people and from theyr goddes.
And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israell to be thy people for euer / and thou Lorde arte their God. And nowe, Lorde God, the thyng that thou hast sayd of thy seruaunt & of his house,
make it good for euer, and do as thou hast sayde. And lette thy name be great for euer / that men maye saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and lette the house of thy seruaunte Dauid be stablysshed before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel hast tolde
in the eare of thy seruaunt, sayinge: I wyll buylde the an house. And therfore hath thy ser-uaunt founde in his herte to praye this prayer
vnto the. And now Lorde almyghty thou art
the God, & thy wordes muste be true, for thou hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt.
Now therfore go to, and blesse the houshold
of thy seruaunt, that it may continue for euer
before the. For thou Lorde almighty hast sayd that of thy blessynge, the house of thy seruaunt
shall be blessed for euer.

¶ Dauid ouercommeth the Philistines and maketh them tributaryes. He ordayneth and appointeth his officers.

CAPI. VIII.

A Fter that, Dauid beat the Philistines,
1 and subdued them, and toke the bridle of bondage oute of their handes. And he beat the Moabytes, and measured them w
a lyne, makynge them lye alonge on the erth /
and then measyng the length of two lynes to slee, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyue.
And so became the Moabites Dauids seruauntes, and payde tribute. Dauid smote also Ada-dezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah, as he wente to make the ende of his coastes at the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a thousand and seuen hundred horsemen of his, & twenty thousande fote men, and destroyed all his cha-rettes, reseruynge one hundred of them. Then came the Syrians of Damascon to succoure Adadezer kynge of Zobah. And Dauid slewe of them xxij thousande men, and put souldyours in Syra Damascon. And the Syrians became seruauntes to Dauid, payinge tribute.
And thus the Lorde saued Dauid in all that he wente to. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were vpon the seruauntes of Ada-dezer, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And therto oute of Betah and Berothai cityes of Adadezer, he broughte exceadynge great abou
dannce of braste.

When Thoi kynge of Hemath hadde hearde
howe Dauid hadde discumfyted all the hoste
of Adadezer, he sente Joram his sonne vnto kynge Dauid, to salute him with peace, and to blesse hym because he hadde foughte agaynste Adadezer, and beaten him: For Thoi kepte
warre with Adadezer, whiche sonne broughte vesselles of syluer, golde, and of brasse with him. And them also kynge Dauid dyd presente vnto the Lorde the syluer and golde that he halowed spirytually of all nations whiche he subdued: of the Syrians: the Moabites,
the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and of the spoyle of Adadezer son of Rehob kynge of Zobah. And Dauid made D
him a name after he returned from the slaugh ter of the Syrians in the valeye of salt where he slewe eyghtene thousande men. And he put keepers in Edom, euen thorowe oute all Edom put he souldyours / and all Edom became his subiectes. And the Lorde kepte Da-uid what so euer he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, and executed iyghte and iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab ß *4.Reg.xx.d
sonne of Zaruiah was ouer the hoste / and Jo-saphat, the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob and Ahimelech
the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes / and Saraiah was the scribe. And Banaiah the son of Jehoiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Phelethites, but Dauids sonnes were chefe rulers.

¶ Dauid restoreth al the fieldes of Saul, to Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas.

CAPI. IX.

Then sayd Dauid: is there yet any man S
lefte of the house of Saul, that I maye
shewe hym mercye / for Jonathas sake?
And there was of the houshold of Saul a seruaunt named Ziba, who was called vnto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: art thou Ziba? And he sayd: thy seruaunt is he.
Then sayde the kynge: remayneth yet anye
man of the kynrede of Saul, whome I maye shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hathe yet a sonne whiche is lame on bothe feete. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: where is he? And Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodа-ber. Then kyng Dauid sent and fet him out of the house of Machir the sone of Amiel out of Lodaber. Now, when Miphiboseth the sonne Miphiboseth.
of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on his face. Then sayde Dauid: Miphiboseth? And he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. And Da-uid sayde: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe
the kyndnesse for Jonathas sake / and wyll restore the all the landes of Saul thy father /
and thou shalte eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed him selfe and sayde: what is thy seruaunt, that thou shol-dest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a dead dog
as I am? Then the kyng called Ziba Sauls younge man, sayinge vnto hym: I geue vnto
thy masters sonne all that pertayned to Saul and to all his kynne. Se therfore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tylle the lande
for hym, and bringe in, that thy masters sonne
maye haue foode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate alwaye

vpon my table. For this Ziba had xv. sonnes, and twentye seruauntes. Then sayde Ziba vnto the kyng: All that my lorde hath sayde vnto his seruaunte, thy seruaunte shall doo. For (sayde the kynge) Myphiboseth muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Myphiboseth had a sonne that was yonge, named Micha / and all that dwelled in the house of Ziba, were seruauntes vnto Myphiboseth. So Myphiboseth dwelte in Jerusalem / for he ate euer at the kynges table / and was theirto haulte on bothe legges.

¶ The messengers of Dauid are spytefully entreated of the kynge of Moab: which kynge Dauid auengeth.

CAPI. X.

A

IT happened after this, that the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed / and Hanun his sonne raygned in his stede: Then sayde Dauid: I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nahas, as his father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. And therupon Dauid sente to comforte hym by the handes of his seruauntes ouer the deth of his father. Nowe, when Dauids seruauntes were come in to the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their lorde / thynkest thou that Dauid dothe honour thy father, vpcause he hathe sent to comforte the? Naye he hathe rather sente his seruauntes vnto the to serche the cite and to ouerthrowe it, to thintent to ouerthrowe it. Wherefore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euery mans berde, and cut of their garmentes euen in the myddle harde by the buttockes of them, & sent them away. Which thyng when it was told Dauid, he sent against them (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho tyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that, they wronged Dauid, they sent and hyred the sonnes of Bethrehob, and of the Syrians of Zobah. xx. thousande foote men, and of kyng Maacah a thousande men / & of Ishob twelue thousande men: and when Dauid herd of it / he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and gaue battayle before the gate / and the Syrians of Zobah, of Rehob, Ishob, and Maacah, were them selues in the felde. When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel and put them in araye against the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered in to the handes of Abisai his brother, which put them in araye against the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: yf the Syrians ouercome me, then succour me. But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wil come and succour the / quyte the like a man, and let vs fyght lustely for our people, and for the cytyes of our God. And the Lorde do what semeth best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceded and the people that was with him in to battayle against the Syrians, which fled before him. Whiche when the chyldre of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred in to the cite. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammi, and came to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they gathered them together. And Hadadezer sente and dyd bringe out the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the hoste of them came, and Sobah capitayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israell and passed ouer Jordan & came to Helam: where the Syrians put them selues in araye against Dauid, and fought with him: how be it the Syrians fledde before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of them, and fourtye thousande horsemen / and smote Sobah the capitayne of the hoste, so that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer sawe they were put to the worse before Israel, they made peax with them and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any further.

¶ The aduoutry of Dauid with Bethsabe the wife of Urias. Urias is spytefully slayne. Here that Dauid taketh Bersabe to wyfe.

CAPI. XI.

IT came to passe in the begynnynge of a newe yere, in the tyme when kynges are wont to go forthe to battayle, that Dauid sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym and all Israell. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabah. But Dauid kepte styll at Jerusalem. And it chaunced in a euentyde, that Dauid arose from his couche and walked vpon the rouffe of the kynges palace, and from the rouffe sawe a very beautifull woman washyng her selfe. And he sente enquyre what woman it shold be. And it was answered agayne, that she was Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam, and wife to Urias the Hethite. And Dauid sent messengers and fet her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was forthwith clensed from her vncleannesse, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceyued, she sent and tolde Dauid, and sayd: I am with chyld. Then Dauid sent to Joab to send vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias to Dauid. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded howe Joab dyd / and how the people fared, and how the warre sped. And Dauid sayde moreouer to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace and there folowed him a seruice from the kinges table. But Urias slepte at the more of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of his Lorde, and wet not downe to his house. Then they tolde Dauid sayinge: Urias went not in to his house. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias forasmoche as thou art come from iournying, why doest thou not goo downe vnto thyne house? And Urias sayd vnto Dauid: the arcke and Israel and Juda, dwel in pauylyons: and my lorde Joab and the seruauntes of my lorde lye in tentes vpon the flatte earth / and shulde I go in to myne house, to eate and drynke and to lye with my wyfe? * By thy lyfe, and as sure as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not do that thynge. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: tarye here this daye also, and to morowe I wyl let the departe. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye and on the morow. And Dauid called hym, and he ate and dranke before hym / and he made hym dronke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his lorde, and went not downe to his house. Wherefore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter, sayinge: put Urias in the fore fronte of the battayle where it is moste stronge, and come backe from hym, that he maye be smytten to deth. So when Joab beseged the cite, he appoynted Urias to a place, where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the cite came out and fought with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the proceedinges of the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: When thou hast made an ende of telynge the thynges of the warre vnto the kynge yf he begyn to fume and saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the cite to fyghte? wyste ye not that men wolde shote and shoote frome the walles? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jerobeseth? Dyd not a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon him frome of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the walles? Then saye thou, thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also.

And the messengers wente, and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab had sente him with / and sayde vnto Dauid: the men preuayle agaynste vs, and came forth vnto vs in to the felde, and we stacke vnto them vnto the entringe of the gate, and shoters shot from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the kynge be dead. And thy seruaunte Urias the Hethite is dead also. Then sayd Dauid vnto the messenger: thus wyste saye vnto Joab / let not the thynge trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as an other: make thy battayle more stronge agaynste the cite, and destroye it / and se thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias herde that her husbande was dead, she mourned for hym / and as soone as the mournynge was ended, Dauid sente and fette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid had commytted, displeased the Lorde.

¶ Dauid is reproued for ꝑ slaughter of Urias, and repenteth. The chylde conceyued in aduoutrye dyeth. After it, is Salomon borne.

CAPI. XII.

AND the Lorde sente Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: there were two men in one cite, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had exceadynge greate aboundance of sheepe and oxen. But the poore had nothynge saue one lytle lambe, whiche he boughte and nourysshed vp. And it grewe vp with hym and his chyldren, and dyd eat of his owne meat and dranke of his owne cuppe, and slept in his bosome, and was as dere vnto hym as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he couldē not fynde in his herte to take of his owne shepe nor of his beestes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mannes lambe, and dressed it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was exceadynge wroth with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth the felowe that hathe done this thynge is worthye of deathe and shall restore ꝑ lambe foure folde, because he dyd this thyng and had no pity. Then Nathan sayd to Dauid: thou art the selfe man. This sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I annoynted the kynge ouer Israel and dyd the out of the handes of Saul: and I gaue the thy maysters house, and thy maysters wyues in to thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, and wolde yf that hadde bene to lytle: haue geuen the twyse so moche more. Wherfore hast thou despysed the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syghte? thou hast killed Urias the Hethite with the swerde and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swearde of the chyldren of Ammon. Nowe therfore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despysed me and taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wyll stere vp euyll agaynste the euen of thyne owne house and wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and gyue them vnto thy neyghboure, whiche shall slepe with them in the syghte of the sonne. And thou dydest it secretlye, yet wil I do this thynge before all Israel and in the open sonne lyghte.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayde agayne to Dauid: the Lorde hath put away thy synne, thou shalte not dye. How be it because in doynge this dede thou hast geuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to raple, the chylde that is borne the, shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. Then the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare Dauid, and it sickened. Dauid besoughte God for the chylde, and fasted and went and lay all nyght vpō the erth. And the eldres of his house arose and wente to him, to take him vp frome ꝑ erth. But he wold not, neyther yet eate meat with them. It happened the seuenth day that the chylde dyed. But the seruauntes of Dauid durst not tel him the chylde was dead. For they sayde: se, whyle the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he wolde not herken vnto our boyce. Howe moche moze wyll he vere hym selfe, yf we tel him the chyld is deed? But Dauid sawe his seruauntes whysperynge, and therby perceyued that the chylde was deed, and sayde vnto his seruauntes: is the chylde deed? And they sayde, yea. Then Dauid arose frome the erthe, and washed, and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell / and went in to the house of the Lord, and prayed / and after came to his owne house, and badde they sholde set meate before him, and he dyd eate. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: what is this that thou hast doone? Thou fastedest and wepest for thy chyld whyle it was alyue, but as soone as it was deed, thou didest ryse vp and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the chylde was alyue, I fasted & wepte. For I thought: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercye on me that the chylde maye lyue? But nowe sythe it is deed, wherfore sholde I fast? can I brynge him agayne anye moze? I shall goo to hym, but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe his wyfe / and wente in vnto her and laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called ✠Salomon / and the Lorde loued him. And he sent by the hande of Nathā the Prophete, and called his name Jedias, on the Lordes behalfe.

✠Hebre. Salomoh. Matth.i.

And as Joab foughte agaynste Rabab, the citye of the chyldren of Amnon, he toke the kynges Toure and sente messengers to Dauid, sayinge: I haue made assaute to Rabab / and also haue taken the castell frome whence they bade theyr water. Now therfore gather 1.Paralip.xx.a the reste of the people / and come and besiege the citye, and take it / lest yf I take it, the victorye be ascribed to me. And Dauid gathered all the people together, and went to Rabab and assauted it, and gate it. ✠And he toke the *1.Par.xx.b. kynges crowne frome of his heed, whiche wayed an hundred wayght of golde, and was sette with precious stones / and Dauid ware it on his heed. And he brought out the spoyle of the citye in exceadynge greate abundance. And he brought oute the people that was therin, and sawed them, and drewe harowes of yron vpon them, and hewdde some of them with hewdynge knyues of yron, and thrust some in to foznaces. And so he serued all the cityes of the chyldren of Amnon. And then Dauid and all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

Amnon Dauids sonne defyleth his syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Amnon and after flyeth for feare of his father.

CAPI. XIII.

Amnon.

AND it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne hadde a fayre syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Amnon an other sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnō was so vexed that he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sythe she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym, howe commeth it, that thou being the kynges sonne art thus consumed euerye moznynge? mayst thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absalōs syster. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thye bedde and fayne thy selfe sicke / and when thy father is come to se the / saye vnto hym: let my syster Thamar come and gyue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it at her handes. So Amnon laye downe and made him selfe sicke / and when the kynge was come to se hym / Amnon sayde vnto hym: let Thamar my syster come and make me a couple of fritters in my syght, that I may eate of her hym. Then Dauid sente home to Thamer, sayinge goo to thy brother Amnons house, and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to her brother Amnons house, he laye / & the toke flour and made paste, and made fritters in his sight and dyd bake theym / and toke a platter and powred theym oute before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue out all men frome hym / and they wente all out from hym. Then sayd Amnon vnto Thamar: brynge the meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate of thyne hande: And Thamar toke the fritters which she had made, and brought them in to the chambre to Amnon her brother, and set them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayd vnto her: Come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: nay my brother doo not inforce me / for it ought not to be so in Israel / doo not this folly. ✠For whyther shall I goo with my shame? And thou shalte be as one of the fooles in Israell. But speake vnto the kynge, and he shal not denye me vnto the. How be it he wold not harken vnto her voice but was to strong for her, and ✠forced her and laye with her. And then Amnon hated her exceadyngly: so that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue with which he before loued her. And he sayd vnto her, ryse and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym / this great cruelte that thou puttest me awaye, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Nevertheless he wolde not here her, but called his ladde that wayted vpon him and sayde: put her out at the wozes frome me, and bolte the woze after her. And she hadde a kyrtill of dyuers colours vpon her: For with such were the kynges doughters that were virgyns apparepled, made prayse vnto them. Then his seruaunt brought her oute at the wozes, and locked the wozes after her. And Thamar put ashes on her heed, and rente her gaye kyrtell that was on her, and put her hand on her heed and so went / and as she went, cried. Then Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother ben with the? Nowe then be styll my syster, for he is thy brother / and let not this thynge greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned disconforted in her brothers Absolons house. And kynge Dauid herde of all these thynges, and was very wroth. And Absalom sayde vnto his brother Amnon, neyther good ne badde. Howbe it Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced his syster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that, Absalom hadde a shepesheryngе in Baal Hazor besyde the tryde of Ephraim, and bad all the kynges sonnes and he came to the kynge and sayde: beholde thy seruaunt hathe a shepesheryngе, let the kynge and his seruauntes come with thy seruaunt. And the kynge sayde vnto Absalom. Oh naye my sonne, lette vs not goo euery one of vs, that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him / howbe it he wolde not goo, but blessed him. Then sayd Absalom, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the king answered, what neadeth it that he goo with the? But Absalom made suche instaunce, that he let Amnon goo with him, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalom commaunded his younge men, sayinge: marke when Amnons herte is merye with wyne, and when I bid you smyte Amnō, then kyll him: feare not, for it is I that byd you / be bolde therfore and playe the lusty bloudes. And the yonge men of Absalom serued Amnon euen as Absalom commaunded the. And all the kynges sonnes arose and toke eche man his mule and fledde. And whyl they were yet in the waye, tidinges came to Dauid that Absalom hadde slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was lefte alyue. Then the kynge arose and rent his garmentes, and laye alonge on the earthe / and all his seruauntes stode by, with theyr clothes rente. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayd: let not my lorde suppose, that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is deed, for that hathe ben euer in Absoloms mouthe, sythens he forced his syster Thamar. Nowe therfore lette not my lorde the kynge take the tydynge so greuously, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes be deed, when Amnon only is deed. But Absalom fled / and the yong man that kepte the watche sykte vp his eyen and loked aboute / and beholde, there came moche people by awaye that was behynde his backe alonge by an hylles syde. Then said Jonadab vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come / and as thy seruaunt said, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes came and lyfte vp theyr voyces and wepte. And therto the kyng and all his seruauntes wepte exceadyngly.

But Absalom escaped and went to Tholmai the sonne of Ammihud kynge of Gesur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continually. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kynge turned his mynde from pursuynge Absalom. For he had lefte mournynge for the deth of Amnon.

The wyse woman of Thekoa Absalom restored. The counsaile and bouldnesse of Absalom. Absalom flyeth. Joabs cosyn. His father kyssyth him.

CAPI. XIIII.

WHen Joab the sonne of Zeruiah perceyued that the kynges herte was turned agayne to Absalom, he sente to Thekoa, and fet thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: feyn thy selfe to be mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deth of some body. And go to the kyng and speake on this maner vnto him. And Joab taughte her what she shulde saye. Nowe when the wyfe of Thekoa was come to speake with the kynge, she fell on her face to the ground and dyd obeysaunce and sayde: helpe me O kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? she answered. I am a wyddowe, and myne husbande is deed. And thy handmayde hadde two sonnes whiche foughte to gyther in the feldes where was no man to go betwene them, & the one slewe thother. And beholde, the hole kynrede arose agaynste thy handemayde, and sayde: delyuer vs him that smote his brother: that we maye kyl him for the soule of his brother whome he slewe, for we wyll destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne neither name ne issue vpon the erth vnto my husbande. The kynge sayde vnto the wyfe: goo home to thyne house, and I wyll gyue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge. My lorde kynge, the trespace be on me and on my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be gyltlesse. And then sayd the kyng: yf any man saye ought vnto the, bryng him to me / and he shall no moze trouble the. Then saide she, let the kynge remembre his Lorde God, that the nexte of the blonde gather not on heapes togyther to destroye, and y they slee not my sonne. And he sayd: as truly as the Lorde lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonnes heed fall to therthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handemayde speake one worde moze to my lorde the kynge, and he sayd, saye on. And the woman sayde / wherfore then hast thou determined on this same maner agaynst the people of God: that the kynge sholde speake this thing and be faultye therin, so that the kynge sholde not fet home agayne his banished? For we must nedes dye and peryshe, as water spylt on the grounde, whiche can not be gathered vp agayne / and God wyl not take awaye the life, but fynde the meanes that the banysshed be not vtterly expelled from hym. And now commynge that I am come to speake of this thynge vnto the kynge my lorde / for I stode in feare of the people / thy handmayde thought surely I wyll speake vnto the kynge / peraduenture the kynge wyll heare the request of his handemaynde. And the kynge shall heare his handemayde and delyuer her forth of the hande of the man that wolde haue destroyed me and my sonne also, oute of the enheritaunce of God. Then thyne handmayde sayd: I praye God that the worde of my lorde the kynge maye be vn chaungeable. For my lorde the kynge is an aungell of God in hearyng of good goode or badde: and therfore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Then ſpe kynge anſwered and ſayde to the woman: hyde not frome me I praye the: the thinge that I ſhall aſke the. And the woman ſayde: let my Lorde the kynge ſaye on. Then ſayde the kynge. Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? And the woman anſwered and ſayde: as ſurely as thy ſoule lyueth, my Lorde kynge, it is neyther on the right hande nor on the left, that my Lorde the kynge hathe ſpoken. For thy ſeruaunt Joab bad me, & he put all theſe wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. And that I ſhulde thus turne my tale an other waye, wylled me thy ſeruaunt Joab. And ſo I ſe that my Lorde is wyſe, euen as an Aungell of God, to vnderſtande all thinges that are in the earth. Then ſayde the kynge to Joab, beholde, I am contente to worke this thinge. Go therfore fet home the yongeman Abſalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed him ſelfe, & bleſſed the kynge, and ſayd: now thy ſeruaũt knoweth that I haue founde grace in ſ ſyght of my Lorde the kynge in that he hath fulfilled the requeſt of his ſeruaunte. And ſo Joab aroſe and went to Geſur, and brought Abſalom to Jeruſalem. Then ſayde the kynge: let him turne to his owne houſe, and ſe he come not in my preſence. And ſo Abſalom went to his owne houſe, but came not in the kynges preſence. Moreouer in all Iſrael there was not ſo goodly a man as Abſalom, or ſo greatly prayſed, from the ſole of his fote to the top of his heed, was no blemyſh in him. And whe he ſhaued his heed (for at euery yeres ende he ſhaued it becauſe it was heuye on him, & ther fore he ſhaued it) the heare therof wayed two hundred ſycles weyght of the kynges weyght. And thre Abſalom had thre ſonnes borne him and one doughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Abſalom had dwelt two yere in Jeruſalem with out commynge into the kynges preſence, he ſent for Joab, to thintent, to haue ſent him to the kynge. But he wolde not come to him. And he ſent agayne, & yet he wolde not come. Then he ſayde vnto his ſeruauntes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande faſt by myne, & hath barley therin. Go and ſet it on fyre. And Abſaloms ſeruauntes went and ſet it on fire.

Then Joab arose and came to Abſalom vnto his houſe, and ſayde vnto him: Wherfore haue thy ſeruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Abſalom ſayde to Joab: beholde, I ſent for the, deſyring the to come, becauſe I wolde haue ſent the to the kynge, for to ſay: wherefore am I come frome Geſur? It had bene as good for me to haue bydden there ſtill. Nowe therfore let me come to the kynges preſence, or elles yf there be any treſpace in me, kil me. And Joab went to the kynge and tolde him. And he ſent for Abſalō: which whan he was come, fell to the grounde on his face before ſ kynge. And the kynge kyſſed him.

¶ Abſalom maketh inſurrection againſt his father, David is fayne to flee for feare of him.

CAPI. XV.

After this, Abſalom gat him charettes and horſes, and fyftye men to runne before him. And therto he roſe vp early in the mornynges, and ſtode by ſyde the waye that led to the gate of the cyte. And all the men of Iſrael that had complaintes and came to the kynge for iudgement, he called vnto him and ſayde: of what cite art thou? And when the other anſwered: thy ſeruaunt is of ſuche a tribe of Iſrael. Then ſayde Abſalom vnto him: ſe, me thynketh thy matter is good and righteous, and yet no man appointed of the kynge, to heare the. Then Abſalom ſayde further: Oh, that I were iudge in the lande, and that all men whiche haue ſuites and matters in ſ lawe, ſhulde come to me. For I wolde them iuſtice. And alſo when any man came nygh to him to make obeyſaunce, he put forth his hande and toke him to him, and kyſſed him. And on thys maner dyd Abſalom to all Iſrael that came to ſ kynge for iudgement, and thus he wanne the hertes of the men of Iſrael. And at fourty yeres ende Abſalom ſayde to the kynge: let me go to Hebron, and paye my vowe whiche I haue vowed, vnto the Lorde: for thy ſeruaunt vowed a vowe when I was in Gesur in the lande of Syria, ſayenge: yf the Lorde wyll bringe me agayne to Jeruſalem, I will ſerue the Lorde. And the kynge ſayde: go in peace. And ſo he aroſe and went to Hebron. Then Abſalom ſent ſpyes thorow out all the tribes of Iſrael, ſayenge: as ſone as ye here the voyce of the trompe blowe, ſaye: Abſalō raygneth kynge in Hebron. And with Abſalō went two hundred men forth of Jeruſalem, were called. And they went with pure hert knowynge nothinge of the matter. Abſalom ſent alſo for Achitophel the Gilonite Dauids counſellour, and let him out of his cyte Gilo, whyle he ſacrifyced ſacrifices, whyche wrought ſtrong treaſon. And the people came to Abſalom in great thronges. And there came a meſſenger to David and ſayde: The hertes of the men of Iſrael are to folow Abſalom. Then ſayde David to all his ſeruauntes that were with him at Jeruſalem: aryſe and let vs flee, for we ſhall not otherwyſe eſcape Abſalom. Make ſpede to departe, leſt he come ſodenly and catche vs, and bringe ſome myſchefe vpon vs, & ſmyte the cyte with the edge of the ſwerde. And the kynges ſeruauntes ſayde to him: beholde, thy ſeruauntes are redy to do whatſoeuer my Lorde the kynge ſhal appoynte. Then the kynge & all his houſholde departed a fote. And he left behynde him ten women which were his concubynes, to kepe the houſe. And ſo the kynge & all the people went forth after him & tarryed ſtyll farre frome the houſe, & all his ſeruauntes went by his ſyde. And all the Cherethites & all the Pheletthites, & all the Dothites & all the Pheletthites, & all the Gethites euen. vi. hundred men which were come after him frome Geth, went before the kynge. Then ſayde ſ kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore ſhuldeſt thou go with vs alſo? Returne and abyde with the kynge, for thou art a ſtraūger

and art remoued frome thyne owne place. Thou cameſt but yeſterdaye, and ſhouldeſt I this daye take the to go with vs? I will go whether I go. But returne thou and cary agayne thy brethren. Mercy & truthe be with the. And Ethai anſwered the kynge and ſayde: as ſurely as the Lorde lyueth, and as ſurely as my Lorde the kynge lyueth, in what place my Lorde the kynge ſhalbe, whether in death or lyfe, there will thy ſeruaũt be. Then ſayde the kynge to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite wente forth, and all his men, and all the children that were with him. And all the countrey wept with a loude voyce. And all the people went toward the ſtraight waye to the wildernes. And behold Sadoch and all the Leuites were with him, and bare the arche of the teſtament of God. And when they hadde ſet downe the arche of God, Abiathar came vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cyte. Then ſayde the kynge vnto Sadoch. Carye the arche of God agayne into the cyte. Yf I ſhall finde fauoure in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me agayne, and ſhewe me both it and the tabernacle therof alſo. But yf the Lorde thus ſaye: I haue no luſt vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him do with me what ſemeth good in his eyes. The kynge ſayde alſo vnto Sadoch the preeſte, thou arte a Seer. Returne therfore into the cyte in peace. And take your two ſonnes with you: Ahimaas thy ſonne, & Jonathas the ſonne of Abiathar. And ſe, I will byde me in the fieldes of the wyldernes tyll there come ſome worde frome you to be tolde me. And ſo Sadoch and Abiathar caryed the Arche of God agayne to Jeruſalem, and there they tarryed. And David wente vp on mount Oliuet, and wept as he went, and had his heed couered, and went barefote. And all the people that was with him, had euery man his heed couered, and as they went wept alſo. And one tolde David, ſayenge: Achitophel is one of them that haue conſpired with Abſalom. Then ſayde David: O Lorde, turne the counſell of Achitophel in to fyſhnes. Whe David was come to the toppe of the mount and had worſhipped him ſelfe vnto God: beholde, Huſai the Arachite came againſt him with his coate rente & earth vpon his heed. Vnto whō David ſayde: yf thou go with me, thou ſhalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cyte: then ſhalt thou ſaye vnto Abſalom I will be thy ſeruaunt O kynge: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers ſeruaunte, and nowe I am thyne. And ſhalt diſcloſe the counſel of Achitophel. And thou haſt therewith the Sadoch and Abiathar the preeſtes, to whom thou ſhalte wewe all thou canſte heare oute of the kynges houſe. And behold, ye haue with you thire two ſonnes: Ahimaas Sadoches ſonne, and Jonathas Abiathars ſonne, by whome ye ſhall ſende me all ye can heare. And ſo Huſai Dauids frende gat him to the cyte. And Abſalom alſo entered into Jeruſalem.

¶ Ziba bringeth preſentes to David, both falſlye accuſe Miphiboſeth. Semei curſeth & hourleth ſtones at him. Abſalom by chaduple or Achitophel lyeth with his fathers Concubynes.

CAPI. XVI.

When David was a lytle paſſe the toppe of the hyll: beholde Ziba the ſeruaunt of Miphiboſeth came againſt him with a couple of Aſſes ſadeled, and vpon them two hundred loues, and one hundred bonches of reſinges, and an hundred fraytes of dryed figes, and a bottell of wyne. Then ſayde the kynge to Ziba: What haſt thou there? And Ziba ſayde: Aſſes for the kynges houſholde to ryde on, and dryed and fruite for the yonge men to eate, and wyne to drinke, yf any man faynt in the wyldernes. Then ſayde ſ kynge: Where is thy maſters ſonne? and Ziba ſayd vnto the kynge: beholde, he taryeth ſtill at Jeruſalem. For he ſayde: This daye ſhal the houſe of Iſrael reſtore me ſ kyngdome of my father. Then ſayd the kynge to Ziba: beholde thyne are all that pertayned vnto Miphiboſeth. And Ziba anſwered: I beſeche ſ that I may finde grace in thy ſyght my Lorde kyng.

And when kyng David came to Bahurim: beholde, there came oute a man of the kynrede of the houſe of Saul named Semei the ſonne of Gera, and he came out curſyng. And there he caſte ſtones at David and at all the ſeruauntes of kynge of David, all the people and all the men of warre goynge part on his right hande, and part on his lefte. And thus ſayde this Semei, when he curſed the kynge, walke, walke, thou bloudeſheder, and thou vnthryfty man. The Lord hath brought vpō the, al the bloud of ſ houſe of Saul, in whoſe place thou haſt raygned, and he hath delyuered the kyngdome into the hande of Abſalom thy ſonne. And thou art wrapped about with thyn own myſchefe, becauſe thou art a bloud ſheder.

Then ſayde Abiſai the ſon of Zaruiah vnto the kynge: Why vexth this deed dogge curſe my Lorde the kynge? let me go and ſtryke of his heed. And the kynge ſayd: What haue I to do with you, ye ſonnes of Zaruiah? Let him curſe, for the Lord hath bydden him curſe David. And who dare preſume to ſaye wherfore vexth he ſo? And David ſayde to Abiſai, & to all his ſeruauntes: beholde, my ſonne whiche came out of myne owne bowelles ſeketh my lyfe. How moche more then may this ſon of Jemini vexe? Suffre him therfore to curſe for the Lorde hath bydden him: happely the Lorde will loke on my wretchednes, and we me good for his curſinge this daye. And thus as David and his men went by the way, Semei wente alonge on the hylles ſyde, euer againſt him, and cayed as he went, and threw ſtones at him, and caſt duſt. And the kynge & all that were with him came very wery, and refreſhed them ſelues there.

And Abſalom and all the people of the men of Iſrael came to Jeruſalem and Achitophel with him. And as ſone as he was come, Huſai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Abſa-

Absalom and sayde vnto him: God saue the kynge, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayd
D agayne to Husai: is this thy kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not wt hym? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: nay not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his will I be, and with hym will I dwell. And furthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice but to his sonne? And as I was seruaunte before wt hy fayther, so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Achitophel, giue counsell what is best for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: get the in to thy fathers concubines whiche he hath lefte to kepe the house. For when all Israel shall heare that thou hast loyed thy father, then shall ȳ handes of all that are wt hy the, be stronge. And so they pytched Absalom a tent vpon the top of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of all Israel. And the counsel of Achitophel whiche he counseled in those dayes, euen as a man had asked counsel of God: so was all the counsel of Achitophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

¶ Achitophel apperceyuing his counsell disalowed of Husai and folowen, hangeth him selfe.

CAP. XVII.

THen Achitophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I will forwarde and folow after Dauid by night, and come vpon him whyle he is weyry and weake handed, and will fray hym, that all the people that are with him shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge succourelesse, & will bryng agayne al the people vnto the, for thou seekest but after one man, and all the people shall haue rest. And the sayenge pleased Absalom well, and al the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Archite and let vs heare his aduise. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vn to him, sayeng: Achitophel hath gyuen suche counsel, whether it be best we wt hy his sayenge or not, tell thou. Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Achitophel hath gyuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father and the men
B that are with him, how they be stronge men. And they be chafed in their myndes, as a Beare robbed of her whelpes. And moreouer thy fa
Pyone.pbilib ther is a man practised in warre, and will not lye a nyghtes amonges the commen people. Perchaunce he nowe lurketh in some caue or in some other place. And thoughe some of his men be ouerthrowe at the first brunt, yet they that heare it will thynke the people that folowech Absalom, be put to the worse. By reason wherof euē the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shal fynde therat. For all Israel knowe that thy father
C is a valyant man, and that they which be with him be valyaunt men. Wherfore my counsel is that all Israell be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Berseba, as the sande of the see in nombre, and that thou goo to battayle in thyne owne personne. And we shall come vpon him in some place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we shall pytche a felde againste him, euen as thicke as the drewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be lefte, nyther be ne anye of all that were with him. Moreouer yf he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compasse that cytie rounde about with ropes, and we shall drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found vpon an other. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: that the counsel of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lordes intent to destroye the counsell of Achitophel: which was good, that the Lorde myght brynge euil vpon Absalom. Then sayd * Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the preastes: on this & on that maner dyd Achitophel and the elders of Israel counsel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counselled. Now therfore sende quyckely and shewe Dauid, sayenge: tary not all nyght in the feldes of the wildernes, but get the ouer lest the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahymaas abode by the well Roget/for they might not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wenche went and tolde them. And they to goo & shewed kynge Dauid. Neuertheles there was a lad saw them whiche tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them awaye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, whyche had a well in his yarde, into whiche they went downe. And the wyfe toke and spred a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed theron steaped barleye to drye. And the thyng was not espyed. So when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe, to the house and asked where one Ahymaas and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them / they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of watter. And when they had sought them and couldē not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto him / aryse and get you quyckely ouer water, for suche counsell hath Achitophel gyuen. Then Dauid arose and all the people that were with him, and they were come ouer Jordan by day lyght so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he sadelled his asse, and arose, and gat him home, to his owne cytie, and set his householde in ordre and hanged him selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the buryall of his father. Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israell with him. Then Absalom made Amasa capitayne of the hoste in stede of Joab which Amasa was a mās sonne named Jethra a Jezrahelyte that went in to Abigeil the wyfe of Naab, sister to Saruiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Nahas ab of Rabath the cytye of the chyldren of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Amiel of Lodabar, and Berzelei the Galaadite of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens and erthen vessels: and also corne, barley, floure, and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, shepe and cheese of kyne, for Dauid and all the people that were with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shulde be hongrye, fainteye, and thurstye in the wyldernesse.

¶ Absalom is ouercomme in battayle. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is kylled and putte in a dytche. Dauid is so wo worfull for the deeth of Absalom that he weepeth.

CAPI. XVIII.

J AND the kyng nombred the people that were with him, and set graund capitaines and petty cappytaines ouer them. And he sent one part of them with Joab, and an other parte with Abisai the sonne of Saruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde part with Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde to ȳ people: shall I go with you? And the people answered: nay, for yf we flee, our aduersaries will not care for vs: nyther thoughe half of vs were slayne, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousande of vs. And furthermore it is that thou be redy to succour vs out of the cytie. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that will I do. And ȳ kynge stode by the gates syde, and al the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayenge: se that ye saue my sonne Absalom. And all the people herde when the kinge gaue all the capitaynes charge vpon Absalom. And the people went out into the felde against Israel, and the battell was in the woode of Ephraim. Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of Dauid and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. And the felde was fought in dyuerse places, all abrode vpō the earth. And the woodes deuoured moo people that day, than dyd the swerde. And it chaūced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid ryding vpon a Mule whiche carryed him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And his heed caught in the Oke, so that he honge betwene heauen and earthe, and the Mule that was vnder him went awaye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayenge: behold, I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? And why dydest not thou there smyte him to the grounde, that I shoulde haue gyuen the ten sycles of siluer and a souldyours gyrdle.

And the man answered Joab: thoughe I hadde a thousand sycles of siluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not stretche out myne hād against the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayenge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Absalom. Moreouer thoughe I had ieoparded my lyfe, and woone falsly, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene hyd from the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldst be against me. Then sayde Joab I may not dwell tarrynge with the, I wil spō him before thy face.

And therwith he toke three speares in his hande and thrust them into the hart of Absalō whyle he was yet alyue on the body of ȳ tree And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs weapōs, turned and smote Absalom and slue him. The Joab blewe a trompet, and the people returned from pursuynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and caste him into a great pyt that was in the wood, & cast a mygthy great heape of stones vpon him Then all Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Absalom yet in his lyfe tyme, reared vp a pyller, which is yet in kynges dale. For he sayde: I haue no male childe. And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce wo I it. And he called the pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absaloms pyller.

Absaloms death.

Absaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne and beare the kynge tydinges, how the Lorde hath gyuē him iugement for the handes of his enemyes. Joab sayde to him: thou arte no man to beare tydinges to day: thou shalt beare tydinges another tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is ded. Thē sayd Joab to Chusi go and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab and ranne. Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me runne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: Wherfore wouldest thou runne my sonne? for al be it thou runne thou gettest no rewarde: but he sayde, Well, come what wil let me runne. And he sayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne and ouer ranne Chusi.

Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the rouse ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnynge alone. And the watchman called and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, yf he come alone, there is tydinges in his mouth. And he came and drue nye. And the watchmā sawe another man runnynge, and called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there commeth a nother runnynge alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynges bringer. And the watchman sayde: me thinketh the runnynge of the formost is lyke the runninge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. And the kynge sayde: he is a good man, and commeth with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called and sayd to the kynge: good tydinges, and bowed him selfe to the erth vpon his face before the king and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God whiche hath shut vp al the men that lyft vp their handes against my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, I saw a great hurlee burlee when the kynges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kynge sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde Chusi came and sayde, Good tydynges my liege sir king, the Lorde hathe quytte the this daye out of the handes of all that arose agaynste the. And the kynge sayd to Chusi, is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered, the enmyes of my Lorde the kyng and all that ryse agaynste the, to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and went vp to a chamber ouer the gate and wepte, And as he went thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

¶ David is restored to his kyndome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

CAPI. XIX.

A IT was tolde Joab, that the kynge wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victorye was turned that daye into mournyng vnto al the people. For the people herde that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stealynge in to the cyte, euen as people confounded do steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the kynge hyd his face and cryed with a loude voyce: my sonne Absalom Absalom my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore went into the house to the kynge & sayde: thou hast abashed this daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes & doughters, and the lyues of thy wyues & concubynes, in that thou louest thyne ennemyes and hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared this daye that thou carest neythre for thy capytaynes nor seruauntes. For now I vnderstonde perceyue, yf Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, then it had pleased the well.

B Now therfore aryse and come abrode, & speke kyndly vnto thy seruauntes, I swere by the Lorde oneles thou come oute, there will not tarye one man with the this nyghte, whiche thinge will be worsse vnto the, then all the euyll that fell on the frome thy youthe vnto this houre. Then the kynge arose & sat downe in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all ỹ people, how the kynge sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kynge, But Israel fled euery man to his tent. And all ỹ people were at stryfe thorow oute all the kynredes of Israell, sayenge: the kynge delyuered vs out of the hande of our ennemyes, and he delyuered vs oute of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we annoynted ouer vs is dede in battell. Nowe therfore C why are ye so styll, that ye bryngе not ỹ kyng agayne? And kynge David sent to Sadoch & Abiathar the preastes, sayenge: Speake vnto the eldres of Juda and saye: why shuld ye be the last that shulde bryngе agayne ỹ kyng to his house, sythe suche tydynges is come to all Israel vnto the kynge euen to his house? ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesshe:

wherfore then shuld ye be the last that shuld come to bryngе the kynge home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my flesh? And God so to me and so, onles thou be capitayne of the hoste to me for euer in thy rowme of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man wolde bowe the hert of one man: so that they sent worde to the kynge, that he shulde returne with all his seruauntes. And the kynge returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal to entende to mete the kyng and conuey him ouer Jordan. And Semei ✝ the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini whiche was of Bahurim, hasted and came with the men of Juda to mete kynge David, and a thousande men of Ben Jamin with him, and ✝ Siba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his. xv. sonnes, and twentye seruauntes with him. And they whypte ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there went ouer a Botte to cary ouer the kynges houshold, and to do him pleasure. And Semei the sonne of Gera fell downe before the kynge, as he was come ouer Jordan, & sayde to him: let not my lorde accompt wickednesse vnto me, ne let him not remember the vnkyndnesse that thy seruant dyd, when my lorde the kynge departed forthe of Jerusalem, that the kynge shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe his offence. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrste this daye of all the house of Joseph that am come to mete my lorde the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zuruiah answered and sayde: shall Semei not dye for these wordes that he cursyed the Lordes annoynted? And the kynge sayde / What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zeruiah, that ye shulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no man dye this daye in Israel / for I knowe I am made this daye kynge ouer Israell. And the kynge sayd vnto Semei / thou shalte not dye, and swore vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kynge, and had neyther trymmed his fete, ne shauen his bearde, ne washed his clothes, frome the tyme the kynge departed, tyll he came agayne in peax. And when he was come to Jerusalem towarde the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him / Wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? And he sayd, My Lorde kynge, my seruaunt deceyued me. For thy seruaunte sayde / that I wolde haue myne asse sadled to ryde theron, for to goo with the kynge, because thy seruaunt is lame. And he hath therto complayned on thy seruaunt vnto my Lorde the kynge. But my lorde the kynge is as an aungell of God / doo therfore what semeth best in thyne eyes. For all my fathers house were but deedmen vnto my lorde the kynge / & yet dyddest thou put me among theym that eate at thyne owne table. What righte therfore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kynge? And the kynge sayde / what needeth the not to speake anye more, for I haue sayde / that thou and Siba shall diuide ỹ landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayd vnto the kyng / yee let him take all / for so much as my

as my lorde the kynge is come in peax to his owne house.

f And Berzelai the Galaadite came frome Rogelim, and went ouer Jordan with the kynge, to accompanye him ouer Jordan: whiche Berzelai was a very aged man, euē foure score yeres olde, and had prouyded the kynge of sustenaunce whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of very great substaunce.

And the kyng sayde vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I maye fede the with me in Jerusalem. But Berzelai sayde vnto the kynge, Of what age am I, that I shulde go with the kynge into Jerusalem? I am this daye foure score yere olde: and therfore can not vnderstande sauery frome vnsauery, neyther hath thy seruaunte pleasure in that he eateth or drynketh: or yet delectacion in the songes of men or women. It is no nede that thy seruaunt be a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge: let thy seruaunt goo a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge, for why shulde the kynge yeld me surhe a rewarde? But let thy seruaunt turne backe agayne, that I may dye in myne owne cite, and be buryed by the graue of my father and mother. But loo, here is thy seruaunte Chamaam, let him goo with my Lorde the kynge, and do to him, what shall please the. And the kynge answered, Chamaam shall G go with me. And I will do to hym that thou shalt be content with. Yea and whatsoeuer thou shalte requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berzelai and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Galgal, and Chamaam went with hym. Nowe, all the men of Juda were at the bryngyng ouer of the king, and but halfe the men of Israel.

Wherfore all the men of Israel came to the kyng and sayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the awaye, and haue brought the kyng and his houshold and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israell: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angry for that matter? thynke ye that we eate of the kynges coste, or that the kynge gyueth vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten partes in the king and haue therto more right to David then ye. Why then dyd ye despyse vs, that one aduyse had not bene fyrste hadde in restoryngе oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the me of Israel.

¶ Siba the sonne of Bochri rayseth Israel against David. Joab kylleth Amasa traytourlye. The head of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receyuers are nombred.

CAPI. XX.

H THere happened also to be an vnthryfty person named Seba, the son of Bochri, a man of Gemini, whyche blew a trompet & sayde: we haue no part in David, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Jesai, O Israel, let vs depart therfore euery man to his tente. And al Israel went from David and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochri. But the men of Juda claue faste vnto the kynge, frome Jordan to Jerusalem. And when David was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the .x. women his concubynes that he had left beyynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde and mynystred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and lyued a wydowes lyfe.

Then sayde the kynge to Amasa: assemble me the men of Juda within thre dayes & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the men of Juda: but tarved longer then the tyme appointed him. Wherfore the kyng sayde to Abisai now shal Seba ✝ son of Bochri do worsse to vs then Absalom. Take thou therfore thy masters seruauntes and folow after him: lest he get him walled cytes and escape vs. And there went out after him Joabs men and the Cerethites and the Pelethites and men of strength. And they departed out of Jerusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaon, Amasa met him. And Joab had his garment that he had about him, girde vnto him, and hadde gyrte theron a knyfe loosed fast to his loynes in a shethe out of whiche it myght easily come forthe. And Joab sayde to Amasa: art al thinges in ord and peax my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the right hande, as thoughe he wolde haue kyssed him. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, with whiche Joab smote him in the fyfth rybbes, and shed oute his bowelles to the grounde, and smote hym but one stroke, and he dyed. And then Joab and Abisai his brother pursued Seba the son of Bochri. And one of Joabs men that stode by the dede corps of Amasa sayd: What is he that he wolde be as Joab, and what is he ỹ wolde be vnto David in stede of Joab? And Amasa laye walowynge in blonde in the mydes of the waye. And there was a man that saw how all the people stode stil to gaze vpon him, and he rowled Amasa out of the way into the felde, and cast a clothe vpon him. And as sone as he was tombled oute of the waye all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri.

And he went thorow al the tribes of Israel vnto Abel Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him and went also after him. And they came & besieged him in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast vp a bank against the cyte. And it was besieged. All the people that was with Joab labored busily to ouerthrowe the wall. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cyte, harken, harken, byd Joab that he come hyther, to whome I maye speake a fewe thinges. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: arte thou Joab? And Joab answered, I am. And she sayde to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde. And he sayde: I am eedy to heare. And he sayde: it hathe bene a common sayinge in olde tyme / men muste aske in Abel, & the it come to good passe. Abel is one of the quyetest and fayethfullest cities that are in Israel. And thou goest about to destroye a cytye that is a mother in Israell. Why deuoure: thou the inheritaunce of the Lorde? And Joab answered and sayde: God forbydde, God forbydde it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye it. The thynge is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bochri by name, who hath lyft vp his hande agaynste kynge Dauid. Delyuer vs him only, and I wyll depart frome the cytye. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwen throwe the wall to the. And then the woma went vnto all the people in her wysdome. And they smote of the hed of Seba the sonne of Bochri, and cast it to Joab. And he blewe the trompe, and they skattered from the cytye euery man to his tent. So Joab returned to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

And Joab was the graund captayne ouer all the host of Israel, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cerethites & the Pelethites. Aduram was officer ouer the tribute And Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. Seua was scribe. Sadoch and Abiathar were the preastes. But Ira the Jaitre was counsellour euen to Dauid selfe.

¶ Thre deare peres. The vengeaunce of the synnes of Saul lyghteth on his seuen sonnes, whiche are hanged. Foure great batailes, which Dauid fought agaynste the Philistines.

CAPI. XXI.

A Then there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid three peres inslewingly, and Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake and the house of bloude, because he slewe the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaonites, and sayde vnto them. (Nowe these Gabaonites were not of the children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Amorites, for the children of Israel had sworne vnto them, & yet Saul sought to slay them, of a zele he had to ꝑ children of Israel and of Juda) Dauid therfore sayd vnto the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? and wherwith shall I content you, that ye may bleſſe the enheritaūce of ꝑ Lord? The Gabaonites sayde vnto him: Our matter is not vpon syluer & gold but against Saul and against his house: neyther haue we any man that we wolde kyl in Israel. Then he sayd What then will ye I do for you? And they sayde vnto the kynge: the man that consumed and imagyned to bringe vs to nought, hym we ought to destroy, that not one of his stock be left in all the coostes of Israel, let the seuē of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, that we may hange them vp vnto the Lord, in Gabaath, of Saul sometyme the Lordes electe. And Dauid sayde: I will gyue them you.

Judg.

And the kynge had compassion on Miphibosheth the sonne of Jonathas, the son of Saul, because of the Lordes oth that was betwene Dauid and Jonathas the son of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rezphah ꝑ daughter of Aiah which she bare vnto Saul, Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul which she bare to Adriel the son of Berzelai the Molathite, & delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. These seuen were all slayne at once in the first dayes of heruest: euen in ꝑ begynninge of barley heruest.

And Rezphah the daughter of Aiah toke sackcloth and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen frome the beginninge of heruest, vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by night. When it was tolde Dauid what Rezphah the daughter of Aiah the concubyne of Saul had done, he went and toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Galaad, whiche they had stolen frome the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged theym in the dayes when Philistines had slayne Saul in Gelboe. And brought thence the bones of Saul and ꝑ bones of Jonathas his son, and they set awaye the bones of them that were hanged, and buryed them with the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne in the countrey of Ben Jamin, in Zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they hadde performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was appeased & the lande. And the Philistines had yet agaīe warre vp Israel. Dauid therfore went wyth and his seruauntes with him, and fought with the Philistines. And Dauid waxed faynt, & Jesbi of Nob one of the sonnes of Haraphah whose speare hed waged thre hundred sicles of Braſſe, and was gyrde with a newe sworde thought to haue slayne Dauid. But Abisai sonne of Zaruiah succoured him and smote the Philistine and kylled him. Then the seruauntes of Dauid sware vnto him sayenge. Thou shalt go no more forth with vs to battel, that the lyght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel with the Philistines at Nob, in whiche Sobochai the Husathyte slew Saph of the sonnes of Haraphah. And there was yet the thirde battell with God, with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of the Jaere Oygim, a Bethlehemite, slew one Goliath a Gethite: ꝑ staffe of whose speare was as great as a weuers cloth beame.

And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a great heyght, who had on euery hande fyue fingers, and on euery fote fyue toes. xxiij. in all. And was also of the kynred of Haraphah, and defyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach the brother of David slew him. These foure were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, and were ouerthrowē by the hande of Dauid and his seruauntes.

¶ The songe of Dauid for his delyuerye frome his enemyes.

CAP. XXII.

And

AND Dauid spake the wordes of this balade vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delyuered hym oute of the handes of all his enemyes, and out of the handes of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castell and my sauyour. God is my strenghe, and in hym wyll I truste: my shylde & the horne that defendeth me: myne hyghe holde and refuge, my sauoure, saue me frome wyckednesse.

I wyll prayse and call on the Lorde and so shall be saued frome myne enemyes. For ꝑ stormes of death haue closed me about, and the floudes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue enuironned me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulation I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he herde my voyce out of his tēple, and my crye entred into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, because he was angry.

Smoke went out of his nostrelles, and cōsumynge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyndled coles. He bowed heauen & came downe, and weckenesse vnder nethe his feete. And he rode vpon Cherubim and flew: and appeared vpon the wynges of the wynde. And he made weckenesse a tabernacle rounde about him, & water congeled in thicke cloudes. Of ꝑ bright nesse that was before him, coles were set on fyre. The Lorde thundred frome heauen, and the most hyghe put out his voyce. He shotte arowes and skattered them, and buried lyghtninge and turmoyled them. And the bottome of the see appeared, and the foundacions of the worlde were seue, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and throwe the blastinge of the breth of his nostrelles. He sent frome aboue and set me, & plucked me out of myghty waters. He delyuered me from my mighty enemy, and frome them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had defeyth me tyl the daye of my affliction, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out at large and delyuered me, because he delyted in me.

The Lorde rewarded me after my righteousnesse, and accordinge to the pureneſſe of my handes he requyted me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wyckednesse by forsakinge my God. But I had all his lawes in my syght, neyther I tourned my face frome any of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto hymwarde, and kept my selfe frome vngodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me againe, accordinge to my righteousnesse, and after my pureneſſe ꝑ I had in his syght. With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupte, thou shalt be vncorrupte. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde also. And the people that are in aduersite, thou wilt helpe. And on the proud shalt thou cast thyne eyes, to pull the downe. Thou art my light (O Lorde,) and the Lorde shall lyght my darckenesse. With thy helpe I will renne thorowe an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my God will I springe ouer a wall. The

waye of God is vndefyled, and the worde of the Lorde tryed as golde, and he a shilde to all that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lord, & who mighty saue our God? God is my strength in war, and rydeth the waye cleare before me. And maketh my fete as swyfte as an hyndes, and setteth me fast vpon my hyghe holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fyght, that a bowe of braſſe is to weake for myne armes.

And thou hast saued me with thy shylde, & thy gentylnes hath multiplyed me. Thou madest me space to walke in, that my fete shulde not slagger. I followed myne ennemyes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne tyll I had consumed them. I wasted them & so throwed them, that they coulde not aryse: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou hyddest compasse me about with mygdt to battell, and madest them that rose against me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madest myne ennemyes to turne their backes to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed the. They loked for helpe: but none came to saue them. Vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he herde the not. I will beate them as smal as the dust of the earthe, and will stampe them as the dyrte of the streate, and will spreade them abrode.

Thou delyuerest me frome the dissencion of my people, and kepest me to be an hed ouer nacions, for the people which I knew not became my seruauntes.

And the straungers shall make resistence against me, and shall obeye me at a worde.

And the aliens that shrinke awaye, shall tremble for feare in their defenced places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: and exalted be God the strength that sauyth me. It is God that auengeth me, and bringeth vnder the people vnder me. And delyuereth me from myne enemyes, thou lyftest me vp on hyghe frome them that aryse against me, and delyuerest me frome the wycked men.

And therfore I will prayse the (O Lorde) amonge the Heythen, and will synge vnto thy name. For thy great and manyfolde saluynge of thy kynge, and shewinge mercy vnto thyne annoynted, euen to Dauid, and his sede for euer. Roma. 15.

¶ The laste communicacion of Dauid, and the descripcyon of the myghty men to hym belongynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

THese be the last sayenges of Dauid the sonne of Jsai. The man which is made the hyghe annoynted of the God of Jacob and pleasaunt Psalmist of Israel sayde: ꝑ spirite of the Lord spake in me, & his wordes were on my tonge. The God of Israel spake vnto me, and the strength of Israel sayde: he that dearely rule ouer men, he that ruleth iustlye in the feare of God, shall be as the morninge sterre when the sonne ryseth in a morninge in whiche are no cloudes to lette the brightnesse, and as the grasse of the erth

by derth

by verte of the layne. And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made with me an euerlastynge couenaunt perfect in all poin tes: and in that he shall fulfyll all that is healthsome vnto me, & al my desyres therto. Where as the vnthryfty men are al as thornes taken forth of theyr places, whiche cannot be taken with handes: but the man that shall touche them, must be armed with yron or a longe staffe: And then shal they be burnt with fyre, to lye therby.

These be the names of the mygthye men þ were about Dauid: Iosheb of Sebeth the Thachmonite, hed of thre, otherwyse called Adino the Aznite, which slew. viij. hundred at one tyme. And next to him Eleazar the son of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi, one of the three principal that were with Dauid, which whe they vpbrayed the Philistines that were there ga thered in battell (and the men of Israel were gone by) arose and layd on the Philistines tyl his hande aked and claue vnto the sword. And the Lorde made a great victory the same daye. And the people returned and went after hym onely to spoyle. After him was Sema þ sonne of Agee the Hararite (which when the Philistines were gathered in Lahata where was a parcell of lande full of pese, and the people were fled for feare of the Philistines) stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it & slew the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue him a great victory.

And these three of the thirtye of the lordes went downe and came to Dauid in þ harueste tyme vnto the caue Odollam. And the host of the Philistines had pitched their paulions in the valey of Geaunctes. And Dauid was then in a stronge holde. And the fouldiours of the Philistines were then in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the wel in the gate of Bethlehem to drinke. And anone the three myghty brake thorow the host of the Philistines and fet water out of the Wel of Bethlehem that was in the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drink therof, but offred it vnto the Lorde, and sayd: the Lorde forbyd that I shuld do so, shuld I drink the bloude of men that were in ieopardye of theyr lyues? and so he wolde not drinke it. These thinges dyd these three mighty mē. The Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiah: he was capitayne ouer three, and he lyft vp his speare against three hundred and slewe them, and was named with the three. For he was nobler man then the three and was their capitayne. Howbe it he attayned not vnto those three in actes. Then Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a lusty man valyaunt in actes of Kabzeel, he slewe two Lyons of Moab. He went downe and slew a Lyon in a pyt in tyme of snow. And he slew an Egyptian a goodly man, which hadde a speare in his hande. And Banaiah went down to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande and slewe him with his owne speare: Suche thinges dyd Banaiah the son of Joiada and was the noblest of thirty: But not lyke to any of the three in feates of warre. And Dauid made him of his counsell. Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirtye. Then Elchanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Semah the Harodite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Ikes the Thekonite: Abiezer of Anatoth: Mebonai the Husathite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Maharai the Netophathite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophathite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gabaah a cyte of the children of Ben Jamin: Banaiah the Pharathonite: Hiddai of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Asmaueth a Berhomite: Eliahba a Salabonite: Of the sonnes of Jasen Jonathas: Semah the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sarar an Ararite / Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai the sonne of a Maachathite, Eliam the sonne of Achitophel the Gilonite / Hezrai the Carmelite / Pharai the Arbite / Igaal the sonne of Nathan of Zobah / Bani the Gadite / Zelec an Ammonite / Naharai a Berothite the harnesbearer of Joab the sonne of Zaruiah / Ira the Ithrite / Gareb the Ithrite / Urias the Hethite / in all thirty and seuen.

¶ Because Dauid caused the people to be nombred, Israel is plaged with pestilence: so that in three dayes dyed. lxx. thousande.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND the Lorde was wrothe ageinst the children of Israel, & stered vp Dauid against them, sayenge / Go and nombre bothe Israel and Juda. And forthwith the kyng sayd to Joab the capitayne of his host / goo about I praye the, thorow out all the tribes of Israel, euen frome Dan to Berlabe & nombre the people þ I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge / I beseche þ the Lorde thy God make the people as many mo as they be / yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye se them. But howe is it that my Lorde the kynge hath a lust in this thinge? Notwithstanding the kynges wordes preuayled against Joab and against al the capitaynes of the host. Then Joab and the capitaynes of the host went out from the kynge, to nombre þ people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jorda and pyched in Aroer on the right syde of the cyte that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodsi, and frome thence to Dan Jaan, & about to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites, & of the Canantites, and then went out to the south of Juda, euen to Berlabe. And so when they had bene abrode thorow out al the lade, they returned to Jerusalem at the ende of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab delyuered vp the rekeninge of the nombre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were found in Israel nyne hundred thousand men of myght that drew swerdes. And þ men of Juda were fyue hundred thousand men.

And

And Dauids hert smote him after that he had nombred the people. And he sayde vnto þ Lorde: I haue synned exceadingly in that I haue wrought. And now Lord take away the trespace of thy seruaunt: for I haue done foolyshly. And when Dauid was vprysen in a morninge, þ worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete Gad Dauids Sear, sayenge: Go and say to Dauid, this sayth the Lorde. I offer the three thynges, chose which of them I shall do to þ. And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him, & sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. vij. yeres hunger in thy lande, or that thou flee three monethes before thyne enmienpes and they to lowynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy land. Now aduise the and se, what worde I shall bringe agayne to him that sente me. Then sayde Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a right great straite. But better it is to fal into þ hāde of the Lorde, for moch is his mercy, the to fall in to the handes of men. And the Lord sent a pestilēce in Israel frō the morning vnto the ende of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Berseba. lxx. thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vnto Jerusalē to haue destroyed it, the Lorde repented vpon þ scourge and sayde to the angell that destroyed þ people / It is sufficient, let thyne hand cease. And the angell was at the threshinge place of Araunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde when he saw the angel that smote the people, and sayde / Loo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these shepe what haue they done? let I praye þ thine hand be on me & on my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him / Go vp an reare an altare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge floure of Araunah the Jebusite. And Dauid accordinge to þ sayenge of Gad, wente vp as the Lorde commaunded. And when Araunah loked and saw the kynge and his seruauntes commynge towarde him, he went out: and bowed him self to the kynge flat on his face to the grounde, & sayde: Wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruaunt? And Dauid sayd: to bye the threshyngeflowre of the, for to make an aultare vnto the Lorde that the plage may cease from the people. And Araunah sayde vnto the kyng: Let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes / Beholde, oxen for sacrifice, and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for woode. And Araunah the kynges frende gaue all to the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kyng / the Lord / the Lorde thy God accept the. But the kyng sayde vnto Araunah / not so, but I will bye it of the at a pryce, and wil not offer sacrifice vnto the Lord my God that shal cost me nought. And so Dauid bought the threshyngeflowre, and the oxen, for fyfty sycles of syluer.

And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burntsacrifices and peasoffringes. And so the Lord was appeased vp the lande. And the plage ceased frome Israell.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of Samuel: commenly called the seconde of the Kynges.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF KYNGES, BVT AFTER THE HEBRVES, THE FYRST OF THE KYNGES.

¶ The younge virgin Abisag kepeth David in his extreme Age. Adonias occupyeth the realme vnwetynge to his father. Salomon is annoynted kynge and then Adonias slyeth.

CAPI. I.

2 WHen Kynge David was waxen olde & stey-ken in yeres, thoughe they couered hym with clothes, yet he caught no heate. Wherfore his seruauntes sayde vnto
him: let there be sought
for my Lorde the kynge, a younge mayden to stande before him and to cherysh him. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kyng
may get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosel thorow out all the coostes of Israel and founde one Abisag, a Sunamite, and brought her to the kynge. And the Damosell was exceedinge fayre, and cherysshed the kynge
and ministred to him: But the kynge had not to do with her.

Adonias. But Adonias the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe sayenge: I wyll be kynge. And he gat him a charet, and horsmen, and fyfty men to runne before him. And his father rebuked him not at any tyme nor sayd so moch to him as why wylt thou so. And he was therto a goodly man and his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed with Joab sonne of Zaruiah, & with Abiathar the preest.
And they holpe Adonias. But Sadoch & preest Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei & the men of mighte
10 which were with David fauered not Adonias
And Adonias sacrificed sheepe and oxen and fat
lynges at the stone of Zoheleth, which is fast
by the wel of Rogel/and bad his brethren all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the Prophete and Banaiah and the mightye
men and Salomon his brother he bad not.

Nathan. Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayenge: hast thou not herde how Adonias the sonne of Hagith reigneth vnwetinge vnto our master David?
Nowe therfore come that I maye gyue the counsel, how to saue thyne owne lyfe, and lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Hence and get vnto kynge David, and saye vnto him: dyd-dest not thou my Lord kynge swere vnto thy handmayde, sayenge? Salomon thy son shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate, why is then Adonias made kynge? And se, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kyng
I will come in after the. and will ende thy wordes.

C So Bethsabe entred vnto the kynge into the chambre. And the kynge was very olde &
Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him.

And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vn-
to thyne handemayde: Salomon thy sonne
shall raygne after me, and shall sytte vpon my seate. But nowe se, Adonias is kynge and thou my Lorde kynge wotest it not, & he hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and sheepe aboundant-
ly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng
and Abiathar the preest, and Joab the Capitayne of the host, But Salomon thy seruaut hath he not bydden. And now (my lord kyng)
the eyes of all Israell wayte on the, to tell them who shall syt on the seate of my Lorde
the kynge after him. For elles when my Lorde the kynge is layde to rest with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners.

And beholde, whyle she yet talked with the kynge, Nathan the prophete was come. And they tolde the kynge, sayenge: here commeth Nathan § Prophete. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obeysaunce vnto §
kynge vpon his face vnto the ground, & sayd:
My lorde kyng, hast thou sayde, Adonias shal
raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this day and hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and sheepe plentifully
and hath called all the kynges sonnes and the capitaynes of the host, and Abiathar § preest.
And se, they eate and drinke before him & sey.
God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruaut Sadoch the preest and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon he hath not called. Is this thynge doone of my Lord
the kynge and yet wouldst not shewe me thy seruaunt, who shulde sitte on the seate of my lorde the kynge after him?

Then kynge David aunswered and sayde:
Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before him. And the kynge sware, sayenge:
As surely as the Lorde (that hathe eyded my soule oute of all aduersitie) lyueth: euen as I swore vnto the by the Lorde God of Israell, sayenge: Salomon shall raygne after me,
and he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I doo this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earthe, and dyd obeysaunce vnto
the kynge, and sayde: I praye God my lorde kynge David maye lyue euer. Then sayde kynge David call me Sadoch the preest and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada. And when they came before the kynge / The kynge sayde vnto them:
Take with you the seruauntes of your lorde,
and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carye hym downe to Gihon. And lette Sadoch the Preaste, and Nathan the Prophete annoynte hym there / to be kynge ouer Israell. And then blowe ye with a trom-pette, and saye: God saue kynge Salomon.
And then come vp after hym, and let hym
come come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shall be kynge in my stede. And hym I haue commaun ded to be leader ouer Israell and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada answered the kynge, and sayd: Amen. And so I praye God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so. And as the Lorde hathe ben with my Lorde the kynge: so I praye God he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate

more glorious then the seat of my Lord king David. So Sadoch the preest, and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada,
and the Cerethytes and Phelethytes wente
downe, and sette Salomon vpon kynge Davids Mule, and ledde him to Gihon. And Sadoch the Preest toke an horne of oyle oute of the tabernacle, and annoynted Salomon. And they blewe a trompet/ and all they sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. And all the people came vp after hym pypynge with pypes, and reioy-synge greatly, so that the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonias and all the gestes that were
with hym herde it, euen as they hadde made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde
the sounde of the trompet, he sayd: how happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cytye? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the Preeste came. And Ado-
nias sayde: come for thou arte a lusty blouke,
and bringest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Verily oure Lorde kynge David hathe made Salomon kynge. And the kynge sente with him, Sadoch the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete: and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethytes and the Phelethites, and they haue set hym vpon the kynges Mule. And Sadoch the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete haue annoynted hym kynge in Gihon. And as they came vp agayne, they reioysed that the cytye dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer
the kynges seruauntes wente in to bleesse our Lorde kynge David, sayenge: thy God make the name of Salomon more full of fauoure
then thyne/ and his seate more glorious then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedde. And lasse of all thus sayde the kynge: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell,
who hathe made one to sytte on my seate this daye, myne eyes seynge it. Then all the gestes that were with Adonias were afrayde, and rose vp and wente euerye man his waye. But Adonias fearyng Salomon, arose, and went and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter.
And it was tolde Salomon that Adonias for feare of kynge Salomon, hath caught holde
by the hornes of the aulter, sayenge: let kynge Salomon swere vnto me this day, that he wil
not slee his seruaunt with the swerde. And Salomon sayd: yf he wyll be a good man, there shal not an heere of hym fall to the erth. But yf wyckednesse shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And therupon kynge Salomon sent and set him downe from the aulter.
And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kynge Salomon. And Salomon sayde to hym: get the to thyne house.

¶ David dyeth. Adonias requyreth to haue Abisag to his concubine, and therfore Salomon commaun deth to slee hym. Abiathar is put from his Preesthode. Semei and Joab are slayne.

CAPI. II.

WHen the dayes of David were drawen
nye that he sholde dye, he charged Salomon his sonne, sayenge: I must walke
by the waye of all the worlde, neuertheles be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfully. And se thou kepe the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundements, ordinaunces, lawes and testimonyes/ as it is written in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayste vnderstande
all that thou oughtest to do/ and al that thou shouldest medle with, that the Lorde maye
make good his promesse, whiche he hath promysed me, sayenge: yf thy children shall take hede to theyr wayes, that they walke before me in truthe with all theyr hertes, and with all theyr soules: * then shalte neuer *iii.Reg.ix.d
be withoute one sytteynge on the seate of Israel.

* Moreouer thou wotest howe Joab the *ii.Reg.iii.e;
sonne of Zaruiah hathe serued me, and what and.xx.c
he hathe wone to the two capitaynes of the hostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner,
and vnto Amasa the sonne of Jether/ how he slewe them, and shedde the bloude of warre in tyme of peax, and put the bloude of warre
vpon his gyrdle that was aboute his loynes,
and in his shoes that were on his feete. Deale
with hym therfore accordynge to thy wysdom
and se thou bringe not his grave heed downe
to the graue in peax. * And shewe kyndnesse *ii.Reg.xix.c
vnto the sonnes of Berselai the Galaadyte,
and let them be amonge them that eate at thy
table, bicause they so stode to me when I fled from Absolom thy brother. * And lo thou hast *ii.Reg.xvi.b
with the, Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Gemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with a bytter curse, what tyme I went to Mahana-im. But he came agaynste me to Jordan/and I sware to hym by the Lorde, sayenge. I wyl not slee the with the swerde. But pardon thou hym not. Thou art a man of wysdome, and shalte knowe what to do to hym/ se therfore thou bringe his grave heed to the graue
with bloude. And so Dauid rested with his fathers, and was buryed in the cytye of Dauid.
And the dayes whiche Dauid raygned vpon Israel were fourtye yeres/ seuen yeres in Hebron, and thyrtye and three yere in Jerusalem:
*So Salomon sate vpon the seate of Dauid *i.Par.xxix.f
his father. And his kyngdom was stablysshed mightyly.

After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith
came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon.
And she said: betokeneth thy comming peax? *i.Reg.i.b.ii.a
And he sayde it betokeneth peax. Then sayde
he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she said:
saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdom

kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set theyr eyes on me that I sholde raygne, how be it the kyngdome was turned away and geuen to my brother, for it was appoynted him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticion of the, wherof denye me not. And the sayde vnto him: tell what it is. Then he sayde: speake I prayre the, vnto Salomon the kynge (for he will not saye the naye) that he gyue me Abisag the Sunamyte to wyfe: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kynge. And therupon Bethsabe wente vnto kynge Salomon to speake vnto him for Adonias. And the kynge rose vp agaynste her and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sat him downe on his seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, and she sat on his ryght syde. Then she sayde: I muste desyre a lyttell peticion of the: saye me not naye. And the kynge sayd vnto her. Aske on my mother: for I will not saye the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonias thy brother to wyfe. And kynge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonias? Naye, rather aske for him the kyngdome, sithe he is myne elder brother: euen for him aske it, and for Abiathar the Preest, and for Joab the sonne of Zaruiah. Then kinge Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so to me and so, yf Adonias haue not spoken this worde agaynste him selfe. Now therfore as surely as the Lorde liueth, who hathe stablysshed me and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hathe made me an house as he promysed me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kynge Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and smote him so that he dyed. Also vnto Abiathar the Preeste sayde the kyng: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne owne selues, for thou arte worthy deth: but I will not at this tyme kyll the, because thou barest the arche of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou sufferedst in my fathers in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from beinge preest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyll the wordes of the Lorde whyche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tydynges came to Joab: for Joab hadde enclined after Adonias, but not after Salomon. Wherupon he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was told kinge Salomon how Joab was fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the aulter. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, sayinge: go and smyte him. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lorde he sayd vnto him: thus sayth the king, come out. And he sayde naye. But I will dye here. And Banaiah brought the kynge worde, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kynge sayde: do euen as he hathe sayde: smyte him and burye him, and take awaye the bloude (whyche Joab shedde causelesse) from me, and from the house of my father, and the Lorde bringe his bloude vpon his owne heed, for he smote two men tryghter wyser and better then he, and slewe them with the swerde, my father vnwetynge: euen Abner sonne of Ner, capitayne of the hoste of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, capitayne of the hoste of Juda, and theyr bloude returne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of his seed for euer: and prosperite be vnto Dauid, and vnto his seed, and vnto his house, and vnto his seate of the Lorde for euer. And Benaiah the sonne of Joiada went vp and smote him, and slewe him & buryed him in his owne house in the wyldernesse: and the kynge put Banaiah the sonne of Joiada in his rowme ouer the hoste, and put Sadock the preest in the rowme of Abiathar. Then the kynge sent and called Semei, and sayd to him: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, & se thou go not thence any whyther. For be thou sure at it, the daye thou goest oute and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thyne owne heed. Semei sayd vnto the kynge: it is well sayde: as my Lorde the kynge hathe sayde, so will thy seruaunt do. And Semei dwelte in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thre yere, that two of the seruauntes of Semei runne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah king of Geth. And one told Semei sayinge, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei rose vp and sadled his asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis to seke his seruauntes, & came and brought them agayne from Geth. But it was tolde Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sente and called Semei and sayd vnto him: Dyd I not sweare by the Lorde, and reproued vnto the sayinge, be sure whe so euer thou goest out and walkest abyde any whyther, thou shalte dye? And thou answeredst me, it is good tydynges that I haue herd. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I commaunded the? And then the kynge sayde to Semei: * thou remembrest all the wyckednesse whyche thyne herte knoweth that thou dyddest to Dauid my father. The Lorde therfore render agayne thy wyckednesse vpon thyne owne heed: and kyng Salomon be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lorde for euer. And the kynge commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Joiada: whyche wente oute and smote him that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the hande of Salomon.

¶ Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde appeareth to him, and giueth him wysdome. The pleadinge of the two harlots who stole owe the lyuynge chylde: and Salomons iudgement therin.

CAPI. III.

THen Salomon dyde affynite with Pharao kyng of Egypt, and toke his daughter, and brought her in to the cyte of Dauid, tyll he hadde made an ende of buyldynge his owne house and the house of the Lorde, and the walles of Jerusalem rounde about. Onely the people sacrifyced in aulters made on hylles, because there was no house buylte for the name of the Lorde, tyll those dayes. Salomon doubtlesse loued the Lorde, & walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue onely that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon aulters in hylles.

And the kynge wente to Gabaon to offre there, for that was a greate offeringe place. And there Salomon offered a thousand burent offeringes vpon that aulter. And in Gabaon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: Aske what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaũt Dauid my father great mercye, because that he walked before the in truthe and in ryghtousnesse and playnesse of herte with the. And thou hast kepte for him this greate mercye, that thou hast gyuen him a sonne to syte on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. * And now Lorde my God, it is thou, that hast made thy seruaunt kynge in the rowme of Dauid my father. * And I am a yonge lade, and wot not how to ordre my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the myddes of thy people, whyche thou hast chosen, a people that are so many that they can not be tolde nor nombred for multitude. * Gyue therfore vnto thy seruaunte, an vnderstandynge herte to iudge thy people, & to discerne betwene good and badde. For who is hable to iudge this thy so waygthy a people? And it pleased the Lord well, that Salomon had desyred this thynge. Wherfore God sayd vnto him: because thou hast asked this thynge, and hast not asked long lyfe, neither hast asked richesse, nor the lyues of thyne ennemyes, but hast asked the discretion to vnderstande equite: Lo, I haue done accordynge to thy petycion: and beholde, I haue gyuen the a wyse and an vnderstandynge herte, so that there was none lyke heretofore, neyther after the shall anye aryse lyke vnto the. And therto I haue gyuen the that thou askedst not, bothe ryches and honoure: so that there shall be no kynge lyke the, all thy dayes. And yf thou wylte walke in my wayes to kepe myne ordynaunces and commaundements, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame. And he came to Jerusalem and presented him selfe before the arche of the Lordes couenaunt, and offered burntofferinges and peaceoffringes, and made a feaste to all his seruauntes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kynge, and stode before him. And the one of them sayde: O my Lorde, I and this woman dwell in one house. And I was delyuered of a chylde with her in the sayd house. So the thyrd daye after I was delyuered, she was delyuered also: we two beynge togyther, and no straunger with vs in the house saue we two alone. And this wyues chylde dyed in a nyght, for she had ouerlayde it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte and layde it in her bosome, and put her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I arose vp in the morynge to gyue my chylde sucke: lo, it was deed. But when I had it loked more diligentely vpon it in the morynge: Beholde, it was not my sonne whyche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyuynge is my sonne, and the deed thyne. And she sayde agayne: thou sayest vntrue, for the deed is thy sonne, and the lyuynge myne. And thus they chydded before the kyng. Then sayd the kyng: the one sayth, this that is alyue is my sonne, and the deed is thyne. And the other sayth naye: But thy sonne is the deed, and the chylde alyue is myne. Then sayde the kynge: bringe me a swerde. And they broughte a swerde before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: Diuyde the lyuynge chylde in two, and gyue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman that was mother to the chyld alyue vnto the kynge (for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne) and sayde: I beseche the my Lorde, gyue her the lyuynge chylde, and in no wyse slee it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor myne, but diuyde it. Then the kynge answered and sayd: * gyue her the lyuynge chylde and slee it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell herde of the iudgement whyche the kynge had gyuen, and feared the kynge, for they perceyued that the wysdome of God was in him to do iustyce.

CAPI. IIII.

SO kynge Salomon was kynge ouer all Israel. And these were his lordes: Azarias the sonne of Sadock the preest, Elihoreph and Ahiah the sonnes of Sisa scribes. Josaphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the hoste. And Sadock and Abiathar were the preestes. And Azariah the sonne of Nathan was ouer the generall receyuers. And Zabud the sonne of Nathan was a wayter, and the kynges companion. And Ahisar stewarde of housholde. And Adoniram sonne of Abda ouer the tributes. And Salomon had twelue generall receyuers ouer all Israel, which sustayned the kynge and his household, eche man his moneth in a yere. Whose names are these: the sonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the sonne of Dekarin Makez, in Salem in Bethsames, in Elon and in Bethhanan: the sonne of Hesed in Aruboth, and to him pertayned Socoh, and all the lande of Hepher: the sonne of Abinadab, whiche had all the regions of Dor, and Taphereth the doughter of Salomon was his wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Ahilud had Thanach Mageddo, and all Bethsan whiche is by Zarthanah beneth Jezrahel, and from Bethsan to Abel Mehulah, and vnto beyonde Jecmaam. The sonne of Gaber hadde Ramoth Galaad

Galaad, and his were the townes of Jair the sonne of Manasse, whiche lye in Galaad, and his was the coostes of Argob in Basan, thre score greate cities with walles and barres of brasse.

Ahinadab the sonne of Ado, hadde Mahanaim: Ahimaaz hadde Nephthalim, and he hadde taken Basemath the doughter of Salomon to wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Husai hadde Aser and Aloth: Josaphat the sonne of Pharuah hadde Isachar Simei, the sonne of Ela hadde Benjamin: Gaber the sonne of Uri, hadde the countreye of Galaad and the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and of Og kynge of Basan, and was alone ouerpeer in the lande. And Juda and Israell were manye, euen as the sande of the see in nombre, eatynge, drynkynge, and makynge merye. And Salomon raygned ouer all kyngdomes from the ryuer throwe vnto all the lande of the Philistines, vnto the borders of Egypte, and they broughte presentes, and serued Salomon all dayes of his lyfe.

And Salomons expence of houshold was euery daye thirty quarters of manchet floure, and thre score quarters of mele, tenne fatted oxen, and twentye out of the pastures, and an hundred sheepe and gootes, besyde venyson of harts, bucks, and buballes, and fat pultrye. For he ruled in all the regions on the other syde Euphrates, from Thaphsah to Gasa, and also ouer all the kynges on the other syde the sayde Euphrates. And he hadde peax with all his seruauntes on euerye syde. And Juda and Israell dwelte without feare, euerye man vnder his vyne and vnder his figge tree, from Dan to Berlade, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon hadde fourtye thousande stalles of horses for charetes, and twelue thousande horsemen. And the forestayde generall receyuers made purueyaunce for kynge Salomon, and for all that came to kyng Salomons table euerye man his moneth, so that there lacked nothynge. And as for barley and straw for the horses and mules, they broughte vnto the place where the offeces were, euery man in his office.

And God gaue Salomon wysdome and vnderstandynge exceedynge moche, and a large herte, euen as the sande alonge by the see banche: so that Salomons wysdome exceeded the wysdome of al them of the East countrey, and all the wysdome of the Egyptians. And he surmounted all men in wysdome, bothe Ethã the Ezrahite, Hemã, Chalcol, and Dorda, sonnes of Mahol. And his name spred abrode amonge all nations on euery syde. And Salomon wrote thre thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of trees, euen from the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Isope that springeth out of the wall. And he disputed of beestes, foules, wormes, and fishes. And there came of all nations to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the erth which had herd of his wysdome.

Chynge Hiram sendeth Cedar tymber to the buylynge of the temple. The discription of the worke.

CAPI. V.

AND Hiram kynge of Tire sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he hadde herd that they had anoynted him kyng in the rowme of his father. And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. * And Salomon sent agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of Dauid my father, how he could not buylde an house vnto the name of the Lord his God for warre whiche he had on euery syde, vntyll Lorde had put them vnder his fote. But now the Lorde my God hath geuen me rest on euerye syde, so that there is neuther aduersary nor any euyl plage. And therfore I am disposed to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as he promised Dauid my father saying: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seat in the, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be with thyne, * I wyll geue the, the hyre of thy seruauntes in all suche thynges as thou shalt requyre, for thou knowest that there is not amonge vs that can skyll to hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidonies.

When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he reioyced greatlye and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye, whiche hathe set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, saying: I haue allowed the request whiche thou hast sent to me, and wyll satisfye all thy lust concernyng tymber of Cedar trees and fyrre. My seruauntes shall bringe them from Libanon to the see. And I wyll conueye them by flyght vnto the place that thou shalt assigne me, and wyll cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayste receyue them. And thou shalte do me this pleasure agayn, to geue me grayne towarde my housholdynge. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyrre trees, as moche as he desyred. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheten fede his household with, and twentye butts of pure oyle. And so moche gaue Salomon to Hiram yerely.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wysdome, as he promised him. And there was peax betwene Hiram & Salomon, and they were in a leage together. And kyng Salomon layed a tribute throwe out all Israel. And the tribute was thyrtye thousande men, whiche he sent to Libanon, ten thousande a moneth by course, so that they were one moneth in Libanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ruler ouer the tribute. So Salomon hadde thre score and ten thousande that bare burdens, and thre score and ten thousande that hewed in the mountaynes, besyde the Lordes he hadde to ouerse the worke, in nombre thre thousand and three hundred, who gouerned the people that wrought in the worke. And at the commaundement of the kynge, they broughte greate stones, and that fyne stones, and hewed therto, to laye in the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and the masons of Hiram dyd hewe them, with them of the bybers. And so they prepared both tymbre and stone to buylde the house.

CAPI. VI.

AND it came to passe in the foure hundred and foure score yere, after the chyldren of Israell were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and the fourthe yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and the seconde moneth called Zif, that he began to buylde the temple vnto the Lorde. And the house whiche Salomon buylte for the Lorde was thre score cubytes longe, and twentye brode, and thirtye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the body of the temple, was twentye cubytes longe, after the measure of the bredth of the house, and tenne brode/ euen at the verye ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open and shutte.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeryes rounde aboute, bothe aboute the temple, and also the quere. And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the nethermoste galerye was fyue cubytes brode, and the myddle galerye sixe, and the thyrde seuen cubytes brode. For he made the walles without wheron the beames laye, euer thynner and thynner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylte of stone made perfecte alredye er it was broughte thyther, so that there was neither hammer or axe, eyther anye toole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buyldynge. And the doore of the myddle galerye was in the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men wente vp with wyndyng steares in to the myddle galerye, and oute of the myddle in to the thyrde. And so he buylte the house and finisshed it, and rouffe it with beames of Cedar tymbre, made bolowe and ioyned together. Then he buylte chambres ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heyght, and coupled the house together with beames of Ceder.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art a buyldynge, yf thou wylte walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyll I make good vnto the, my promes * whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. * And I wyll dwelle amonge the chyldren of Israel, and wyll not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and finysshed it, and syled the walles of the house within, with rybbes of Cedar tree, euen from the pauement vnto the rouffe, and he syled it within, and bordred the floore of the house with planches of fyrre.

And he syled twentye cubytes in the ende of the temple, bothe floore and walles with Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere, and place moste holye. And the fyrste house, that is to saye, the body of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was kerued with knoppes and grauen with flources, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arche of the Lordes testament. And the quere was twentie cubites long, and twentye in bredth, and twentye in heyght. And he syled it with pure golde, and bozed the aulter with Cedar. And Salomon syled the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres tunne alonge the quere, whiche he hadde couered with golde. And the hole house he ouerlayde with golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with gold also. And within the quere he made two * Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hyghe a pece, and euery wynge fyue cubytes longe, so that from the vttermost parte of one wynge, vnto the vttermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hyghe also, so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one syse. The heyght of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the middle of the inner house. * And the Cherubs stretched their wynges, so that the one wynge of the one touched the one wall, and the one wynge of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayde the Cherubes with golde.

And the walles of the house rounde about he garnysshed with worke of Cherubs and palme trees, and grauen flources, bothe within in the quere, and without in the temple. And the floore of the house he couered with golde, bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entering of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes, fyue squarr. And the two dores of olyue tree, he grauen with graueynge of Cherubes and palme trees, and grauen flources, and couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the dore of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree foure square, and two dores of fyrre tree, and either dore with two folding leues, and grauen theron Cherubes, palme trees, & flources, and couered them with gold made playne by a ruler. And then he buylte the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourthe yere of his raygne was the foundacion of the house of the Lorde layde/ euen in the moneth Zif, and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Bul, whiche the ryghte moneth, it was full fynisshed in all that pertayned therto, and fashioned as it should be in all poyntes. And so was he seuen yere in buyldynge of it.

AND Salomon buylte his owne houle in thyrteene yere space, and full fynyshed it. And he buylte the houle of the wodde of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyftye bzoot, and thyrtye hyghe, foure square with rowes of Cedar pyllers, and Cedar beames alonge vpon the pyllers. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue an hyghe vpon the beames that laye an hyghe on the pyllers, whiche pyllers, were fourtye and fyue in nombre/ fyfteene on a rowe/ and the spaces betwene the pyllers were one agaynfte an other thzee folde. And all the wozes with the fyde poftes were foure square one agaynfte an other thzee folde.

And he made a porche of pyllers fyftye cubytes longe, and thyrtye cubytes bzode, and yet a porche before that with pilleres/ and a thycke pyller before that. Then he made a porche to fyt and iudge in, fyled with Cedar euen frome the pauementes, vnto the top. And his owne houle where he kept reſidence in an other court without that porche, was of the same worke. And then Salomon made an houle for Pharaos doughter, whiche he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

And all theſe thynges were of tryche ſtones hewed after a meaſure, and ſawed with ſawes within and without/ euen frome the foundacion, vnto the cop of the walles/ and on the oute ſyde thereto towarde the great court. And the foundacion was of tryche ſtones, and that myghtye greate ſtones of ten cubytes, and of eyght. And aboue were tryche ſtones hewed accordynge to the ſame ſyze/ and alſo with Cedar. And the great courte rounde aboute was with thze rowes of hewed ſtone, and one row of Cedar plankes. and likewiſe was it in the inner courte of the houle of the Lorde, and of the porche of the temple. * And kynge Salomon ſent and fet one Hiram oute of Tire, a wydowes ſonne of the tribe of Nephtalim/ his father being of Tire. Whiche Hiram was a perfyte founderer, and full of wyſdome, vnderſtandynge, and connyng, to worke all maner of worke in bzaſſe. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wzoughte all his wozke. He caſt two pyllers of braſſe, of eyghtene cubytes a pece hyghe, and a ſtrynge of twelue cubytes myght compaſſe eyther of them about. And he made two heed peces of molten braſſe to ſette on the toppes of the pyllers, of fyue cubytes long a pece, with garlandes of bzayded worke, and boopes of chayne worke for the heed peces that were on the pyllers, ſeuen for the one and ſeuen for the other. And he made the pyllers and for either of the heed peces a garland C with two rowes of pomegranates to couer them with. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of the pyllers, were wrought with lylies in the porche, the ſpace of foure cubytes of them. And the pomegranates aboue and benethe on the wzethen chaynes that compaſſed the myddle of the heed peces, were in nombre two hundred on either heed pece. And he ſet vp the pyllers in the porche of the temple/ and when he had ſet vp the ryght pyller, he called the name therof Jachin/ And when he ſet vp the lefte pyller, he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pillers were thus wzought with lilies, and ſo was theyr worke manſhyp finyſhed.

Then he caſte a ſee of bzaſſe tenne cubytes wyde frome bzymme to bzymme, and rounde in compaſſe, and fyue cubytes hyghe. And a ſtrynge of fourtye cubytes myghte compaſſe it aboute, and vnder the bzymme of it as it were apples compaſſed and embzaſed the ſee often cubytes wyde in two rowes caſt with it when it was caſte. And it ſtode on twelue oxen/ of whiche, thzee loked Northe, thzee Weſt, thzee South, and thze Eaſt/ and the ſee on theyr backes/ and all theyr hynder partes were inward. And it was an handē bzeedth thycke, and the bzym wzought lyke the bzymme of a cup with flowres of lylies. And it contayned two thouſande Bathes.

And he made ten botomes of braſſe, foure cubytes longe, and foure cubytes bzode a pece, and thze hyghe. And the wozkes of the botomes was on this maner that the ſydes were, as it were flatte bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flate bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen, and Cherubes. And vpō the ledges that were aboue and beneth the lyons and oxen, was toyned pendant wozke. Eu every botome hadde foure braſen wheles/ whoſe axeltrees were alſo of braſſe. And in the foure cozners were vnderſetteres vnder the lauatozye caſte eche ouer agaynſte his fellowe.

And the ſtalke of the lauatozye was in the myddle of the bottome one cubyte hyghe: and a cubyte and an half rounde, and it had knoppes theron in the bare places, whiche were foure square, not rounde. And vnder the ſydes were foure wheles/ and theyr axeltrees ioyned faſte to the bottome. And the hyghneſſe eucrye whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workemanſhyp of the wheles was lyke the wozke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the naueles, ſpokes, and felkes were all mouleen. And the foure vndreſetteres in the foure cozners, were of the ſame bottomes.

And vnder the ſtalcke of the lauatozye in the myddes of the bottome, was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyte hyghe. And vpon playne places and ledges of the ſame he grauen in the playne, and alſo on theyr Cherubes, lyons, & palme treees, eucrye where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the ten bottomes caſt wozke: all of one meaſure and one ſyze. Then he made ten lauers of braſſe, containynge fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubytes a pece for euery one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put fyue of thoſe bottomes on the ryght cozner of the temple, and other fyue on the lefte, and put the ſea on the ryght cozner of the temple ſouthwarde and towarde the Southe. And Hiram made pottes, ſhouelles, and baſons/ and ſo finiſhed all the wozke that he made kynge Salomon for the houle of the Lozde: that is to ſaye, two pyllers, and two ſcalpes of the heedes þ were on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pomegrancettes vpon two wzethes/ two rowes on either wzethe, to couer the two ſcalpes of the heedes, that were on the toppes of the two pyllers: and the ten bottomes of braſſe, with ten lauers vpon them/ and a ſee with twelue oxen vnder it/ and pottes ſhouels and baſons. And all theſe veſſelles whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the houle of the C Lozde, were of bzyght bzaſſe. And in the playne of Jozdan dyd the kynge caſte them: euen in the clay of the erthe betwene Soceth and Zarthan. And Salomon left all the veſſelles vnwayed, for the exceedynge abundaunce of braſſe that was in them.

And Salomō made all the veſſels that pertayned vnto the houle of the Lozde/ the aultre of gold/ and þ table of golde wheron the ſhewbzed was put. And fyue candelſtyckes for the ryght ſyde/ and as many for the left, before the quere of pure golde: with flowres, lampes, and tonges of golde/ and bolles, ſnaſſers, baſons, ſponnes and fire pannes of pure golde, and hinges of golde, bothe for the wozes of the quere, the place moſt holy/ and for the wozes of the temple alſo.

And ſo was ended all the wozke that kyng Salomō made for the houle of the Lozde. And then * Salomō bzought in the thinges which Dauid his father had dedicate in ſyluer, golde, and other veſſels, and put them to the treaſure of the houle of the Lozde.

CAPL. VIII.

I

THen Salomon gathered the elders of Iſrael, all the heedes of the trybes, and auncient lozdes of the chyldren of Iſrael, vnto him to Jeruſalem, to bzinge vp the arcke of the teſtament of the Lozd out of the city of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Iſrael aſſembled vnto kyng Salomō, to the feaſt that is kepte in the moneth Ethanim, whiche is the ſeuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Iſrael were come, the prieſts toke vp þ arcke of the Lozde/ and bzought it and alſo the tabernacle of witneſſe, and all the holy veſſels that were therin. And the prieſtes and the Leuites brought them vp. And kyng Salomon and all the company of Iſrael that were aſſembled, were with him before the arcke, did offre ſhepe and oxen that could not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And ſo the prieſtes bzought the arcke of the Lozdes teſtament vnto his place, euē in to the quire of the temple, and place moſt holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubis ſtretched out their winges ouer þ arcke, and couered both it and alſo the ſtaues therof aboue vpō it. Now be it the ſtaues were ſo long that the endes of them appered out of the holy place before the quere/ but on the oute ſyde were they not ſene, and there they be vnto this day. And there was nothing in the arcke, ſaue þ two tables of ſtone, which Moſes put there at Horeb, when the Lozde made an appointment with the chyldren of Iſrael, after they were come forth of Egypte. B Deuter. x. Exo. xxxiii. b

And when the prieſtes were come out of the holye place/ then a cloude fylled the houle of the Lozde, that the prieſtes coulde not endure to miniſter bycauſe of the cloude: for the glorye of the Lozde had fylled the houle of the Lozde. Then ſpake Salomon: the Lozde ſaid that he wolde dwelle in darckenelle. I haue buylte the an houle to dwelle in, and an habitacion for the to abyde in for euer. And þ kyng turned his face, and bleſſed all the congregacion of Iſrael, all the congregacion ſtantinge. And he ſayd: Bleſſed be the Lozde God of Iſrael, whiche hath fulfylled with his hand, that he ſpake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father: ſayinge: frome the daye I brought my people Iſrael forthe of Egypte, I chooſe no cyte amonge anye of the trybes of Iſrael, to buyld an houle that my name myght be there: But I haue choſen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Iſrael. II. Para. vi.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an houle for the name of the Lozde God of Iſrael. But the Lozde God ſayd vnto Dauid my father/ ſa that it was in thyne herte to buylde an houle for my name, thou dyddeſt well, that thou waſt ſo mynded. Neuertheleſſe thou ſhalt not buylde the houle, but thy ſonne that ſhall come out of thy loynes, ſhall buylde an houle for my name. And the Lozde hathe made good his word that he ſpake. For I ſtode vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and ſate on the ſeate of Iſrael, as the Lozde promiſed/ and haue buylte an houle for the name of the Lozde God of Iſrael. And I haue prepared therin a place for þ arcke wherin the couenaūte of the Lozde is, whiche he made with oure fathers, after he had bzought them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon ſtode before the aultre of the Lozde in the ſyghte of all the people of Iſrael, and ſtretched out his handes to heuen, and ſayd: Lozd God of Iſrael, there is no God lyke the in heuen aboue, or in the earthe beneethe/ that kepeſt appointement and mercye with thy ſeruaūtes that walke before the with all theyr hertes, whiche alſo haſt kept with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him. Thou ſpakeſt with thy mouthe/ and haſt fulfylled with thyne handē, as it is come to paſſe this day. And now Lozde God of Iſrael kepe with thy ſeruaunte Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him, ſayinge: thou ſhalte not be without one or other before me, ſytteynge on the ſeate of Iſrael: So neuertheleſſe, yf thy chyldren ſhall take hede to theyr wayes that they walke before me, as thou haſt walked before me. Nowe therfore, O Lozde God of Iſrael/ let thy wozde be ſtable whiche thou ſpakeſt vnto thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father. II. Para. vi.

When Salomon had made an ende of pray
inge all this prayer and supplicacion vnto the Lorde, he arose from the aulter of the Lorde,
and frome kneelynge on his knees, and stret
chynge his handes vp to heuen, and stode
and blessed all the cōgregacion of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde
that hathe gruen gruen rest vnto his people Israel according to all ✠ he promised: ✱ there
there is not one worde escaped of all the good

forsake vs not neither leaue vs, but drawe bowe our hertes vnto hym, to walke in all his wayes, and to kepe his commaundements,
ordinaunces and rites, whiche he commaun
ded our fathers. And these my wordes where I haue prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto
the Lorde oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruaunte and of his people

people Israel euermore, that all nations of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde is God, and C none but he. And ✠ praye God that your har tes maye be sounde with the Lorde oure God,
to walke in his ordinaunces, and to kepe his lawes, as we do this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with him, offe red offrynges before the Lord. ✱ And the peax
offringes that Salomon offered vnto ✠ Lord
were .xxij. thousande oxen, and an hundred and .xx. thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the children of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same day the kyng halowed
the middle of the court that is before the house of the Lorde, for there he offered burntofferyn
ges, and meatofferynges, & the fat of the peax offerynges, because the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, was to lytle to receyue the burntofferynges and meatofferynges, and the fat of the peaxofferynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye
feast, and all Israell with hym, a mightye con
gregacion, euen from the coostes of Hemath, vnto the ryuer of Egypt, before the Lorde our God, seuen dayes, and yet seuen dayes, that is fourteene dayes. And the eight daye he sent the people awaye. And they blessed the kynge and wente vnto their tentes ioyous and glad in herte, for all the goodnesse that the Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruaunt, and to Is rael his people.

C The Lorde appeareth agayne to Salomon. Sa lomon maryeth wyues to Pharam. The Cananites be buyldeth many cyties.

CAPL. IX.

1 Whē Salomon had fynyshed the buyl
dynge of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges palace, and all that his desire and lust was to make: the Lorde appeared vn
to him agayne, as he appeared to him at Ga
bion. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: I haue hard thy prayer and intercession that thou ma
dest before me, and haue halowed this house
whiche thou hast buylt to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne herte shal be there perpetually. And if thou wylt walke be fore me, as Dauid thy father walked, in pure nesse of herte and playnesse, to do all that I
haue commaunded the, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and rytes: then I wyll settle the feate of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer, as 2 I promised Dauid thy father, saying: ✱ Thou 3 shalte not be wythoute one of other vpon the seate of Israel. But yf ye and your children shall turne alwaye from me, and shall not kepe
myne ordinaunces whiche I haue sette before you, but shall go and serue other goddes, and bowe youre selues vnto them: then I will roote Israel oute of the lande whiche I haue gruen them. And this house whiche I haue ha
lowed for my name, I will put out of my sight.
And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable vn
to all nations. And this house whiche is so hye, 4 ✱ all that passe by it shall be astonied, and shal
hysse and saye: why hath the Lorde dealte on Jerem.xxij.c
this maner with this land, & with this house? ii.Para.vii.b
And it shal be answered them, because they for sooke the Lord their God, which brought their fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, and haue
leaned to other goddes, and haue stouped vnto
them and serued them: therefore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euil. Then at the ende of twenty yeres, in which Salomon had ii.Para.viii.
buylt the two houses, that is to wit, the house of the Lorde, and the kynges palace: because Hyram the kynge of Tire had supported him
with Cedar, fyre, and gold, as moche as he wil led, therefore Salomon gaue Hyram .xx. cities in the lande of Galile. And when Hyram was come frō Tire to se the cities which Salomon had gruen hym, they pleased him not. Where fore he sayd: what cities are these which thou hast gruen me, my brother? And he called them
the lande of Cabull vnto this daye. This Hy ram hadde sente the kynge fyre score hundred waight of golde. And this is the somme of the tribute which king Salomon raysed to buyld
the house of the Lorde and his owne house, & Melo, and the walles of Jerusalem and Hezer
and Magedo, and Gazer.

For Pharao kynge of Egypte went vp and toke Gazer and burnt it with fyre, and slewe
the Cananites that dwelte in the cite, & gaue
it for a presente vnto his doughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in ✠ land,
and all the stoore cities that Salomon hadde,
and cities for his charettes, and cities for his
horsemen, and all that his full was to buylde
in Jerusalem and Libanon, and in al the land of his kyngdome.

And all the people that were lefte of the Amorytes, Hethites, Pherezytes, Heuites,
and Iebusytes, whiche were not of the chyl
dren of Israel, the chyldren of the sayde na cyons that were lefte in the lande, because the chyldren of Israell were not hable to de stroye them, Salomon made tributaryes vn
to this daye. But of the chyldren of Israell dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, and his seruauntes, and his Lordes, and Capitaynes and rulers of his charettes, and of his horsemen. And these many Lordes that ouersawe the worke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyfty, whiche
ruled the people that wroughte in the worke.
And Pharaos doughter came vp oute of the cyte of Dauid, vnto the house whiche Sa lomon hadde buylte for her. And after that, he buylte Melo. And thryse a yere dyd Salo mon offer burnt offerynges and peax offeryn
ges vpon the aulter whiche he hadde buylte
vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte theron:
whiche aulter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon hadde made the house per fecte, he made shyppes in Azion Gaber, whi
che is beside Elath, on the bryncke of the red see, in the lande of Edom. And Hyram sente by shyppe also of his seruauntes, that were shypmen, and expert in the see, with the ser uauntes of Salomon. And they wente to Ophir, and fet from thence golde, to the fumme of foure hundred and .xxti. talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba commeth from the furtheft partes of the lande to heare and fe the wyfdome of Salomon. The yerely reuenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, veffelles of golde, Charettes, horfmen, and fcorion of fpuer.

AND the quene of Saba herd of the wifdome of Salomon concernyng ſ name of the Lorde, and came to proue him w̄ ꝓpofitions. And fhe came to Ieruſalem with a mighty great multitude of Camelles ſ bare fweete oiles and golde exceding moche, and precious ſtones. And when fhe was come to Salomon, fhe talked with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon expowned her all her queſtions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whiche he expowned her not. And when the quene of Saba had ſene al Salomons wyfdome, & the houſe that he had buylte and the meat of his table, and the lodgynges of his ſeruauntes, and the facion of his courte, and their appareil, and his buttlers, & his ſacrifice that he offred in the houſe of the Lorde, fhe was aſtonied. Then ſhe ſayd to the kynge: the worde I herde in myne owne land of thy dedes and wyfdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came and fawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not tolde me, for thy wifdom and goodneſſe paſſeth the fame whiche I herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes, whiche ſtande euer before the and heare thy wyfdom. And bleſſed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a luſt to the, to ſet the on the ſeate of Iſrael, becauſe the Lorde loued Iſrael for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to doo equitie and ryghteouſnes.

Then ſhe gaue the king an hundred and .xx. talentes of golde, and of ſwete odoures exceadyng moche, and precious ſtones. There came neuer after ſuche abundance of ſwete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And thereto ſ fhyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenteye of Almuge tree, and precious ſtones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pylers in the houſe of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and pſaltes for ſyngers. There came no more Almuge trees to, nor was any more ſene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto ſ quene of Saba all her deſyre that ſhe aſked of hym, beſydes that he gaue her with his own hand. And ſo ſhe returned vnto her owne countrey with her ſeruauntes.

b Some reade Courail. Some Byſſul.

c The weyght of golde that came to Salomō euery yere, was .lx. hundred thre ſcore and .vi. talentes of golde, beſides that he had of chapmen, and of marchaūtes, of potecaries, and of all the kinges of Arabie, and of the lordes of ſ countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred buckelers of beaten gold, fyre hundred ſicles of golde went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred ſhyldes of beaten golde, three pounde of golde goynge to a pece, and put them in the houſe of the wode of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great ſeate of Ivorie and couered it with precyous golde. And the ſeate had ſixe ſteppes. And the top of the ſeate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomels on either ſyde on the place where he ſate, and two lyons ſtandynge beſyde the pomelles. And there ſtode twelue lyons on the ſteppes, ſixe on a ſyde. There was none lyke ſeate in eny kingdome. And all kyng Salomons drynkynge cuppes were of golde, and all the garnyſchement of the houſe of the wod of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for ſyluer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the ſee ſhyppes whiche the kyng had in the ſee, with the ſhyppes of Hiram, came euery thyrd yere laden with golde, ſyluer, Ivorye, apes, and peacockes. * And ſo kynge Salomon paſſed all the kynges of the erth in riches and wyſdome. And all the worlde reſorted to Salomon, to heare his wyſdome whyche God had put in his herte. And brought him euery man his preſent, veſſels of ſyluer and of golde, and of rayment, harneſſe, ſwete odoures, horſes, and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomō gathered togyther charettes and horſemen, ſo that he had a thouſand and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thouſande horſemen, whiche he beſtowed in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Ieruſalem.

* And the kynge made ſyluer in Ieruſalem as plenteous as ſtones, and Cedar as plentyous as the mulbery trees that grow in the valleyes. And Salomons horſes came out of Egypt frome Kcua. The marchaūntes fetched them from Kcua at a price. A charet came out of Egypt for .vi. hundred ſicles of ſiluer, & an horſe for an hundred & fifty. And euen ſo by the handes of the ſayde marchaūntes, horſes were brought out for al the kinges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Syria.

¶ Salomon hath ſeuen hundred Quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, whiche bringe him to Idolatrye. His aduerſaryes rebell againſte hym. Death, and Ieroboam his ſonne raygneth in his ſtede.

CAPI. XI.

BVt kyng Salomon loued many outlandyſhe women: the doughter of Pharao and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites, euen of ſuche of which the Lorde ſayd vnto the childrē of Iſrael, Se ye come not at them, nor let them come to you, for ſurely they wyll turne your hertes after their godes. Neuertheleſſe to ſuche did Salomon claue, and fell in loue with them. And he had ſeuen hundred verye quenes, and thre hundred concubynes, whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wyues turned his hert after other godes, ſo that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon followed Aſtaroth the God of the Zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonits. So Salomō wrought wickednes in the ſight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylte an aulter for Chemos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hyll that ſtandeth before Ieruſalem, and vnto Moloch the abhomination of the chyldren of Ammon. And ſemblably dyd he for all his outlandyſhe wiues which burnt incenſe and offered vnto their Goddes. Then was the Lorde angry with Salomon, becauſe his hert turned from the Lorde God of Iſrael which appeared vnto hym twyſe, and gaue him a charge of this thynge that he ſholde not followe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherfore the Lord ſayd to Salomō: for as much as this is done of the, and thou haſte not kept myne appoyntment & myne ordinaūces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I wyll rent the kingdome from the, and will giue it to thy ſeruaunt. Notwithſtanding in thy dayes I will not do it, becauſe of Dauid thy father: but will take it frō thy ſonne. How be it I wil not take away al: but wil giue one tribe to thy ſonne, becauſe of Dauid my ſeruaunt, and becauſe of Ieruſalem, whiche I haue choſen.

Then the Lord ſtered vp an aduerſary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges lynage of Edom. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capitayne of the hoſte was gone vp to burye them that were ſlayn, & had ſlayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For ſix monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Iſrael, tyll he had deſtroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & certeyn other Edomites of his fathers ſeruauntes with him, to go to Egypt, Hadad beinge yet a little lad. And they arose out of Madian, and went to Pharan, and toke men with them oute of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharao kyng thervnto, which gaue him an houſe, and appointed him victayles, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the ſight of Pharao, ſo that he gaue him to wyfe the ſyſter of his owne wyfe, the ſyſter of Thahaphnes the quene. And the ſiſter of Thahaphnes bare him Genubath his ſonne. And Thahaphnes weaned him in Pharaos houſe. And he was I Pharaos houſe among the ſonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde ſaye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to ſlepe with his fathers, and that Joab the capitayne of the hoſte was dead alſo, he ſayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then ſayde Pharao vnto hym: what lacketh thou heare by me, that thou woldeſt go to thyne owne countreye? And he ſayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God ſtered vp an other aduerſarye, one Rezon the ſonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadezer kyng of Zobah his maſter. This Rezon gathered men vnto him, and became capitayne ouer an armye, when Dauid ſlewe them. And they went to Damaſco, & dwelte therin, and raygned in Damaſco. And he was an aduerſarye to Iſrael all the dayes of Salomon, with the euill that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Iſrael, and raygned in Syria.

And Ieroboam the ſonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zaredah (whoſe mother was called Zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons ſeruaunt) lyfte vp his hande againſt the kyng, and therof came it, that he lyfte vp his hande againſt the kynge. Salomon buylte Melo, and mended broken places in the cite of Dauid his father. And this fellowe Ieroboam was an actue man. And when Salomō ſawe the yong man that he wrought ſo luſtely in the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the charges of the houſe of Joſeph. And it chaūced at that ſeaſon, as Ieroboam was gone out of Ieruſalem, that the Prophete Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a new mantell on him, & they two alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and ſaid to Ieroboam: take the ten peces. For thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael: beholde I will rent the kingdome out of the handes of Salomon, and will giue ten tribes to the, & he ſhall haue one, for my ſeruaunt Dauids ſake, and for Ieruſalem, the cite whiche I haue choſen oute of all the tribes of Iſrael, becauſe they haue forſaken me, and haue bowed them ſelues vnto Aſtaroth the God of the Zidons, and to Chamos the God of the Moabites, and to Milcom, the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaſeth me, and myne ordynaunces and ꝓcetes: as dyd Dauid his father.

How be it I wyll take none of the kyngdome oute of his hande, but wyll make hym ruler all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my ſeruaūtes ſake, whiche I choſe, becauſe he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of his ſonnes hande, and wyll giue vnto the ten tribes of it, and wyll giue his ſonne one, that Dauid my ſeruaunte maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Ieruſalem the cite which I haue choſen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou ſhalte raygne vpon all that thy ſoule deſyreth, & ſhalt be king ouer Iſrael. And yf thou ſhalt harken vnto al that I commaunde the, and ſhalte walke in my wayes, and do that is ryghte in my ſyghte, that thou kepe myne ordinaūces and commaundmentes, as Dauid my ſeruaūt dyd: then will I be with the, and buylde the an houſe that ſhall continue, as I buylte for my ſeruaunte Dauid, and I wyll giue Iſrael vnto the. And therwith wyll I vexe the ſeed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon ſought to kyl Ieroboam, wherfore Ieroboam aroſe, and fledde in to Egypte, vnto Sefak kynge of Egypte, and continued there tyll the deathe of Salomon. The reſte of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wyſdome, are written in the boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Ieruſalem vpon all Iſrael, was fourtye yeres. And then he layde hym to reſte with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his ſonne raygned in his ſtede.

¶ The kyngdome is deuyded: & Rehoboam raygneth three yeares, and Jeroboam ouer.x. Israam is wonne. Jeroboam maketh golden calues.

CAPL. XII.

1 AND Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for al Israel were come to Sichem to make him kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat herd of it, being yet in Egypte: for he had fledde to Egypte, for feare of Salomon/and dwelte there. And they sent and called him: and so Jeroboam and all the assemble of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, saynge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous seruice of thy father, and his sore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter/ and so we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsel geue ye to answere this people with? 2 And they sayde vnto hym. Yf thou shalte be a seruaunt vnto this people this day, and serue them, and answere them, and speke kynde wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell that the olde men had gyuen hym, and counselled with the ponge men that were nourysshed vp with him and had wayted on him.

The counsell of the olde men deuyded.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsel geue ye, to answere this people, whiche haue commuued with me saynge: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter? And the ponge men that were brought vp with him answered him, saynge: this people that haue sayd vnto the: thy father made our yoke heuy make thou it vs lyghter: thus answere them. Eccle.xlvii.d My lytle fynger shall be wayghtyer then my fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And when Jeroboam, and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge appointed them, saynge: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes/ the kynge answered the people churlysshely, and lefte the aduyse that the olde men gaue hym/ and spake to them after the counsell of the ponge men, saynge. My father made youre yoke greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastysed you with whyppes, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people: for the turnynge awaye was of the Lord, 3.Reg.xi.f to performe his saynge, whiche the Lorde sayde by Ahiah the Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel sawe that the kynge regarded them not/the people answered the kynge agayne, saynge: we haue no parte in Dauid, 11.Paralip.x.d. no; inheritaunce in the sonne of Jsai. Hasten to youre tentes therfore Israel, and nowe se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. How be it ouer the chyldren of Israel whiche dwelte in the cyty of Juda, did Rehoboam raygne styl. Then kynge Rehoboam sent Aduram the receyuer of the tribute. And al Israel stoned him to deth with stones. But kynge Rehoboam made spede and gat e him vp to his charet, & fled to Jerusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when al Israel herd that Jeroboam was come agayn, they sent and called hym vnto the congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer Israell: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribe of Juda only. ✱ And whē Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda, and all the trybe of Ben Jamin an hundred and foure score thousandes of chosen men & good warriours, to fight agaynst the house of Israel/and to bryng the kyngdome agayne of Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Semeiah the man of God, saying/ speke f vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the remnaunt of the people, and saye, Thus sayth the Lorde: goo not nor yet fyght agaynst your brethren the chyldren of Israel, but returne euery man to his house, for this doynge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and returned and departed accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buylte Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelte therin. And wente from thence and buylt Phanuel.

And Jeroboam thought in his herte: nowe might the kyngdome returne to ẏ house of Dauid agayne. For yf this people shall go vp and do sacrifyce in the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem: then shal they; hertes turne agayn vnto theyr Lorde Rehoboam kynge of Juda: and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kynge of Juda. ✱ Wherupon the kynge toke counsell and made two calues of golde, g and sayd vnto the people: ye shall not nede to goo ayne more to Jerusalem. Beholde, your Gods (Israel) whiche brought you oute of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel h and the other in Dan. And that doynge was a cause of synne. And the people wente to worshyp the calfe, as farre as Dan. And he made temples in the hylles, and made of the lowest of the people preestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a feaste the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feast that was in Juda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calues ẏ he had made. And he put in Bethel the preestes of the hyllaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered vpon the aulter whiche he had made in Bethel, the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, whiche he had ymagined of his owne herte; and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel, and wente vp to the aulter to burne sacrifyce.

¶ Jeroboam sacrifyseth vnto Calues, is reproued of the Prophete. His hande dryeth vp whyle he putteth it out agaynst the Prophete. The Prophete is killed and buryed.

CAPL. XIII.

1 AND beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda with the worde of God, to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aulter to offre, and cryed agaynst the aultare at the cōmaundement of the Lorde and sayd: aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde, a chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, whiche vpon the shall offre the preestes of the hyllaultares that sacrifyce vpon the, and shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue theym the same tyme a signe saynge: this is the signe that the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde the aulter shall rent and the asshes that are in it shal fall out. And when the kynge herde the sayeng of the man of God whiche he cryed agaynste the aulter in Bethel, he stretched oute his hande from the aultare saynge: holde him. And his hande whych he put forth towarde him, dryed vp, that he couldē not pull it in agayn to him and the aulter claue and the asshes ran out of the aulter accordinge to the token which the man of God had gyuen at the cōmaundment of the Lorde. And the kynge answered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hand may be restored me againe. And the man of God besought the Lord, and his hande came to him agayne as well as before.

Then sayd the kynge vnto the man of God Come home with me and refreshe thy selfe, & I wyll geue the rewarde. But the man of God answered the king, if thou wouldest geue me halfe thyne house, I wolde not goo with the neither wolde I eate meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, c thorowe the worde of God and sayde to me: eate no bred, nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he went an other waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde Prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes that the man of God had done that day in Bethel, and the wordes which he spake vnto ẏ kynge they tolde their father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he? for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God wente which came from Juda. Then sayd he to his sonnes: sadle myne asse. And they sadled him an asse. And he gat him vp theron and wente after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde, yea.

d Then he sayd to him: come home with me and eate bred. And the other sayde agayne, I maye not returne with the, to go with ẏ, neyther maye I eate bred or drinke water with ẏ in this place. For it was sayde to me by the commaundement of the Lorde, eate no bred nor drinke water in this place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayde vnto him: I am a Prophet as well as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me with ẏ worde of the Lorde, sayenge: Bringe him agayne with the to thyne house, & let him eate bred and drink water, and yet lyed vnto him. And to the other went agayne with him & ate bred in his house and dranke water.

And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete ẏ brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ẏ man of God e that came from Juda, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou haste disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept ẏ commaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne & hast eaten bred and dronke water in the place in which he bad the that thou shuldest eate no bred nor drincke water: therfore thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten bred and dronke, he sadled an asse for the Prophete which he had brought agayne. And as he journeyed, a lyon met him by the waye, and slew him, and his carkasse laye alonge in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the corpse also. And men that passed by, saw the carkasse f cast a longe in the way and the lyon standing therby, & went & tolde it in the towne where the olde Prophete dwelt. And when the Prophete that brought him backe agayne from ẏ waye, herde therof, he sayde: It is the man of God which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therfore the Lorde hathe delyuered him vnto the Lyon which hath tore him and slayne him, according to the worde of ẏ Lorde, which he sayde to him. And he sayd to his sonnes sadle me an asse: and so they dyd. And he went and founde the body cast alonge in the waye, and the asse and the Lyon standinge therby. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor g hurt the asse. And he toke vp the body of the manne of God, and put it vpon the asse, and brought it agayne, and came to the cyte of ẏ olde Prophete to lament him, & to bury him. And he layde his body in his owne graue, and lamented ouer him, Oh my brother. And whē he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes saynge: When I am deed, se ye bury me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buryed/ and lay my bones by his. For the sayeng which he cryed at the dedicatynge of the Lorde against the aultare in Bethel, and against all the houses of hyllaultares whiche are in the cyties of Samarie, shall come to passe.

How be it for all that, Jeroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned awaye and made of the lowest of the people preestes of the hyllaultares. Who so euer wolde, he fylled their handes, and they became preestes of the hyllaultares. And this wynge was syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroy it and to put it awaye from of the face of the earthe.

¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahiah, & he the prophesyeth the death of her childe and the destruction of the Realme. Jeroboam dyeth. Sesak kyng of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth. Abiam succedeth hym.

CAP. XIIII.

AT that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam sayd vn to his wyfe: aryse and chaunge thyne apparell, that thou be not knowen to be thy wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Silob. For there is Ahiah the Prophete, which tolde me *that I shoulde be kynge ouer this people. *And take with the ten loues and cracknelles and a cruse of hony, and goo to him: for he will tell the what shall come of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose and went to Silob, and came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahiah could not se, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age.

*xiii.Reg.xi.f

And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahiah: Behold, the wyfe of Jeroboam commeth, to question with the about her sonne which is sicke. This wyfe and this wyfe aunswere her. And when she came, she feyned her self to be an other woman. But when Ahiah herde the sounde of her fete as she came to the wye, he sayde: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be an other? I am sent to the an heuy messenger. Go and tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell: for as moch as I auaunced the aboue the comen people, & made the prince ouer my people Israell, and dyd plucke the kyngdome away from ℣ house of David and gaue it the: and thou hast not bene as was my seruaunt Dauid, who kepte my commaundmentes and folowed me with al his hert, to do ℣ only which semeth right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl aboue all that were before the, and hast gone and made the other godes and ymages, of metall to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy backe: therfore beholde I wyll bryngе euyll vpon ℣ house of Jeroboam, and will stryke feame Jeroboam all that pisseth against the wall, and what so euer is in pryson or forsaken in Israel, and will take awaye the remnaunt of the house of Jeroboam, as men take away a wong hyll, tyll it be consumed. *And who so euer of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, dym shall the wogges eate, and him that dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hathe sayde it, aryse and get the to thyne house, and as sone as thy fote entereth the cyte, the chylde shall dye. Yowe be that all Israell shall mourne him and bury him, for this only of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in him there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer the Lorde shal stere him vp a kynge ouer Israel who shall destroy the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that that is now in hande? And the Lorde shall smyte Israell, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and will wede Israel out of this good lande which he gaue to their fathers, and wyll scatter theym beyonde Euphrates, because they haue made theym groues to angre the Lorde. And he wyl geue Israell vp, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherwith he dyd synne, & made Israell synne also.

*xiii.Reg.xvi.a
xiiii.Reg.xxi.c

And Jeroboams wyfe arose and departed, & and went to Therzah, and by that she was come to the thresholde of the wze, the lade was dede. And all Israel buryed him and lamented him, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Ahiah the Prophete. The rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell. And the dayes which Jeroboam raygned, were two & twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne raygned in his stede. f

And Rehoboam the son of Salomon reygned in Juda, and was. xli. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned. xvij. yere in Jerusalem the cyte which the Lorde had chosen out of all ℣ trybes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde and angred him aboue all that their fathers dyd, with their synne which they synned. For they also made them hyllaultars and Imagys and groues in euery hyghe hyll, and vnder euery grene tre. And there was a slues of male childre in the lande, and they dyd accordinge to all the abhominacions of the Heythen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the childre of Israel. And the fyft yere of kynge Rehoboā came Sysack kynge of Egypt vp to Jerusalem, & toke awaye the treasure of the house of the Lorde and the treasure of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke away ℣ shyldes of golde which Salomō made. In whose stede kynge Rehoboam made bra'en shyldes, and put them in the keping of the captayns of the garde, which wayted at the dore of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went into the house of the Lorde, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne to the garde chambre.

The rest of the Actes of kynge Rehoboam and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Actes of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the dayes. And Rehoboam sayde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in ℣ cyte of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abia his sonne raygned in his place.

¶ Wycked Abiam raygneth ouer Juda, and dyeth wyfe Asa succedeth in his rowme. The battayle betwene Asa and Baasa. Josaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa kylleth Nadab.

the Lord his God gaue him a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set vp his sonne after him, to edifie Jerusalem. Because that Dauid dyd ℣ thinge which pleased the Lorde, and tourned frome nothinge that he commaunded him al the dayes of his lyfe, * saue only in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the actes of Abiam and all ℣ he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles that were wone in the dayes of the kynges of Jude. And there was warre betwene Abiā and Jeroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cyte of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xx. yere of Jeroboam kynge of Israel began Asa to raygne ouer Juda, and ruled in Jerusalem. xli. yere. Whose mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abesalom. And Asa dyd that semed right in the eyen of the Lord, lyke Dauid his father. And he made the dues of males departe the lande, and put away all the Idolles that his fathers had made. And there to he put downe Maacah his mother kome beryng rule, because she had made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed the Idoll and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hyllaulters. Nevertheles Asas herte was hole with the Lorde all his dayes. And he brought in, that his father had dedicat, and the thinges halowed vnto the house of the Lorde, syluer, gold and Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel went vp against Juda, and buylt Ramah, because he wolde let none of Asas people kynge of Juda, go in ne out. Then Asa toke all the syluer and gold that was left in the treasure of the house of ℣ Lorde, & all the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruauntes, & sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabremon ℣ sonne of Hezion kynge of Syria that dwelte at Damasco, sayeng: there is a bonde betwene the and me, as was betwene thy father and myne. Therfore I sende the both golde & syluer for a gyfte, that thou goo and breake the bonde betwene the and Baasa kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent the captaines of the hostes which he had against the cyties of Israel, and smote Aion, Dan, Abel called Beth Maacah and all Cenereth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa herde that, he left buylding of Ramah and dwelt in Therzah. Then kynge Asa made Proclamation thorowoute all Juda, ℣ none shulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and ℣ tymber wherwith Baasa had buylt, and kynge Asa buylt therwith Gabaah in Benjamin and Maspha. The rest of all the dedes of Asa, and of all his myght, and of all his procedinges, and the cytes which he buylt, are written in the Chronicles of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. Neuertheles in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cyte of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his rowme. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam began to raygne ouer Israel the seconde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned ouer Israel two yere. And he did euyll in the sight of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the son of Ahiah of the house of Jachar conspired against him, and slew him at Gebethon a cyte of the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israell laye at seage before Gebethon. And it was ℣ thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, when Baasa slew him, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge, he slew al the house of Jeroboam and lefte him naught that brethed, vntyll he had vtterly destroyed him, agreinge vnto the sayenge of the Lorde which he spake by his seruaunte Ahiah the Silonite, for the synne of Jeroboam wherwith he synned and made Israel synne, and for his angreyng that he angred the Lorde God of Israel. The rest of the dedes of Nadab, and all his procedinges, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa, kynge of Israell, all their dayes.

Nadab.

In the thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah began to raygne ouer all Israell in Therzah, and continued. xxiiij. yere. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synne, wherwith he made Israel synne.

¶ Jehu prophesieth agaynste Baasa, of whome he is slayne. Ela succedeth Baasa. Zamri kylleth his mayster Ela, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He is reiect and Zamri choken. Zamri burneth hym selfe and his house. Wycked Achab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

CAP. I. XVI.

THen came the worde of the Lorde to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynste Baasa, sayenge: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust and made the cappytayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam and hast made my people Israel synne, to angreye me with theyr synne: I wyl make cleane riddaūce of Baasa and of all his house, and wyll make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat. * And he that dyeth of Baasa in the cyte, him shall wogges eate: and dim that dyeth in the felde, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

The rest of the dedes of Baasa, and what he dyd, and his warres, are wrytten in ℣ boke of the Hystories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in Therzah. And Ela his sonne raigned in his stede. And by the hande of the Prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lord came against Baasa, & against his house because of all the wickednesse that he dyd in the the sight of the Lorde, in angerynge hym with the workes of his handes, ꝓ he shuld be lyke the house of Ieroboam, because he had kylled Nabat.

The xxbi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Ela the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thyrzah, and contynued two yere. And his seruaunte Zamri capitayne of halfe his charettes, conspired agaynste him, as he was in Thyrzah drynckynge of stronge drynche, in the house of Arza stewarde of his house in Thyrzah. And Zamri came and smote hym and kylled hym the .xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge and sate on his seate he slue all the house of Baasa and left not a pysser agaynst the wall.

And thereto he slue all his kynne and frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake to Baasa thorow Iehu ꝓphete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Ela his sonne, wherewith they synned and made Israell synne, to angre the Lorde of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Ela and all he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The. xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Zamri raygned. vij. dayes in Thyrzah, the people beseygynge Gebethon a cyte of the Philistines. And when the people that lay in ꝓ saye herde saye how Zamri had conspired, & how he had slayne the kynge also: then all Israel made Amri the capitayn of the men of warre kynge, that same daye ouer Israel euen in the host. And Amri departed frome Gebethon, & all Israel with him, and besieged Thyrzah. And when Zamri sawe that the cyte must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of ꝓ kynges house, & set the kynges house a fyre vpon him selfe, and there dyed, for his synnes which he found in wynge wyckednesse in ꝓ sight of the Lorde, and for walkynge in the waye of Ieroboam and in his synnes which he dyd and made Israel synne. The rest of the dedes of Zamri and the treason that he wrought, are written in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. Moreouer that same season was Israel deuyded in two ayne, for halfe the people folowed Thamri the sonne of Gineth, to make him kynge, and the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynst the that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth. And so Thebni dyed and Amri raygned.

The .xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and he raygned twelue yere in Thyrzah. Sixe yere he raygned in Samaria, and bought the hill of Samaria of two talentes of syluer, and buylte in the hill, & called the name of the cyte which he had buylt after the name of Semer the lorde of the hill. And Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Lorde worse then all that were before him, and walked in all the waies of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synne wherewith he made Israel synne, to angre the Lorde God of Israell with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he dyd, and his battels that he fought, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri slept with his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, & Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The .xxxij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Achab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria. xxij. yere. And he displeased the Lorde aboue all ꝓ were before him. For it semed him a lyght thinge to walke in the synne of Ieroboam. But toke Iezabel the doughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and went and serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he erected an aultar to Baal in the house of Baal which he had made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and proceded further in angerynge the Lorde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before him.

In his dayes Hiel of Bethel buylt Iericho. And in rest him he ma his eldest sonne when he layde the foundacion, and his youngest sonne when he set vp the gates, agreynge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake by Iosua the sonne of Nun.

¶ Eliah is nourished and fedde of Rauens, and is sent to the woman of Sarephtha whose child he rayseth to lyfe.

CAPI. XVII

AND Eliah the Thesbite which was of the enhabitaunces of Galaad, sayd vnto Achab: * as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stand, there shalbe neyther dewe nor rayne these yeres, but I appoint it. And the worde of God came vnto him, sayenge: get the hence and turne the eastwarde, and hyde thy selfe in the brooke Carith, that lyeth before Iordan: drinke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the rauens to fede the there. And he went and dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde: he went & dwelt by the brooke Carith that lyeth before Iordan. And the rauens brought him breed and flesshe euery morninge and euery euenynge, and he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while, that the brooke dryed vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earthe. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto him sayenge: aryse, and get the to Sarephtha a cyte of Sidon, & dwell there. Beholde I haue commaunded a wydowe there to susteyne the. And he arose & went to Sarephtha. And when he came to the gate of the cyte, there was a wydowe there gatheringe stickes. And he called to her & sayd * fet me I praye the, a lytle water in a dysshe that I maye drinke. And as she went to fet, he cryed to her and sayde: bringe me I praye the, a morsell of bred in thyne hande. And she answered: as surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, I haue no bred, but euen an handfull of meale in a pitcher, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And lo, I haue gathered a fewe stickes for me to go and bake it for me and my sonne, that we may eate it and then dye. And Eliah sayd vnto her: feare not, but go and do as thou hast sayde: and make me therof a lytle cake first of all, and bringe it out to me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayth ꝓ Lorde God of Israell: the pytcher of Meele shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy oyle cruse be without oyle, tyl the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she went and did as Eliah bad. And she and he and her house dyd eat a good space, & ꝓ pytcher of Meele was not, neyther was the oyle cruse without oyle according to the worde of the Lorde whi the he spake thorowe Eliah. And after these thynges, it happened that the son of ꝓ wyfe of the house fell sicke. And his sickenesse was so sore, that there was no breth left in him. Then sayde the vnto Eliah, What haue I to do with the, O thou man of God? art thou come vnto me, that my syn should be thought on, and my sonne slayne? And Eliah sayd vnto her: gyue me thy sonne. And he toke him out of her lappe and caryed him vp into a lofte where he laye, and layde him vpon his owne bed, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so cruell vnto the mywwe with whome I sotourne, ꝓ thou hast slayne her sonne? * And he stretched him selfe vpon the childe thre tymes, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, let the childes soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Eliah, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne and he reuyued. And Eliah toke ꝓ boye & broughte him owne out of the chambre into the house and deliuered him vnto his mother and sayde: se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliah: Now I know thou art Gods man, & that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouthe, is truthe.

¶ Eliah is sent to Achab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and saueth them. Baall cannot heare although the people crye very loude. Eliah kylleth all Baals Prophets: and after obtayneth rayne.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND at last the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the third yere sayeng: go shew thy selfe vnto Achab, that I may send rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliah wente to shewe him selfe vnto Achab, for there was a great famyshement in Samaria. Wherfore Achab called Abdiah ꝓ gouernour of his house which feared God greatly: in so moche that when Iezabel destroyed the Lordes prophetes he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hid them, fyfty in one caue, and fyfty in an other and prouyded bred and water for them. And Achab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorow the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brokes, to se whether any grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the Mules, that we destroy not ꝓ beastes. So they dyuyded the land betwene the to walke thorowe. Achab went one waye by him selfe, and Abdiah went an other by him selfe. And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the waye, that Eliah met him. And Abdiah knewe him, and fell on his face, and sayde: Arte not thou my Lorde Eliah? And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tell Achab that Eliah is here. And the other answered: What haue I synned, that thou woldest deliuer me into the hande of Achab, to slay me? As surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacion ne kyngdome whether my Lorde hath not sent to seke the. And when they sayd thou wast not there he toke an othe of the kyngdome and nacion, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: Go tell thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone frome the, the spirite of ꝓ Lorde shall cary the awaye whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynd the, he shall slay me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue feared ꝓ Lorde frome my youth. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Iezabel slewe the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I hyd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfty in one caue and as many in an other, and prouyded them bred & water? And yet now thou sayest, go shew thy Lorde, that Eliah is here to the intent he myght slay me. Then Eliah sayde: as truely as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whome I stande: I will shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. And therupon Abdiah went to Achab and told him. And Achab went against Eliah. And when Achab saw Eliah, he sayde vnto him: Arte thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayde: it is not I that trouble Israel, but thou & thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lord and haue folowed Baal. But now sende and gather me all Israel vnto mount Carmell, & the Prophetes of Baal foure hundred & fyfty and the Prophetes of the groues foure hundred, which eat of Iezabels table. And Achab sent for all the children of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmel.

And Eliah came vnto all the people & sayd: Why halt ye betwene two opinions? If the Lorde be very God: folow him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayde Eliah vnto the people: I only remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred and fyfty. Let two oxen be gyuen vs, and let them chose the one, and cut him in peces and laye him on wood, and put no fyre vnder, And I will dresse the other and put him on wood, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, and I will call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the very God.

* And all the people sayde: It is well spoken. Then sayd Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an oxe and dresse him first (for ye are manye) and call on the name of youre God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke ꝓ oxe that was gyuen them and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning to none, sayenge: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor answere. And they lept aboute the aultare that they had made. And at none Eliah mocked them & sayde: Cal lowde (for he is a God: but he is talkynge or pur-saluinge his enemyes, or happily he sleepeth) that he maye awake. And they cryed aloude & cut them selues (as their maner was) with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. But when mydday was passed, and they hadde played the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offre / and yet was neither voyce, ne answere, ne anye that regarded them. Eliah sayd to all the folke / come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken, * and toke .xij. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelue tribes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whom the worde of the Lorde came, saying: Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde aboute the aulter, hable to receyue two peckes of corne / and he put the wod in order, and hewed the ore in peces, and put him on the wodde, and sayde / fyll foure pytchers with water, and poure it on the sacrifice and on the wodde. And he sayd / do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayd: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aulter / and the gutter was full of water also. So when offeryng tyme was come, Eliah the Prophete went to and sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel / let it be knowen this daye, that thou arte the God of Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte / and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me, O Lorde, heare me / that this people maye knowe that thou arte the God / and that thou hast tourned their hertes backwarde. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifice, and the wodde, and the stones, and the duste / and lycked vp the water that was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fel on their faces and sayd, the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah vnto them, laye handes on the Prophetes of Baal, lett not one of them escape. And when they had taken them Eliah brought them downe vnto the brooke Kilon, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde vnto Achab, get the vp and eate and drynche, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And whē Achab went vp to eate and to drynche / Eliah went vp to the toppe of mount Carmel, * and bowed him selfe to the earthe, and put his face betwene his knees / and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp and loke towarde the see. And he went vp and loked, and sayd: there is nothynge. And he sayd go agayn seuen tymes. And the seuenth tyme he sayde: behold, there ariseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the paulme of a mannes hand. Then he sayde: goo and saye to Achab, putte the horsses in the charete, and get the downe / the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle heuen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greate rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrahel. and the hāde o' the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyrded vp his loynes and ranne before Achab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

¶ Eliah flyenge from Jezabel is nourysshed of the aungell of God. He complayneth that he is left alone, and that they seke his lyfe to. He is commanded to annoynt Hazahel, Jehu, and Eliseus.

CAPI. XIX.

AND Achab tolde Jezabell, all that Eliah had done, and all togyther, howe he had slayne the Prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabell sente a messenger vnto Eliah, sayenge: * so doo God to me, and so thereto, but yf I make thy soule lyke one of theyrs, by to morow this tyme: when he sawe that, he arose and went for his lyfe, and came to Berlabe in Juda, and lefte his seruaunte there. And he went a dayes iourneye into the wyldernesse / and when he was come, sat vnder a Juniper tree / and prayed for his soule, that he myght dye, and sayde: * it is nowe ynough, O Lord, take my soule / for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayde vnto him: aryse and eate. And he loked aboute hym: and loo there was an Imbre cake, and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and dranke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayd: aryse and eate, for thou haste a longe iourneye to goo. And he arose and dyd eate and dyncke, and went in the strengthe of that meat fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes vnto Horeb the mounte of God, and entred there in to a caue, and lodged there all nyght.

And then the worde of the Lorde came to him and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben thorow angry for the Lord God of hostes sake. For * childre of Israel haue forsaken thy couenaunt, and haue broke downe thyne aulters, and slayne the Prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte / and they seke my soule to haue it. And he sayd: come oute and stande before the Lorde. And beholde, the Lorde went by, and a myghtye stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before him / but the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde, came an erthquake / but the Lord was not in the erthquake. And after the erthquake came fyre / but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small styll voyce. And when Eliah herde it, he couered his face with his mantell / and wente oute and stode in the mouthe of the caue. And loo, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben vehemently angry for the Lord God of hostes sake, because the childre of Israell haue forsaken thyne appoyntmēt and haue cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy Prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am left. and they seke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayde vnto him / goo and tourne thy waye to the wyldernesse of Damasco, and go and anoynt Hazahel to be kynge of Syria. And Jehu the sonne of Namsi, annoynt to be kynge ouer Israel. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat of Abel Mehulah annoynte to be Prophete in thy rowme. And who so escapeth the swerde of Hazael, him shall Jehu slaye / and yf any man escape the swerde of Jehu, him shall Eliseus slaye. And yet I haue left me seuen thousande in Israel, of which neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal nor kissed him with his mouth.

* iii. Reg xix. b

And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowynge with twelue yoke of oxen before him, & he with the twelfe. And Eliah went to him and cast his mantell vpon him. And he left the oxen and ran after Eliah and sayde: let me I prayе the, kysse my father and mother, and then I will folowe the. And he sayde to him: go backe agayn, for what haue I wrought to the? And he went backe agayn from him, and toke a yocke of oxen and slewe them, and dressed the flesh with the instrumentes of the oxen, and gaue it the people, & they dyd eate. And then he arose and went after Eliah and ministred vnto him.

¶ The fyrste and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPI. XX.

AND Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his host togyther, and. xxxij. kynges with him, with horse and charet: and went vp and besieged Samaria and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Achab kynge of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus sayth Benhadad, Thy syluer & thy golde is myne, and the best of thy wyues, and the best of thy children be myne. And the king of Israel answered and sayde: my Lorde king according to thy sayeng, I am thyne with al I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad. I haue ther for sent vnto the, sayeng: delyuer me thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy children. Or els I will sende my seruauntes vnto the by to morow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye with them. Then the kynge of Israell sent for the elders of the lande and sayde: take hede I prayе you, & knowe this felowe goeth about myschiefe. For he sente vnto me, for my wyues and my children, and my syluer and my golde: and I denyed him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: herken not vnto him nor consent. Wherevpon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sent for the first tyme, I will do: but this requeste I maye not do. And the messengers departed & brought him worde. Yet Benhadad sent vnto him and sayde: thus do the goddes to me and so thereto, yf the dust of Samaria be ynoughe for all the people I folowe me, that euery man may haue an handfull. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayde: Tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse boste him selfe, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad herde that answere as he and the kynges were drynckinge in the pauylions, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put your selfes in araye. And they put them selues in araye against the cytie. And beholde there came a Prophete vnto Achab kynge of Israel and sayd to him: Thus sayth the Lorde. Seist thou all this great multitude? Beholde, I will deliuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayst knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayde, by whome? And he sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the gouernours men of the shires. And Achab sayde: who shal stirre vp batayle? And he sayde, thou. Then he nombred the men of the gouernours of the shires: and they were two hundred .xxxij. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the children of Israel were seuen thousande. And they marched forwarde at none when Benhadad was a drynkynge stronge drinke in the pauylyons with the .xxxij. kynges that holp him. And the men of the rulers of the shires went out first. And Benhadad sent forthe, & they shewed hym sayenge: There come men from Samaria. And he sayde: yf they come to make a peax, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the shyres of the shires were come out of the cytie and the host after them, they slew euery one of them his enemy that stode in his waye. And the Sirians fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria escaped on a horsse with his horsemen. And the kynge of Israell went out and smote horsse and charet, & slewe a great slaughter of the Sirians.

Then there came a Prophete to the kynge of Israell, and sayde to hym: Go forthe and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou wilt: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Syria will come against the agayn. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Syria to him / The goddes of the hylles are their goddes, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne and vndoubtedly we shall haue the better of them. And this do / take the kynges away euery man out of his place, & put Dukes in their rowmes. And furnysh the a new host, lyke the host that thou hast lost, and horsse for horsse, & charet for charet, and let vs fight with them in the playne, and for a wager, we get the better of the. And the kynge herkened vnto their counsell and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombred the Sirians and went vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the children of Israel were nombred and prouyded of vytayle, and went against them, and pytched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kydes but the Sirians spiled the countreye. Then there came a man of God and sayde vnto the kynge of Israell, thus sayth the Lorde. Because the Sirians saye, that the Lorde is but a God of the hilles, & not God of the valeys / therfore will I delyuer all this great multitude into thyne hāde & ye may knowe that I am the Lorde. And they pytched one ouer against the other. vij. dayes, and the seuenth day they ioyned batayle. And the childre of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande foote men in one daye. And the rest fled to Aphek into the cytie. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvij. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde saye, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth about our loynes, and ropes about our heddes, and go out to the kyng of Israel: happely he will saue thy lyfe. So they gyrded sacke clothe about their loynes, & put ropes about their heddes, and went out to the kynge of Israel and sayde: thy seruaute Benhadad sayth, I praye the let me lyue. And he sayde: Is he yet a lyue? what he is my brother. And they toke that wo?de for good lucke and hastely caught it out of his mouth & sayd Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and bringe him. And Benhadad came out to him, and the other toke him vp in to the charet. And Benhadad sayde: the cyties whiche my father toke fro?me thy father, I will restore agayn. And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make a leage with the & send the awaye. And so made a leage with him and sent him awaye.

Then a certeyn man of the childre of the prophetes sayd vnto his felow with the word of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wolde not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: behold, as sone as thou arte departed fro?me me a Lyon shal slay the. And as sone as he was departed fro?me him, * a Lyon found him & slew him. Then he founde an other mā and sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good stroke and wou?nded him. And the Prophete went wo?th and wayted for the kynge vp the waye and dyed a kercheefe ouer his eyes, and put him selfe ouer knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him and sayde: thy seruaunt went out in the myddes of the battel. And lo, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me and sayde: kepe thou this man. And yf he be myssed, thy lyfe shall goo for his, o?r els thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to w, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou hast fou?ned it thy selfe.

And he hasted and vnfolded the kercheefe awaye fro?mme his eyes: and the kynge of Israel knew him, that he was of the Prophetes. And he sayd vnto the kyng, thus sayth the Lord because thou hast let go a mā & ought to haue dyed, thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kynge of Israell went to his house al sad & hevy hevy, & came into Samaria ¶ Iezabel commaundeth to kyll Naboth, for the vynеyard that he refused to sell Achab. Helias reproueth Achab, and he repenteth.

CAPI. XXI

After these thinges were wro?t, it chanced that Naboth the Iezraelite had a vyneyarde in Iezrahel hard by the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth sayenge: let me haue thy vyneyarde, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lyeth so nyghe my house: & I will giue the a better vyneyarde for it: or yf it playse the I will giue the the wo?rthe of it in syluer. But Naboth sayde to Achab: the Lorde forbyd that I?rome me, that I should giue the enheritaūce of my fathers vnto the. Then wente Achab vnto his house heuyey & angery and euyll apayde, because of the wo?des which Naboth the Iezraelite had spoke to him sayenge: I will not giue to the the heritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him down vpō his bed, and turned away his face and wolde eate no meat.

Then Iezabel his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto him: Why art thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meat? And he sayde vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth the Iezraelite, and sayde vnto him: Giue me thy vyneyarde for syluer, o?r els yf thou wilt, I will giue the an other vyneyarde for it. And he sayde: I will not giue the my vyneyarde.

Then sayde Iezabell his wyfe vnto him: What a goodly kyngdome were thou now in make in Israel? vp and eat meat, and let thine hert be merye, for I will giue the the vyneyarde of Naboth the Iezraelite. Thē she wro?te letters in Achabs name & sealed it with his sele, and sent it vnto the elders and chefe men of his cytie that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wro?te in the letters sayeng: proclayme fastinge and set Naboth on hyghe among the people, and set two naughty felowes before him, and let them testify against him sayenge: thou hast blasphemed both God & the king. And vpon that cary him out and stone him to death.

And the elders and nobles of his cytie, which dwelt in his cytie, dyd as Iezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was written in the letter which she had sent vnto them. They proclaymed fasting, and set Naboth an hyghe among the people, and there came in two worthy persons and sate before him. And the two deuelysh persons witnessed against him both before the people sayenge. Naboth hath curse God and the kynge. * And vpon that they caryed him out of the cytie and stoned him with stones to deth. And then they sent to Iezabel sayenge: Naboth is stoned to deth. And when Iezabel herde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Achab: aryse and take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth the Iezrahelite, which he denyed to giue the for syluer, for Naboth is not a lyue, but deed. And when Achab herde that Naboth was deed, he rose to go wonne to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Iezrahelite, to take possession of it.

And the wo?rde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thesbite sayeng: aryse and go wonne to mete Achab kyng of Israel which is in Samaria. Beholde, he is in the vyneyarde of Naboth: for he is gone wonne thyther, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde, thou hast kylled & moreouer gotten possession. And saye after that vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall dogges lappe euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayde to Eliah: hast thou found me thyne enemy at any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art vtterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lord. Behold, I will bringe euyll vpon the, and will make cleane vtterance of thyne sede, and will destroy of Achab all that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut vp and forthest in Israel: & will make thyne house, lyke the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, because thou hast prouoked me to angre, & made Israel synne.

And also against Iezabel came the wo?rde of the Lorde, sayenge: dogges shall eat Iezabel vnder the walles of Iezrahel. And he that dyeth of Achab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the feldes, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Achab, that was so vtterly appointed to worke wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord, and that because Iezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde. And therfore he dyd exceadynge abominably, in folowinge Ymages, in all thinges lyke as dyd the Amorites whiche the Lorde cast out before the childre of Israel.

When Achab herde those wo?rdes, * he rent his clothes and put sackecloth about his flesh and fasted, and lay in sacke and went confort lesse. And the wo?rde of the Lord came to Eliah the Thesbite sayenge: seyst thou how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so humbleth him selfe before me, I will not bring the euyll in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes I will bringe euyll vpon his house.

¶ Foure hundred false Prophetes do counsell Achab and Iosaphat to warre against Ramoth: only Micheah prophesyeth the truth, for whiche he is smytten and put in prysō.

CAP. XXII

And they continued thre yere without warre betwene Syria and Israel. * And the third yere Iosaphat kynge of Juda came to the kynge of Israell. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, know ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we sit still and take it not out of the handes of the kynge of Syria? And he sayd vnto Iosaphat: wilt thou go with me to batayle, to Ramoth in Galaad: And Iosaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: * I will be as thou art, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my hosses as thyne.

And Iosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske counsell I praye the of the Lord to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of the Prophetes togither, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, o?r be still? And they sayde, go / for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Iosaphat sayde: is there not one Prophet of the Lordes here mo?re, that we might enquire of him? And the kynge of Israel sayde to Iosaphat: there is yet one, by whom we may aske counsel of the Lorde, one Micheah the sonne of Iemlah But I hate him: for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euyll. And Iosaphat sayd: let not the kynge say so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlayns and sayd: fet Micheah the sonne of Iemlah hyther atones. And the kynge of Israel and Iosaphat the kynge of Juda sat eyther in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voyde place besyde the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyenge before them. And Zedechiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron and sayd, thus sayeth the Lord: with these hornes thou shalt wynowe the Syrians vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesyed euen so, sayenge: goo to Ramoth in Galaad and prosperе, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the messenger that was gone to call Micheah, sayde vnto him / se, the wo?rdes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one voyce / let thy wo?rdes I praye the, be lyke the wo?rdes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Micheah sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that will I speake. And whē he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde to him / Micheah shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, o?r shall we be still? And he sayde vnto him, * go and prosperе, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayd vnto him, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as shepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord sayde / those haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peax. Then sayd the kynge of Israel to Iosaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde Prophesye no good vnto me, but euyll? And Micheah sayd, Heare therfore the wo?rde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and al the company of heauen standinge about him, on his ryght hād and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: * Who shal deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forthe a spyrite & stode before the Lorde & sayd / I will deceyue him. And the Lorde sayd, wherewith? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a false spyrite in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & so euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lying spyrite in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spoke euyll towarde the.

Then Zedechiah the sonne of Canaanah wet to and smote Micheah on the cheke, and sayde / Howe is the spyrite of the Lorde gone fro?me me, to speake in the? And Micheah sayde: Beholde, thou shalte se in that daye, when thou shalt go frome chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde Take Micheah and cary him backe agayn vn to Amon the gouerner of the cytie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kynge. Put ye this felowe in prison and fede him with bred and water straytly, tyll I returne in peax. Then Micheah sayde, yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde, herken ye people euerye one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Josaphat ꝑ kynge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat I will chaunge myne apparell and get me to warre: but put thou on thyne owne apparel. And the kynge of Israel chaunged his raymēt and went to battel also. But the kyng of Syria had commanded the Capitaynes of his chariottes of which he had. xxij. sayenge: fighte neyther with small nor greate, saue with the kynge of Israel only. And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therfore turned to him to fighte. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the capitaynes of ꝑ charettes sawe he was not the kynge of Israell, they turned backe frome him. And a certayne man dyrwe a bowe vnwares, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of his habergelle. Wherfore the kynge sayde vnto the dryuer of his charet, turne thy hande and cary me forth of the hoste, for I am hurt. And the feld encreased that daye, and the kynge continued in his charet before the Syrians, and dyed about nyght. And the blode ranne oute of the wounde into the bottome of the charet. And there went a Proclamation throwe out the hoste after the sonne was downe, sayenge: let euery man repaire to his cytie and to his owne countreye. And when the kyng of Israel was ded, they came to Samaria and buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, the dogges lycked vp his blode, and harlottes washed him accordinge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake. The rest of the dedes of Achab, and all he dyd, and the Ivory house which he made, and the cyties that he buylt, are written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Achab was layde to reste with his fathers, Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his steade.

Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Juda, the fourth yere of Achab kynge of Israell, and was. xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Azubah the dughter of Salathi. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa his father and bowed not therfrome, but dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onely he dyd not put the hyanlters out of the waye: for the people offerde burnt their sacrifices yet, in the hyanltiers. And he had peax with the kynge of Israel.

The rest of the dedes of Josaphat, and the myght that he dyd, and how he warred, are written in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And also the remnaūt of the dogge boyes, whyche remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. There was then no kynge in Edom, the kyng was but a deputie. And Josaphat made shyppes in the se, to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not: for the shyppes brake at Asiongaber. Then sayde Ohoziah the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruaūtes go with thyne in the shyppes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of David his father: ¶

Jehoram his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Ohoziah is hurt, and asketh counsell of Belzebub howe he may come by health. The capitaynes ouer fyfty with theyr soudiars are burnt, by the prayer of Elyah. Ohoziah is reygned of Jehoah, and dieth and Jehoram his brother succedeth hym.

CAPL. I.

1 Ohoziah the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the. xvij yere of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and was kynge ouer Israel two yeres, and dyd euyll in the sight of ꝑ Lorde and walked in the waye of his father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israell to synne. And he serued Baal and bowed him selfe to him, and angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge, as dyd his father.

And the Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Achab.

And Ohoziah fell throwe a latteise wyndowe out of an vpper chambre that he had in Samaria, and fell sicke. Wherfore he sent messengers, sayenge vnto them: Go and enquyre of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shal recouer of this disease, or no. But the angell of the Lorde spake to Elyah the Thesbite, aryse and go against the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfore, thus sayth the Lorde: Thou shalt not come downe frome the bed whereon thou lyest, but shalte dye. And Elyah departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto Ohoziah. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye thus come agayne? And they sayd vnto him, there came a man against vs and sayd vnto vs? go and returne vnto the kynge that sent you, and shewe vnto him. Thus sayth ꝑ Lorde. Is there no God in Israell, that thou sendest to enquire of Belzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thou shalte not come downe frome the bed whereon thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he sayd vnto them: What maner man was that whiche met you and tolde you these wordes? And they sayd vnto him: it was an heary man and gyrde with a gyrdle of a skynne about his loynes. And he sayde vnto them: it is Elyah the Thesbite.

Then the kynge sent vnto him a capitayne ouer fyfty with his fifty that were vnder him. And when the captayne was come to him, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And ꝑ capitayne sayde vnto him: ✠ man of God, the kynge bydden the come downe. And Elyah answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the fifty, If I be a man of God, fyre come downe frome heauen and consume the and thy fifty. ✠ And there came fyre downe frome heauen ꝑ ueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the, and so they went to Iericho. And the children of the Prophetes that were at Iericho came to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: arte thou not ware that the Lorde wil take awaye thy master frome the this day? And he answered: I know it also, holde your peace. And Eliah sayde to hym: tarye I pray the here, for the Lorde hathe sent me to Iordan. But he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. And so they went both of them together. And fyftye men of the sonnes of the Prophetes went and stode in syght a farre of, as they two stode by Iordan.

And then Eliah toke his mantel & wrapt it together, and smote the water, and it diuided it selfe / parte one waye, and parte an other / and they two went ouer on the dry land. And as soone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus, aske what I shall do for the, ere I be taken awaye from the. And Eliseus sayde: let me haue thy spirite double in me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an harde thynge. Neuertheles if thou se me when I am taken awaye frome the, thou shalte haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walkynge and talkynge: beholde there came a charet of fire, and horses of fire, & put them asonder. And Eliah went vp in the whirlwynde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, the charet of Israel, and his charet man, but he sawe hym no more: and therfore toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peaces.

And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Iordans syde, and with the mantell of Eliah ſ fell from him, he smote the water, and sayd: where is the Lorde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smytten ſ water, it diuided parte this waye and parte that way: and Eliseus went ouer. And the children of the Prophetes of Iericho whiche sawe him a farre, sayd: the spirite of Eliah, doothe rest on Eliseus: and went agaynst him, and bowed to the erth vnto him. And they sayd vnto him se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fiftye lusty men: let them go and seke thy master, happly the spirite of the Lorde hath taken him vp & cast him vpon some mountayne, or in some valeye. And he sayd: sende not. Neuertheles yet they laye vpon him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: sende, and they sent fyftye men whiche sought him thre dayes and thre nyghtes / but found him not. And they came agayn to him, for he tarryed at Iericho. And he sayd to them dyd I not saye vnto you that ye shold not go? Then the men of Iericho sayde to Eliseus: beholde, the cite standeth pleasantly, as my Lorde seeth / but the water is naughte, and the grounde barayn. And he sayde: bringe me a newe cruse, and put salte therin. And they broughte it to him. And he went vnto the spryngе of the water, and cast the salte in thyther, and sayd, thus sayth the Lorde: I heale this water, there shal not come hencefoorth either deth, or barayne. And the water was healthsome euer after, according to the sayinge of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he went frome thence vp to Bethel. And as he was goynge in the waye / there came lytle laddes oute of the cyte, and mocked him, and sayd to him: goo vp thou balde heed / goo vp thou balde heed. And he turned backe, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two beares oute of the wodde, and tare .xlij. of the boyes. And he went frome thence to mounte Carmel, and frome thence went he agayne to Samaria.

¶ The kynges of Israel Iuda and Edom lacke water, when they shulde fyghte agaynst Moab: which they obtayne through the prayer of Elisa. The kynge of Moab leseth the tribe and almoste reyseth his sonne.

CAPI. III.

IEhoram the sonne of Achab bega to reygne vpon Israel in Samaria the eyghtene yere of Iosaphat kynge of Iuda, and continued twelue yere. And he wroughte euyll in the syghte of the Lorde / but not lyke his father or his mother / for he put awaye the ymage of Baal that his father had made. Neuertheles he continued in the synne of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne, and wronke not therfrom. And Mesa kynge of Moab, whiche was ryche of shepe / and was wont to render vnto the kynges of Israel an hundred thousand lambes, and as many rammes with ſ wolle) rebelled against the kyng of Israel after the deth of Achab. And kyng Ioram went out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel. And then went and sent to Iosaphat kyng of Iuda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me, wylt thou go with me agaynst the Moabites to battaile? And he sayd I wyll go, and wyll be as thou, my people shal be as thyne, and my horses as thyne. And he sayde what waye shall we go? And the other answered: the waye thorow the wyldernesse of Edom.

And the kynge of Israel toke his iourney with the kynge of Iuda and the kynge of Edom. And when they had compassed the way seuen dayes, there was no water for the host nor for the cattell that they had with them. Then sayde the kynge of Israel: Alas, the Lorde hathe called together these three kynges, to delyuer them in to handes of the Moabites. But Iosaphat sayde: Is there here no Prophete of the Lordes, that we maye enquyre of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Elias. And Iosaphat sayde: the wordes of the Lorde is with him. And so the kynge of Israel and Iosaphat, and the kyng of Edom went down to him.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynge of Israel:

what haue I to do with the? Get the to the Prophetes of thy father and of thy mother. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: Oh nay: but hathe the Lorde called these three kynges to delyuer them in to the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as truly as the Lorde of hoostes lyueth (in whose syghte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Iosaphat the kynge of Iuda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the. But nowe, bringe me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lord was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: make at this brokes heed, ditches and ditches agayne. For thus sayeth the Lorde: ye shall se neyther wynde nor rayne, and yet this broke shall be fylled with water that ye may drynke, and poure beestes and your cattell also. And this is yet but a small thyng in the syght of the Lorde. But he wyll gyue the Moabites in to youre handes also. And ye shall destroye all stronge townes, and all goodly cyties and shall fell all pleasaunt trees, & stop all the welles of water / and marre all good plottes of grounde with stones. And in the morninge about offeryng tyme, there came suche a water the waye from Edom, that the countrey was fylled with watre.

Now all the Moabites herde the kynges were come to fyght agaynst them, they assembled from the yongest that was able to put in harnesse, and so vpwarde / and warded in the borders. And they beinge vp early in the morning, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water farre of as red as blonde / they sayde: it is blonde, the kynges haue foughte together / and slayne an other. Now therfore ye Moabites, get you to the spoyle. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and layde on the Moabites / that they fled before them. And so they entred the lande and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cyties / and on euery good peece of lande euery man his stone and oute couered it / and stopte all the welles of water / and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones therof dyd remayne in the walles of dyrte, the kyngers wente vpon it and beten it.

And when the kynge of Moab sawe that the battayle was to stronge for hym, he toke with him seuen hundred men that drewe the sworde to haue broken vp vnto the kyng of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that shulde haue reigned in his stede, and offered him for a burntoffering vpon the walles. And there came so greate wrathe vpon Israell, that they departed from him, & returned to theyr owne lande.

¶ God graunteth a certayne poore woman oyle and by Elisa Eliseus obtayneth of God a chylde for his destruccion: which dyeth and is after raysed to lyfe. Geraza frome the maketh sweete the potage: and multiplyeth the loues.

CAPI. IIII.

A Nd there eyed a certeyn woman of the wyues of the children of the prophetes vnto Eliseus, sayinge: thy seruaunt my husbande is deed, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the man that lende vs money is come to set my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thyne handmayde hath nothynge at all in her house, saue a pytcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goo and borowe the in other places of all thy neyghbours, emptye vesselles and that not a fewe / and then goo and shutte the wore to the, and to thy sonnes / and poure out in to all those vesselles, and put the full alway aside. So she went from him, and shut the wore to her, and to her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured oute. And whē the vesselles were full, she sayde to her sonne: bringe yet a vessell. And he sayde: there is no mo. And then the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayd: goo and sell the oyle, and pay thy dettes. And lyue thou and thy children of the reste. And it befell on a daye, that Eliseus came to Sunam where was a ryche woman that toke him in for to eate breed. And as ofte as he came that waye, he tourned in thyther to eate breed. And she sayde vnto her husbande: se, I perceyue that this is an holye man of God, and commeth oftentymes by vs / let vs make him a chambre with a lytle walle, and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, & a candelstycke, that he maye tourne in thither when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thither, and tourned in to the chamber, and laye there. Then he sayde to Giezi his seruaunte: call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to him, saye to her I praye the: se, thou hast made all this prouision for vs, what shall we do for the? wouldest thou be spoken for to the kynge, or to the capitayne of thy hoste? And she sayd / I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayd: what is to be done for her? And Giezi sayd: Verily she hath no chylde, and her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the dore. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, yf thou lyuest, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayd: Oh naye my Lorde, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thyne handemayde. And the wyfe conceyued and bare a sonne that same season and houre that Eliseus had sayde vnto her. Genes. xviii.

And when the chylde was well waxen, it fel on a daye, that he went forth to his father to the haruestmen. And there he complayned to his father, my heed my heed. And his father sayde to a seruaunte, carye him to his mother. & he toke him and broughte him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she caryed him vp and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the wore to him, and went out, and came to her husband, and sayde: sende me one of the yonge men and an

an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylte thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone, nor Sabath day? And she sayd: be content. Then she sadled an asse, and sayde to her seruaunte: leade awaye, and make me not reale tyll I bydde the. So she wente and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And whe the man of God sawe her a farre, he sayde to Gi-hezi his seruaunt: se where our seruaunt cõmeth. Nowe go and mete her, & aske her whether it be all well with her, and with her husbande, and with the chylde. And she sayd: all is well. Then she went to the man of God vp to the hyll, and caughte him by the feete. And Gihezi wente to her to thrust her awaye. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vexed, and the Lorde hath hyd it from me, and hathe not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not saye, that thou wouldest not mocke me. Then he sayd to Gihezi: gyrde by thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyne hande, & get the hence. If any mã mete the, salute him not. And if any salute the, answere him not. And put my staffe vpon the boye. Now it fortuned the mother of the chylde sayde: as surely as the Lord liueth, and as thy soule liueth, I wyl not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed her. Gihezi went before them, and put the staffe vpon the ladde. But there was neither voyce nor feelynge. And then he went agayne agaynste his master and tolde him, sayinge: It hath not awaked the chylde.

When Eliseus was come to the house: beholde the boye was dead, and layde vpon his bed. And he went in and shut the doore to the chylde and him, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouthe on his mouthe, and his eyes on his eyes, & the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes, and spred him self vpon the ladde, that the fleshe of the chylde waxed warme. And wente agayne and walked ones vp and downe in the house, and then went vp and spred him self vpon him, and then the lad neesed seuen tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Gihezi and sayde. Call for this Sunamitte. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: take thy sonne. Then she wente and fell at his feete, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and tokc vp her sonne, and went forthe. When Eliseus was come to Galgal agayn, there was a derth in the land, and the children of the Prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruaunt: put on a great pot, and make potage for the children of the Prophetes. And one went out in to the felde to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wylde vyne, and gathered therof coloquintides his lappe full, and came and shred them in to the potte of potage, and wyste not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the potage they cryed oute and sayde: there is death in the potte, thou man of God, and coulde not eate therof. Then he sayde: bryng meale. And he caste it into the potte and sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man frome Baalsalisa and broughte the man of God breed of fyrste fruites, euen twentye loues of barleye, and newe corne in a clothe he hadde. And Eliseus bade put it before the people, that they myght eate. Then his minister sayde: what shall I laye this before an hundred men? And he sayde: set it before the people, and lette them eate. For thus sayethe the Lorde: They shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them, and they ate and lefte, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

¶ Naaman the Syrien is healed of his leprye. Gehezi is strycken with a leprosye because he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

CAPI. V.

NAaman capitayne of the kynges hoste of Syria was greate with his master, and well taken: for thorowe him the Lorde saued Syria. And he was an actyue mã of warre, but yet a leper. And there was a company of souldyours gone out of Syria a rouynge, and had broughte of the countreye of Israel a lytle mayde, which was with Naamans wyfe. And the damosell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a Prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde delyuer him of his leprye. And she went and tolde her husbande, sayinge thus and thus sayethe the mayde of the lande of Israel. And the kynge of Syria sayde: go thy waye, and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kynge of Israel. And he wente and tolde with him ten talentes of syluer, and sixe thousande peces of gold, and ten chaunge of garmentes. And he brought the letter to the kynge of Israel, contaynynge in effecte these wordes. When this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunt to the, that thou shuldest vnbynde him of his leprye. And when kynge of Israel had read the letter, he rente his clothes and sayde: am I God, to slaye & to make alyue that he shulde sende to me, to deliuer a man from his leprye. But consider I praye you and se, howe he pyketh quarelles with me. And when Eliseus the man of God had hearde how the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he sent to the kyng, sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rente thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe there is a Prophete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his horses and his charette, and stode at the dore of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sent a messanger, sayinge: go and washe the in Jordan seuen tymes, and thy fleshe shall be holle, and thou shalt be cleane. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayde: Beholde, I thought in my selfe, he wolde haue come out, and stande and call on the name of the Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place of the disease, and so take away the leprye. Are not Abana and Pharphar ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israel? Myghte I not rather wasshe in them and be clene? And so he turned and departed in angre. Then came his seruaũts, and talked with him and sayd. Father, yf the Prophete had byd the doone some greate thyng oughtest thou not to haue done it? How moche rather then sholdest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the onely, washe and be clene? Then he went downe & washed seuen tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bad, & his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the fleshe of a lytle boye, and he was clene.

Then he turned agayne to the man of God and all his company with him, and came and stode before him and sayd. Beholde, I knowe there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a rewarde of thy seruaunt. But he sayd: as surely as the Lord liueth, before whome I stande, I wyll receyue none. And the other wolde haue constrayned him to receyue, but he wolde not. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not, yet I praye the maye there not be gyuen to thy seruaunte the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunt wyll henceforth offre neyther burnt sacrifyce nor offerynge vnto anye other God, then to the Lord. But herin the Lord be mercyfull to thy seruaunte, for when my master goeth in to the house of Remon to worshyp there, he leaneth on myne hande, and I muste worshyp in the house of Remon, let the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayde to him: go in peace. And when he was departed frome him a furlonge of grounde, Gihezi the seruaunt of Eliseus the man of God, sayd: se, my master is so pytyful to this Syrien Naaman, that he wold not receyue of his hande that he offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyll runne after him & take somwhat. And so Gihezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him come runnynge after him, he came downe of the charet agaynst him, and sayd: is all well? And he sayd yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: lo, there be two ponge men come to me out of Ephraim of the children of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman sayd: auenture and take two talentes of syluer. And he constrayned him & bound two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, and delyuered them vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before him. So when he came to the toure, he toke it of their handes, and bestowed it in the house, and let the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before his master. And Eliseus sayde to him: whence commeth Gihezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunt wente no whither. And he sayd: went not myne herte with, when the man turned and came of his chariot agaynste the? Did not I knowe the tyme when thou went to receyue syluer, and to receyue garmentes, oliue trees, vyneyardes, oxen, sheepe, men seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes? The leprye therfore of Naaman cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seede for euer. And he went out from him a leper as whyte as snowe.

¶ Eliseus maketh yron to swymme aboue the water. The Syriens besege Israel, so that two women agree togyther to eate theyr owne children.

CAPI. VI.

THen sayd the children of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where we dwell with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euery man a pece of tymber, and buyld vs a place there to dwel in. And he sayd: go ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruauntes. And he sayd: I wyl, and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe woode. And as one was hewynge of a tree, the axe heed fell in to the water. And he cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lente me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut an helue and caste it in thyther, and made the axe heed swymme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched his hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Syria fought agaynst Israell, and toke counsell with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche, wyll I pytche. And the man of God sente vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sente to the place which the man of God tolde him & warned him of, and saued him self there more then ones or twyse. And the herte of the kynge of Syria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruauntes, and sayde to them: wyll ye not shewe me, who betwyxeth me to the kynge of Israell? And one of his seruauntes sayde: naye my lorde kynge: Eliseus the Prophete that is in Israel, he telleth the kynge of Israell, the wordes that thou speakest in thy priuye chamber. Then he sayde: goo and espye where he is, that I maye sende and fet hym. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: se, he is in Dothan. And he sente thyther horse and charettes, and a greate hoste. And they came thyther by nyghte, and enuyronned the towne aboute.

And when the seruaunt of the man of God rose vp earlye and was gone oute. Beholde, there was an hoste rounde aboute the towne with horses and charettes. Then sayd his seruauntes to him. Alas master, what shall we two? And he sayd: feare not, there are mo with vs then with them. And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Lorde open the eyen of the ponge man, and he sawe. And behold, the mountayne was full of horses and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the souldyours came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde and sayd. Smyte this people with blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, accordyng to the desyre of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto them: this is not the waye, nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I wyll bringe ye to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eli-

lens sayd: Lorde open theyr eyes, and let the se, and the Lorde opened theyr eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe them / ✳ shall I smyte them shall I smyte them father? And he sayd / smyte them not. But smyte those whō thou takest with thyne owne swerde / and with thyne owne bowe / but set breed and water before them, and let them eate and drynke and goo to theyr master. And he made greate ordinaunce before them. And when they hadde eaten and dronke, I sente them awaye, and they wente to theyr master. And so the souldiours of Syria came no more in to the lande of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate dearthe in Samaria. For they hadde besieged it, tyll an asses heed was worthe foure score sicles of syluer/and the fourthe parte of a Cab of doues donge worthe fyue sycles. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walles, there cryed a woman to him, sayinge/helpe my lorde kynge. And he sayde: Naye, the Lorde helpe the. But wherwith shulde I helpe the, with corne or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her/ what ayleth the? And she answered/ this woman here sayde to me, brynge thy sonne, and let vs eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morow. ✳And so we dressed my sonne and did eate hym. And I sayde to her an other daye/ brynge thy sonne, that we maye eate hym. But she hath hyd her sonne. When the kynge herde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walkyng on the walles. And when the people loked vpon him/lo, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayde God wo so and so to me, yf the heed of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat taerye on hym this daye. And as Eliseus sat in his house and the eldres with him, the kyng sente one for hym. But er the messenger came at him. he sayde to the eldres: Se you not howe the sonne of this murtherer hathe sente to take of myne heed? Se circumspecte therfore when the messenger commeth, and shut the doore, and thrust him backe therwith / for the sounde of his maisters fete followeth him. And whyle he yet talked with them: Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd beholde, this euyll is of the Lorde/what more shall we loke for of the Lorde?

¶ Eliseus Prophesyeth plentyousnesse of vytayles and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians flyne awaye no man beyng pursuynge them. The Lorde that wolde not be knowē, is knowē. Eliseus is troden to death.

CAPI. VII.

THen Eliseus sayde: heare the worde of the Lorde. for thus sayeth the Lorde, to morow this tyme a bushell of fyne flure shal be sold for a sicle, and two bushels of barleye for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hande the kynge leaned, answered the man of God and sayde, though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde not this be. And he sayde to him: Beholde, thou shalte se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not taste therof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to his companyon / what, syt we here vntyll we dye? thoughe we thoughte that we myghte come in to the citye, yet is the dearth so great in the citye, that we shall there dye. And if we tarye here, we are but deed also. Nowe therfore come and lette vs flee to the hoste of the Syrians: If they saue oure lyues, we shall lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the daylyghtyng to the hoste of the Syrians. And when they were come to the syde of the hoste of Samaria there was no man there. For the Lorde had made the host of the Syrians heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hoste. In so moche that they sayde one to an other: lo, the kynge of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs the kynges of the Hethims, and the kynges of Egypte to come vpon vs. Wherupon they arose and fledde in the darke, and lefte theyr tentes, theyr horses, theyr asses, and the felde they hadde pitched, euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went in to a tente and dyd eate and drynke, and conueyed thence syluer, golde, and rayment, & went and hyd it / and came agayne, and entred in to an other, and carved thence also, and went and hyd it. Then they sayd one to an other, it is not well that we do / for this daye hathe broughte good tydynges with it. And yf we holde our peas, and tarye tyll it be daye light, we shall fynde a mischiefe. Nowe therfore come, lette vs goo and tell the kynges house holde. And so they wente and called to the porter of the citye, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the pauylyons of the Syrians / and lo, there was no man there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, and the tentes euē as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house within. And the kynge arose in the nyghte, and sayde to his seruantes, I wyll shewe you howe the Syrians haue serued vs. They know we are oppressed with hungre, and therfore are gone out of their pauylyons to hyde themselues in the felde, sayinge: They wyll come out of the citye, and then we shall catche them alyue, and get in to the citye. And one of his seruauntes answered and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horses that remayne and are lefte in the citye. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are lefte in the citye / and as good as all the multitude of the citye that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And they tooke two charettes of horses, and the kynge sente after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: Go, and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Jordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles whiche the Syrians had cast from them for haste.

The

Then the messengers returned and told the kynge and the people tolde it, and robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a bushell of flour was solde for a sycle, and two bushelles of barleye for a sycle, accordynge to the Lordes worde. And the kynge sette the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, according to the saying of the Gods man, whiche he sayde when the kynge came downe to him. And it came to passe accordynge to the worde of the man of God spoken to the kyng sayinge: two bushelles of barleye for a sycle, and a bushell of barleye for an other, shall be to morow this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Wherunto the Duke answered the man of God, and sayd: though the Lorde made windowes in heuen, yet wolde this not be. And the other sayd/ beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not taste therof. And so it chaunced/ for the people trode him vnder fote in the gate, that he dyed.

¶ Eliseus Prophesyeth vnto the Sunamite the dearth of seuen yere. After the death of Benhadad reygneth Hazael in Syria. Jehoram the sonne of Josaphat raygneth in Juda. Edom falleth from Juda. Ochozias succedeth Jehoram.

CAPI. VIII.

THen spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, sayinge/aryse and go bothe thou and thyne house, and sojourne where thou thynkest beste/ for the Lorde wyll call a derthe/ whiche shall come on the lande seuen yere. And the woman rose and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man/ and wente bothe she and her houshold and sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at the seuen yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house and for her lande. And the kynge was talkynge with Giezi the seruaunt of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the, all the greate dedes whiche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunced as he was tellynge the kynge howe he restored a deed body to lyfe agayne, came in the woman whose sonne he restored, and cryed to the kynge for her house and lande. Then sayde Giezi: My lorde kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus broughte to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde him. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaynes, sayinge / restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the frutes of the felde, sythens the daye she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kynge of Syria fell sycke. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kynge to Hazael: ✳take a present with the, and go agaynst the man of God, and aske the Lorde by him whether I shall recouer of this my disease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, and tooke presentes with him, euen of all the good thinges of Damasco, as moche as fourtye camels coulde beare, and came and presented him selfe before him and sayde / thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Syria hathe sent me to the, sayinge/ shall I recouer of this my disease? Eliseus sayd to him: goo and saye to him/thou shalte recouer/howbeit the Lorde hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stode styll by him, and was taken with a sore malady/in so moche that he chaunged countenance and wepte. And Hazael sayd/why wepeth my lorde? And he answered / for I knowe what thou shalte do vnto the chyldren of Israell/ theyr stronge cityes thou shalte set on fyre, and theyr younge men thou shalte slee with the swerde, and shalte dasshe oute the braynes of theyr suckynge chyldren / and all to teare theyr women with chylde. And Hazael sayde/ what is thy seruaunt, whiche am but a wogge, that I shulde do this great thynge? And Eliseus sayde / for the Lorde hathe shewed me, that thou shalte be kynge of Syria. And so he departed from Eliseus, and came to his master, whiche sayd to hym. What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde / he tolde me that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe he toke a coughe clothe, and dypte in the water, & spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab kynge of Israel (Josaphat yet kynge of Juda) Jehoram sonne of Josaphat, kynge of Juda, began to raygne / thirtye and two yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as did the house of Achab / for the doughter of Achab was his wyfe / and he dyd that displeased the Lorde. Neuertheles the Lorde wolde not destroye Juda, because of David his seruaunte, as he promised him to geue him a light in his chyldren alwaye.

And in his dayes, Edom fell awaye from vnder the hande of Juda, and made them a kynge of theyr owne. And Jehoram wente to Sein, and all his charettes with him. And he rose by nyght, and sayde on the Edomites, whiche compassed him in / and the capitaynes of his charett and the people fledde in to theyr tentes. And so the Edomites flyght awaye tyll beyng vnder the hande of Juda vnto this day. And then Lobnah flyght awaye to, euen that same tyme.

The reste of the dedes of Jehoram, and all he dyd, are written in the cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Jehoram rested with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of David. And Ochozias his sonne raygned in his stede. The twelfte yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab, kynge of Israel, dyd Ochozias the sonne of Jehoram kynge of Juda begyn to to raygne. Two and twentye yere olde was Ochozias when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem. his mothers name was Athalia doughter of Amri kynge of Israell. And he walked in the waye of the house of Achab / for he was a sonne in lawe to

to the house of Achab.

And Jehoram the sonne of Achab went to warre with Hazael kynge of Syria, at Ramoth in Galaad / and the Syrians wounded him. Wherfore kynge Jehoram went backe agayne, to be healed in Jezrahel of the wounddes whiche the Syrians had gruen hym at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael kyng of Syria. And Ohoziah the sonne of Jehoram kynge of Juda, went downe to se Jehoram sonne of Achab in Jezrahel, because he was sycke.

¶ Jehu is made kynge of Israel, and kylleth Jehoram the kynge therof, and Ohoziah kynge of Juda also: and thereto causeth Jezabell to be caste downe forth out a wyndowe, whome dogges eate.

CAPI. IX.

9 AND Eliseus the Prophete called vnto one of the chyldren of the Prophetes, and sayd to him: gyrde vp thy loynes, and take this boxe of oyle in thyne hande, and gette the to Ramoth in Galaad. And when thou comest thyder, then walte there se Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Hamsi, and goo to him and make him aryse vp frome emonge his brethren, and carye him to a secrete chamber. And take the boxe of oyle and powre it on his heed, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israell. And then open the wore and flee, and tarye not. So the seruaunte of the Prophete dyd gette him to Ramoth in Galaad/ and when he came, the capitaynes of the hoste were sytteynge together. And he sayd: I haue an erraude to the, syr capitayne. And Jehu sayde/ vnto whiche of all vs? and he sayd: to the, O capitayne. And he arose and went in to the house.

10 And the other poured the oyle on his heed, and sayde to hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell: I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou slee the housholde of Achab thy master. For I (sayth the Lorde) wyll auenge the bloude of my seruauntes the Prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruauntes of the Lorde, of the hand of Jezabel (for the hole house of Achab shall be destroyed) and I wyll destroye vnto Achab what pysseth agaynst the wall: and so moche as the pyssoned, or that is forsaken in Israel, and wyll make the house of Achab lyke the house of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah. And concernyng Jezabel, the dogges shall eate her in the felde of Jezrahel/ and none shall burye her. And he opened the doore and fledde. And when Jehu was come out to the seruauntes of his Lorde they sayde to him: Is all peace? Wherfore came this mad felowe to the? And he sayd to them: ye knowe the person and his communication. And they sayde: it is not so. But tell vs a felowshyp. And he sayd thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge. Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israell. And they hasted and toke euery man his mantell and put vnder him on the degree at the toppe of the steppes, and blewe a trompet, and sayde: Jehu is kynge. Then Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Hamsi, conspired agaynst Jehoram. And Joram had ben waytynge at Ramoth Galaad, he and all Israel with him for feare of Hazael kyng of Syria, and was returned to be healed in Jezrahel, of the wounddes whiche the Syrians had gruen him, as he fought with Hazael kyng of Syria.

Then sayde Jehu. If it be youre mynde, let no man escape out of the citye, to go and tell in Jezrahel. And Jehu rode and rode to Jezrahel / for Jehoram laye there: and Ohoziah kynge of Juda, was come to Jehoram. And the watcheman that stode on the towre in Jezrahel, espyed the companye of Jehu as they came, and sayde: I se a companye. Then sayd Jehoram: take an horseman and sende agaynst them, and lette him aske whether they come peace. And there went one on horsebacke agaynst him, and sayde. Thus sayth the kynge: is it peace? And Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? tourne and come after me. And the watcheman tolde, sayinge: the messanger came to them, but he commeth not agayne. Then he sente out another horsebacke, whiche came to them and sayde thus sayth the kynge: Is it peace? And Jehu answered, what hast thou to do with peace? turne and come after me. And the watcheman told, sayinge: he came to them, but he commeth not agayne, and the dryuynge is lyke the dryuynge of Jehu the sonne of Hamsi, for he dryueth as he were mad.

Then sayd Jehoram, make redye. And he made redye his charett. And Jehoram kynge of Israel, and Ohoziah kynge of Juda went eyther in his charett agaynst Jehu, and met him in the furlonge of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And when Jehoram sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? And he sayd what peace can there be, so longe as the whordomes of thy mother Jezabell and her witchecrafte are so greate? And Jehoram tourned his handes and fledde, and sayde to Ohoziah there is falsehode in hande Ohoziah. And Jehu toke his bowe in his hande, and smote Jehoram betwene the shoulders, that the arowe came out at his hert. And he fell downe there in his charett. Then he sayd to Badakar a lorde of his: take and caste him in the plotte of grounde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. For I remember how I and thou rode togyther after Achab his father, howe the Lorde spake these wordes agaynst him: I haue sene yesterdaye the bloude of Naboth and of his sonnes, sayde the Lorde, and I wyll requyte him in this grounde, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take and caste him in the plot of grounde, according to the Lordes worde. And when Ohoziah kynge of Juda sawe that, he fled the waye to the gardeu house. And Jehu followed after him and sayde: smyte him also. And they smote him in his charett at the gange vp to Sur by Jeblaam, and fled to Mageddo, and there dyed he. And his seruauntes caryed him to Jerusalem and buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the cyte of Dauid. And in the eleuenth yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab, began Ohoziah to raigne ouer Juda. And when Jehu was come to Jezrahel, Jezabel herde of it, and depainted her eyes, and tyred her heed, and loked out at a wyndow. And as Jehu entered at the gate she sayd: had Zamri peace, which slew his master? And he lyft vp his eyes to the wyndow and sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there loked out to him two or three lordes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: throwe her downe. And they threwe her downe. And he sprenckled of her bloude vpon the walles and on the horses, and trode her vnder foote. And when when he was come in, and had eaten and dronke, he sayde: go and vysite I praye you yonder cursed creature, and bury her, for she is a kinges doughter. And when they came to bury her, they found no more of her then ℔ scull and the two fete and the two hãdes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayde: Je is the worde of the Lorde, which he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Eliah the Thesbite, sayinge: ✠ in the felde of Jezrahell shall dogges eate the fleshe of Jezabel, and the carkasse of Jezabel shall be donge vpon the earth in the felde of Jezrahel/ that men shal not say, this is Jezabel.

¶ Jehu sleeth the thre score and ten sonnes of Achab in Samaria, and after it, all fourtye and two of his brethren. He fyndeth a meane also to kyll all the prestes of Baal. After his death his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPI. X.

1 ACHAB hadde thre score and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sente to Samaria vnto the elders that were lordes of Jezrahel/ and to them that nourrid vp Achabs chyldren, sayinge: nowe as the commynge of these letters to you / ye haue with you youre masters sonnes / and ye haue with you charettes and horsses / and a strong cyte and harneste. Therfore chose the best and hym that moost pleaseth you of youre masters sonnes / and put hym on his fathers seate / and fyghte for youre lordes house. And they were exceedyngly atrayde, and sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, howe shall we then stande? And the gouernour of the kynges house, and of the cyte and of the elders / and the nourses sent to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruauntes, and wyll do all that thou shalt byd vs do: we wyll make no man kyng: but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes.

2 Then he wrote other letters to them, sayinge: If thou be myne, and wyll obey my voice, then take the heedes of youre masters sonnes and come to me to Jezrahel by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were thre score and ten personnes with the greate men of the cyte which nourrished them. And when the letters came to them, they toke the kynges sonnes and slewe them in nombre thre score and ten personns, and put their heedes in coppines, and sente them to hym to Jezrahell.

And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heedes of the kinges sonnes. And he said: let them put them on two heapes in the enterynge of the gate, tyll it be daye. And in the mornynge he went out and stode and sayd to all the folke: Ye be righteous: for se, I conspyred agaynst my master, and slewe him: But who slewe these? ✠ Consider nowe howe there is nothynge of the Lordes word fallen to the erth, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: for the Lorde hath done that he spake to his seruaunt Eliah. And so Jehu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab in Jezrahel, and all that were great with him/ and his companions and his preestes, tyll he had lefte him naught. And he arose and departed, and went to Samaria. And as Jehu was come to the house where the shepherdes bynde their shepe by the hye waye syde, he met with the brethren of Ohoziah kynge of Juda, and sayd: what are ye? and they sayd, the brethren of Ohoziah are we, and goo to welcome the chyldren of the kynge & of the quene. And he sayd: take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them at the well beside the house where the shepherdes bynde their shepe, in nombre two and fourty persons, that he lefte none of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met with Jonadab the sonne of Rechab comming agaynst him. And Jehu welcomed hym, and sayde to him: is thyne herte right, as myne herte is with thyne? And Jonadab sayde/ ye it is. He sayd: yf it be, then gyue me thyne hand. And he gaue his hande, and the other toke him vp to him in to the charett, & sayd/ goo with me and se the zele I haue to the Lorde, & made him ryde with him in his charett. And when he came to Samaria, he slewe all that remayned vnto Achab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, which he spake to Eliah.

After that Jehu assembled all the people togyther, and sayde to them: ✠ Achab serued Baal a lyte: But Jehu shal serue him a good. Nowe therfore call vnto me all the Prophetes of Baal, and all his seruauntes, and all his preestes, ℔ none be lackyng. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and yf any be myssed, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it of a wyle, to destroye the seruauntes of Baal. Wherfore Jehu sayde: Appointe a solempne feaste for Baal, and they proclaymed it. Then Jehu sent throwe oute all Israel. And all the seruauntes of Baal came, that there was not a man lefte behynde that came not. And when they were come in to the temple of Baal, the temple was full frome thone ende to thother.

Then he sayde to the keper of the vestrye/ bynge forthe garmentes for the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Jehu went with Jonadab sonne of Rechab in to the house of Baal: and sayd to the seruauntes of Baal: searche and loke that there be none here with you of the seruauntes of the Lorde, but the seruauntes of Baal onely. And they went in to offre sacrifice and burntoffrynges. But Jehu appointed him foure score men without, and sayde: Yf anye of the men whiche I shall bryng into youre handes escape/ he that letteth him goo shall dye for him.

And as soone as he hadde made an ende of offrynge of burnt sacrifyce, he sayde to them of the garde, and to the capitaynes: goo in and slee them, lette none come oute. And they smote him with the edge of the swerde. And the garde and the capitaynes caste them oute, and went in to the cyte of the house of Baal, and fette oute the ymage oute of the house of Baal, and burnt it. And they brake the ymage of Baal, and brake the house of Baal/ and made a Jakes of it euen after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne with the golden calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu/ bycause thou hast dulyly wonne that pleaseth me/ and hast wonne to the house of Achab all that was in myne herte: Therfore shall * thy children in the fourthe generacion, sytte on the seate of Israell. But Jehu forced not to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with al his herte/ for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Israell synne. In those dayes the Lorde began to cutte Israell shorte/ for Hazael slewe them in all the coostes of Israel, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen all the land of Galaad/ the Gaddites, the Rubenites, and the Manassites/ from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, & all his power, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israell. And when Jehu was layde to reste with his fathers/ they buryed him in Samaria/ and Joachaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was eyghe and twenty yere.

* 4 Reg. 10. c.

¶ Athalia putteth to deth all the kynges sonnes, except Joas the sonne of Ohoziah: whiche is hydden and after her dethe is made kynge.

CAPL. XI.

A And Athalia the mother of Ohoziah/ when she saw that her sonne was dede she arose and slewe all the kynges bloude. But Josaba the doughter of kynge Jehoram, and sister of Ohoziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ohoziah, and stale him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and his nource with hym oute of the nourseryc, and hyd him from Athalia that he was not slayne. And he was with her, hyd in the house of the Lorde sixe yeres. And Athalia dyd raigne ouer the lande.

In the seuenth yere Joiada sent and fet the capitaines & souldyours, & toke them vnto him in to the house of the Lorde, and made a leage with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde/ and shewed them the kinges sonne/ and commaunded them, saying: this is the thynge that ye must do: one third part of you shall come on the Sabboth daye, and kepe the watche of the kynges house: And an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate Sur/ and an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate behynde the garde chamber/ and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Mesa. And two partions of you/ that is, all that goo out on the Sabboth day, shal kepe the watche of the house of the Lorde about the kynge/ and shall compasse the kynge round about, euery man his weapen in his hande. And who so euer commeth wyth in the ranges, shall dye for it. And se ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

The capitaynes did al thynges as Joiada prieste commaunded, and toke euerye man his men/ that is, them that came in the Sabboth daye with them that wente out the Sabboth daye, and wente to Joiada the Prieste. And the Priest gaue to the capitaynes the speares and shyldes that were kynge Dauids, and had ymployned in the temple. And the garde stode euerye man with his weapon in his hande rounde about the kyng/ from the eyght corner of the temple to the left a long by the aulter and the temple. And he brought out the kinges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him and deliuered him the wytnesse, and made him kyng, and anointed him. And they clapt their handes and sayde God saue the kynge.

When Athalia heerde the noyse of the people/ she came to the people in to the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande by a piller (as the maner was) and the syngers and the trompetters by the kynge/ and all the people of the lande reioysyng, and the blowyng of the trompetes, she rent her clothes and cryed, treason treason. Then Joiada the Prieste commaunded the capitaynes that had the rule of the hoste, and sayde to them: haue her oute without the ranges, and yf anye folowe her, lette him slee with the swerde: for the priest sayd, she may not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she went the waye that the horses of the kynges went in, and was slayne there.

And Joiada made a bond both betwene the Lorde and the kyng, and betwene the people the Lord, that they shold be & Lordes people: and also betwene the kyng & the people. Then all the people of the land went in to the house of Baal, and destroyed his aulters, and brake downe his ymages lustely, and slewe Mathan the priest of Baal before the aulter. And & priest set watchemen in the house of the Lorde, and toke & rulers ouer hundredes, & the capitaynes and the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kynge from the house of the Lord, and went the way of the gate of the garde vnto the kynges house. And he sat him downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioysed/ and the cyte was in quiet. So they slewe Athalia with & swerde in the kynges house.

¶ Ioas maketh prouision for the repayrynge of the temple. he is kylled by two of his seruauntes, and Amazia raigneth in his stede.

CAPL. XII.

I Oas was seuen yeres olde when he was made kynge. And he began to raygne the seuenth yere of Jehu, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia Berlade. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Joiada the Prieste enformed him. But he toke not awaye the hyll aulters/ for the people slewe, and offered styll in the hyll aulters.

And Joas sayd to the preestes: al the syluer that is geuen to the vse of the temple, and brought to the house of the Lorde by straungers, whether that it be the money that euery man is set at/ or the money that any mans herte geueth him to bryng in to the house of the Lorde/ let the preestes take it to them, euerye man in his course, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places where ought is founde breayed.

Notwithstandyng the preestes had not repayred vnto the thre and twentye yere of Joas, the tymples decayed in the temple. Then kynge Joas called for Joiada the priest, and for those preestes, and sayd to them/ why repayre ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therfore se ye receyue no more money according to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the preestes consented to receyue no more money of the people: But that it shulde go to the repayrynge of the temple.

Then Joiada the Preeste toke a cofer, and bored an hole in the syde of it, and put it before the aulter on the eyghe syde as one commeth to the house of the Lorde. And in to that dyd the preestes that kepte the wores, put all the money that was broughte to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was moche money in the cofer, the kynges scryke and the hye priest came and sealed vp the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it.

And they gaue the money by summes in to the handes of the maisters of the workes, that had the ouersyghte of the house of the Lorde: and they brought it oute to the carpenters & buylders that wrought vpon the house of the Lord, and to masons and hewers of stone, to bye tymbre and free stone, to repayre the breche in the house of the Lorde/ and all that neded reparacyons in the house: howe be it there was not made in the house of the Lorde bookes of syluer, slyedynge knyues, basens, trompettes, or any other instrumentes of gold or syluer, of that money that was brought for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen, to repayre therwith the house of the Lorde. Moreouer they reckened not with the men, in to whose handes they delyuered the money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitie. Howbeit trespace money and synne money myght not be broughte in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the preestes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Siria/ and foughte agaynste Geth, and toke it/ and appoynted him selfe to go vp to Jerusalem. But Joas kynge of Juda toke all the dedicat thynges, that Josaphat, Jehoram, and Ohoziah his progenitours kynges of Juda had dedicate/ & that he him selfe hadde dedicated/ and all the golde that coulde be founde in the treasure of the Lordes house, and of the kinges house/ and sent it to Hazael kynge of Siria/ and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. But his owne seruauntes arose and wrought treason, and slewe Joas in the house Mello, in the waye downe to Sila. For Jozachar the sonne of Semaath and Jozabad the sonne of Somer his seruauntes, smote him & he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers in the cityc of Dauid. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his place.

¶ Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is deliuered in to the handes of the Syriens, and dyeth. Joas his sonne raygneth in his stede. Eliseus dyeth.

CAPL. XIII.

A In the thre and twentye yere of Joas sonne of Ohoziah kynge of Juda/ Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued seuentene yeres/ & he wrought wyckednesse in the eye of & Lord/ for he folowed the synne of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which made Israel to synne, and departed not from the same. Wherfore the Lord was angrye with Israel/ and deliuered them in to the hande of Hazael kynge of Siria, and in to the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes. Joachaz

B But Joachaz besought & Lorde, and & Lord herde him. For he had sene the affliction of Israel, how the kynge of Siria oppressed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue vnto Israel a sauyour, and they were deliuered forth of & handes of the Syrians. And the children of Israell dwelt in theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuertheless they departed not from the synne of & house of Jeroboam, who made Israel to synne, but walked therin. And there remayned a superstitious wod also in Samaria stil/ but there were left of the people to Joachaz, but fyftye horsemen and ten charettes, and ten thousand fotemen/ for the kynge of Siria had destroyed them, and made them like thresshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Joachaz, and all he did/ and his power, are wrytte in & Chronicles of kinges of Israell. And Joachaz rested B his fathers/ and they buryed him in Samaria/ and Joas his sonne raygned in his stede. In the xxxvij. yere of Joas kynge of Juda, began Joas the sonne of Joachaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued sixtene yeres/ and dyd naughtily in the syghte of the Lorde, and departed in nothyng from the synnes of Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat that made Israell synne/ but walked therin. Joas:

C

The remnaunt of the actes of Joas, and all he dyd, and his power, howe he fought with Amazias kynge of Juda, are wrytten in the Cronycles of kynges of Jsrael. And when Joas was layde to reste with his fathers, Jeroboam sate vpon his seate / and Joas was buryed in Samaria amonge the kynges of Jsrael.

Eliseus dyeth. When Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed / Joas kynge of Jsrael came to hym and wepte to him and sayd. O father father, chariot of Jsrael, and conductour of the same. Eliseus sayde vnto him / bynge bowe and arowes. And he brought vnto him bowe and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Jsrael: Put thyne hande vpon the bowe. And when he hadde put his hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put his handes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayd: open a wyndowe Eastwarde: and he opened. And Eliseus sayde: shote / and he shotte. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Syrians / for thou shalte beate the Syrians in Aphek, tyll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes / and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Jsrael. Smyte the grounde: and he smote thryse, and ceassed. And the man of God was angery with hym, and sayde: Thou wouldest haue smytten fyue or sixe tymes, e then thou haddest smytten the Syrians tyll thou haddest consumed them: where nowe thou shalte beate them but thryse.

When Eliseus was dede and buryed / an armye of the Moabytes came in to the land, the yere folowynge. And it chaunsed as they were buryinge a man, they espyed the souldyours, and therfore cast the dede corps in to the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as soone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuyued & stode vp on his fete.

Eccle.xlviii.b

And Hazael oppressed Jsrael all the dayes of Joachaz. But the Lorde hadde mercye on them, and tourned to them because of his promyse made with Abraham, Jsaac, and Jacob / and wolde not destroye them, neyther caste them fromte him as yet. And when Hazaell kyng of Syria was ded, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz went agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken fro the of the handes of Joachaz his father by law of armes. And three tymes dyd Joas beate him and brought the cities of Jsrael agayne.

¶ Amazias kyng of Juda putteth to death the murderers of his father: and inuyteth Ebom. Joas kyng of Jsrael taketh Amazias. Joas dieth, and Jeroboam succedeth: after him raygneth Zacharias. Amazias is kylled, and Azariah raygneth in his stede.

CAPI XIIII.

A ii. Paralyp. a

The seconde yere of Joas sonne of Joachaz kyng of Jsrael, raygned Amazias sonne of Joas, kynge of Juda / he was fyue and twentye yeres olde when he began / and raygned nyne and twentye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joadan / he was of Jerusalem. And he did that pleased the Lorde, yet not lyke Dauid his father: but dyd in all thynges as Joas his father dyd. Howbeit they toke they awaye the hyll aulters / for the people slewe and offered styll in hyll aulters. And as soone as the kyngdome was stablished in his hande / he slewe his seruauntes that kylled the kynge his father. But the childrē of those murtherers he slewe not: according to that is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses / where the Lorde commaunded thynge: * the fathers shall not dye for the childrens cause, nor the childrē for the fathers: but euery man shall be slayne for his owne synne.

* And he slewe of the Edomites in the valeye, ten thousande, and toke the towne Sela with strengthe of battayle / and called the name of it Jekatheel euer after. After that Amazias sente messengers to Joas the sonne of Joachaz sonne of Jehu, kynge of Jsrael, saynge: come, lette vs se eche other. But Joas kynge of Jsrael sent agayne to Amazias kynge of Juda, saynge: A thystell in Libanon, sente to a cypresse tree in Libanon, saynge: gyue thy doughter to my sonne to wyfe. And wylde beastes in Libanon, wente and trode downe the thistell. Because thou hast smytten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte lyfteth the vp to glorye: but tarye at home. For why entrest thou to prouoke myschiefe, that thou shuldest be ouerthrowen, and Juda with the?

But Amazias wolde not heare. And Joas kynge of Jsrael went vp, and they met Amazias kynge of Juda sawe eche other at Bethsames in Juda. And Juda was ouercome before Jsrael / and they fled euery man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Jsrael toke Amazias kynge of Juda, sonne of Joas sonne of Ohoziah at Bethsames. And they went to Jerusalem, and brake downe of the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate, foure hundred cubites. And he toke al the gold and syluer, and all the vesselles that were founde in the house of the Lord, and in the treasure of the kinges house and hostages therto: and then returned to Samaria agayne.

The reste of the actes of Joas whiche he dyd, and his power, and how he fought with Amazias kynge of Juda, are wrytten in the Cronicles of kynges of Jsrael: and Joas layde him to reste with his fathers, and is buryed at Samaria amonge the kynges of Jsrael: and Jeroboam his sonne raygnede in his rowme.

Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachas kynge of Jsrael fyftene yeres. The rest of the dedes of Amazias, are wrytten in the Cronicles of kynges of Juda. And they conspired greate treason agaynste him in Jerusalem, and he fledde to Lachis. And they sente after him to Lachis, and slewe him there. And they brought him on an horse, and he was buryed at Jerusalem amonges his progenitours in the cite of Dauid. * And all the people of Juda toke Azarias beynge sixtene yere olde / and made him kynge in place of his father Amazias. He buylt Ailath and brought it agayn to Juda / after that the kyng was layde to reste with his fathers.

CAPII XV.

The fiftene yere of Amazias sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, was Jeroboam sonne of Joas made kynge ouer Jsrael in Samaria / and raygned one and fourty yeres, and wrought wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde: for he tourned in nothynge from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Jsrael to synne. He restored the costes of Jsrael from the entrynge of Hemath vnto the see, in the wyld feldes / accordyng to the word of the Lorde God of Jsrael whiche he spake thowe his seruaunte Jonah the sonne of Amithai the prophet, which was of Geth Ophir. For the Lorde hadde sene howe the affliction of Jsrael was exceding bitter / in so moche that the pyslonel and the forsaken were at an ende. And there was no helper vnto Jsrael. And the Lorde had not yet sayd that men shoulde put out the name of Jsrael from vnder heuen. And therfore he holpe them by the hande of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The reste of the dedes of Jeroboam / and all he dyd, and his power how he fought, and how he restored Damasco and Hemath to Juda in Jsrael, are wrytten in the boke of Cronicles of kynges of Jsrael. And Jeroboam layde him to reste with his fathers, and with the kynges of Jsrael, to whom Zacharias his sonne succeded.

¶ Azarias kynge of Juda becometh Leprouse. Jotham raygneth for him. Helum kylleth Jeroboam and succeedeth him. After whom raygneth Manahem Phakeiah, Phakeh, Hosea, Jotham, Thas, one after another.

CAPI XV.

The seuen and twentye yere of Jeroboam kynge of Jsrael / Azarias sonne of Amazias kyng of Juda began to raigne. Sixtene yeres olde was he, when he was made kynge, and raygned two and fyftye yeres in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Jechelia, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde all thynges, as dyd his father Amazias: saue that they put not the hyllaulters away / for the people offered and burnte styll in the hyll aulters. And the Lorde smote the kynge that he was a leper vnto the day of his death / and dwelte in an house at Iyberetye by himselfe / and Jotham the kynges sonne gouerned the house, and iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the dedes of Azarias and al he dyd, are wrytten in Chronicles of kinges of Juda. And Azarias layd him to slepe with his fathers. and they buryed him with his fathers in the cite of Dauid / and Jotham his sonne raygned in his stede.

In the.xxxviij. yere of Azarias kyng of Juda his Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam made kynge vpon Jsrael in Samaria / and raygned sixe monethes / and * did that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his fathers / and tourned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which caused Jsrael to synne. And Selum the sonne of Jabes conspired agaynste him, and smote him before the people, and kylled him, and raigned in his stede. Gene.xxvij.a

The reste of the dedes of Zacharias, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Jsrael. This is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, saynge: * thy sonnes shall syt on the seate of Jsrael in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe. *iiij. Reg.x.c

Selum the sonne of Jabes began to raigne the nyne and thirtye yere of Azarias kynge of Juda / and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi came vp fromte Thersah, and wente to Samaria and smote Selum the sonne of Jabes in Samaria, and slewe him, and raygned in his stede. The rest of the dedes of Selum, and the treason whiche he conspired, are wrytten in the Chronycles of kynges of Jsrael. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphsah, and all that were therin / and the costes therof from Thersah (because they opened not to him) he smote, and rent all the women with chylde. Helum. D

The nyne and thirtye yere of Azarias kyng of Juda, began Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Jsrael / and continued ten yeres in Samaria. And he dyd euyll in the syghte of the Lorde, and tourned not all the dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which made Jsrael to synne. And Phul kynge of Assiria came vpon the land. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousande talentes of syluer, to helpe him to stablysshe his kyngdome. And Manahem raysed the money in Jsrael, vpon all men of substaunce, for to gyue the kynge of Assiria fyftye sycles of syluer a pece. And the kynge of Assiria turned backe agayne and taryed not there in the lande. The reste of the dedes of Manahem and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Jsrael. And when Manahem was layde to reste with his fathers, Phakeiah his sonne raigned in his stede. Manahem. 1 Tar. E

The fyftyeth yere of Azarias kynge of Juda, began Phakeiah the sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Jsrael in Samaria / and continued two yeres, and wrought wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and lefte not of from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, which caused Jsrael to synne. And Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah, a capitayne of his, conspired agaynste him, and slewe him in a toure of the kynges house, with Argob and Ariah, and fyftye men with him that were Galaadites. And when he had kylled him, raygned in his rowme. The reste of Phakeiah and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Jsrael. Phakeiah.

In the.lij. yere of Azarias kyng of Juda, began Phakeh the sonne of Romelia to raygne ouer Jsrael in Samaria, & continued twentye yeres, and dyd euyll in the syghte of the Lord, F and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat that made Israel to synne. In the dayes of Phaketh kyng of Israel, came Teglath Phalasar king of Assiria/and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Maaca, Janoa, Kades, Hazor, Galaad, Galile, and all the lande of Nephthali/& caried them awaye to Assiria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspyred treason agaynst Phaketh the sonne of Romelia, and smote him and slewe him, and raigned in his stede / the twentye yere of Jotham the sonne of Oziah. The rest of the acts of Phaketh, and all he dyd, are written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Phaketh sonne of Romelia kyng of Israell, began Jotham the sonne of Oziah kyng of Juda to raigne. Fyue and twentye yeres olde was he, when he began to raygne/and he raygned sixtene yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa, the doughter of Zaweh. And he dyd that was ryghte before the Lorde: euen in all thynge, as dyd his father Oziah, so dyd he. But he put not awaye the hyll aulters / for the people offered and burnte incense styll in the hyll aulters/he buylte the hyghest wore in ỹ house of the Lorde. The rest of the dedes of Jotham and al he did, are written in ỹ Cronicles of kinges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde began to sende agaynst Juda Razin the kynge of Syria, and Phaketh the sonne of Romelia. And Jotham rested with his fathers, and was buryed with his auncestours in the cite of David his father/and Achaz his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Achaz kynge of Juda, consecrateth his sonne in fyre: and hath many battayles agaynste the kynge of Israel. He causeth an aultare to be made lyke vnto it of Damasco. In the stede of Achaz raygneth Ezechias his sonne.

CAPI. XVI.

THe seuentene yere of Phaketh sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel/Achaz sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda, began to raigne being of thage of twentye yere, when he was made kynge/ and raigned sixtene yere in Jerusalem/and dyd not the thynge that was ryghte in the eyen of the Lorde his God, as dyd David his father: But went in the waye of the kynges of Israel / & therto he offered his sonne in fyre, after the abhominacion of the hethen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt the fat in ỹ hyl aulters, and on the hylles and vnder euery grene tree. Then Razin kynge of Syria, and Phaketh sonne of Romelia kynge of Israell, came vp to Jerusalem to fight. And they besieged Achaz, but could not ouercome him. At the same tyme Razin kyng of Syria broughte Ailath agayn to Syria, and rid the Jewes thece. And the Symmites went to Ailath and dwelt there in vnto this daye.

Then Achaz sent messegers to Teglath Phalasar king of Assiria, saying: I am thy seruant and thy sonne come and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Syria, and out of ỹ hande of the kyng of Israel, whiche be risen agaynst me. And Achaz toke the syluer & the golde that was founde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasure of the kynges house, and sent it for a rewarde to the kynge of Assiria. And the kyng of Assiria was applynge to his mynde, & went to Damasco, and toke it/and caried the people awaye to Kir, and slewe Razin.

And kynge Achaz went agaynste Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assiria, to Damasco. And when he sawe a certayne aulter that was at Damasco, he sente to Uria the preest the pyctoure of the aulter, and the facyon of all the workemanshyp therof. And Uria the preest made an aulter in all poynctes lyke to the pyctoure whyche kyng Achaz had sente from Damasco. and had fynished it by the kynges comynge frome Damasco. And when the kyng was come from Damasco, and saw the aulter, he went to it, and offered theron. And he burnt his burnt offeryng, and sprynckled the bloode of his peaceofferyng/and poured his wyne out, and sprynckled the bloude of his peaceofferynges vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he remoued from betwene the aulter and the house of ỹ Lorde, and put it on the north syde of the ỹ aulter.

And the kyng commaunded Urias the preest sayenge: vpon the greate aulter set on fyre al ỹ morninge burntofferynges, and in the meatofferynges / and the kynges burnt sacrifice, and his meatofferynge and the burntofferynges of all the people of the lande and their meatofferynges & their drynkofferynges, & poure theron all the bloude of all maner of sacrifices. But the brasen aulter shall be myne to enquyre with. And Urias the preest dyd all thynges as kynge Achaz commaunded him. And kynge Achaz brake the sydes of the bases, and toke the lauers from them, and toke downe the see from the brasen oxen that were vnder it, and put it vpon a pauement of stone. And therto the pulpyt for the Saboth that they hadde made in the house, and the kynges entrye without, turned he to the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kynge of Assiria. The reste of the dedes of Achaz whiche he dyd, are wrytten in the Cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Achaz layde him to reste with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the cite of David / and Ezechias his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Hosea kinge of Israel is taken. And he and all his royalme brought to the Assyryans.

CAPI. XVII.

IN the. xij. yere of Achaz kynge of Juda, Hosea sonne of Elah beganne to raygne in Samaria vpon Israel, and contynued nyne yeres, and dyd that displeased the Lorde but not so cupll as dyd the kynges of Israel that were before hym. And Salmanasar king of Assiria came vpon him/ and Hosea became his seruaunt, and gaue him tributes. And the kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sent messengers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sent no tributes vnto the kynge of Assiria, as he was yerely wont to do. Therfore the kynge of Assiria besieged him & bound him and put him in prysion. ✻ And then the kynge of Assiria came thorow out all the land and came to Samaria & besieged it thre yere. And in the nynthe yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria & caryed Israel awaye into Assiria and put them in Hala, in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of ỹ Medes. For the chyldren of Israel had synned agaynste the Lorde their God whiche hadde brought them out of the lande of Egypt, frō the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypte, and worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heythen whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel, & the thinges whiche the kynges of Israell had made. And the children of Israel wrapte them selues in thinges that were not wel towarde the Lorde their God. And they buylte them hylaultres in all their cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watche and also in the stronge townes. And they made them Images and superstitious woodes on euery hyghe hyll and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hylaultars, as dyd the heythen, which the Lorde caryed away at their commynge, and wrought wycked dedes to anger the Lorde with. And they serued Idoles, concernynge which thing the Lord had sayde to them: ye shall not do so. And the Lord testified to Israel and to Juda, by all the prophetes and by all the Seers, sayenge: Turne frome your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and myne ordinaunces, according to all the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, and as I sent to you by my seruaunts the Prophetes. But they wolde not heare, but hardened their neckes, lyke to the neckes of their fathers that dyd not beleue ỹ Lorde their God. And they refused his ordinaunces and his couenaunt that he had made with their fathers, and the wytnesse whiche he had wytnessed to them, and folowed vanitie and became vayne, lyke to the heythen, ỹ were roundeabout them, of whych, the Lorde had charged theym, that they shulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made them Images of metall, that is to saye two calues and made groues and bowed them selues vnto all the hoste of heauen, and serued Baal.

And they caused their sonnes & their doughters to passe thorow the fyre, and vsed witchcraft and charmes, and had them appointed themselues to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, for to anger him.

Wherefore the Lorde was exceadynge wroth vnto Israel, and put them out of his sight, that there was left but the tribe of Juda only. Yea and Juda kept not the commaundementes of their God, but walked in the ordinaunces which they had made. Therefore the Lorde refused all the seed of Israel and vexed them and ouerlade them vnto the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his sight. And Israel diuided them selues frome the house of David, and made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the Lorde and made them synne a great synne. And so ỹ chyldren of Israel walked in all the synne of Jeroboam which he had set vp, and departed not frome the same, tyll the Lorde hadde put Israel awaye out of his sight, as he sayde by all his seruaunts the Prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their lande to Assiria, euen vnto this daye. Jerem.xxv.a

And the kynge of Assiria broughte people frome Babylon and frome Cutha, and frome Aua, and frome Hemath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cyties of Samaria in stede of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria and dwelt in the cyties thereof. But at the begynninge of their dwelling, they feared not the Lorde. Wherefore ỹ Lord sent Lyons vpon them whiche slewe theym. Then men tolde the kynge of Assyria, sayeng: The nacions which thou hast brought & put in the cyties of Samaria, know not the maner of the God of the lande, and therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon them, which slay them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assiria commaunded sayenge: cary thyther one of the preestes whiche ye brought thence, and let him go and dwell there, and teache them the facyon howe to serue the God of the countreye. And then one of the preestes which they had caryed thence, went and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacion made their owne Goddes & put them in the houses of the hylaultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euerye nacion in their cyties where they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoth, Benoth. The men of Cuth made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. The Cuites made Nebahaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt their children in fire vnto Adramelech. & Anamelech, the goddes of the Sepharuaites. And thoughe they feared the Lord, yet they made them preestes of the lowest of the people, for the hylaultres which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hylaultars. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne goddes after the maner of the people frome whence they were broughte.

Unto this daye they do after the olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after their owne ordinaunces and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement whiche the Lorde commaunded the children of Jacob whose name he called Israel, and made an appointement with them and charged them sayenge: feare not any other gods, nor bowe your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde which broughte you out of the lande of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arme, him feare and to him bowe, and to him sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaundement that ment which I wrote for you, se ye be diligent to do, for euer more, and feare not anye other goddes. And the appoyntement that I haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that you feare none other goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemyes. Howbeit they herde not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euen so dyd these nations feare the Lorde and serue their Images eueto: and so dyd their children and their children's children vnto. Euen as dyd their fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

¶ Ezechias kynge of Juda putteth downe the brasen serpent, and destroyeth the Idolles. Salmanasar bringeth Israel to the Assyrians. The Prophesye of Sennacherib.

CAPI. XVIII.

A 4. Par. xvij. a

THe thirde yere of Hosea sonne of Ela, kyng of Israel, raygned Ezechias sonne of Achaz kynge of Juda. Twentye and fyue yeres olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned .xxix. yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zacharias, and he dyd that pleased the Lord in all thynge, lyke to Dauid his father. He put awaye the hyll aultares and brake the Images and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the brasen serpent that Moses made.

Deute. xvi. a

Nume. xxi. a

For vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israell dyd burne sacrifyce to it, and called it Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israell, so that after him came none lyke him among all the kynges of Juda, neither amonge them that were afore him. He claue to the Lorde & departed not frome him, but kept his comaundements which the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Lorde was with him, And whatsoeuer he toke in hande he dyd it wysely. And he rebelled against the kynge of Assiria and serued him not. He slew the Philistines euen vnto Azah and the coostes therof, both in castels of garrisons and stronge cities.

Esay. xxxvi. c

In the fourth yere of kynge Ezechias whiche was the seuenth yere of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar kyng of Assiria vpon Samaria and besieged it. And they toke it at the ende of thre yere, which was the sixte of Ezechias: that is to say the ninth yere of Hosea kynge of Israel, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assiria dyd carye away Israel vnto Assiria, and put them in Dalah and in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cities of Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God, But transgressed his appointment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded, and wolde neyther heare nor do.

Samaria besieged and wonne.

2. Par. xxix. a Esdr. xxxvi. a Esdr. xxxvij. a

* The .xxij. yere of kynge Ezechias came Sennacherib kynge of Assiria against all the stronge cities of Juda and toke them. Wherupon Ezechias kynge of Juda sent to the kynge of Assiria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended. Depart from me, and what thou putteste on me that will I beare. And the kyng of Assiria layed vpon Ezechias kynge of Juda, thre hundred talentes of syluer and thirty talentes of golde. * And Ezechias gaue them all the syluer that was founde in the house of the Lorde and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the same season Ezechias cut of the wozes of the temple of the Lorde and the pyllers, whiche the same Ezechias kynge of Juda couered ouer, and gaue the to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Thartan and Rabsaris and Rabsaketh from Lachis kynge Ezechias with a great host to Jerusalem. And they went vp and came to Jerusalem, and went and stode by the coundyt of the ouermost pole whiche is in the waye to the fullers fylde, and called to the kynge. And there came out to them, Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah stearde of housholde and Sebnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph, the cosyre. And then Rabsaketh sayd to them. Tell ye Ezechias I pray you: thus sayeth the great kynge the kynge of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? thou wylte happely speake a lyghte wozde, that thou hast counsell and power to make warre. On whome then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? doest thou trust to the staffe of this broken reede Egypt, on whiche yf a man leane, it wyll renne in to his hande and perce it. Soo euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypte vnto all that trust on hym. * Yf ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde our God. Is not this he, whose hyaultares and other aultares Ezechias hathe put downe, and hath sayde to Juda and Jerusalem, downe your selues before this aulter here in Jerusalem? How therfore coyne thy selfe to my Lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I will deliuer the two thousand horses, yf thou be able to set ryders vpon them: (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou able to resist one of the leste Dukes of my maysters seruauntes? or trustest thou to Egypte for charettes and horsmen? Moreouer tell me, whether I am come without the bidding of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? Esay. xxxvi. The Lorde sayde to me, go vp to this lande and destroye it. Then sayde Eliakim the son of Helkiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rabsaketh: speake, we praye the, to thy seruauntes in the Syrians language, for we vnderstande it: and talke not with vs in the Jewes tongue, in the eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rabsaketh sayde vnto them: hath my master sent me only to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes, or rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shall eate their owne dyrt and drinke their owne pysse with you?

And so Rabsaketh stode and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes language, and spake, sayenge: Heare the sayenge of the great kynge, the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias begyle you, for he is not able to deliuer you out of my handes, neyther let Ezechias make you trust to the Lorde sayenge: the Lorde shall surely helpe vs, and this cyte shall not be deliuered into the handes of the kynge of Assiria. Hearken not vnto Ezechias, for thus sayeth the kyng of Assiria. Deale kyndely with me, and come oute to me. And then eat euery man of his owne vyne, and of his frygge tree, and drynke euery man of the water of his owne welle, tyll I come and fet you to as good a land as yours is, a land of corne and wyne, a lande of breed and vyneyardes, a lande of oliue trees of oyle and of heny. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And harken not vnto Ezechias for he wyll begyle you, sayeng: the Lorde shall deliuer vs. For haue the goddes of the nacyons deliuered any God his lande, oute of the hande of the kynge of Assyria? where are the gods of Hemath and of Arphad? where are the goddes of Sepharuaim of Ana and Auah? did they deliuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any lande hath deliuered his lande oute of myne hande, that the Lorde shulde deliuer Jerusalem out of myne hand?

But the people helde their peace and answered not him a wozde: for the kinge hadde commaunded, sayenge: answere him not.

Then Eliakim the stearde of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Ezechias with their clothes rent and tolde him the wozdes of Rabsaketh.

¶ The Angell of the Lorde kylleth. Clxxxv. thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of his owne sonnes.

CAP. XIX.

WHen kynge Ezechias herde this, he rent his clothes and put on sacke, and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermore he sent Eliakim stearde of housholde, & Sobna the scribe, & the elders of the Preastes clothed in sacke, to Isai the Prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde to him, thus sayeth Ezechias: This daye is a daye of tribulation & of rebukynge and rayinge: Euen as when the children are redy to be borne, and the mother hath no power to be deliuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God wolde heare all the wordes of Rabsaketh, whome the kyng of Assiria his master hath sent to raple on the liuynge God, & to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lorde thy God hathe herde. Wherfore lyft vp thy prayer for the remnaunt that are left. When the seruauntes of kynge Ezechias were come to Isai: Isai sayde to them. So shall ye say to your master. Thus sayeth the Lord: be not afrayde of the wordes thou hearest, wherwith the younge men of the kynge of Assiria haue raysed on me. For I will sende him a blaste that he shall heare tydinges, and so returne to his owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe him with the sworde, euen in his owne lande.

And Rabsaketh went backe againe & found the kynge of Assiria fighting against Lobnah: for he had herde, that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde tydinges of Tharaka kyng of the blacke Mozes, that he was come out to fight against him. And thereupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Ezechias, sayenge. Thus saye to Ezechias kynge of Juda, Let not thy God carye the out of the way, in whome thou so trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast harde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterlye destroyed them, And howe then wouldest thou escape? hathe the goddes of the heythen deliuered them whiche myne auncestours haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Thelasar? where is the kynge of Hemath, the kyng of Arphad the kynge of the cyte of Sepharuaim, & the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Auah?

When Ezechias had receyued the letters of the hande of the messengers and hadde red them: he went into the house of the Lorde. & layde them abrode before the Lorde. And Ezechias prayed before the Lorde & sayd: Lord God of Israell, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earthe, and thou hast made both heauen and earthe. Lorde, bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyen and se: & heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent to raple on the liuing God. Certes o Lorde, the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed nations and their landes, and haue set fyre on their goddes. For they were no goddes, but the worke of the handes of man: euen wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed them. Now therfore (Lorde our God) saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes of the earthe maye knowe, that thou Lord art God alone. And Isai the sonne of Amos sent to Ezechias sayenge: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel, the thinge that thou hast prayed to me concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assiria, I haue herde. This is the thinge that the Lord sayeth of him: He hath despysed the, O virgine daughter of Sion: He hath shaken his hed at the, thou daughter of Jerusalem: whome hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reuyled? Against whome hast thou lyfted vp thy voyce and hast eleuate thyne eyes so vyghe? Euen against the holy of Israell. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lord and sayde, with the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, & haue cut of the vyghe Cedar trees, and the lustre fyrre trees therof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth therto. I haue dygged & dronke straunge waters, and haue dryed vp with the soles of my fete poles enclosed. But hast thou not hearde howe I haue ordeyned suche a thinge a greate whyle ago, and haue prepared it frome the beginninge? And nowe I bringe it forth, and it shulde be to destroy, and to bringe stronge cyties, in to rude heapes of stones. And the enhabitauntes of them shall be of lytle power, and faynte dreed and confounded. * They shalbe as the grasse of the felde, and grene herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses which withereth or it come to any heyght. I wote where thou dwellest, and thy comminge out, and going in, and

knowe I to, and how thou fretteſt vp thy dyſ
pleſures agaynſte me. And becauſe thou fretteſt vp thy duſt ſtes agaynſt me, and that thy ragynge is come vp to myne eares: therfore I wyll put a tynge in thy noſe and a bytt in thy lyppes, and wyll bringe the backe agayne by ſame wage thou cameſt. And this ſhall be a ſygne vnto the: eate this yere of the frutes
of the ſeed that fell oute, and the nexte yere,
that waxeth of it ſelfe. And the thyrde yere
ſowe and reape, plant vyneyardes and eate
the frutes therof. For ye houſe of Juda that is eſcaped and left, ſhall yet agayne take ro-
tyng downewarde, and beare frute vpward.
For out of Jeruſalem ſhall go a remnaunt, &
a nombre that ſhall eſcape out of mount Sion: the zele of the Lorde of ✠ Hoſtes ſhall
bringe this thynge to paſſe.

Wherfore thus ſayth the Lorde ouer the kynge of Aſſyria: he ſhall not entre into this cytie, nor ſhote one arowe into it, nor come before with ſhylde nor caſte anye banke agaynſt it: but ſhall go backe agayne by waye
he came, and ſhall not come at this cytie, ſayth
the Lorde. For I wyll defende this cytie and ſaue it. For myne owne ſake & for Dauid my ſeruaunts ſake.

The ſelfe ſame nyght the Aungell of the Lorde went out and ſmote in the hoſte of the Aſſyrians an hundred foure ſcore & fyue thouſande. And when they were ryſen early in the mornynge: beholde, they were all dead coꝛſes.
And ſo Sennacherib kynge of Aſſiria auoyded
and departed and went agayne, and dwelt at Ninive. And as he was in his deuocion kne-linge in the houſe of Niſroch his God, Adramelech and Sarazar ſmote him with ye ſwerd.
And they eſcaped into the lande of Ararat, &
Aſarhadon his ſonne raygned in his ſteade.

Ezechias is ſycke and recouereth the ſygne of his health by the dyall of Achaz. He receyueth rewar-des of Berodach, and is reproued of Iſai wrause he ſhewed hym the treaſure. He dyeth and Manaſſes his ſonne raygneth in his ſteade.

CAPI. XX.

In dayes that tyme Ezechias was ſycke vn
to the deathe. And the Prophete Iſai ſonne of Amoz came to him and ſayde
to him. Thus ſayth the Lorde: put thyne houſholde in an ordre, for thou ſhalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned his face to the wall and beſought the Lorde ſayenge: Oh Lorde, remembre yet how I haue walked be fore the truely, and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy ſight, and wept a great pace. And Iſai was ſcarce gone out into the myddle of the cytie, but that the worde of the Lord came to him, ſayenge: turne
agayne and tell Ezechias the leader of my pro pie. Thus ſayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father. I haue herde thy prayer and ſeene thy teares. Beholde I wyll laye to thy dayes daye that dayes thou ſhalt go vp into ye houſe
of the Lorde. And I will lengthen thy dayes yet xv. yeres, and will deliuer bothe thee
and this cytie out of the hande of the kynge of Aſſiria, and will defende this cytie for myne
owne ſake, and for Dauid my ſeruaunts ſake.
And Iſai ſayde: bringe a lumpe of fygges.
And they brought and put it on the ſoꝛe, and
he recouered.

Then ſayde Ezechias to Iſai: What is the ſigne, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I ſhall go vp into the houſe of the Lorde the thirde daye? And Iſai ſayde: this ſigne ſhal thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hathe ſpoken: ſhall the ſhadowe go forwarde ten degrees, oꝛ go backe agayne ten degrees? And Ezechias ſayde: It is a lyght thing for the ſhadowe to go downe ten degree.
Therefore I will not that: but let the ſhadow go backwarde ten degrees. And Iſai the pro phete called to the Lorde, and he brought ye ſhadowe ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe, in the dyall of Achaz.

At this ſame ſeaſon Merodach Baladan ſy ſonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon ſent let ters and preſents vnto Ezechias, for he had herde that Ezechias was ſicke. And Ezechias har ned vnto them and ſhewed them al that was in the ſpyttery houſe, and his ſiluer and golde
and odoures and precious oyntementes and his armoure and all that was founde in his treaſure: there was nothinge in his houſe
in all his realme, that he ſhewed them not.

Then came Iſai the Prophete vnto kynge
Ezechias and ſayde to him: What ſayde theſe
men and frome whence come they to the?
Ezechias ſayde: they be come from a farre coun trey, euen frome Babilon. And he ſayde: what haue they ſeene in thy houſe? And Ezechias ſayde: all that is in my houſe haue they ſeen:
there is nothinge amonge my treaſure that I
haue not ſhewed them. And Iſai ſayde vn to Ezechias: Heare the woꝛde of the Lorde. Be holde the daye ſhall come, that all that is in thyne houſe and that thy fathers haue layde
vp in ſtoꝛe vnto this daye, ſhall be caryed to Babilon, and nothinge ſhall be left ſayeth the Lorde. And of thy ſonne that proceedeth out of the, which thou begatteſt, ſhall there be tay en awaye and ſhalbe made chamberlaynes in the palace of the kynge of Babilon. And Ez chias ſayde to Iſai: welcome be the woꝛde of the Lorde which thou haſt ſpoken. Is that ſo and trouthe be kept in my dayes.

The reſte of the actes of Ezechias, and all his power, and how he made a pole and ditch
and brought the water into the cyte, are written in the boke of Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Ezechias ſlepte with his fathers, and Manaſſes his ſonne raygned
in his ſtede.

Manaſſes reigneth agaynſte the Lorde, and ſetteth vp ydolatrie. He killeth many innocentes. He is taken priſoner, and repenteth, whereof he is reſtored to his kyngdome. After whom raygneth Amon. And laſtly Ioſias.

CAPI. XXI.

Manaſſes was twelue yeres olde when he began to raygne and raygned fyfty
and fyue yeres in Jeruſalem: his mo thers name was Hapſibah. And he dyd

diſpleaſed the Lorde, euen after the abomina cions of the heythen which the Lorde threw out before the childꝛen of Iſrael. And he wet and buylt the hyllaulters agayne, whiche Ez chias his father had deſtroyed. And he erect hy aulters to Baal and made groues, as dyd Achab kynge of Iſrael. And he bowed him ſelfe vnto all the hoſte of heauen and ſerued
them. And he buylt aulters in the very houſe
of the Lorde, of which the Lorde had ſayde: ✠ In Jeruſalem I wyll put my name. And he buylt alteres vnto all the hoſt of heuen, euen in two courtes of the houſe of the Lord. And he offred his ſonne in fyre, and obſerued diſ
mal dayes, and vſed witchcraft and maynt ay
ned ſoꝛcerers with ſpiꝛites, and tellers of foꝛ
tunes: and wrought moche wyckednelle in ye ſyght of the Lorde to angre him.

And he put an Ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the verye temple of whi
che the Lorde hadde ſayde to Dauid and to Salomon his ſonne, ✠ in this houſe and in Jeruſalem whyche I haue choſen oute of all tyꝛbes of Iſrael, wyll I put my name foꝛ ey
uer. Neyther wyll I make the fete of Iſraell moue anye more oute of the lande which I gaue theyr fathers: ſo that they wyll be by ſyghte to do all I haue commaunded them,
and all the lawe that my ſeruaunte Moſes commaunded them. But they herkened not:
for Manaſſes had led them out of the waye,
to do moꝛe wickedlye then dyd the Panyms whych the Lorde deſtroyed before the face of the childꝛen of Iſrael.

And the Lorde ſpake by his ſeruauntes the Prophetes ſayenge: becauſe Manaſſes kynge of Juda hathe done ſuche abominations, and hath wroughte wyckedly aboue all that the Amoꝛites which were before him dyd: & hathe
made Juda ſynne alſo with his Ymges: ther
fore thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſraell.
✠ Beholde, I will bringe ſuche euell vpon Jeruſalem and Juda, that the eares of all that it, ſhall tyngle at it. And I will ſtretche ouer Jeruſalem the ſquarynge lyne of Sama
ria and the plomets of the houſe of Achab.
And I will wype oute Jeruſalem, as a man
wolde wype a diſhe, and when he hath wy ped it turneth it vpſet downe. And thoughe I leue a remnaunt of myne enheritaunce, yet I will deliuer theym into the handes of theym
that hate them, and they ſhall be robbed and ſpoyled of all their enmemyes: euen becauſe
they haue done wyckedly and haue angred me
ſythens the tyme their fathers came oute of Egypte vnto this daye. And moreouer Ma naſſes ſhed innocent bloude exceedinge aboun
dauntly, in ſo moche that he replenyſhed Je ruſalem in all coꝛners, beſyde his ſynne wher with he made Juda ſynne and to do euyll in the ſyght of the Lorde. The reſt of the actes of Manaſſes and all he dyd and his ſynne that he ſynned, are written in the boke of Chroni cles of kynges of Juda. And Manaſſes layde him to ſlepe with his fathers, and was bury ed in the garden of his owne houſe, euen in the garden of Oza: and Amon his ſonne raygned
in his ſteade.

Amon was. xxij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned two yeres in Jeru ſalem. His mothers name was Meſalemeth the dwughter of Haru of Jathbah. And he dyd that diſpleaſed the Lorde as his father Ma naſſes did. He walked in all the way that his father walked in, and ſerued the Ymges that his father ſerued, and bowed hym ſelfe to theym. And he forſoke the Lorde God of his fathers, and walked not in the waye of the Lorde.

And the ſeruauntes of Amon conſpired a gainſt hym, and ſlue him in his owne houſe. But the people of the lande ſlue all that cō ſpired agaynſt kynge Amon, and made Joſias his ſonne kynge in his rowme. The reſte of the actes of Amon whiche he dyd are wꝛytten in the Chronicle of the kynges of Juda And they buryed him in his ſepulchre in the garden of Oza, and Joſias his ſonne raygned in his ſteade.

After Joſias herde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he ſendeth to Oldah the Prophetiſſe for counſill.

CAP. XXII.

Joſias was. viij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxxj. yeres in Je ruſalem. His mothers name was Jedida the doughter of Adaiah of Bezecath. And he dyd that ſemed right in the ſight of the Lord, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father and bowed neyther to the righte hande ne to the lefte.

And the. xviij. yere of his raygne kynge Jo ſias ſent Saphan the ſonne of Azalia, the ſon of Meſulam the ſcribe to the houſe of the Lord ſayenge: go to Helkia the hyghe preaſte, and let him ſumme the ſiluer that is brought into the houſe of the Lorde, whiche the kepers of the doꝛes haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the handes of the werke man that haue the ouerſyghte of the houſe of the Lorde, which ſhall gyue it to theym that worke vpon the houſe of the Lord, to repayre the decayed places therof, euen vnto carpen ters and maſons, and foꝛ to bye tymbre and hewe ſtone to repayre the houſe. Howbe it let no reckenynge be made with them of the mony that is delyuered into their handes, but let theym doo it of their conſcience. And Helkias the hyghe preeſt ſayde to Saphan the ſcribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the tem ple of the Lorde, and Helkia gaue the booke to Saphan, and he red it. And then Saphan the ſcribe went to the kynge and brought him woꝛde agayne, and ſayde: thy ſeruauntes po wred out the ſiluer that was founde in the tē ple, and haue delyuered it vnto the workemā that haue the ouerſight of the houſe of the Lord. Furthermore Saphan the ſcribe ſhewed the kynge ſayenge: Helkia the preaſt hath delyue red me here a boke. And Saphan red it before the kynge.

And the kynge as ſone as he had herarde the wordes of the booke of the lawe, he rente his clothes

clothes, and commaunded Helkia the prieſt & Ahikam the ſonne of Saphá and Achobor the ſonne of Michaia and Saphan the ſcribe, and Alahiah a ſeruaunte of the kynges, ſayinge:
Jeremy.xxi.a goo ye and ſeke of the Lorde for me and the people, and for all Juda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is foūde. For it is a great wrathe of the Lorde that is kendled vpon vs that oure fathers haue not harkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poynctes as it is wryten therin.

And Helkia the hyghe prieſte and Ahikam Achobor, Saphan, Alahia wente vnto Olda Oldah. the Prophetesse, wyfe of Sellum the ſonne of Tekuah, the ſonne of Haraham kepar of the robes, whiche Prophetesse dwelte in Jeruſalem in the ſeconde warde, and communed with her. And ſhe ſayde to them: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael. Tell the man that ſente you to me thus ſayth the Lorde: Beholde I
D wyll bringe euill vpon this place, and on the dwellers therin: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kynge of Juda hathe redde
breauſe they haue forſaken me, & haue burnte offeringes vnto other Goddes, to angre me with all the & workes of their handes. Therefore is my wrathe kendled agaynſt this place, & That is, with their ymages. and ſhall not be quenched. But to the kynge of Juda, whiche ſente you to enquyre of the Lorde, ſo ſhall ye ſaye: thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael, as touchynge the wordes whiche thou herdeſt. Breauſe thyne herte did melte, and thou makedeſt thy ſelfe before me the Lorde, when thou herdeſt what I ſpake agaynſte this place, and the inhabitauntes of the ſame how that it ſholde be deſtroyed and made a curſed: & tarenſt thy clothes and wepteſt before me: of that alſo I haue herde ſayethe the Lorde. And therfore loo, I wyll receyue the vnto thy fathers, and thou ſhalt be put vnto thy graue in peace, & thyne eyes ſhall ſe none of the euyll whiche I wyll bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kynge worde agayne.

¶ Iosias readeth Deuteronomium before the people, the purgeth downe the Idolatrie after he had taught the preaſtes thereof. He keepeth paſſouer. He was ſlayne in Mygedo. His ſon Jehoahas raygneth in his ſtede: after he was taken his ſon Jehoiakim was made kynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

Josias.xxxiiii.f And the kynge ſente and gathered vnto him all the elders of Juda and of Jeruſalem, and the kynge wente vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all the inhabitauntes of Jeruſalem with him, and the prieſtes and the prophetes and all the people bothe ſmall and great. And he redde in the audience of them all the wordes of the boke of the teſtament that was foūde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge ſtode by a pyller, and made a teſtament before the Lorde, that they ſholde walke after the Lorde, and kepe his commaundementes and his teſtimonies, and his ordinaunces, with all their hart & with all their ſoule, & make good the wordes of the ſayde appointment that were wryttē in the foreſayd boke. And all the people conſented to the appointment. Then the kynge commaunded Helkia the hyghe prieſt and the lower Prieſtes and the kepers of the dore, to bringe out of the Lordes temple all the veſſelles made for Baal, and for the grene and for all the hoſte of heauen. And he burnte them without Jeruſalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caryed the aſſhes of them into Bethel. And he put downe the ydolgrous prieſtes, whiche the kynge of Juda hadde ordeyned burne offeringes in the hyll aulters in the tyes of Juda rounde about Jeruſalem, and alſo them that burnt ſacrifices vnto Baal, to the ſonne and to the moone, and to the planets, and to all the hoſte of heauen. And he brought oute the grene frome the temple of the Lorde without Jeruſalem, vnto the brooke Cedron, and burnte it at the brooke Cedron, and ſtampte it to powdre, and caſte

the duſte therof vpon the graues of the people of the countrey. And he brake downe the ſodomytes houſes that were in the house of the Lorde, in whiche the women wouē tentes for the grene.

And he brought all the prieſtes out of the cities of Juda, and defaced the hyllaulters
where the prieſtes had burnt ſacrifice from Gabaa to Berſabe. And he brake downe the hyllaulters of the gates, that were in the en-trye of the gate of Joſua the gouernour of the cytye, whiche were on the left hande of the gate of the cytye. Neuertheleſſe the prieſtes of the hyllaulters myght not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jeruſalem, but eate they had eate of the vnleuē bread among their brethren.

And he deſtroyed Tophet alſo whiche is in the valeye of the children of Hinnom, becauſe no man ſholde offer his ſon or his daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the hor-ſes that the kynges of Juda had gyuen to the ſonne at the entryng of the house of the Lord
in the chamber of Nathanmelech the chā-berlayne which was of Parua'im, and burnt the charettes of the ſonne with fyre. And the aulters that were on the toppe of the parlour
of Achaz which the kynges of Juda had made,
and the aultares which Manaſſes had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lord,
the kynge brake downe, and came thence and
caſte the duſte of them into the brooke Cedron.

And the hyllaulters that were before Jeruſalem on the ryght hande of the mount Mi-ſheth, whiche Salomon the kynge of Iſrael had buylded to Aſtaroth the abominacion of the Zido-nites, and to Camos the abominacion of the Moabites, and to Melchom the abomination of the children of Ammon, the kynge deſtroyed, & brake the ymages, & caſte mans bones
vpon them, & defiled the place with mans bones.
Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, & the hyllaulter made by Jeroboā the ſonne of Nebat, which made Iſrael ſynne: both the aulter and alſo the hyll he brake downe and brent the hyll and ſtampte it to powdre, and burnt the grene. And as Josias tourned hym ſelfe, he eſpyed the graues that were in the mounte, and ſente and fet the bones oute of the graues and burnt them vpon the aultare
and polluted it accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaymed, whiche openlye hadde tnounced the ſame
thynges.

Then the kynge ſayde: What meaneth yonder graue ſtone that I ſe? And the men of the cytie tolde him, it is the Sepulchre of the man of God, which came frome Juda and openlye tnounced the ſelfe ſame thynges that thou haſte done to the aultare of Bethel. And he ſayde let hym be: ſe that no man moue his bones. And ſo his bones eſcaped, with the bones of a Prophete, that came oute of Samaria.

And theris all the houſes of the hyllaulters
of the cytes of Samaria, whiche the kynges
of Iſrael had made, to angre the Lorde with:
Josias put out of the waye, and dyd to them
in all poynctes as he dyd in Bethel. And he ſacrificed all the preaſtes of the hyllaultars that were there euen vpon the aultares, and burnt mans bones vpon them, and returned to Je-
ruſalem.

And the kynge commaunded all the people
ſayinge: & kepe the feaſt of paſſouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is wryttē in the boke
of this teſtament. For there was no paſſouer holden lyke that, frome the dayes of the iudges that iudged Iſrael, and thorowe oute all the dayes of the kynges of Iſrael and of Ju-
da. And in the .xviij. yere of kynge Josias, was this paſſouer holden to the Lorde in Je-
ruſalem.

Moreoure workers with ſpirites, ſothſayers, Ymages of wytchecraft, Idoles and all other abhominacions that were eſpyed in the land of Juda and in Jeruſalem, Josias put out of the waye, to make good the wordes of the lawe, which were wryttē in the booke of Helkia the preaſte founde in the house of the Lorde. Lyke vnto hym was there no kynge afore him, that turned to the Lorde with all his hart, with all his ſoule, and all his might,
euenlynge to all the lawe of Moſes, neyther
after him aroſe there any ſuche.

Notwithſtandinge the Lorde tourned not him ſelfe frome his feārce and great wrathe,
wherwith he was angrye againſt Juda vpon
all the prouocacions that Manaſſes prouoked
him. But the Lorde ſayde: I will put Juda alſo out of my ſight, as I haue done
Iſrael, and will caſt of this cytie Jeruſalem, which I haue choſen, and the house of which
I ſaide, my name ſhalbe there.

The reſt of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are wrytten in the boke of the Chronicles of kynges of Juda.

* In his dayes Pharao Necoa, kynge of Egypte, went againſt the kynge of Aſſyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And kynge Josias went againſte him, and was ſlayne of him at Magedo when he had ſene him. And his ſeruauntes caryed hym dead from Magedo & brought him to Jeruſalem, & buryed him in his owne Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachas the ſonne of Josias, and annoynted
hym, and made hym kynge in his fathers
rowme.

Joachas was thre and twenty yeres
olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned
three monethes in Jeruſalem. His mothers name was Hamutal, the doughter of Jeremia of Lobnah. And he dyd that diſpleaſed the Lorde, in all thinges as his fathers had done.
And Pharao Necoa put him in bondes at Re G blad, in the lande of Hemath, in the tyme of his raygne in Jeruſalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of ſiluer and a talente of golde. And Pharao Necoa made Eliakim, the ſonne of Josias, kynge, in the rowme of Josias his father, and tourned his name to Joakim, and toke Joachas awaye, Jeremy.xxiij whyche when he came to Egypte, dyed
there.

And Joakim gaue the ſiluer and the golde
to Pharao: howbe it he taxed the lande, to gyue the money at the commaundemente of Pharao, and as euery man was ſet at, ſo he requyred the ſiluer and the golde of the people of the lande, to gyue Pharao Necoa. Jo-akim was fyue and twenty yeres olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jeruſalem. His mother was named Zebda the doughter of Phadaia of Rama.
And he dyd that was euyll in the ſyghte of the Lorde, lyke in all thynges as dyd his fathers.

¶ Joakim dyeth, and after him ſucceadeth Joachin: Jeruſalem is beſyeged of the Babilonians. Joachin yeldeth him ſelfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his rowme came Mathaniah, whiche was called Zedekias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

In his dayes came Nabuchodonoſor kynge & of Babilon, and Joakim became his ſeruaunte three yeres, and then tourned and rebelled agaynſte hym. And the Lorde ſent vpon hym men of warre oute of Caldee, oute of Syria, oute of the Moabites, and frome the children of Ammon: and ſente them into Juda, to deſtroye it, accordynge to the ſay-
enge of the Lorde whiche he ſpake by his ſeruauntes the Prophetes. Only at the bydding of the Lorde happened it ſo to Juda, to put them oute of his ſight, for the ſynne of Ma-naſſes accordinge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he ſhed and fylled Jeruſalem with innocent bloude, whiche the Lorde
wolde not forgyue.

The reſt of the dedes of Joakim and all he
dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Joakim layd him to ſlepe with his fathers, and Joacin his ſonne raygned
in his ſtede. But the kynge of Egypte,
As came

came now no moze onte of his lande: for the kynge of Babilon had taken frome the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kynge of Egypte. Joacin was eyghtene yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned in Jerusalem three monethes. His mothers name was Nehustha the doughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde in all poyntes as his father dyd.

Daniel.i.a

✱ In his tyme came the seruauntes of Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babylon, to Jerusalem and the cytie was beseged. And Nabuchodonozor came to the cytie as his seruauntes were yet besegynge of it. ✱ And Joacin the kynge of Juda came out to the kynge of Babylon, with his mother, his seruauntes, his Lordes and his chamberlaynes. And ꝑ kynge of Babilon toke him, in the eyght yere of his raygne.

✱Hester.ii.a.

And he caryed out thence all the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vesselles of golde which Salomon kynge of Israell hadde made, in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lord had sayde. And he caryed awaye all Jerusalē, and all the Lordes and all the men of myght, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuite and all craftes men and Joyners, none remayninge saue the poore people of the lande. And he caryed awaye Joacin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caryed he awaye frome Jerusalem to Babilon. And all the men of actiuite to the nombre of seuen thousande, and craftesmen ꝛ toyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kynge of Babilon bring to Babilon to dwell. ✱ And the kynge of Babilon made Mathaniah his fathers brother, kynge in his stede, and chaunged his name and called him Zedekia.

ii.Par.xxxvi.b Jerem.xxv.a

Zedekia was one and twentye yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital / the doughter of Jeremia, of Lobnah. And he dyd euyll in the sight of the Lorde, in all poyntes lyke to Joakim. For throughe the wrathe of the Lorde it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, butyll he had cast them out of his sight. And the sayde Zedekia rebelled against the kynge of Babilon.

¶ By the rebellynge of Zedekia is the towne of Jerusalem besieged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sonnes of Zedekia are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put oute. Juda is brought to Babilon, and after is Joacin exalted.

CAP. XXV.

A Jerem.xxxix.a. and.lii.a

Wherfore in the nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon with al his power to Jerusalem: and pitched against the towne and made engynes against it on euery syde. And the cytye continued besyeged vnto the eleuenth yere of kynge Zedekias. And the nynth daye of the fourth moneth of that yere, there was so great hunger in the cytie, that there was no sustinaunce for the people of the lande.

And the cytie was broken vp: wherfore all the men of Armes fled by night, by a way that stode a gate, betwene two walles harde by ꝑ kynges garden: the Caldeys lyenge about the cytie.

Then the kynge went strayght towarde ꝑ wyldernesse. And the host of the Caldeys followed after him, and toke him in the wyldernesse of Jericho, all his armye beynge scattered awaye frome him. When they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon to Reblah, whiche impeched him of treason. And they slewe the sonnes of Zedekias before his eyen, and put out the eyen of Zedekias, and fettered him, and caryed him to Babilon.

In the seuenth daye of the fifthe monethe which was in the nyneteth yere of kyng Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, came Nabuzaradan seruaunte of the kynge of Babilon, ꝑ chiefe Capitayne vnto Jerusalem: and burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Jerusalem, and al great houses with fyre. And all the host of the Caldeyes that were with the chiefe Capitayne: brake downe the walles of Jerusalem rounde about. And the reste of the people that were lefte in the cytye, and they in that were fledde to the kynge of Babilon, and the reste of the commen people, Nabuzaradan the chiefe Capitayne caryed awaye, and lefte of the poore of the lande to dresse the vynes, and to tyll ꝑ grounde.

And the pyllers of brasse that were in the house of the Lorde and the bottomes, and the brasen see that was in the house of the Lorde, the Caldeyes brake, and caryed the brasse of them to Babilon. And the lauers, scoueles, dyssynge knyues, ladelles, and the mynistring vesselles of brasse, they caryed awaye. And fyrepannes, and basens that were eyther of golde or siluer, toke the chiefe Marshall awaye with the two pyllers ꝛ the see of brasse, and the bottomes which Salomon had made in the house of the Lorde. The brasse of all these vessellis was without wayght. The heyght of the one pyller, was .xviii. cubytes, and the heed thereon was brasse, and three cubites longe with a wrethe and pommegranates roundabout vpon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fashion was the seconde pyller ꝑ a wreth.

And the chiefe Capitayne toke Saraiah the chiefe preaste, and Zophoniah the hyghe preast saue one, and three keepers of the dore. And out of the cytie he toke a certayne chamberlayne that had the ouersight of the men of warre, and fyue men that were euer in the kynges presence, which were founde in the cytye, and Sopher the Capitayne of the hoste ꝑ taught the people of the lande ꝑ feates warre and three score men of the people of the lande that that were founde in the cytie also. And Nabuzaradā the chiefe Capitayne toke thē ꝛ brought them to the kynge of Babylon to Reblah. And the kynge of Babilon smote them ꝛ slewe them at Reblah in the lande of Hemath. And so Juda was caryed awaye out of theyr land.

f Iuda

And ouer the people that remayned in the lande of Juda, which Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babylon left, he set Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan. And when all the capitaynes of the men of warre and the men yede that the kynge of Babylon hadde made Godoliah gouernor: there came to Godoliah to Mazphah: Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah and Johanan the sonne of Kareah ꝛ Saraiah the sonne of Thanehumeth the Netophathite and Jezoniah the sonne of Maachathi and their men. And Godoliah sware to them, and to their men, and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruauntes of the Caldeyes, but dwel in the lande and serue the kynge of Babilon and ye shalbe in good state.

g

But it chaunced the seuenth moneth after, that Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah the son of Elisama of the kynges bloude came, and ten men with him, and smote Godoliah that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes ꝛ the Caldeyes that were with him at Mazphah. Wherupon all the people both smal and great and the Capitaynes of the mē of warre arose, and went to Egypte: for they were afrayed of the Caldeyes.

Notwithstandinge yet the thirtye and seuenth yere, after Joacin kynge of Juda was caryed awaye, the twenty and seuenth day of the twelfte moneth, dyd Euilmerodach kynge of Babilon lyft vp the heed of Joacin kynge of Juda out of the pryssonne house, and spake kyndly to him, and set his seate aboue ꝑ seate of all the kynges that were with him in Babilon, and chaunged his pryson garmentes.

And he dyd euer eate bred before him all the dayes of his lyfe. And a cōtinual pozcion was alligned him of the kynge, frome daye to daye as longe as he lyued.

¶ The genealogye of Ruben and Gad and of the halfe tribe of Manasses.

CAPI. V.

THe sonnes of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel: for he was the eldest. * But because he defyled his fathers bedde, his byrthe ryghte was gyuen vnto the sonnes of Joseph the sonne of Israel / and so he is not reckened vnto the byrthe ryghte. For vnto Juda whiche was myghtye amonge his brethren, was gyue the principalitye before him. But the byrthe ryghte was gyuen Joseph. The sonnes then of Ruben, the eldest sonne of Israell: were Henoch: Phalu, Hezrom, & Carmi.

The sonnes of Joel: Samaiah, and his sonne Gog, and his sonne Semei, and his sonne Micah, and the sonne of him was Reaiah, and his sonne was Baal, and Beerah was his sonne. Whiche Beerah Thiglath Phalneser kynge of Assira caryed awaye: for he was a greate Lorde amonge the Rubenytes. But vnto his brethren in theyr kynredes / when they are reckened after theyr byrthe / were Jeiel, and Zacharias the chiefe heades.

And Bala the sonne of Azan the sonne of Sema, the sonne of Joel, dwelte in Aroer and so forthe vnto Nebo, and Baalmaon.

B And Eastwarde he enhabyted vntyll the wildernesse / euen vpon the ryuer Euphrates / for theyr catell was moche in the lande of Galaad.

And in the dayes of Saul, they warred with the Hagarites, whiche were ouerthrowen by theyr handes. And they dwelte in theyr tentes throwe out all the Eastlande of Galaad.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer against them in the lande of Basan / euen vnto Salcah. And in Basan, Joel was the chefest and Saphan the nexte, then Jaanai and Saphat. And theyr brethren in the auncient houssholdes of them, were Michael, Mosolam, Seba, Jorai, Joacan, Zia, Eber and Heuen. These were the chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri the sonne of Jeroah Galaad ‖ sonne of Michael, the sonne of Jesisai the sonne of Jahdo the sonne of Buz. Ahi was the sonne of Abdiel the son of Guni, the heed of an auncient houssholde among them. And they dwelt in Galaad & in Basā and her townes, and in al the suburbes of Saron / euen vnto the ende of theyr borders.

C And they were all reckened by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kynge of Juda / and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Israell. The sonnes of Ruben, of Gad, & of halfe the tribe of Manasses, euen of myghtynge men hable to beare shylde and swerde, and shot with bowe / & taught to make warres, were foure & fourty thousande, seuen hundred, and three score that went out to battayle. And they fought with the Hagarites, and with Jetur, Naphas and Nodab. And they were holpe agaynst them, & the Hagarites were delyuered in to theyr handes, w al that were w the Hagarites. For they cryed to God in the battayle, & he herd them / bycause they trusted to him. And they toke of theyr catell fyftye thousande camelles, and two hundred and fyftye thousande sheep, and two thousande asses / and of the people an hundred thousande: for there fell manye dead bycause the warre was of God. And they dwelt there in their stedes, vntyll the tyme that they were caryed awaye.

And the chyldren of halfe the tribe of Manasses dwelte in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal Hermon and Senir, and vnto mounte Hermon / and they were manye. And these were the heades of the auncient houssholdes of them: Epher, Jesi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaiah, Jehadiel, men of great power / men of name / and heades of the auncient houssholdes of them. D Josh.xiii.b :

But when they hadde transgressed agaynste the God of their fathers / & had gone a hoorying after the goddes of the people of the lande / whiche God destroyed before them / God stered vp the spirite of Phul, kyng of Assiria, and the spirite of Thiglath Phalneser kyng of Assiria / and caryed awaye the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe tribe of Manasses / & brought them vnto Helah, Habor, Hara, and to the ryuer Gozan / where they remayne vnto this daye. ¶ Of the prestes, Leuites, and of theyr offyces.

CAPI. IX.

ANd all Israel were nombred by kynredes and lo, they be wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel. And Juda were caryed awaye to Babilon for theyr offences. And the olde inhabiters that dwelte in theyr owne possessions and cities were Israel, the priestes, Leuites and Nathinetites. But in Jerusalem dwelte of the chyldren of Juda, of the chyldren of BenJamin, and of the chyldrē of Ephraim and Manasses. Othai the son of Amihud the sonne of Amri the sonne of Omri of the sonnes of Bani of the chyldren of Phares the sonne of Juda. And of Siloni, Asaiah the eldest, and his sonnes. And of the sonnes of Zerah, Jeuel with theyr brethren fyue hundred and fourscore and ten.

And of the sonnes of BenJamin: Sallu the sonne of Mosolam, the sonne of Hodauia the sonne of Hasnuah/ and Jobaniah the son of Jeroham. And Elah the sonne of Oza, the son of Mochori. And Mosolam the sonne of Saphatiah the sonne of Rauel, the sonne of Jebaniah with other theyr brethren in theyr kynredes/ nyne hundred fyfty and sixe. And all these were honourable heedes in the auncient houssholdes of them.

And of the prestes: Jedaiah, Jehoiarib and Jachin: Azarias the sonne of Helkiah the son of Mosolam/ the sonne of Sadoc/ the sonne of Maraioth the son of Achitob the chyefe in the house of God. And Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Phashor the sonne of Melchiah/ and Maasi the son of Adiel, the sonne of Jezerah, the son of Mosolam, the son of Mosolamoth, the son of Emer, with other theyr brethren, heades in the auncient houssholdes of them, a thousande, seuen hundred and sixtye actiue men in the worke of the seruice of the house of God.

And of the Leuites: Semeiah the sonne of Hasub, the sonne of Ezricam, the son of Hasabiah of the sonnes of Merari. And Bakbakar the carpenter, and Galal. And Mathaniah the sonne of Micah, the sonne of Zeri, the sonne of Asaph. Obdiah the son of Semeiah, the sonne of Galal, the son of Jeduthun. And Barachiah the son of Asa, the sonne of Elcanah that dwelte in the villages of the Nophathites.

The porters were Selum, Achub, Talmi, and Ahiman, with theyr brethren, Selum beyng the chiefe. For vnto that tyme they had watched at the kynges gate Eastwarde, in the rotes of the children of Leui by companyes. And Selum the son of Core, the son of Abiasaph, the son of Core with his brethren the Corhites in the house of theyr fathers had theyr businesse and office to kepe the woze of the tabernacle for theyr fathers in the hoste of the Lorde kepte the entreynge. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar was ruler ouer them before the Lorde whiche was with hym. And Zacharias the sonne of Mosolamiah kepte the wast of the tabernacle of wytnesse. All these were chosen men to kepe the treeholdes, two hundred and twelue, and were nombred in theyr lylages. And them dyd David and Samuel the Seare ordeyn in theyr faythfulnesse. And their childre had the ouerlyghte of the gates of the house of the Lorde, and of the house of the tabernacle to kepe them.

In foure quarters were the kepers: towarde the East, West, Northe, and Southe/ and theyr brethren that were in the countreye came in theyr weekes as theyr course came aboute with them. For the Leuites were committed to these foure principall porters vpon theyr credence. And they had the ouerlyghte of the chambres, and treasures of the house of God, and kepe all myghte rounde aboute the house of God: bycause the keppnge thereof pertayned to them, and to open it euerye morynge. And certayne of them hadde the rule of the ministrynge vesselles, and broughte them in and out by tale. And of them were certayne appointed to ouerse the vesselles, and all holye ornamentes, and of the floure, wyne, oyle, franke encense and swete odoures. But certayne of the sonnes of the preestes were sette to make swete sauoures.

And Mathathiah one of the Leuytes/ the eldest sonne of Helum: the Corachite, hadde the ouerlyghte of the thynges that were bakē in the fryenge panne. And other of theyr brethren the sonnes of Caahath hadde the ouerlyghte of the shewebreed, to prepare agaynste all Sabbathes. These are the syngers, auncyent heedes amonge the Leuites, diuyded by chambers: for they had to do bothe daye and myght. These were the auncient among the Leuites in theyr generations. And these dwelt in Jerusalem.

And in Gabaon dwelte Jeuell the father of Gabaon, whose wyfe was called Maacah. And his eldest sonne was Abdon, then Sur, Cis, Baal, Ner and Nadab: Gedor, Ahio, Zacharias and Makeloth. These are the sonnes of Azel.

¶ The battayle of Saul agaynste the Philistines: wherin he dyeth and his sonnes also.

CAPI. X.

ANd the Philistines fought agaynst Israel/ and the men of Israell fledde before the Philistines, and were ouerthrowen and slayne in mounte Gelboe. And the Philistines pursued Saul and his sonnes, and slewe Jonathas, Abinadab, and Melchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayle wente sore agaynste Saul/ in so moche that the shoters mette hym/ and he was wounded of the shoters. Then sayde Saul to his weapon bearer: drawe thy swerde and thrust me thorowe therwith, that these vncircumcised come not and mo me shame. And his weapon bearer wolde not, but feared exceedyngly. Wherupon Saul caughte a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnesbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell on a swerde also and dyed.

And thus Saul and his thre sonnes, and all his house dyed together. And when all the men that dwelte in the valeyes sawe how they fledde/ and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they forsoke theyr cityes and ran awaye/ and the Philistines came and dwelte in them.

On the morowe when the Philistines came to stryppe the deed bodyes, they founde Saul and his sonnes ouerthrowen in mounte Gelboe. And when they had strypt hym, they toke his heed and his harnesse and sent theym into the lande of the Philistines rounde aboute to shewe tydynges vnto theyr goddes and to the people: And they put his harnesse in the houses of theyr goddes. But his heed they hanged in the house of Dagon. And when all they of Jabes in Galaad herde all that the Philistines had wone to Saul, all the men of warre arose and sette awaye the bodye of Saul, and the bodyes of his sonnes and broughte them to Jabes, and buryed the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

Thus Saul dyed for his trespace that he trespaced agaynste the Lorde, in that he kepte not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he asked counsell of a woman that wroughte with a spirite, and asked not of the Lorde. And therfore the Lorde kylled hym, and tourned the kyngdome vnto David the sonne of Isai.

¶ After the death of Saul is David annoynted in Hebron. The Jebusites rebell agaynst David, from whyche he taketh the Towre of Sion. His men are nombred.

CAPI. XI.

A Then all Israel assembled to David vnto Hebron and sayd: se, we be thy bones and thy flesche. And moreouer in tyme past when Saul was kynge, thou leddest Israel out and in, and the Lorde thy God sayde vnto the: thou shalte leade my people Israel, and shalt be capitayne ouer my people Israel. And when all the elders of Israell were come to the kynge of Hebron, David made a couenaunt with them there, before the Lorde. And they annoynted David kynge ouer Israel, according to the worde of the Lord by the hand of Samuel. David also and all Israel went to Jerusalem, whiche is Jebus: for there dwelte the Jebusites the inhabitauntes of the lande. And the inhabitauntes of Jebus sayd to David, thou commest not here. Nuertheles Da-

Dauid wan the castell of Sion, whiche is called the cityе of Dauid. Then sayde Dauid: who so euer smyte the Jebusites fyrste, shall be the vnycpall capitayne and a lorde. And Joab the sonne of Saruiah went fyrst vp, and was therfore the chiefe capitayne. And bicause Dauid dwelte in the castell, it was called the city of Dauid. And he buylt the city on euery syde from Mllo rounde about. But Joab repayred the reste of the cityе. And Dauid prospered and waxed great, and the Lorde of hostes was with hym.

L 11. Reg. xxiii. a

* These are the principall men of power that clane to Dauid in his kyngdome with all Israel, to make hym kynge vpon Israel accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, which he spake to Israel. And this is the nombre of the mighty men which Dauid had: Isbaam the sonne of Hachamoni the chyefe of thirtye, he lyfte vp his spere agaynst thre hundred, & slew them at one tyme.

After him Eleazar the son of Dodo his vncle an Ahothite, whiche was one of the three myghtyest, he was with Dauid at Phasdamin where the Philistines were gathered to battayle. In whiche place was a parcell of grounde full of barleye, and the people fledde for feare of the Philistines. And they stepte forth in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slewe the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue a great victorye.

D And the three of the thyrtye chiefe, went to a tocke to Dauid at the caue Odollam, whē the hoste of the Philistines had pytched in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid was in an hold. And there was a garrison of the Philistines at Bethlehem the same tyme. And Dauid longed

11. Reg. xxiii. c

and sayd. * Oh, that one wolde gyue me of the water of the wel of Bethlehem that is in the gate for to drinke. And these iij. brake thorow the hoste of the Philistines, and drewe of the water of the well of Bethlehem, that was in the gate, and toke it and brought it to Dauid. Neuertheles Dauid wolde not drynke of it, but offered it to the Lorde, and sayd: God forbyd it me that I sholde do this thing, to drinke the bloude of these men § haue put their lyues in ieopardye (for with the ieopardie of their lyues they brought it) and therfore he wolde not drynke it. This did the three myghtyest.

L And Abisai the brother of Joab was capitayne of the three / and he lyfte vp his spere agaynste three hundred and slewe them, and had a name amonge the three. And he was moche more noble then any of the three, & was their capitayne, but was not lyke to any of the three in actes.

Banaiah, the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a stronge man that had wne great dedes, & was of Cabzeel: he slew two strong lyons of Moab, and went downe and slewe a lyon in a pit in tyme of snowe and he slewe an Egyptian, whose stature was fyue cubites longe, and in his hand had a spere like a weuers beame. And the other went to him with a wasser, and plucked the spere out of the Egyptians hand, and slewe him with his spere. Suche thynges dyd Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and had a name with the three myghtyest, and was the more glorious of thyrtye: but attayned not vnto the three. And Dauid made hym of his secret counsell.

And these were the best men of warre of the hoste: Asael the brother of Joab, and Elhanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem. Samoth the Harorite, Helez the Phalonite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Thekuite, Abiezer § Anathothite. Sobocai the Husathite, Ilai the Ahohite. Maharai the Netophathite, and Heled the sonne of Baanah the Nethophathite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gabaah that pertayned vnto the children of Benjamin: Banaiah the Pharathonite: Hurai of the ryuers of Gaas. Abiel the Arbathite: Azmoth the Bahurimite, Eliahaba the Saalbonite. The sonnes of Hasem the Gezonite, Jonathan the sonne of Sage, an Hararite: Ahiam the sonne of Sarar the Hararite, Eliphal the sonne of Ur. Hepher the Mecherathite, Ahiah the Phalonite. Hezro the Carmelite, and Naari the son of Ezbai. Joel the brother of Nathan: Mibahar the sonne of Gari: Zelec an Ammonite and Naharai a Beerothite the bearer of the harnesse of Joab the sonne of Zaruiah: Ira the Ithrite, and Gared a Jethrite, Urias the Hethite, Zabad the sonne of Ohalai: Adina the sonne of Siza a Rubenite, and an heed amonge the Rubenites, and thirty about hym: Hanan the son of Maacah, and Jonaphat a Mathanite: Ozrah an Astharothite: Hama & Jaiel the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediael the sonne of Zamri and Joha, his brother Thosites: Eliel a Mahumite. And Jeribai and Josaiah the sonnes of Elnaem and Jethma a Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Jasiel of Sobaiah.

¶ What they were that went with Dauid when he fledde frome Saul.

CAPL XII

And these folowynge came to Dauid to Zikeleg whyle he yet kepte hym selfe close for feare of Saul the son of Cis, and they were of the men that succoured him in battayle, weaponed with bowes, and could handle stones, arowes and bowe, as well with the lefte hande as with the ryght, and were of Saules brethren, euen of the tribe of Benjamin. The chyefest were Ahiezer and Joas the sonnes of Hamaah a Gabaonite, and Jesiel Phalite, the sonnes of Azmoth. Baracah and Jehu of Anathoth / & Ismaiah a Gabaonite as mighty as any of thyrtye, and more myghty. And Jeremiah, Jehaziel, Johanan and Josabad of Gedor, Eleusai, Jerimoth, Baaliah, Semeriah and Saphatiah: Haraphites, Elkanah, Jesiah, Azarel, Joezer, Jasebeam of Korhites. And Joelah, and Zabadiah the sonnes of Jeroham of Gedor.

Also certayne of the Gaddites fledde vnto Dauid, when he kepte an holde in the wyldernesse, men of myght, and men apte for warre and couthe handle shylde and spere, whose faces were lyke the faces of lyons / and were also as swyfte as the roes of the mountaynes: Ezer the first, Obdiah the seconde, Eliab the thyrde, Masmannah the fourth, Jeremiah the fyfth, Ethi the sixt, Eliel the seuenth, Johanam the eyght, Elsabad the nynth. Jeremiah the tenth, and Machbanai the eleuenth. These were of the sonnes of Gad, and were capitaynes ouer men of warre, the small ouer an hundred, and the greate ouer a thousande. These are they that went ouer Jordan in the first moneth, when he had fylled ouer all his bankes / and they put to flyght them of the valeye, both of the east syde and also the west.

And there came of the children of Benjamin and Juda, to the holde of Dauid. And Dauid went out to them, and answered and sayd to them: Yf ye be come peasably vnto me, to helpe me, myne herte shall be together with you. But yf you come to beguyle me, and to be myne aduersarye, sythe there is no wyckednesse in myne handes, the God of our fathers loke theron and rebuke it. And the spirite came vpon Amasai a capitayne ouer thyrtye / and he sayde / thyne are we Dauid, and on thy syde thou son of Jai: * peax be with the, and peax with thyne helpers / for thy God helpeth the. Then Dauid receyued them, & made them heedes al companyes of men of warre.

And there fell of Manasses to Dauid when he went with the Philistines agaynste Saul, to battayle, but holpe them not. For the lordes of the Philistines toke counsell and sente hym worde, sayinge: he wyll fall to his master Saul to the ieopardie of our heedes. And as he went to Zikeleg, there fell to him of Manasses Adnah, Jozabad, Jediel, Michael of Jozabad, Elihu, and Zilethai, heedes of the thousandes of Manasses. And they holpe Dauid agaynst thole routers. For they were all mighty men, and capitaynes in warre. And there came one & other to Dauid daye by daye, to helpe him: vntyl it was a greate hoste, lyke the hoste of God.

And this is the nombre of the heedes prepared to battayle, that came to Dauid to Hebron to turne the kyngdome of Saul to him, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde.

The children of Juda that bare shylde and spere, were sixe thousande and eyght hundred well furnyshed to warre. Of the children of Simeon, men of mighte to warre, seuen thousande, and one hundred. And of the children of Leui, were foure thousande and sixe hundred. And Joiada was the chyefe of them of Aaron, and with him thre thousande and seuen hundred. And Sadock a yonge man of greate power, had his fathers houshold with capitaynes two and twentye. And of the children of Benjamin § brethre of Saul, were thre thousande. And a great part of them dyd yet folow the house of Saul.

And of the children of Ephraim, were twenty thousande, & eyght hundred, men of might, and named men in the houholdes of their fathers. And of the halfe tribe of Manasses xviij thousande, which were appoynted by name to go to make Dauid kynge. And of the children of Issachar, which were men that had vnderstandyng in the eyght tyme to know what Israel ought to doo. The heedes of them were two hundred, and all their brethren at their wyll. And of Zabulon that went out with the host, and proceded in araye to battayle with all maner of wepons of warre / sixty thousande that kepte in araye with one accorde. And of Nephthali a thousande capitaynes / and with them with shylde and spere seuen and thyrtye thousande. And of Dan prepared to battayle, were eyght and twenty thousande and sixe hundred. And of Aser that wente out with the hoste to make battayle, fourtye thousande. And of the other syde Jordan, of the Rubenites, Gaddites, and of the halfe tribe of Manasses, with all manner of habilimentes of warre an hundred & twentye thousande.

H All these dyenge men of warre, hable to ordre the araye, came to Hebron with pure herte, to make Dauid kynge vpon all Israel. And more ouer, all the rest of Israel was of one accorde to make Dauid kynge. And there they were with Dauid thre dayes eatyng and drynkinge: for their brethren prepared for them. Moreouer they that were nye to them: as Issachar, Zabulon and Nephthali, broughte breed on asses, camelles, mules, and oxen, and meate: flloure, figges, rosynges, wyne, oyle, oxen, and shepe abundantly. For there was myrthe in Israel.

¶ The Arcke is brought agayne from Cariath § Jarim to Jerusalem. Oza dyer h.

CAPL XIII.

And Dauid counselyed with the graund capitaynes, and petye capitaynes, and with all the lordes / and sayde vnto all the congregacion of Israel: yf it seme you good and also to be of § Lorde our God, let vs take and sende vnto the remnaunt of our brethren thrōwe out all the lande of Israel, and to the preestes and Leuites with them in their cities and suburbes, and gather them together to vs. and let vs bringe agayne the arcke of God to vs: for we regarded it not in § dayes of Saul. And all the congregacion was contente so to do / for the thyng semed good in the eyes of al the people.

And Dauid gathered all Israel together frō B Sihor in Egypt vnto Hemath, to bringe the arcke of the Lorde frome Kariath Jarim. And Dauid went vp and all Israel to Baalah, and so to Kariath Jarim that is in Juda, to fet thence the arcke of the God and Lorde that sytteth on the Cherubes, where his name is called on. And they caryed the arcke of God in a newe carte oute of the house of Aminadab. And Oza and Ahio drane the carte. And Dauid and al Israel played before God with al their myghte, with syngynge, harpes, psalteryes, tymbrelles, and trompettes. And when they came on the threshyng flooze of Chidon, Oza put forth his hande to holde the arcke / for the oxen stombled. And the Lord was wroth with Oza and smote him, bicause he put his hande ¶ Peres vnto this daye. And Dauid was so atraydo of God that daye, that he sayde, how shall I bringe the Arcke of God home to me?

And so Dauid brought not the Arcke home to him to the cytye of Dauid: But turned it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the Arcke of God was with Obed Edom in his house, thre monethes. And the Lorde blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that he had.

¶ Hiram sendeth woode and workemen to Dauid. Dauid begetteth children, after he had taken hym wyues. He hath two victories of the Philistines.

CAPI. XIIII.

A
1. Reg. 5. b.
Then Hiram kynge of Tyre sent messengers to Dauid, and tymbre of Cedar trees with masons and carpenters, to buylde hym an house. Wherby Dauid per-ceyued that the Lorde had prepared him to be kynge vpon Israel, in that his kyngdom was lyfte vp on hygh, because of his people Israel.
And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem and begat mo sonnes & daughters. And these are the names of his children whiche he had borne him at Jerusalē: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, and Salomon: Jebhar, Elisua, and Celiphalet: Noga, Nepheg, and Japhiah, Elisama, Baliada, and Eliphelet.

B And when it was knowen amonge the Philistines, that Dauid was anoynted kyng vpon all Israel, all the Philistines went vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid herde of it, and went out agaynste them. And the Philistines came & praunced in the valeye of Raphaim.
And Dauid asked God, sayinge: Shall I goo
agaynst the Philistines? and wylt thou deli-uer them in to myne handes? And the Lorde sayde to him: go, for I will deliuer them into thyne handes. And when they were come as ferre as ¶ Baal Pharazim, Dauid slet the

there. And Dauid sayde: God hathe deuyded myne enemyes with myne handes as a man wold deuide water. And therfore they called the name of the sayde place Baal Pharazim.
D And they left theyr gods there, which Dauid
bad to be burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came agayne and ran abrode in the valey. Then Dauid asked God:
And God sayd to him go not after them, but
turne awaye from them, and come vpon them streyght from the pere trees. And when thou hearest a sounde of one ¶ go in toppes of the pere trees, then goo oute to battaple: for God wyll go out before the to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid did as God comaunded him. And they smote the hoste of the Philistines all the waye frome Gabaon to Gazer, and the fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nations
feare him.

¶ The Leuites bringe agayne the Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde. Dauid daunsynge before it is despysed of his wyfe Micholl, the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XV.

AND Dauid made him houses in the cyte of Dauid, and prepared a place for the Arcke of God, and pitched for it a tent. And then Dauid sayd, the Arcke of God
oughte not to be carped but of the Leuites.
For them hath the Lorde chosen to beare the Arcke of the Lorde and to mynyster to him for euer. And therfore Dauid gathered all Israel to Jerusalem, to fetche the Arcke of the Lorde
vnto the place, whiche he had ordeyned for it.
And Dauid brought together the children of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Co-hath: Uriel the chiefe, and of his brethren a hundred and twentye. And of the children of Merari: Asaiah the chiefe, and of his brethren
two hundred and twentye. And of the sonnes of Gerson Joel the chief, and of his brethren an hundred and thirtye. And of the children of Elizaphan: Semeiah the chief, and of his brethren two hundred. And of the sonnes of Hebron Eliel the chief, and of his brethren fourscore. And of the sonnes of Oziel, Amman the chiefe, and of his brethren an hundred and twelue.

And Dauid called to Sadock and Abi-
that the priestes, and to the Leuites Uriel, Asaiah Joel, Semeiah, Eliel, and Ammiuadab,
and sayde vnto them: ye are the principall
heedes of the Leuites, sanctifye therselues
selues and your brethren, and bringe the Arke
of the Lorde God of Israel vnto the place
I haue prepared for it. For because ye not there at the fyrste tyme, the Lorde our God hathe deuyded vs, for that we sought him not as the fashion ought to be. And the priestes and the Leuites sanctified themselues, to fet the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel. And the children of the Leuites bare Arcke of God vpon theyr shoulders with ues as Moses commaunded, according to worde of the Lorde. And Dauid spake to chiefe heedes of the Leuites, that they appoynt of theyr brethren to synge with struumentes of musycke Psalteryes, Ha
and Symbales that sounded, and to syng brygne with ioyfulnesse. And the Leuites a poynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and o
his brethren, Asaph the sonne of Barachi
And of the sonnes of Merari theyr brethren Ethan the sonne of Cusaiahu. And with theyr brethren the seconde degree: Zecha-
ah, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jah
Uni, Eliab, Banaiah, Maaseiah, Mat
thiah, Eliphelehu, Machaniah, Obed Edom, and Jaiel, porters. Heman, Asaph, and Ethan sange with cymbales of brasse to make a noise.
And Zechariah, Oziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Ani, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Banaiah sange
with psalteries on an ¶ Almoth. And Mat-thiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed Edom, Jeiel, and Oziah sange with harpes, and were aboue to courage with all. And Conanias the chiefe of the Leuites was maister of the song,
and taught to synge / for he was a man of vnderstandynge.

And Barachias and Elcana kepte the

of the Arcke. And Sacaniah, Josaphat, Nathanael, Amasai, Zacharias, Banaiah, and Eliezer priestes, were blowers with trompettes before the arcke of God. And Obed-Edom and Jahiah were keepers of the wore of the arcke. ✣ And Dauid and the elders of Israel, and the Capitaynes ouer thousandes wente to fet the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of the house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God had holpe the Leuites that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym an albe of lynne, and so had the Leuites that bare
the arcke, and so had the syngers, and Cona-
niah the ruler of the songe and of the syngers.
And Dauid had moreouer vpō him an Ephod
of lynnen. And all Israell brought the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with shoutyng and with blowynge of hornes, and with trompet-tes and cymbales that sounded, and with psal
tryes and harpes.

And as the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came in to the cyte of Dauid, Michal the doughter of Saul loked oute at a wyndowe: and when she sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playinge, she despised hym in her herte.

¶ After the Arcke was brought, Dauid ordeyneth dayly and his brethren to ministre before the Lord. And he prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

CAPI. XVI.

WHen they had brought in ✣ arcke of God,
they set it in the tente, that Dauid had pitched for it. And they brought burnt sacrifice and peaceofferynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeryng of burntofferinges and of peaceofferynges, he blessed the people with the name of the Lord. And he dealte to all Israel bothe man and woman
a cracknell of breed, a pece of flesshe, & a messe
of soppes.

And he appoynted certayne of the Leuites
to ministre before the Lorde, and to repete,
and to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel, that is to wete: Asaph the chief, and next to him Zacharias, then Jeiel, Semira-
moth, Jehiel, Mathathi, Eliab, Banaiah, Obed Edom, and Jeiel with psalteryes and harpes. But Asaph with soundynge cymbales and Banaiah & Jahaziel priestes with trompettes contynuallye before the arcke of the couenaunt of God. In that tyme Dauid dyd first appoynte chiefly to thanke the Lorde, Asaph
and his brethren. ✣ Thanke the Lorde, call on his name, make his actes be knowen amonge
the people.

Synge vnto him and play vnto him, and reporte all his wonderfull actes. Prayse his holy name. And let the hertes of them that seke the Lord reioyce. Seke the Lord and his strength:
seke his presence alwaye.

Remembre his meruayles whiche he dyd,
and his wonders, and the iudgementes of his mouth: Thou seed of Israel are his seruauntes:
the children of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lorde our God: & in all landes are his iudgementes. Thynke on his appoynted euer, & on the worde which he commaunded to a thousande generations. Of his couenaunt to Abraham, and of his othe to Isaac, which he set before Jacob for a lawe, and to Israel for an euerlastyng couenaunt, sayinge: to the I will gyue the lande of Canaan, to be the portion of your enheritaunce. When you were a smalle company in nombre, euen but a fewe, and ther-to straungers therin. And they went from peo ple to people, and frome one kyngdome to an other nation. He suffered no man to do them
wronge: But rebuked kynges for their sakes.
Touche not myne anoynted, nor do my Pro-pheetes anye harme. ✣ Synge vnto the Lorde Psal. 95. a
all the erth, and shewe from daye to daye his victories.

Tell amonge the Heathen of his glorye
and amonge all nacyons of his wonderfull
dedes.

For greate is the Lorde, and to be prays
ed exceedyngly: and feerefull is he aboue all goddes.

For all the goddes of the heathen are vayn: D
but the Lorde made heuen.

Prayse & honour are in his presence: strength
and gladnes are in his place.

Ascribe to the Lord, ye kynredes of people: ascribe to the Lorde glory and strength.

Gyue honour vnto the Lordes name: bring presentes and come before him, and bowe to the Lorde in holy apparell.

All the earthe trare hym, he stablysshed the earthe that it can not moue. The heauen reioyce, and the earthe be gladde / and let men tell amonge the nations, that the Lorde is a kynge.

Let the see sounde and his fulnesse, and let the feldes reioyce and all that are therin.

Let the trees of the wod synge at the presence of the Lord: for he commeth to iudge the erth.

Thanke the Lorde for he is good, & his mer- D cye lasteth euer / and saye: saue vs (o God our sauiour) and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heathen, that we may thanke thy holy name, and prayse the with prayse that becommeth the. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel for euer & euer, and all nations shall saye
Amen / & prayse the Lorde.

And he lefte there before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, Asaph and his brethren,
to ministre before the arcke continually day
by daye. And Obed Edom with his brethren thre score and eyght / and Obed Edom the sonne of Jeduthum and Osah to be porters. And Sadock the priestes with his brethren the priestes
and he set before the tabernacle of the Lorde
at the hyll called of Gibaon, to offre burntofferyngs vnto the Lorde vpon the brasen offeryng aulter perpetually at mo[r]nyng and euenynge: according to all that is written in the lawe of the Lorde which he commaunded Israel. And with them Heman and Jeduthum, and other that were chosen and named by name, to thanke the Lorde, for his mercye
lasteth euer. And with them Heman and Jedu-

Iouthum were trompettes and sounding lym
bales, and instrumētes of the melodye of God.
And the sonnes of Iouthum were porters.
And then all the people departed euerye man
to his house, and David returned to loke to his household.

¶ David is forbydden to buylde an house vnto the Lorde. Christ is prefigured vnder the figure of Salomon.

CAPI. XVII.

a 2. Regū. vii. a

AND as David dwelte in his house, he sayde to Nathan the Prophete: loo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree: and the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt dwelleth vnder skynnes. And Nathan sayd to David: w al that is in thyne herte, for God is with the.
But the same nyght the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell David my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde: thou shalte not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sythens I brought out the chyldren of Israell vnto this daye: but I
haue gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to an other. Neyther in anye place where so euer I haue walked thorowe out all Israel, spake I eure one worde to anye of the Iudges of Israel which I commaunded to fede
my people, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore thus saye vnto my seruaunt David: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I toke the out of the pasture where thou kepteste shepe, that thou shuldest be captayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue ben with the in all that thou takest in hande, and haue weded out all thyne ennemyes out of thy syghte, & haue made the a name lyke the name of the greatest men of the earthe. And I wold ordeyne a place for my people Israel, and wyl
make it fast, and they shall dwelle vnder it,
and shall moue no more. Neyther shall the chyldren of wickednesse vexe them anye more,
as at the begynnynge, and sythens the tyme
I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people
Israell: and wyll bringe vnder all thyne ennemyes, (for I tolde the that the Lorde wyll buylde the an house.) But when thy dayes be expyred that thou muste go after thy fathers,
I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall be of thy sonnes, and wyl settle his kyngdom.
He shall buylde me an house, & I wyll stablisshe his seate for euer. I wyll be his father, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyl not put my mercye away from him, as I dyd from him that was before the. But I wyll set him in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer, & his seat
shall be sure for euer.

Nathan had tolde David according to all these wordes, and to all this vision, king David went and sate him before the Lord, and sayd: what am I, O Lorde God, and what is myne housholde, that thou hast promoted me
thus farre. And yet it is semed lytle in thyne eyes, O God. But that thou wouldest speake of thy seruauntes house for a great while to come:
and hast loked vpon me as vpon a man of high degree, O Lorde God. What can David adde
more of the, wherin thou wouldest make thy se-uaunt more glorious? Thou knowest thy se-uaunte: And Lorde for thy seruauntes sake,
euen accordynge to thyne owne herte, thou hast wone all this magnificence, to shewe
all bounteousnesse Lorde, there is none lyke
the, nor anye God saue thou: accordynge to all that we haue herde with oure eares. Nor ouer what nacyon on the earthe is lyke thy people Israell? whiche God wente and re-demed to be his owne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terriblenesse,
with castynge oute nacions before thy people
for euer, and thou Lorde, arte become their God.

And now (Lorde) the thynge thou hast spoken concerning thy seruaunt and his house, le it be true for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. And thy name continue and ware greate for euer, that it be sayd: the Lord of hostes, the God of Israel is God in Israel, and the house of Da-uid thy seruaunt be stable before the. For thou Lorde hast tolde thy seruaunt that thou wylt buylde hym an house. And therfore thy ser-uaunt hath founde in his herte to praye before
the. And now Lorde, thou arte the very God, and hast promysed this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore goo to, and blesse the house of thy seruaunt, that it maye continue before the for euer. For what thou blessest, O
Lorde, that is blessed for euer.

¶ The battayles of David against the Philistines.

CAPI. XVIII.

AFter this, David beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth and
the townes therunto pertenynge, out of the handes of the Philistines. And he beat the Moabytes, and the Moabytes became Dauids seruauntes, and payde hym tribute.
And David beate Hadadezer kynge of Zo-bah vnto Hemath, as he wente to stryke his dominion vnto the ryuer Euphrates. And David toke from hym a thousande chariottes,
and seuen thousande horsemen, and twenty thousande fotemen, and brake all the chari-ottes, saue that he reserued of them an hundred.
Then came the Syrians of Damasco to helpe Hadadezer kyng of Zobah. And David slew of the Syrians, two and twentye thousande,
and put garrisons in Syria Damasco: And the Syrians became Dauids seruauntes, and broughte hym tribute. For the Lorde helpe David in all that he wente about. And Da-uid toke the shyldes of golde that were on the seruauntes of Hadadezer and broughte
them to Jerusalem. And frome Thebadath & Chun, cytyes of Hadadezer, broughte Da-uid exceedinge moche brasse, wherwith Salomon afterwarde made the brasen see and the pyl-
lers and the vessellles of brasse.

And when Thou kynge of Hemath herde
how David had beaten all the hoste of Hadezer kyng of Zobah, he sent Hadoram his son to kyng David, to aske his peace, and to prayse

him, because he had foughte with Hadadezer and beaten him, (for Thou had warre w Hadadezer) and sent all maner of iewels of golde syluer and brasse with him. And kynge David dedicated them also vnto the Lorde with the syluer and golde that he brought from all nacy
ons: from the Edomites, from the Moabites,
from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from the Amalekites. And Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah slewe of the Edomites in the salt valeye xviij. thousand, and put a garrison
in Edom, and all Edom became Dauids seruauntes: for the Lorde kept David in all that he toke in hande. And David raygned ouer all Israell, and dyd ryght and equite vnto all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah was ouer the hoste, and Josaphat the son of Ahiud recorder, and Zadock the son of Achitob, and A-himelech the son of Abiathar were the preistes,
and Susa was scrybe, and Banaiah the sonne Joiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Phe lethites, and the eldest sonnes of David were
at the kynges hande.

¶ Hanon kyng of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniurye to the seruauntes of David.

CAPI. XIX.

AFter this, it chaunced that Nahas king of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his sonne made kynge in his stede. Then sayd David: I wyll shewe kyndnes vnto Hanon
the sonne of Nahas, because his father dealt kyndly with me. And therupon David sent messengers to comforte hym ouer the dethe of his father. And when the seruauntes of David were come in to the land of the childre of Ammon to Hanon to comforte hym, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thinkest thou that David dothe honoure thy father in thy syght, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Naye, but it is to serche and ouerthrowe and to shyye out the land, that his seruauntes be come vnto the.

Therupon Hanon toke Dauids seruautes and shaued them, & cut of their cotes harde by their buttockes, and sent them awaye. Then they departed, and sent David worde how they were serued and the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were exceedyngly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho vntyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chil dren of Ammon perceyued they had wone iniurye vnto David: Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sente a thousande talentes of syluer
to hyre them charettes and horsemen oute of Mesopotamia and oute of Syria Maacah and oute of Zobah. And they hyred two and thirtye thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacah and his people, whiche came & pyt-ched before Medeba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues togither from their cytyes, and marched oute to battayle. And as soone as David herde of it, he sent Joab with all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and put them in arraye to battayle before the gate of the cirye. And the kynges that were come, kepte them by them
selues in the felde.

When Joab saw that the front of the bat-
tayle was before hym and after, he chose out of all the youthe of Israell, and put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he delyuered vnto Abisai his brother,
that they shulde put them selues in araye a-gaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and sayde: yf
the Syrians be to stronge for me, succoure me/and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyll helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte,
and let vs playe the men for our peoples sake,
and for the cirye of our God, and the Lorde do what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that were with hym drewe nye to the Syrians to fyght, and they fledde before hym.
And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fledde, they ranne awaye
lykewyse from Abisai his brother, and gat them in to the cirye. And Joab came to Jerusalem. Also when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they sente messengers, and let oute the Syrians that are beyonde the ryuer with Sophach the capy-
tayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.
Whiche when it was tolde David, he assembled all Israel, and went ouer Jordan, and set vpon them. And David put him selfe in araye agaynste the Syrians, and they foughte with him. But the Syrians fledde before Israel, and David destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, and slewe fourtye thousande fotemen, and killed Sophach capitayne of the hoste. When the seruauntes of Hadadezer saw that they were put to the worse of Israel, they made peace with David, and serued hym. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

¶ The thre most victorious battayls of David.

CAPI. XX.

IN the yere folowynge about the tyme that kynges go out a warefare, Joab caryed out
the armye of the hoste and destroyed the cotrey of the children of Ammon, and went and beseged Rabah and destroyed it: But David bode at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabah
and destroyed it: * And David toke their kynges crowne from his heed, and founde therin
the wayght of a talent of golde, & there were precyous stones in it. And it was set on Da-uids heed. He broughte out also the spoyle of the cirye, whiche was exceedyng moche. And he broughte forthe the people that were in it, and tamed them with sawes and harowes of yron
and with brakes, and so dyd David with all the cytyes of the children of Ammon. And then David and all the people came again to Jerusalem. * After that, there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines, at whiche tyme Sobocai the Husathite slew Saphai that was of the chyldren of * Raphaim, and they were sub dued. And there was battayle agayn with the Philistines: and Elhanan the sonne of Iair slewe Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gi-thite.

thite, whose spere was lyke a beame of a weuer. And there chaunced yet agayne warre at Geth, where was a mã of a very long stature, with .xxiiij. fyngers & toes, fyue on euery hande, and fyue on euery foote, and was the sonne of Haraphah & defied Israel. And Jonathan the sonne of Hamaa Dauids brother, slewe hym. These were borne of Haraphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowen by the hand of Dauid, and of his seruauntes.

¶ The people are punyshed with pestilence, because Dauid caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed thyrtie score and ten thousande men.

CAPI. XXI.

AND Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, and perswaded Dauid to nombre Israell.
And Dauid sayd to Joab and the rulers of the people/ go ye and nombre Israell from Berlabe to Dan, & bringe it to me, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make thy people an hundred eymes so many moo as they be. But my lorde kynge, are they not all my lordes seruauntes? why then dothe my lorde requyre this thynge? why shoulde my lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?
Neuertheles the kynges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab toke his waye & went thorow out all Israel, and came to Jerusalem and gaue the nombre of the count of ỹ people vnto Dauid. And all Israell were in nombre a thousande thousandes, & an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was foure hundred and thre score and ten thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Beniamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges dede semed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israell. Then sayde Dauid to God: I haue synned exceedyngly in doynge this thyng. Neuertheles yet doo awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue wonne aboue measure folyshly.
And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids sear of vysyons, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid sayinge: Thus sayethe the Lorde: I gyue the the choyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayethe the Lorde: Chose the, either thre yeres sampsehement, or thre monethes to be consumed of thyne aduersaries, the swerde of thyne enemies ouertakynge the: or els the swerde of the Lorde thre dayes and pestilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord destroying thorow out all the coostes of Israel. And nowe aduyse thy selfe what worde I shal bryng agayn to hym that sent me. And Dauid said to Gad, I am in exceedynge streyghtes. But let me fall in to the handes of the Lorde / for passynge greate is his mercye, and let me not fall in to the handes of men.
And the Lorde sente pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sente the aungell to Jerusalem to destroye it. And as he was aboute to destroye, the Lorde beheld, and had compassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the aungell that destroyed, it is ynoughe, now cease thyne hande. And the aungell of the Lorde stode by the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the aungell of the Lord stand betwene the erth and heuen with a drawen swerd in his hand, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then fel Dauid and the elders of Israel clothed in sacke vpon their faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and done euyll in deed. But what haue these shepe done? let thyne hande therfore, O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to plage them.
And the aungell commaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shoulde goo and reare vp an aulter vnto the Lorde in the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid wente at the sayinge of Gad, whiche spake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan turned about, and sawe the aungell, and his foure sonnes with him, and hyde them selues: for Ornan was threshynge whete. And Dauid came to Ornan. And when Ornan loked and sawe Dauid, he wente out of the threshynge floore and bowed hym self to Dauid, with his face to the grounde.
And Dauid sayde to Ornan: gyue me the place of the threshynge floore, that I may buylde an aulter therin vnto the Lorde. Let me haue it for as moche money as it is worth, that the plage maye cease from the people.
And Ornan sayde to Dauid: take it to the/ and let my Lorde kyng do what semeth good in his eyes: lo, I gyue the oxen for a burnt sacrifice, and the threshynge sleades for wode, and whete for meate offerynge: I gyue it all.
But kynge Dauid sayde to Ornan: not so/ but I will bye it for as moche money as it is worthe. I will not take that whiche is thyne for the Lorde, and offre burnt offerynges without coste.
And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place sycles of golde sixe hundred by wayght. And Dauid buylte there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges/ and called vnto the Lorde, and he herde hym from heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntofferynge. And the Lorde commaunded the aungell to put vp his swerde agayne into the sethe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid sawe that the Lorde had herd hym in the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite, he vsed to offre there. For the tabernacle of the Lorde whiche Moses made in the wyldernesse, and the aulter of burntofferynge, were at that season in the hyll at Gabaon. And Dauid could not go before it to seke God, because he was feerde of the swerde of the aungel of the Lorde.
And Dauid sayde: This is the house of the Lorde God, and this is the burntoffering aulter for Israel.

¶ Dauid wylleth his sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: whiche thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

CAPI. XXII.

AND Dauid commaunded to gather the straungers that were in the lande of Israell, and set hewers to hewe stone, to buylde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles to the wyes of the gates, and to ioyne with all, and abonndaunce of bresse without wayght, and of Cedar trees without nombre. For the Zidons & they of Tire brought moche Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought, Salomon my sonne is yonng and tender, and the house that is to be buylte for the Lorde, must excede in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and prayse in al landes. I will therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid made greate prouision before his death.
And he called Salomon his sonne and charged him to buylde an house for the Lord God of Israel: And Dauid sayde to Salomon: * my sonne, I hadde in myne hert to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me sayinge: thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made many battelles. Thou shalt not buylde an house for my name, for as moche as thou hast shed so moche bloude to the earthe in my sight. Beholde a sonne shalbe borne the, whiche shalbe a man of reste, for I will gyue him rest fro all his ennemyes roundabout. And his name shalbe * Salomon: for I will send rest and peace vpon Israell in his dayes. He shall buylde an house for my name, & he shalbe my sonne, and I will be his father, and will stablysshe the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israell for euer. Nowe my sonne, the Lorde be with the, that thou mayst prosper & buylde the house of the Lorde thy God, as he hathe sayde of the. And the Lorde gyue the wysdom and vnderstandinge, and make the gouernor of Israel, and to kepe the lawe of the Lorde thy God. For then thou shalte prosper: yf thou shalt be diligent to do the ordinaunces and lawes whiche the Lorde charged Moses with, to delyuer to Israell. Plucke vp thyne hert and be stronge, drede not nor be discouraged. Beholde in myne aduersite I haue prepared for the house of the Lord an hundred thousande talentes of golde, and a thousand thousand talentes of syluer, and as for brasse & yron it can not be numbred, it is so moche. And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, & thou shalt prouyde more therto. Moreouer thou hast workemen ynoughe and masons and carpenters to worke in stone and tymbre, and al maner of wyse men for whatsoeuer worke it be. And of golde syluer, brasse and yron there is no nombre. Aryse therfore and set vpon it, & the Lorde shalbe with the.
And Dauid commaunded al the rulers of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne sayeng, Is not the Lorde youre God with you? and hath he not gyuen you rest on euery syde? for he hath gyuen thinhabitauntes of the lande into myne hande, and the land is subdued before the Lorde and before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes and youre soules, to seke the Lorde your God. And aryse & buylde ye the temple of the Lord God, to bringe the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde, and the holy vessellis of God into the house so buylt for the name of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid bringe olde ordeyneth Salomon kynge. he rauseth the Leuites to be nombred, and assigneth them to their offices.

CAP. XXIII.

AND when Dauid was olde and stryken in yeres, he made Salomon his sonne kynge ouer Israel. And then he gathered togither al the rulers of Israel with the preastes and the Leuites. And the Leuites were nombred from .xxx. yere and aboue, and the tale of them in men polle by polle was .xxxviij. thousand. Of which .xxiiij. thousande were set to further the worke of the house of the Lorde. And sixe thousande were officers & iudges. Foure thousand were porters & foure thousand praysed the Lorde with such instrumentes as Dauid had made to prayse with.
And Dauid put an order amonge the children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath and Merari: Of ỹ Gersomites was Laadan & Semei. The sonnes of Laadan: the chief was Jehiel, & then Zethan and Joel, thre. The sonnes of Semei Salomith, Haziel, and Haran, thre. These were the auncient heedes of Laadan. And the sonnes of Semei were also Jahath, Zinah, Jaus and Bariah: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chief, Zinah the seconde. But Jaus and Bariah hadde not many sonnes, and therfore they were reckened for one auncient housholder.
The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Jsehar, Hebron and Vziel, foure. * The sonnes of Amram: Aaron and Moses. And Aaron was appointed to consecrate in the place most holy with his sonnes for euer: and to burne the offringes before the Lorde, and to minister, and to bleste in his name for euer. And the children of Moses the man of God, were named with ỹ tribe of Leui. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson and Eliezer. And of the sonnes of Gerson: Sabael was the chiefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rohabiah the chiefe. And Eliezer hadde none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rohabiah were verye many. And of the sonnes of Jsehar: Salomi, the chiefe. The sonnes of Hebron: Jeriahu the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third and Jecmaam the fourth. The sonnes of Vziel: Micah the first and Jesiah the second. The sonnes of Merari: * Mahali: and Musi. The sonnes of Mahali: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed and had no sonnes, but doughters onely, and their brethren the sonnes of Cis toke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahali, Eder, and Jerimuth, thre. These are the children of Leui in ỹ house holdes of their fathers the auncient heedes, hewed and nombred by name & polle by polle from frome .xx. yere and above, to worke in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. For Dauid sayd the Lorde God of Israel hath gyuen rest vnto his people, and they shall dwell in Jerusalem for euer.

Moreouer the Leuites shall now no more beare the tabernacle and all the vesselles that pertayned to the seruice therof. But at the last commaundement of Dauid, the Leuites were nombred frome .xx. yere and aboue, to wayte at the handes of the sonnes of Aaron in the seruice of the house of the Lorde, and to haue the ouersyght of the courtes, and of the store houses, and of the purifyenge of all holy thynges, and of the worke of the thynges that serued for the house of God, as the shewbred, the fyne floure, the meatoffrynges, the flawnes of swete bred, and of the thinges baken in the fryenge pan, or broyled on the gridyron, and on all maner measures and syse, & to wayte euery morninge to thanke & prayse the Lorde, and lykewyse at euē. And to wayte on euery offeringe of burntsacrifices vnto the Lorde, the Sabbothes and solde dayes of the monethes, and other fraskfull dayes by nombre and custome, was their office euer before the Lorde. And that they shuld wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse and on the holy place, and on the sonnes of Aaron their brethren, in the seruice of the house of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid assygneth their office to the sonnes of Aaron.

a Leuitt.xbi.a. THe diuision of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. * But Nadab & Abihu dyed before their father and had no children. And Eleazar and Ithamar were the preastes. And Dauid ordered them on ei is maner: Zadok of the sonnes of Eleazar and Achimelech of the sonnes of Ithamar to be in office by course. And there were mo myghty heddes founde of the sonnes of Eleazar then of the sonnes of Ithamar. And he diuided them into .xbi. heddes of auncient houssholdes of the sonnes of Eleazar, and eight of the sonnes of Ithamar. And he put them in order by lot, one with an other to be rulers in the sanctuary & Lorde before God as well of the sonnes of Ithamar as of ꝑ sonnes of Eleazar. And Semeiah the son of Nathanael the scribe of the Leuites wrote the before the kynge and the Lordes, and before Zadock the preast and Achimelech the sonne of Ebiathar, and before the auncient heddes of the preastes and of the Leuites: one principal houssholde for Eleazar, and one for Ithamar.

And the first lot fell to Jehoiarib. The .ij. to Jedaiah. The .iij. to Harim. The .iiij. to Seorim. The .v. to Melchiah. The .vj. to Mijamin. The .vij. to Hakos. The .viij. to Abiah. The .ix. to Jesua. The .x. to Secaniah. The .xj. to Eliasib. The .xij. to Jakim. The .xiij. to Huphah. The .xiij. to Jsbaab. The .xv. to Belgah. The .xvj. to Emer. The .xvij. to Hesir. This is the order of them in their offices, to come into the house of the Lorde according to their manr vnder Aaron their father, as the Lorde God of Israel commaunded.

The rest of the sonnes of Leui: of the sonnes of Amram, Subael. Of the sonnes of Subael Jehedeiah. Of the sonnes of Rehabiah the first Jesias. Of the Jzaharites, Selemoth. Of the sonnes of Selemoth, Jahath. And the sonnes of Hebron were Jeriah the first, Amariah the .ij. Jahaziel the .iij. Jekameam the .iiij. Of the sonnes of Vsiel, Micah. Of the sonnes of Micah, Samir. The brother of Micah was Jesiah. Of the sonnes of Jesiah, Zacharias. The sonnes of Merari, were Mahali & Musi. The sonnes of Jaaziah, Beno. The sonnes of Merari by Jaaziah, Beno, Shoham, Zacur and Ebri.

Mahali had Eleazar which had no sonnes. The sonnes of Kis: Jerahemel. The sonnes of Musi: Mahali, Eder and Jerimoth. These are of the children of Leui, in the houssholdes of their fathers. And their call lottes agaīst their brethren the sonnes of Aaron, before Dauid the kynge and Zadoc and Achimelech and the auncient heddes and preastes of the Leuites: as well the youngest brother as in auncient bed.

¶ The syngers are appointed with their place, and lottes.

CAPI. XXV.

AND Dauid and the Captaynes of the host appointed out to do seruice, ꝑ sonnes of Asaph of Heman and Jeduthun, which shulde prophesie with harpes, Psalteries and Cymbales. And the multitude of the were men to doo seruice in their offices. Of the sonnes of Asaph: Zaur, Joseph, Nathanias, Asarelah, to wayte on Asaph which prophesied by the kynge.

The sonnes of Jeduthun: Godoliah, Zeri, Jsaiah, Hasabiah and Mathathiah, Simei, Hasabiah, at the handes of their father Jeduthun, with harpes: which Jeduthun prophesied in to thanke and prayse the Lorde. The sonnes of Heman: Bukiah, Mathaniah, Vsiel, Sebuel, Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Gedaliah, Romamthi, Ezer, Jesbekasah, Mallothi, Hothir and Mahaziah. All these were the sonnes of Heman the syngers Seer of the kyngs with the worde of God, to lyft vp the horne. God gaue to Heman. xiij. sonnes and thre daughters. All these were at the hand of their father to singe in the house of the Lord with Cymbales, Psalteries and Harpes, in the seruice of the house of God. And at ꝑ side of the kyng was Asaph, Jeduthun and Heman. But the multitude of them were with their brethren that were connynge in the songe of the Lorde. And the nombre of al that taught were two hūdred foure skore and eyght. And they call lottes indifferently, how they shuld wayte as well the small as the great, as wel the learned as the vnlearned.

AND the fyrst lot of Asaph fell to Joseph. The second to Godoliah & with his brethren and sonnes, twelue personnes. The thyrde fell to Zacur with his sonnes and brethren & they were twelue personnes. The fourthe to Jsrael with his sonnes and brethrē twelue personnes. The fyfte to Nathaniah with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The syxte to Bukiah with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The seuenth to Jesaiah with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The eyghte to Mathaniah with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The nynthe to Semei with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The tenth to Asareel with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The eleuenth to Hasabiah with his sonnes and brethrē twelue personnes. The twelueth to Jsbuel with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. The thirteene to Hubuel with his sonnes and brethren twelue personnes. ¶ The porters of the temple are ordeyned euery man to the gate whiche he shulde kepe.

CAPI. XXVI.

THe diuision of the porters amonge the Corahites: Meselemiah the son of Kore of the children of Asaph.

And the sonnes of Meselemiah were these: Zacharias the eldest, Jadiel the seconde, Zabadias the thyrde, Jathaniel the fourthe. Elam the fyfte, Johanan the syxte, Elioenai the seuenth. And Obed Edom had sonnes Semeias the eldest, Josabad the seconde, Joah the thyrde, Sacar the fourthe, Nathanael the fyfte, Amiel the syxte, Jssachar the seuenth, and Peulthai the eyghte, for God had blessed him.

And vnto Semeiah his sonne, were sonnes borne that ruled in the house of their father, for they were men of myght. The sonnes of Semeiah: Othni, Rapheel, Obed and Elzabad, and his brethren men of actiuite, Elihu and Samachiah. All these were of the children of Obed Edom, which with their brethren men of power and strength for the office, were .lxij. of Obed Edom. And Meselemiah had sonnes and brethren, & actiue men eyghtene. And Hosah of the children of Merari had sonnes. Shimri the chiefe, yet he was not the eldest, but his father made him the chyefest. Helkiah the seconde. Tabeliah the thyrde, and Zacharias the fourth: so that all the sonnes and brethren of Hosah were thyrtene.

Vnto these was diuyded the office of the portershyp, as vnto heades ouer the men that wayted with their brethren, and ministred in the house of the Lorde. And they caste lottes, the smalle as well as the greate in the houssholdes of their fathers, frome gate to gate. And the east lotte fell to Selemiah. And for Zacharias his sonne a wyse counsellioure, they caste lottes / and his lotte came oute towarde the Northe. And Obed Edoms lot fell to the Southe. And to his sonnes fell ꝑ the counsell houses. And to Suphim and Hosah fell the West with the gate Salecheth, where the waye goeth vpwarde, the one waye being fast by the other. ꝑ Some rede the bowse of Asuphim.

In the East kept fyue Leuites: in the North foure a daye, and in the South foure a daye, & in euery counsell house two, & in the watche houses on the hyghe waye westwarde foure: two in a house. These are the diuisions of the porters amonge the sonnes of Korah, and the sonnes of Merari. And of the Leuites Ahiah had the ouersyghte of the treasure of the house of God / and of the treasure of the offered thynges. ꝑ Some rede in Parbar.

As concernyng the sonnes of Laadan which were Gersonites: Laadan had auncyente fathers. Laadan the Gersonite had Jehieli. The sonnes of Jehieli: Zethan and Joel his brother, whiche were ouer the treasures of the house of the Lorde. Amonge the Amramites, Jzaharites, Hebronites, and Vzielites, was Subuel the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Moses, a ruler ouer the treasure. And of his brethren the sonnes of Eliezer, was Rehabiah, whose sonne was Jsaiah, and his sonne was Joram, and his sonne Zechri, and his sonne was Selomith, whiche Selomith and his brethren were ouer all the treasures of the dedicate gyftes, whiche Dauid the kynge and the auncyente heades of the Captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes, and the captaynes of the hoste had dedicated of the spoyle wonne in battayle, to mayntayne the house of the Lorde: and ouer all that Samuel the Seer, and Saul the sonne of Kis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of Zeruiah had dedicated. All that was dedicated, was vnder the hande of Selomith, and of his brethren.

Of the Jzaharites, Conaniah and his sonnes were in businesses, without for the made officers and iudges ouer Jsrael. And of the Hebronites: Hasabiah and his brethren, men of actiuite a thousande and seuen hundred were officers in Jsrael on this side Jordan westwarde, in all affayres of the Lorde and seruice of the kynge. And Jerijah was the chyefest amonge the Hebronites and fathers of the Hebronites. And in the fourty yere of ꝑ raigne of Dauid, they were soughte for. And there were were founde of them men of prowesse at Jezer in Galaad. And his brethren were in men of prowesse, two thousande and seuen hundred auncient heades, whiche kynge David made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, in all matters concernynge God bussynesses of the kynge,

¶ Of the prynces and rulers that mynystred vnto the kynge.

CAPI. XXVII.

A TO speake of the chyldren of Israell: in the nombre of them were auncient heades and capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, and officers that serued the kynge in all thynge accordynge to the companyes that came in, or wente oute, moneth by moneth throwe oute all the monethes of the yere. And euery company had four and twenty thousande. Ouer the fyrst companye in the fyrst moneth, was Jasoboam the sonne of Zabdiel. And in his nombre were foure and twenty thousand. And the chyefest of all the capitaynes in the host of the fyrst moneth was of the children of Pharez. Ouer the companye of the seconde moneth, Dodai and Aboottie, and in his hoste was Makeloth a ruler. And in his company were foure and twenty thousande. The chyefe capitayne of the thyrde hoste in the thyrde moneth, was Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the preest. And in his host foure & twenty thousande. This is the same Banaias that was myghty amonge thyrtye and aboue thyrtye. And in his parte was Amizabad his sonne.

B The fourth capitayne in the foureth moneth was Asael the brother of Joab, and Zabadiah his sonne after him. And in his route foure and twenty thousande. The fyfte capitayne in the fyfte moneth was Samahut the Jezrahite. And in his host xxiiij. thousande. The sixte capitayne in the sixte moneth was Ira the son of Ikes a Thekite: and in his host foure and twentye thousande.

The seuenth capitayne in the seuenth moneth was Helez the Phalonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his hoste foure and twentye thousande. The eyght capitayne in the eyght moneth was Sibbecai an Husathite of the kin of Sarah: and in his hoste foure and twenty thousande. The nynthe capitayne in the nynth moneth was Abiezer an Anathothite of the sonnes of Jemini: and in his hoste xxiiij. thousande. The tenthe capitayne in the tenth moneth was Maharai the Netophathite of the [illegible] and in his hoste foure and twentye [illegible] The eleuenth moneth was Be[illegible] [illegible] Ephra[illegible] [illegible] twenty [illegible] [illegible] time [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

of the Lorde, vnto the hande of Jeheliel the Gersonite. And the people reioyced that they were so wyllynge: for with a pure herte they were wyllynge vnto the Lorde, And therto Dauid the kyng reioyced with grete gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacion and sayde: Blessed arte thou Lorde God of Jsrael oure father, for euer & euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, power glorye, victorye, and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erthe is thyne and thyne is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou arte lyfte vp an heed aboue all. Ryches and honoure come of the, and thou raygnest ouer all and in thine hande is power and strengthe, and in thyne hande it is to make great & to gyue strengthe vnto all. And Nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy glorypouse name. For what am I? and what is my people? that we shuld obtayne strengthe to be so wyllynge? But all is of the, and of that we receyued of thyne hande we haue gyue the. For we be but straūgers before the and tenaūntes, as were all oure fathers. Oure dayes on the erthe is but a shadowe, and there is none abydynge. O Lorde oure God, al this heape that we haue prepared to buylde the an house for thy holye name, commeth of thyne hande, and is al thyne.

I wote my God, that thou proouest the herte and hast pleasure in playnesse. And in playnesse of myne herte I haue wyllyngly gyuen all this. And now I se thy people whiche are here in gladnesse to offer wyllyngly to the. O Lorde God of Abrahaam / Isaac and of Jsrael oure fathers, kepe this for euer in the ymaginacyon of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people, and prepare their hertes vnto the. And gyue vnto Salomon my sonne / a pure herte to kepe my cōmaundrementes / thy testimonyes and thyne ordynaunces / and to do all / & to buylde the house which I entended.

And Dauyd sayde to all the congregacyon: blesse the Lorde your God. And all the congregacyon blessed the Lorde God of their fathers / and lowted and bowed them selues vnto the Lorde and to the kynge. And they offered offeringes vnto the Lord. And on the morowe after the sayd daye / they offred in burntofferinges vnto the Lorde a thousande oxen / a thousande rammes and a thousande lam mes with their drynkeofferinges. And they slue plenteously thorowoute all Jsrael, and dyd eate and drynke before the Lorde the same day with great gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauyd kynge the second tyme, and anoynted him vnto the Lorde to be ruler, and Sadocke to be the preste. And so Salomō sate on the seate of the Lorde and was kynge for Dauyd his father, and prospered, and all Jsrael obeyed him. And all the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynge Dauyd submytted them selues vnder kynge Salomon. And the Lorde magnifyed Salomon on hyghe in the syght of all Jsrael, and gaue him so glorious a kyngdome as none of all that were kynges before in Jsraell had. Now Dauyd the sonne of Jsai was kynge ouer all Jsrael. And the space he reygned ouer Jsrael was fourtie yere: seuen yere in Hebron and .xxxiij. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyed in a good age: olde, ryche and glorious: And Salomon his sonne raigned in his steade. The actes of Dauyd the kyng both the fyrst and laste, are wryten in the bokes of Samuel the seare and in the boke of Nathan ✠ prophete, and in the boke of Gad the sear of bisyons, with all his kyngdome and power & tymes that wet ouer him & ouer al ✠ kīn gdomes of the erth.

¶ The offeryngs of Salomon in the hyllaulter at Gabaon, where he receyueth an answere of God what wysdom shulde be gyuen hym with the number of his charettes and horsemen.

CAPI. I.

AND Salomon the sonne of Dauid waxed stronge in his kyngdom and the Lorde his God was with him & auaunced him on hyghe. And Salomon comuned with all Jsrael, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes the iudges and al other lordes and auncient heades thorow out all Jsrael. And so Salomon and all the congregacion with him went to the hillaulter of Gabaon: for there was the tabernacle of the wytnesse of God, *whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde made in the wyldernesse. But the Arcke of God had Dauid brought frome Kariath Jarim, in to the place he hadde prepared for it. Where he had pytched a tent for it euen at Jerusalem. Moreouer the brasen aulter that Bezeleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur had made, was at Gabaon also, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to vyset it. And Salomon offred there before the Lorde vpon the brasen aulter that was by the tabernacle of wytnesse, a thousande burntsacrifyces. And the same night God apeared vnto Salomon and sayd to him: aske what thal I gyue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and hast made me kynge in his stede ✠ & now Lord God let thy promyse vnto Dauid my father be true for thou hast made me kynge ouer a people lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wherfore gyue me wysdome and knowledge howe to behaue my selfe vnto this people: for who is able to iudge this people that is so great?

Then God sayde to Salomō, because thou hadest this in thine hert, and dydest not aske treasure and rychesse, honoure and the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kyng: wysdome and knowledge shalbe gruen the, & I will gyue the treasure, rychesse, and glorye also, that amonge the kynges before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke ✠. And so Salomon came frome the hylaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem frome the tabernacle of wytnesse and raygned at Jerusalē. And Salomon gathered charettes & horsemen: so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whiche he bestowed in the charet cyties and aboute ✠ kynge at Jerusalem. And the kynge made siluer and golde at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plentye as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeyes. And the horses which Salomon hadde, were brought him out of Egypte frome Keua. The kynges marchantes fet them out at Keua at a pryce. They came and brought out of Egypte a charet for fyre hundred sycles, and an horse for an hundred and lyfty. And so brought they to all the kynges of the Hethites and to the kynges of Suria thorow the handes of the sayd marchauntes. II. Regū. x.

¶ Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workemen.

CAP. II.

AND Salomon determined to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out thre skore and ten thousand men to beare burdens and foure skore thousand to hewe in the mountayne, and thre thousande and fyre hundred to ouerse them. A

✠ And Salomon sente to Hiram kynge of Tire sayenge: As thou dyddest deale with Dauid my father and dyddest sende him Cedar wodde, to buylde him an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me nowe that I may buylde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to consecrate it to him to burne swete odoures and to set shewbred before him perpetually, & for burntsacrifice morninge and euenynge, & on the Sabothdayes, and the fyrst daye of euery newe moone, and in the solemne feastes of ✠ Lorde our God, so to continewe euer in Jsrael. And the house whiche I buylde is greate: for great is our God aboue all goddes: So that who can be able to buylde him an house: whē that heauen, neyther heauen aboue all heauens is able to receyue him, what am I then that I shoulde buylde him an house? naye, but to burne sacrifice before him: sende me nowe therfore a connyng man to worke in golde, siluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, crymosyn, and Jacinct colloure, and that can skyll to graue, to be with the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, whiche Dauid my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, fyre trees and * Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote well * thy seruauntes can skyll to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And loo, my men shalbe with thyne, that they may prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I buylde is great and wonderfull. And beholde, I sende for thy seruauntes the cutters and hewers of tymbre twenty thousande quarters of whete, and twentye thousande quarters of barleye, and twentye thousande bathes of wyne, and twenty thousand bathes of oyle. B III. Regū. v. d. * Some rede Lozal or Hiz sycl.

And Hyram kynge of Tire answered in wry

tynge and sent to Salomon: because the Lorde loueth his people, he hathe made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, whiche hath made both heuen and erth, that he hath gyuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, ꝑ hath discretion and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lord, and an other for his kingdome. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man and a man of vnderstandynge called Hiram Abi, ꝑ is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan (how be it his father was a Tirian) and he can skylle to worke in golde, syluer, braſſe, yron, stone, tymbre, scarlet, Jacinct, bysse, and cremosin: and graue all maner of grauinges, and to fynde all maner sotle worke that shalbe set before hym, with thy cunnynge men, ꝑ with the cunnynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. And nowe the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne whiche my Lorde hath sayde, lette him sende his seruauntes. And we wyll cutte wood out of Lybane, as moche as thou shalt nede and wyll bynde it to the in shyppes, by see to poste Jabo: and thence thou mayste carye them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nombred all the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, after the tyme his father Dauid had nombred them. And they were founde an hundred and. liij. thousande and fyue hundred. And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and. lxxx. thousande to hewe in the mountayne, and thre thousande and fyue hundred to encourage and to set the people a worcke.

¶ The temple of the Lorde an the porche are buylded with other thinges therto belongynge.

CAPI. III.

A 2. Regū. vi. a

THen Salomon began to buylde ꝑ house of the Lorde, at Jerusalem, in mounte Moriah, which was shewed Dauid his father when he prepared a place in the threshynge flaure of Ornan the Jebusite. And he began to buylde the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, the fourthe yere of his raygne. And this is the foundacion of Salomon in buyldinge the house of God. The length was thre shore cubites after the old cubyte, ꝑ the bredth xx. And the porche at the ende was as large as the house bredth twenty cubytes: ꝑ the height was an hundred and twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it on the inner syde with pure gold.

B And the great house he syled with fyrre tre, and ouerlayde it ouerow with good golde, ꝑ graued therin palmetrees ꝑ chaynes folding in with spindles. And he paued the house with precious marbell goodly. And it was gold of Pharuaim. And he ouerlayde the house: both beames, postes, walles and dres with golde, and grauid Cherubes vpon the walles.

And he made the house moste holye, whose length was twenty cubytes ryght to the bredth of the house, and the bredth therof was also twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it with the best golde, that due to the somme of fyre hundred talentes. He made also naples of golde, ꝑ the wayght of euery naple of golde weyed fyfty sycles. And he ouerlayde the vpper chābres with golde.

And he made in the house moste holy two Cherubes of Image worke, and gylded them with golde. And the wynges of the Cherubes were twenty cubytes longe. The one wynge was fyue cubytes and touched the wal of the house, and the other wynge was lykewyse. v. cubytes and touched the wynge of the other Cherub. And the one wynge of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fyue cubytes also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that ꝑ wynges of these Cherubes raught twentye cubites. And they stode on their fete and loked inwardes. And he made a fore hangynge of Jacynct colour, of scarlet, cremosyne and bysse: and caused Cherubes to be bourdered theron. And he made fore the house two pyllers of. xxv. cubytes longe. And the hed that was aboue on the ty of one of them was. v. cubytes. And he made suche chaynes as was in the quere, ꝑ put them on the heedes of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on ꝑ chaynes. And he reered vp the pyllers before the temple: one on the ryghthande and an other on the lefte, and called the ryght Jachin and the lefte Boaz.

¶ The aulter of braſſe, the fre, the vessels to worke with, the candelstyckes, &c.

CAPI. IIII.

AND he made an aulter of braſſe. xx. cubytes longe and. xx. cubytes brode and. x. cubytes hyghe. And he cast a brasen sea of ten cubytes from brym to brym, and round in compase and fyue cubytes hygh: and a line of thirty cubytes might haue copased it rounde about. And the lykenes of oxen dyd compasse it roundabout vnder it: that is to wete, two rowes of oxen cast whiche when it was cast dyd compase that see which was ten cubytes wyde, roundabout. And it stode also vpon xii. oxen: of which three loked North, three West, three South, and three East, and the see vpon them aboue an hyghe, and the hynder partes of them inward. And the thickenes of it was an handebreede, and the brym lyke the brym of a cup, with floures of lylyes. And it receyued thre thousand bathes.

And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on the ryghthande and fyue on the left, to washe in. And in them they thrust the flesh of the burnt offeryngs. But the see was for the preestes, to washe in. And he made ten candelstyckes of golde in their facyons, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryghthande and fyue on the left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryghthande and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the preestes, and the greate courte and dores for and ouerlayde the doores of them with braſſe.

braſſe. And he set the see on the ryghtsyde of ꝑ east ende, towarde the south. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and basens.

And Hiram fynished the worke he made for kynge Salomon vnto the temple of God: The two pyllers with their sculpes of ꝑ two heades that were on the toppes of the pyllers and the two wreathes to couer the two sculpes of the heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers: and foure hundred pomegranates for the two wreathes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wreathe, to couer the two sculpes of the heedes that were on the pyllers. And he made bottomes, and lauers vpon the bottomes: and the see with twelue oxen vnder it. And therto pottes, shouelles, flesshe hokes, and all their vessels dyd Hiram Abi make for kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde, of bryght braſſe. In the playne of Jordan dyd ꝑ kynge cast them, in the thicke earthe, betwene Soceth and Zaredatha. And made of al these vessels so myghty great aboundance, that the wayght of braſſe could not be reckened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that pertayned to the house of God: the golden auter and the tables with the shewbred vpō the same candelstyckes with their lampes to burne after the manner before the quere, and that of pure golde, and the floures and the lampes, ꝑ tongues were golde, and that perfect golde: and the dressynge knyues, basens, sponces and coulers of pure golde. And the vnner wyes of the place moste holy, and the wyes of the temple, were golde. And thus was all the worke ꝑ Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

And when the worcke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished: then Salomon broughte in the gyftes dedicate by Dauid his father, the syluer and the gold and all the iewels, and put them amonge the treasure of the house of God.

¶ After the fore houses and the Arcke were put in ye temple, the glorye of the Lord fylled the temple.

CAPI. V.

THen Salomon gathered the elders of Israel togither and al the heedes of the trybes and auncient Lordes among the children of Israel, vnto Jerusalem: to brynge the Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde forth of the cyte of Dauid which is Sion. And all the men of Israell resorted vnto the kynge in the feast of the seuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Israell were come, the Leuites toke vp the Arcke, and the preastes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holye vesselles that were in the tabernacle. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacion of Israell that were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offred sheepe and oxen, so many that they could not be told or numbred for multitude. And the preastes brought the Arcke of the apoyntemēt of the Lorde vnto his place in the quere of the temple and place moste holye: euen vnder the wynges of the Cherubes, that the Cherubes stretched oute their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke and couered the arcke and her staues aboue on vpwarde. And the staues of the Arcke, were so longe, that they were sene a lytle before the quere, but not farre without. And there it remayneth vnto this daye. Moreouer there was nothinge in the Arcke saue the two tables whiche Moses put therein at Horeb, which the Lorde had written to the children of Israel, after their commynge forth frome Egypte. And when the preastes were come oute of the holy place (for all the preastes that were founde there sanctified theym selues and dyd not as yet at that tyme wayte by course) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Asaph, Heman and Jduthun, and amonge their children & brethren, were arayed in bysse and sange with Cymbales, Psalteries & harpes standinge east frome the aulter, and with them an hundred & twenty preastes blowinge trompettes. And the trompet blowers and the singers so agreed, that it semed but one voyce in prayesinge and thankynge the Lorde. And as the voyce of the trompettes, symbales and instrumentes of melody arose, * & as they prayesed the Lorde, that he was good and that his mercy lasteth euer, the house of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude: so that the preastes could not endure to minister by reason of the cloud. For the glorye of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of God.

CAPI. VI.

A iii. Reg. viii. b

THen Salomon sayde: The Lorde hathe spoken, that he wyll dwel in darcknesse. And I haue buylt an habitation for the and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kyng turned his face and blessed the hole congregacion of Israel, and all the congregacion of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel whiche spake with his mouthe to my father Dauid & hathe fulfylled it with his handes, for God sayde: sythens the tyme I brought my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chose no cyte amonge all the trybes of Israel to buylde an house in, that my name myght be there, neyther chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. But nowe I haue chosen Jerusalem to haue my name there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

ii. Reg. vii. a iii. Reg. viii. b i. Para. xvii. b

* And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel: But the Lorde sayd to Dauid my father: for as moche as it was in thyne herte, to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou haddest it in thyne hert. Notwithstandinge thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which shall issue out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house for my name. And the Lorde hathe made good his sayenge that he hathe spoken. For I arose in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israell, as the Lorde promysed, & haue buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therin I haue put ✠ aerke wherein the couenaunt of the Lord made with the children of Israel, is. And he stepte forthe before the aulter of the Lorde in the presence of all the congregation of Israell, and stretched out his handes, for Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe and. v. cubytes broade, and three of heyght, and had set it in the myddes of the great court, vpon ✠ he stept and kneled downe vpon his knees before all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heaue and sayd: Lord God of Israel there is no God lyke the ether in heauen or in earthe, which kepest couenaũt

6. Paral. v. b and shewest mercy vnto thy seruauntes, that walke before the with all their hertes. Which thou hast kept with Dauid my father that thou promysedest him: thou saydest it w thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hand, as it is to se this daye.

Now Lorde God of Israel kepe with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promysedest him sayenge: ✠ thou shalt not be without one or other in my sight that shall sit vpõ
3. Reg. ii. a and. xv. b 2. Para. vii. d the seate of Israel, vpon this condition yet, if thy children will take hede to their wayes to walke in my law, as thou hast walked before me. Now Lorde God of Israel let thy saying be true, whiche thou saydest vnto thy seruaũt Dauid. How be it in deed dede, cã God dwel with man on earthe? Beholde, neyther heauen or heauen aboue all heauens is able to conteyne the: how shuld the house then whiche I haue buylt for the w it? But turne to ✠ prayer of thy seruaunt and to his supplicatiõ (O Lorde my God) to herken vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruaunt maketh before the. That thyne eyes be open ouer this house daye and night, and ouer the place of whiche thou hast sayde, that thou wouldest put thy name there: to herken vnto the prayer which thy seruaunt prayeth at this place: hecke therfore vnto the prayers of thy seruaunte and of thy people Israell, whiche they praye in this place. But heare thou it out of thy dwellinge place heauen: and when thou hearest it be mercyfull. ✠ If a man synne againste his neyghbour, & an aduertacion be layde to his charge, to aduise him with all, and the aduertacion come before thyne aulter in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worke & iudge thy seruauntes, that thou rewarde the cupll, and bringe his waye vpon his heed, and iustifye the righteous, and giue him according to his righteousnesse.
3. Reg. viii. d

Lykewyse yf thy people Israel be put to ✠ worse before their enemyes, because they haue synned against the: Yet yf they turne & confesse thy name, and make intercession and praye before the in this house: thẽ heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

If heauen be shut vp, ✠ there be no rayne, because they haue synned against the: yet if they praye at this place and confesse thy name and turne from their synnes at thy scourging: then heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruauntes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe the a good waye to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande which thou hast giuen vnto thy people for an enheritaunce.

If there chaunce darthe in the lande, pestilence, drought, or myldewe, grashoppers or caterpillers, or that their ennemyes besege them in the cytes of their owne land, or what so euer plage or sickenesse it be. Then all the supplications and prayers that shall be made of all men amonge all thy people Israel, which shall know euery man his owne sore and his owne griefe, and shall stretche out their handes towarde this house: thou shalt heare from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt be mercyful, and giue euerye man according vnto all his waye, euen as thou shalt know euery mans herte: for thou onely knowest the hertes of the childre of Adam: that they may feare the and walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue vpon the earthe, which thou gauest to our fathers.

Moreouer a straunger whiche is not of thy people Israell, yf he come from a farre lande for thy great names sake & thy myghty hande and stretched out arme, and so come and praye at this house: thou shalt heare him from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt do anye dinge to all that the straunger calleth to the: that all the nacyons of the erth may know thy name, and feare the, as doth thy people Israell: and that it maye be knowen that this house which I haue buylt, is called after thy name.

When thy people shall go out to warre against their enemyes ✠ way ✠ thou shalt sende them: Yf they praye to the, the waye towarde this cyte whiche thou hast chosen, and house which I haue buylte for thy name: then heare from heauen, their supplication and prayer, and helpe them in their right.

Yf they shall synne against the (as there is no man but that he shall synne) and thou & angrye with them and delyuer them to their enemyes, and they leade them awaye captyue vnto a lande ferre or neare, yet yf they bethe come to them agayne in the lande, where they be in captyuite, and turne and praye vnto the in the lande where they be in captyuite, saying we haue synned and haue done cupll and wickedly, and turne agayne to the, with all their hertes, & all their soules, in the lande of their captyuite where they be kept in bondage, and so praye towarde their lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and cyte which thou hast chosen, and to this house which I haue buylt for thy name: Then heare from heauen thy dwellinge place, their supplication & prayers, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, thoughe they haue synned against the.

Noo now my God let thyne eyes be open and thyne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And nowe therfore aryse Lorde God in thy restinge place: bothe thou and the Arke of thy strength, and let thy preastes put on victory and thy sayntes reioyce in goodnes And Lorde God turne not awaye the face of thyne anoynted: But remembre the mercyes promysed to Dauid thy seruaunt.

¶ The fyre consumeth the sacrifyces. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

CAPI. VII.

When Salomõ had made an ende of prayenge, there came downe fyre from heauen and consumed the burntoffring and the sacrifices. And the glory of the Lorde fylled the house: that the preastes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glory of the Lorde had fylled the house of ✠ Lord. And all the children of Israel sawe howe the fyre came downe, and the glorye of the Lorde vpon the house, and stouped with their faces to the earthe vpon the pauement and bowed them selues, and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he was good, and that his mercye lasted for ever.

And the kynge and all the people offred offringes before the Lorde, So that kynge Salomon offred. xxij. thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and al the people halowed the house of God. And the preastes waited on their offices and the Leuites with instrumentes of musyke of the Lorde whiche kynge Dauid made to confesse vnto the Lorde that his mercy lasteth euer, when Dauid gaue prayse thorow their handes. And the preastes blewe trompettes fast by them: and all Israel stode. Moreouer Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte that was before the Lorde: for there he offred burntofferinges and the fat of the peaceoffringes, because the brasen aulter which Salomõ had made, was not able to receyue ✠ burntofferinges and the meateofferinges and the fat.

And Salomon kept a feast the same season of seuen dayes, and all Israell with him, an exceadinge great congregacion, euen from the entrynge into the ryuer of Egypte. And ✠ eyght dayes they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the dedicacion of the aulter seuen dayes and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxiij. daye of ✠ seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes, glad and merye in hert for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, to Salomon and to Israel his people.

✠ And so Salomon synished the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, and all that came in his herte, to make in the house of the Lorde and in his owne house, and that prosperously.

And the Lorde appeared to Salomon by nyght and sayde to him: I haue herde thy petition and haue chosen this place for my selfe, to dwell in house of sacrifice. ✠ Moreouer yf I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne, or yf I commaunde the grashoppers to deuoure the lande or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: yet yf my people that are named after my name, shall humble them selues and make intercession and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare from heauen and be mercyfull to their synnes, and wil heale their lãde. Furthermore myne eyes shal be open and myne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And fynally I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer, and myne eyes & myne herte shalbe there perpetually.
3. Reg. ix. a

And yf thou shalt walke before me as Dauid thy father walked, to do accordinge to al that I haue commaunded, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and my lawes: then I wil stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, according to the couenaunt I made with Dauid thy father sayenge: ✠ Thou shalt haue euer one or other that shall rule in Israel. But yf ye turne awaye and forsake myne ordinaunces and my commaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shall go and serue other goddes and bowe your selues to them: then wil I plucke them vp by the rootes out of my lande which I haue giuen them, and will cast this house which I haue sanctified for my name oute of my sight, and will make a prouerbe and a tale of it amonge all nations. And this house that is so hyghe, shall be a wonder to all that passeth therby, that they shall saye: Why hathe the Lorde dealt on this fashion with this land and with this house? And it shall be aunswered them, because they forsoke the Lord God of their fathers whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and clawe to other goddes, and bowed to them and serued them: euẽ therfore brought he on them all this cupll.
3. Reg. ix. a and. xv. b 2. Para. vii. d

¶ The cities that Salomon buylded after the house of God was fynished.

CAPI. VIII.

After twenty yeres when Salomõ had buylte the house of the Lorde. and his owne house: he buylte the cytes that Hiram gaue him, and put certayne of the children of Israel in them. And Salomon wente to Hemath Zobah and strengthed it. And he buylte Thadmor in the wyldernesse and all ✠ store cytes which he buylt in Hemath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vppre and Bethhoron the nether, and made them stroge cytes with walles, gates and barres. And Baalath and all the store cytes that Salomon had, and all the charet cytes and the cytes of horsmen. & all that Salomon had lust to buylde in Ierusalem and Libanon, and thorowoute all the lande of his dominion.
3. Reg. ix. b

And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Iebusites, whiche were not of the children of Israel: euen the children of them, which were lefte after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the children of Israel, vpõ Salomõ make tributaries vnto this daye. But of the childzen of Israel dyd Salomō make no bōdmen in his woꝛke: but they were men of war and rulers and greate Loꝛdes with him, and capitaynes ouer his charettes and hoꝛsemen. And kynge Salomons officers that ouerslawe and ruled the people, were two hundzed and fyftye.

And Salomō brought the wughter of Pharao out of the cytte of Dauid into the house þ he hadde made foꝛ her. Foꝛ he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kynge of Israell, foꝛ it is holy, because the Arche of the Loꝛde came into it.

And fꝛome thencefoꝛthe Salomon offered burntoffringes vnto the Loꝛde on the aultare of the Loꝛde whiche he hadde buylt befoꝛe the porche to offꝛe daye by daye accordinge to the commaundement of Moses, and in the sabbotes and newmones, and the thꝛe solemne feastes of the yere, the feast of swete bꝛed, þ feast of weekes and the feast of boothes.

And Salomon assigned the pꝛeastes euerye man to his office as Dauid his father had oꝛdred them, and the Leuites vnto theꝛ office, foꝛ to pꝛayse and minister befoꝛe the preestes daye by daye, and the poꝛters by courte at euery gate. Foꝛ so hadde Dauid the man of God commaunded. And the commaundemente of the kynge vnto the pꝛeastes and the Leuites concernynge what so euer cause it was, and concernyng the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And all the woꝛke of Salomon went well foꝛwarde euen fꝛome the daye of the foundacion of the house of the Loꝛde was layde: tyll he had fynyshed it, that the house of the Loꝛde was perfect. And then went kynge Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Eloth and to the sees syde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the handꝛ of his seruauntes, shippes & seruauntes that couthe skill of the see: Whiche went with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and bꝛought thence foure hundzed and fyftye talentes of golde, and bꝛought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The cōmunication of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that the one gaue the other. The deth of Salomon: after whome succedeth Roboam.

CAPI. IX.

1.Regū.x.a Matth.xii.b Luc.xi.b

AND the quene of Saba herde of þ fame of Salomon and came to proue him with ryddelles at Ierusalem, with a very great companye, and with camelles that bare swete odoures and plentye of golde and pꝛeciouse stone. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon soꝛced her al her questions, that there was nothinge hyd fꝛome Salomon, which he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meat of his table and the sittinge of his seruauntes, and the standinge of his waytes, and their apparell, and his buttelars with their apparell, and his pꝛaier out of whiche he went into the house of the Loꝛde, she was so astonyed that there was no more herte in her.

And then she sayde to the kynge: the saying whiche I herde in myne owne lande, of thyne actes and of thy wysdome, is truthe. But I beleued not the wordes of theym, tyll I came and myne eyes hadde sene it. And lo, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: thou exceedst the fame that I herde, happy ar thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes which stande before the alwaye and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Loꝛde thy God whiche had lust to the, to make the, kynge on his seate, vnto the Loꝛde thy God. Because thy God loued Israel, to make them continue euer, therfoꝛe made he the kynge ouer them to iudge and equite.

And she gaue the kynge an hundzed and.xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures no more great abundaunce with pꝛecious stones, that there was no such swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon. And moꝛeouer the seruauntes of Huram and the seruauntes of Salomon whiche bꝛought golde fꝛome Ophir, bꝛought also * Algum wood and pꝛecyouse stones. And the kynge made of the Algume wood stayres in þ house of the Loꝛde and in the kynges palace, harpes and psalteries foꝛ singers. And there was no such wood sene before in the lande of Iuda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked about that she bꝛought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went awaye to her owne lande with her seruauntes.

The somme of golde that came to Salomon yere by yere, was fyue hundzed. lxvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes bꝛoughte, and all the kynges of Arabia, and Dukes of countryes bꝛoughte golde and syluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomō made two hundzed bokelers of golde. vj. hundzed speres of beten golde to a bokelar: and three hundzed shyldes of beten golde, three hundzed speres of golde to a shylde, and he put them in the house of the wod of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great seate of Iuory and ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were fyue steppes to the seate with a fotestole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the sittinge place, and two lyons standinge by the pomelles. And.xii. lyons stoode on the one syde and on the other vpon fyue steppes, that there was no fashion in any kyngdome.

And all the dꝛynkynge vessels of kynge Salomon were golde, and all the vessels of the house of the foꝛest of Libanō, were pure golde: as foꝛ syluer, it was coūted nothinge worth in the dayes of Salomō. Foꝛ the kynges shippes went * to Tharsis with the seruauntes of Huram once thꝛe yere ones. And the shippes of Tharsis bꝛought golde, syluer, the tethe of Elephantes apes and peacockes.

And kynge Salomon passed al the kynges of the earthe in rychesse and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earthe soughte the presence of Salomon, to heare the wysdome that God hadde put in his herte. And they bꝛought euery man his presente in vesselles of syluer, and vesselles of golde, and rayment, harnesse, swete odoures, hoꝛses and mules, yere by yere.

And Salomon had foure thousande maungers of hoꝛses and charettes foꝛ them, and.xii. thousande hoꝛsemen. And he bestowed them in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Ierusalem. And he raygned ouer al the kinges fꝛom Euphrates, vnto the lande of the Philistines, and fꝛo the boꝛdeꝛs of Egypt. * And the king made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous as the mulbeꝛye trees that growe in the valeyes. And Salomon had hoꝛses bꝛought him out of Egypt, and out of all landes.

* The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon both fyꝛste and laste, are wꝛytten in the boke of Nathan the Pꝛophete, and in the pꝛophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the vysyons of Iadi the sear of vysyons agaynste Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when Salomon had raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israell foure pere, he layde dym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the cityе of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The falling fꝛo of Roboam, and the deuysion of his realme.

CAPI. X.

AND Roboam wente to Sichem: foꝛ to Sichem were all Israel come to make him kynge. And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat beynge in Egypt herde it (foꝛ he was fled foꝛ feare of Salomon the kynge) he retourned out of Egypte. And they sent and called him. And so Ieroboam and all Israell came and communed with Roboam and sayd. Thy father made vs a greuous yoke: but rere thou somwhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuye yoke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to them: come agayne after thꝛe dayes to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Roboam counselled with the elders that stode befoꝛe Salomon his father, whyle he lyued, and sayde: What counsell geue ye me, to answere this people agayne? And they tolde him sayinge: yf thou shalte be kynde to this people and please theym / and shalte speake louynge wordes to them, they will be thy seruauntes foꝛ euer. But he lefte the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell with the younge men that were nourished vp with dym, and hadde stande in his syght, and sayde to them: What aduyse geue ye, that I may answere this people whiche haue communed with me, sayinge: Abate somwhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the younge men that were nourished vp with dym, talked with him, sayinge: thus answere the people that spake to the, sayinge. Thy father made our yoke heuye: But make thou ours somwhat lighter. Thus wyse answere them: My lytle fynger shall be beuyer then my fathers loynes. * Foꝛ where my father put a heuye yoke vpon you, I wyll put moꝛe thereto / * where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyl chastise you with Scoꝛpyons. Nowe when Ieroboam and all Israel were come the thyꝛde daye, as the kynge bad, sayinge: come agayne to me the thyꝛde daye: The kynge answered them cruelly: foꝛ kyng Roboam lefte the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduyse of the younge men, sayinge: Yf my father haue made youre yoke greuouse, I wyll adde therto / and where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scoꝛpions. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people / foꝛ the turnyng awaye was of God, that the Loꝛde myghte make good his sayinge whiche he spake by the handꝛ of Ahiah the Silonite to Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all Israel saw that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people answered the kynge sayinge: what part haue we with Dauid, oꝛ enheritaunce with the son of Isai? let euery mā of Israel go to his tent. * And nowe Dauid se to thyne owne house. And therupon all Israell gatte them to theyꝛ tentes / so that Roboam raygned ouer no mo of the childzen of Israel then dwelte in the cityes of Iuda. Then kyng Roboam sent to the Haduram that was ouer the tribute, and the childzen of Israel stoned him with stones that he dyed. But kynge Roboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet to flee to Ierusalem. And so Israel departed fꝛom the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

¶ Roboam is foꝛbidden to fyghte agaynste Ieroboam. He hathe eyghteene wyues and thꝛe scoꝛe concubines: and by them eyghte and twentye sonnes and thꝛee scoꝛe daughteres.

CAPI. XI.

AND when Roboam was come to Ierusalē, he gathered of the house of Dauid and Ben Iamin to the nombze of nyne scoꝛe thousande chosse men of warre to fyght with Israell / foꝛ to bꝛynge the kyngdome agayn to Roboam. But the wozde of the Loꝛd came to Hemelah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and to all Israell that are in Iuda, and to Ben Iamin, and saye: thus sayth the Loꝛde. Go not noꝛ fyght with your brethꝛen: but retourne euerye man to his house / foꝛ this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the wozdes of the Loꝛde, and retourned fꝛom goynge agaynst Ieroboam.

And Roboam dwelte in Ierusalem & buylt stronge cityes in Iuda: as Bethlehem, Etam, and Thekua: Bethzur, Socho, and Odllam: Geth, Maresah and Ziph: Adurahim, Lachis and Azecah: Zarah, Aialon, & Hebzon. Which were thꝛe stronge cityes of Iuda, & Ben Iamin.

And

And when he hadde repayred suche stronge cities, he put capitaynes in them, and store of victayle, and of oyle, and of wyne. And he ordeyned in all cities shyldes and speres, and made them exceedyng stronge. And so Juda and Benjamin were vnder him.

And the preestes and the Leuites that were in all Israell reserted to him out of all theyr coostes. Ja to moche that the Leuites lefte their suburbes and possessions and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them out from ministrynge vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned him preestes of 2.Paralip.g hyllaulters, bothe to fylde deuylles, and also to the calues whiche he hadde made. And after them there came of al the tribes of Israel (such as their hertes moued them to seke the Lorde God of Israell) to Jerusalem to offre vnto the Lord God of their fathers, & so they strengthed the kyngdom of Juda, and made Roboam the sonne of Salomon myghty thre yere long/ for thre yere they walked in the waye of David and Salomon.

D And Roboam toke him Mahalath ſ̄ wughter of Jerimoth the sonne of David to wife/ And Abihail the doughter of Eliab the sonne of Jsai, whiche bare him chyldren: Jeus, Samariah & Zaham. And after her, he toke Maacah the wughter of Absalom, whiche bare him Abiah, Ethai, Ziza and Salumith. But Roboam loued Maacah the doughter of Absalom aboue all his othre wyues & concubynes/ for he toke eyghtene his wiues, & thre score concubynes, and begate thre score doughters, and eyght and twenty sonnes. And Roboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chefe ruler amonge his brethren, for to make him kynge. And he played a wyse parte, and scatered of al his chyldren thorow out all the countreyes of Juda and Benjamin in euery stronge city. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitayle, and asked many wyues.

¶ Sesac kynge of Egypt robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth, and Abiah his sonne succedeth him.

CAPI. XII.

A AND when Roboam had stablysshed the kyngdome and made it stronge he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Jsrael with him. * Wherfore the fyfte yere of 2.Paralip.xiiij.g kynge Roboam, Sesac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynst Jerusalem (bycause they had trespassed agaynst the Lorde) with twelue hundred charettes, and thre score thousande horsemen. And the people were without nombre that came with him forth of Egypte, with them of Lybia / and the ſ̄ Suchites, and the b Some red Ethiopi here. blackemoores. And they toke the stronge cytees that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semeiah the Prophete to Roboam, and to the lordes of Juda that were gathered to Jerusalem for feare of Sesac, & sayd to them: thus sayth the Lorde: Ye haue lefte me, and therfore wyll I leaue you also in the handes of Sesac. Wherupon the lordes of Jsrael and the kyng humbled them selues & sayd: the Lorde is righteous. And when the Lorde sawe ſ̄ they submitted them selues, the worde of the Lorde came to Semeiah, sayyng: they meke them selues, and therfore I wyll not destroye them. But I wil wtsture them somwhat, and my wrath shall not fall vpon Jerusalem. Neuertheles they shall be his seruaunts, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruice and the seruyce of the kyngdomes of other landes. So Sesac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, & toke away the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house, and shortly he toke all. And he toke vp the shyldes of golde whiche Salomon made. In stede of whiche kyng Roboam made shyldes of brasse, and put them in the keepyng of the capitaynes of his garde, whiche watched the gate of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went to the house of the Lorde, the garde went and fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambre. And so whan he humbled him self, the wrathe of the Lorde turned from him, and destroyed not all together. And moreouer there were many good thynges yet in Juda.

So kynge Roboam waxed myghtye in Jerusalem and raigned. And Roboam was one and fourty yeres old whē he was made kyng, and he raigned seuentene yeres in Jerusalem the cytye whiche the Lorde had chosen out of all the tribes of Jsrael, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah, an Ammonite. * And he dyd euyll, for he prepared not his herte to seke the Lorde. The actes of Roboam first and last, are writtē in the bokes of Semeiah the Prophete, and of Addo the seer at dyuers, so moche as they longe to the genealogye, and the perpetuall warre that was betwene Roboam and Jeroboam in their tyme. And Roboam layd him to slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in the cyte of David, and Abia his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The vyctorye of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

CAPI. XIII.

THe eyghtenth yere of kynge Jeroboam began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, and he reigned thre yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michaiah, the doughter of Uriel of Gabaah. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia made a battayle with an hoste of fyghtyng men, foure hundred thousande chosen men. Jeroboam put in araye to fyghte agaynst him with eyghte hundred thousande prouē men of stronge.

And Abia stode vp vpon Zemaraim in the mount Ephraim, and sayd: Heare me Jeroboam and all Jsrael. Beecommeth it you to knowe that the Lorde God of Jsrael gaue the kyngdome of Jsrael to David for euer: euen to him and to his sonnes, by a ſ̄alted couenaūt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, the seruaunt of Salomon, the sonne of David rebelled agaynst the Lorde. And there gathered to him lewde men and vnthryftes, and preuayled agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was yonge and tender herted, and not stronge ynoughe for them.

And nowe ye thynke to preuayle agaynst the kyngdome of the Lorde in the hande of the sonnes of David, bycause ye be a greate multitude, and haue with you the golden calues whiche Jeroboam made you for goddes. And haue ye not caste oute the preestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites/ and made you preestes lyke the nacions of other landes: euen who so euer commeth and consecrateth his hande with an oxe, and seuen rammes, the same is made preest to them that are no goddes.

But with vs is the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken / and the preestes of the sonnes of Aaron ministrynge vnto the Lorde/ and the Leuites in office burnynge vnto the Lorde euery mornyge and euery euen burnt offrynges, & swete incense: and the shewbreed put in order vpon a pure table: and the candlestycke of golde, with the lampes of the same, to be lyghte euery euen. For we kepe the watch of the Lorde oure God: but ye haue forsaken him. Moreouer, beholde, God is with vs in the forewarde, and his preestes and the trumpe trompettes to crye alarum agaynst you. Ye chyldren of Jsrael fyght not with the Lorde God of youre fathers: for it wyll not prosper with you. But for al that, Jeroboam sent men priuily about to come behynde vpon them: and so they were before Juda, and the layers in wayte were behynde them. And whē Juda tourned and sawe the battayle behynde and before, they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the preestes blewe the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Jsrael before Abia and Juda. And the chyldren of Jsrael fledde before Juda / and the Lorde deliuered them in to the handes of Juda. And Abia and his people slewe a greate slaughter of them: so that there were stryken downe of Jsrael, fyue hundred thousande chosen men. And the chyldren of Jsrael were brought vnder at that tyme/ and the chyldren of Juda preuayled, bycause they leaned vnto the Lord God of their fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and wanne certayne cityes from him: Bethel, with townes belongyng therto, and Jsanah with the townes that longed therto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered not strength agayne in the dayes of Abia. At laste the Lorde plaged him that he dyed.

And Abia waxed myghtye, and toke him fourtene wyues, and begat two and twentye sonnes, and sixtene doughters. The reste of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and workes, are writtē in the storye of the Prophete Addo. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buryed him in the cyte of David. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede. In whose dayes the lande was quyet tenne yeres.

¶ Abia dyeth, after whom succedeth Asa.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND Asa dyd that was good and eyghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God, and toke awaye the aulters of straungers, & the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and commaundement. And he put awaye oute of all the cityes of Juda, the hyllaulters and the pollis: for ſ̄ kyngdome was quiet before him. And he buylt stronge cityes in Juda, bycause the land was in reste, & he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had gyuen him rest. 3.Reg.xv.d Asa.

And therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs buylde these cityes, and compasse them with walles and towres, gates and barres, whyle we haue the lande quiet. For we haue sought the Lord oure God: and bycause we haue sought him, he hathe gyuen vs reste on euerye syde. And so they buylte and prospered. And Asa had an armye that bare shylde and spere, oute of Juda thre hundred thousande/ and oute of Benjamin that bare shilde and drewe bowes, two hundred and foure score thousande, and were all stronge men.

And there came oute agaynst them Zarah the Mozian, with an host of ten hūdred thousande, and thre hundred charetters, and came as feere as Mareſa. And Asa wente oute to him, and they put in araye to battayle in the valeye of Zephatah beside Mareſa. And Asa 2.Reg.xviiij. cryed vnto the Lord his God, and sayd: Lorde it is all one with the, to helpe them that haue no power, with fewe or with manye: helpe vs O Lorde our God for we truste to the, and in thyne name we be come agaynst this multytude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, let not man preuayle against the. And the Lord smote the blacke Mozes before Asa and Juda, that they fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, pursued them as farre as Gerar. And the blacke Mozes were ouerthrowen, that there remayned none alyue of them, but were destroyed of the Lorde, and of his hoste/ they caried also a mighty great pray. And they smote all the cityes rounde about Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they robbed all the cityes, for there was exceedyng moche to be robbed in them. Furthermore they smote the tentes of the cattel, and caried away plentye of sheep, and camelles, and so returned to Jerusalem.

¶ Asarye Obed the memorion of the Prophet Azarias after he had put out the false Goddes, exhorteth to the Lorde. He deposeth his mother of her dominion.

CAPI. XV.

And

1 And the spirite of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. 2 And he went out a-gaynst Asa, and sayde to hym: heare me Asa and all Juda and Ben Jamin. The Lorde is with you whyle ye be with hym: and yf ye shall seke hym, he wyll be founde of you: but yf ye shall forsake hym, he wyll forsake you. 3 There wyll come manye dayes in Israell, in whiche there shall be no true God nor preeste that teacheth, nor anye lawe. 4 And in theyr tribulacion they shall tourne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and shall seke hym, and he shall be founde of them. 5 And in those dayes there shall be no peace to them that goo oute and in. But great vexacion on euery syde vpon the inhabitours of all landes. 6 For one nacion shall destroye an other, and one cyte an other: for God wyll vexe them with all aduersitie. 7 But plucke you vp youre heertes, and let not youre handes faynte, for youre workes shall be rewarded.

8 When Asa herde those wordes and the Prophesye of Azaria the sonne of Obed the Prophete, he toke courage & put awaye the abhominactions oute of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and oute of the cytes whiche he wanne in mounte Ephraim, and renued the aulter of the Lorde that was before the porche of the Lorde. 9 And he gathered all Juda and Ben Jamin, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manasses, and Simeon. For there fell manye to him oute of Israell, when they sawe that God was with him. 10 And they assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde moneth of the fyfteme yere of the raygne of Asa. 11 And they offered vnto the Lorde the same tyme of the spoyle whiche they had brought, seuen hundred oxen, and seuen thousande shepe. 12 Then they made a couenaunt to seke the Lord God of theyr fathers, with all theyr heertes, and all theyr soules: 13 so that all that sought not the Lord God of Israel, shulde dye for it whether he were small or greate, man or woman. 14 And they sware vnto the Lorde with a loude voyce and showtyng, and with trompettes and horns. 15 And al Juda reioysed in the othe, for they had swoyne with all theyr heertes, and sought him with all theyr luste, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde aboute. 16 Furthermore kynge Asa put Maacah his mother oute of authoryte, bycause she had made an ydoll in a groue: and brake downe the ydoll, and stampte it and burnte it by the brooke Cedron. 17 But they put not the hyllaunteers out of Israel: neuertheles the herte of Asa was pure all his lyfe. 18 And he brought into the house of God the dedicate gyftes whiche he and his father hadde dedicate, in golde, syluer, and other iewelles. 19 And there was no more warre vnto the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa.

¶ Asa, for feare of Baasa kynge of Israel, maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPI. XVI.

In the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kynge of Israell against Juda, and buylte Ramah, to the entent he wolde let none that pertayned to Asa kyng of Juda haue passage in and out. 2 Wherupon Asa fet syluer and golde forth of the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges house, and sent it to Benhadad kyng of Syria that dwelt at Damasco, and sayd. 3 There is leage betwene me and the, and so was betwene my father and thyne, wherfore I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou goo and breake thyne appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel, that he may depart from me. 4 And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaynes of his armye against the cytyes of Israel. And they brake Iton, Dan, Abelmaim, and all the store cytyes of Nephthali. 5 Which Baasa herde this, he lefte buylynge of Ramah, and letted his worke cease. 6 Then Asa the kyng tooke al Juda, and caryed away from the kyng tooke al Juda, and caryed away from thence the stones and tymbre of Ramah, wherwith Baasa had buylded: and he buylte therwith Gaba and Maspha.

7 At that same tyme Hanani the seer, came to Asa kynge of Juda, and sayde to hym: Bycause thou trustest in the kynge of Syria, and trustest not in the Lorde thy God, therfore the hoste of the kynge of Syria escapeth out of thyne hande. 8 Were not the blacke Morians and they of Libia a greate hoste, with exceadyng manye charettes and horsemen? And yet bycause thou trustedst in the Lorde, he delyuered them in to thyne hande. 9 For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earthe, to strengthen the heertes of them that are holy with hym. Therin thou hast wonne holy welye: and from hencefoorthe thou shalte haue warre. 10 Wherupon Asa was wrothe with the seer, and put him in prison, for he was displeased with hym bycause of that. Moreouer he oppressed certayne of the people the same season.

11 The dedes of Asa bothe first and last, are written in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israell. 12 And the nyne and thyrtye yere of his raygne, Asa fell sycke of his feete, and his disease exceded. And besyde this in his sickenesse he asked no counsell of the Lorde, but of physicions. 13 And at the laste Asa fell on slepe with his fathers, and dyed when he had raygned one and fourtye yere. 14 And they buryed him in his owne sepulchre which he had made in the cyte of David, and layd him in the bed which he had fylled with swete odours & diuers kyndes, made by the crafte of the potecaries. And they dyd exceadyng great coste about the synge of him.

¶ Josaphat succedeth after Asa, which walketh feare of the Lorde to be vexed among the people.

CAPI. XVII.

And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his stede, and mightyer then Israell. 2 He put soudyours in all the stronge cytyes of Juda, & set rulers bothe in the lande of Juda, and also in the cytes of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wonne. 3 And the Lorde was with Josaphat, bycause he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baals: 4 But sought the Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commaundementes, and not after the doynges of Israell. 5 Therfore the Lorde stablysshed the kingdome in his hande, and all Juda broughte him presentes, that he became exceadyng ryche and glorious. 6 And his herte was courageous in the wayes of the Lorde, and he put downe yet more of the hyllaunteers and groues out of Juda.

7 In the thyrde yere of his raygne he sente of his Lordes: Benhail, Abdiah, Zacharias, Nathanael, and Michaeas to teache in the cytes of Juda: 8 and with them Semeiah, Nathemah, Zabadias, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adonias, Thobias, and Thobadonias Leuites: and with them Elisama and Joram priestes. 9 And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the law with them, and went throughout all the cytes of Juda and taught the people.

10 And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kingdomes of the landes that were rounde about Juda, that they durst not warre with Josaphat. 11 And the Philistines brought Josaphat gyftes and tribute siluer. And there of Arabians brought him of hepe, seuen thousande and seuen hundred rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundred he goates. 12 And Josaphat prospered and grewe vp on hygh. And he buylte in Juda castelles and store cytyes, 13 and had great substaunce in the cytyes of Juda, and stronge men and men of myghte in Jerusalem.

14 And this is the order in the houses of theyr fathers of the capitaynes ouer thousandes in Juda: Adnah the capitayne, and with him of stronge men, three hundred thousande. 15 And next to him Johanan a capitayne, and with him two hundred and foure score thousande. 16 And by his syde Amasias the sonne of Zechri deliuered vnto the Lorde, and with him two hundred thousande mightye men. 17 And of the children of Ben Jamin, Eliada was a man of myght, and had with him armed with bowes and shelues, two hundred thousande. 18 And by his syde Josabad, with whom were an hundred and fourte score thousande furnished for warre. 19 These serued on the kyng, besydes those which the kyng had put in stronge cytyes thorow out all Juda.

¶ After Achab had asked counsell of the foure hundred Prophetes, he putteth Micheas in prison. He ioyneth with the Lorde of all hostes.

CAPI. XVIII.

1 And Josaphat became herre ryche & glorious, and ioyned affinite with Achab. 2 And after certayne yeres he went downe to Achab to Samaria. And Achab slewe hepe and oxen plenteously for him, and for the people that came with him, and intreated him to go vp vnto Ramoth in Galaad. 3 And Achab kyng of Israel sayd to Josaphat kyng of Juda: wilt thou go with me to Ramoth in Galaad? And he answered him, I will be as thou, & my people shall be as thyne, and we will be with the in the warres.

4 And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske I praye the, the worde of the Lord. 5 And the kynge of Israel gathered together of the prophetes foure hundred men, and sayd vnto them: shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I cease? And they sayde, goo: the Lorde shal deliuer it in to the kinges hand. 6 And Josaphat sayd: Is there yet here neuer a Prophete more of the Lorde, that we myghte aske of him? 7 And the kynge of Israell sayd to Josaphat: there is yet one, to aske the Lorde by him: But I hate him, for he neuer prophesieth me good, but alwaye euyll, one Michaeas the sonne of Jemla. And Josaphat sayde: let not the kynge saye so. 8 Then the kynge of Israell called one of his chamberlaynes, and sayde: fetche hyther quyckly Michaeas the son of Jemla. 9 And the kynge of Israell, and Josaphat kyng of Juda, sate eyther of them on his seate in their apparell, in a threshynge floore beside the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyenge before them. 10 And one Sedechias the sonne of Chanaana made him hornes of yron, and sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: with these thou shalte pushe Syria, vntyll thou haste broughte them to nought. 11 And all the Prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: goo vp to Ramoth in Galaad and prospere, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to the hande of the kynge. 12 And the messenger that went to call Michaeas, spake to him, sayinge: beholde the wordes of the Prophetes are pleasaunt to the kynge with one assente, lette thy wordes I praye the, be lyke one of theirs, and speake that whiche is pleasaunt. 13 And Michaeas sayde: as truly as the Lord liueth, euen what my God sayth, that will I speake. 14 And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayd to him: Michaeas, shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I be in rest? And he answered: goo ye and prospere, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to youre handes. 15 But the kynge sayde to him: how often tymes shall I adiure the that thou saye nothyng but truthe to me in the name of the Lorde.

16 Then he sayd: I se al Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe that haue no shepeherd. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peace. 17 Then sayde the kynge of Israell to Josaphat: dyd I not tell the that he wolde not prophesye good vnto me, but euyll? 18 And he answered: therfore heare ye the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sytte vpon his seate, and all the company of heuen standynge on his right hande and on his lefte. 19 And the Lorde sayde: who shal disceyue Achab kynge of Israel, that he may go and be ouercome at Ramoth in Galaad. And whyle one sayde thus, & an other that, there came out a spirite and stode before the

the Lorde and sayd: I wyll discerne him. And the Lord sayd to him, how? And he sayd I wyl go out, and wyll be a lyenge spirite in ꝑ mouthes of all the Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd thou shalte discerne him, and shalte preuayle, go out and do euen so. And nowe beholde the Lorde hath put a lying spirite in the mouthes of all these thy Prophetes, and yet the Lorde hath spoken euyll agaynste the. And Sedechias the sonne of Canana went and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayd: by what way wente the spirite of the Lorde frome me, to speake in the? And Micheas sayde: thou shalte se the daye when thou shalte runne from chambre to chambre for to hyde thy selfe. Then sayd the kynge of Israel: take ye Micheas, and deliuer him to Amon the gouernour of the citye, and to Joas the kynges sonne, and saye/ thus sayth the kynge: put this felowe in prison, & fede him with breed of sorowe, and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. And Micheas sayd: yf thou come agayne in peace, then hath not the Lorde spoken in me. And Micheas sayd moreouer: harken ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp to Ramoth in Galaad. Then sayd the kynge of Israel to Josaphat: I wyl chaunge my clothes and get me to battayle, but se thou haue thyne owne apparel vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chaūged him selfe, and they went to battayle. But the kynge of Syria commaunded the capitaynes of his charettes, sayinge: se ye fyghte not agaynst small or great, sauc agaynst the kynge of Israel onely.

And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they had thoughte he had ben the kynge of Israell, and therefore compassed him, to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed oute, and the Lorde holpe him, and God tourned them awaye from him. For when the capitaynes of the charettes perceyued that it was not the kynge of Israell, they tourned backe agayne from him. And a certayne man drewe his bow at auenture, and smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergyne. And he sayde to the charet man, tourne thyne hande and carye me oute of the hoste, for I am hurte. And the battayle was sore that daye. How be it the kyng of Israel contynued standynge in his charet agaynste the Syrians vntyll euen. And about the sonne goynge downe, he dyed.

¶ After Josaphat was rebuked by the Prophete Jehu, he called agayne the people to the honourynge of the Lorde God.

CAPI. XIX.

A Jehu

THen Josaphat kynge of Juda returned to his house safe and sound to Jerusalē. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the sear, went out agaynst him, and sayd to kynge Josaphat: oughtest thou to helpe the wycked, and to loue them that hate the Lorde? For this cause is the wrath of the Lorde vpon the. Neuertheles there are good thynges founde in the, in that thou hast put awaye the groues create oute of the lande, and hast prepared thyne herte to seke God. And as Josaphat dwelte at Jerusalem, he went agayne amonge the people frome Berseabe to mount Ephraim, and broughte them agayne vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And he set Iudges in the lande, throughout all the stronge cities of Juda, cite by cite/ and sayde to the Iudges: take hede what ye do, for ye do not Iudges in the lawe of man, but of God, whiche is with you in the wordes of the lawe. Wherefore let the feare of the Lorde be with you, and take hede and do it. For there is vnrighteousnesse in the Lorde our God, nor regardynge of persones, nor takynge of rewardes.

Moreouer in Jerusalem dyd Josaphat set popyl certayne of the Leuites of the prestes, and of the auncient heades of Israell, ouer the customes of the Lorde, and causes of strife. Whiche wone, they returned to Jerusalem. And he charged them, sayinge: worshippe in the feare of the Lorde, with trueth and perfecte herte. And what so euer come to you of your brethren that dwelle in their cytyes/ betwene blonde and blonde, lawe, commaundement, ordinaunces and customes: se ye warne them that they trespace not agaynst the Lorde, lest wrathe come vpon you, and on your brethren. Thus do, and ye shall not offende. And here Amarias the Priest, whiche is ouer you in all matters of the Lorde, and Zabadias the sonne of Ismael, a ruler in the house of Juda, he is ouer all causes concernynge the kynge, with officers of the Leuites before you. Take courage to you, and goo vpon it, and the Lorde shall be with the good.

¶ The meruelous victory that the Lorde gaue Josaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the children of Ammon, and them of Seir.

CAPI. XX

AFter this came the children of Moab & the children of Ammon, and with them a companye of the Ammonites against Josaphat to battayle. And there came some that told Josaphat, saying: there commeth a great multitude agaynste the from the other syde the see out of Syria. And se, they be in Haseson Thamar, whiche is Engadi. Then Josaphat feared and set him selfe to seke the Lorde, and proclamed a fastynge throughe out all Juda. And Juda gathered them selues togyther to aske counsell of the Lorde. Furthermore there came out of al ꝑ cities of Juda to seke the Lorde. And Josaphat stode in the assemble of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lorde before the newe courte, and sayd: Lorde God of our fathers, arte not thou God in heuen, and raygnest ouer all the kyngdomes of the people? And in thyne hande is power and myght, so that no man can stand before the? Art not thou our God, whiche dyddest call out the inhabitantes of this lande before thy people Israel, and gauest it to the seed of Abraham thy frende for euer and they dwelte therin, and haue buylt for the a temple therin vnto thy name, & sayd: when euyll commeth vpon vs, as the swerde of iudgement, pestilence, or hunger: then ye we stande before this house and before the/ (for thy name is in this house) and shall crye vnto the in our tribulation, thou shalt heare and helpe. And nowe beholde, the children of Ammon and Moab, and mount Seir, by whiche thou wouldest not let Israell passe, what tyme they came fro the of Egypte: but they departed from them, & destroyed them not. And now marke how they rewarde vs/ they come to cast vs out of thy possession whiche thou hast gyuen vs. O our God, wylte thou not iudge them? for we haue not so great puyssaūce that we can make resistence agaynst this great company that commeth agaynst vs. Neyther wote we what to do, but our eyes be vnto the. And all Juda stode before the Lorde with their yongfrugers, their wyues and their children: the spirite of the Lord came vpon Jahaziel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Banaia, the sonne of Jeiel, the sonne of Mathaniah a Leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, euen as he was in the myddes of the company. And he sayd: harken all Juda, and the inhabitours of Jerusalem, and also kyng Josaphat. Thus sayth the Lorde vnto you, be not afrayde or fearte ye for cause of this greate multitude. For the warre is not yours, but Gods. And to morow ye shall goo downe to them: se, they come vp at Ziz, and ye shall mete them in the toppe of the brooke of the wyldernesse of Jeruel. For it shall not be you that shall fyghte in this warre: but stande fayed onely, and beholde the helpe of the Lorde, whiche is with you: feare not, nor let your hertes faile, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morow marche forwarde to them: for the Lorde is with you.

And Josaphat bowed him self with his face to the erth, and all Juda and the inhabitours of Jerusalem fell before the Lorde, and worshipped him. And the Leuites and the children of the Caathytes and of the Corahites rose vp to prayse the Lorde God of Israell with a loude voyce on hyghe. And so they arose early in the morninge and gat them out vnto ꝑ wyldernesse of Thekua. And when they went out Josaphat stode and sayd: heare me Juda, and inhabitours of Jerusalem. Beleue in ꝑ Lord your God, and so shal ye continue: and beleue his Prophets, and so shal ye prospere. And he gaue the people counsell, and set the singers of the Lorde, and them that prayse in holy apparell, to goo oute before the armye, and to saye praise the Lord, for his mercy lasteth euer. And what time they began to laud and prayse, then the Lorde set their enemyes vpon their owne selues as many as were come to fight agaynst Juda, euen the children of Ammon and Moab against mount Seir, for the children of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst the inhabitours of mount Seir, to destroye them vtterlye, and to wype them awaye. And when they had made an ende of the inhabitoures of Seir, then they holpe to destroye eche other.

And when Juda came to Maspha ꝑ wyldernesse, they loked to the multitude. And beholde, they were ded carkesses fallen to ꝑ erth, and none escaped. And Josaphat and his people went to reype and spoyle the ded, & found amonge them aboundance of goodes and rayment and of pleasaunt iewelles, and caughte from them more then they couldē carye awaye: so that they were thre dayes in gatherynge of ꝑ spoyle, it was so moche. And ꝑ fourth day they assembled in ꝑ valey of blessyng, for there they blessed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the said place the valey of blessing vnto this daye. And so al the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned, & Josaphat among the thickest of them, for to go agayne to Jerusalem ꝑ gladnesse, for the Lord had made them to reioyse of their enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries & harpes and trompettes, euen vnto the house of the Lorde, & the feare of God fel in the kyngdomes of all landes, when they had herde that the Lorde fought agaynst the enemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Josaphat was in tranquilite: for his God had geuen him rest on euery syde.

So Josaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was xxxv. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and raigned .xxv. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Asuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Asa his father, and bowed not thence, but did that was pleasaunt in the syghte of the Lorde. How be it they put not downe the hyghtes, neither did the people yet prepare their hertes vnto the God of their fathers. The rest of the actes of Josaphat first and last are writtē in the workes of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, which noted them in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

After this Josaphat kynge of Juda ioyned him selfe with Ochosiah kynge of Israell, whiche was a wycked doar. And he coupled him selfe with him to make shyppes to goo to Tharsis. And they made the shyppes in Asion Gaber. And Eliezer the sonne of Dodanah of Maresa prophesied agaynst Josaphat, saying: because thou hast ioyned thy selfe with Ochosiah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the shyppes were broke that they were not able to go to Tharsis.

¶ Josaphat dyeth & Joram succeedeth him, which putteth to death his brethren/ and is oppressed of the Philistines/ and dyeth of the flyxe.

CAPI. XXI.

JOsaphat slepte him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cyte of David, and Joram his sonne raygned in his rowme, which Joram had other brethē sonnes of Josaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zecharias, Azariah, Michael, and Sephatiah. All these were the sonnes of Josaphat kynge of Juda. And their father gaue them many great gyftes in syluer, golde, and other precious thinges, with stronge cities in Juda: but the kyngdome he gaue to Joram because he was the eldest. Whē Joram was promoted vpon the kyngdome of his father and feteled, he slew all his other brethren with the swerde, and diuers of the lordes

iiij.Re.viij.d of Israel also. *Joram was two and thirtye
yere olde when he began to raygne, & raigned B eyght yeres in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, lyke as did the house of Achab (for a doughter of Achab was his wife) and he wrought euil in the eyes of the Lorde. Howbeit the Lorde wolde not destroye the house of David, bicause of the couenaunt he had made with David, and as he promised to geue a lyght to him and to his sonnes for euer.

In his dayes the Edomites rebelled bicause
they wolde not be vnder the hande of Juda, & made them a kynge. And Joram went forthe
with his lordes and all his charettes with him
and rose by nyghte and layde on the Edomp-
tes. Which compassed hym in, and the Capi-taynes of his charettes. And so Edom departed from the subiection of Juda vnto this day.
That same tyme also did Lobnah departe frō
his kynge vnder his power, bycause he lefte the Lorde God of his fathers. Moreouer he made hyllaulters in the mountaynes of Juda, and caused thinhabitaunters of Jerusalem to commytt aduultery, and he draue Juda out of the waye.

The lettres of Elias

And there came a writyng to him from Elias the Prophete of this tenoure. Thus sayth
the Lordes God of David thy father: bycause
thou walkedest not in the wayes of Josaphat thy father, and in the wayes of Asa kynge of Juda, but walkedest in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and hast made Juda & the dwellers of Jerusalem go a whoryng, lyke to the worying of the house of Achab, & hast also slayne
thy brethren that were thy fathers house,
which were better then thou: Beholde, the Lorde wyll smyte the with a myghtye plage
in thy folke, in thy children, in thy wyues, and in thy goodes. And thou shalt haue moche disease thorowe infirmite in the bowelles, tyll
thy bowelles fall oute by reason of thy sicke-nesse daye by daye.

D And the Lorde stered vp against Joram the spirite of the Philistines and the Arabias that bo,der on the blacke Mores: Whiche came a-gaynst Juda and all to eare the lande, and caried away all the substaunce that was found in the kynges house, and moreouer his sonnes
and his wyues, so that there was not one son left him, saue Joahaz his yongest sonne. And after all this, the Lorde smote him in his bo-welles with an incurable disease. And in proces of tyme, euen about the ende of two yeres
his guttes fell oute by reason of his sickenesse and he dyed of euyll diseases. But they made him no bonefyre lyke the bonefyres of his fathers. When he began to raygne, he was xxxij.
yere olde, and raygned in Jerusalē eyght yere.
And he walked not pleasauntly, and they buryed him in the cite of David: but not in the sepulchre of the kynges.

¶ Ochozyah raygneth i the rowme of Joram/ Jehu
[illegible] Ochozyah. Athaliah murdreth
[illegible] the kynges sede saue only Joas escapeth.

CAPI. XXII.

AND the inhabitoures of Jerusalem made Ochoziah his yongest sonne kyng in his stede. For the men of warre that came with the Arabians in the hoste, had slayne all his elder sonnes. And so Ochoziah the son of Joram kynge of Juda was made kynge. Two and fourtye yere olde was he, when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Athaliah the doughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Achab / for his mother was his counsellour for to do euyll. Wherin
he dyd that displeased the Lorde, lyke as the house of Achab, for they were his counsellers
after the deth of his father, to his destruction, and he also walked after their counsell. And Joram sonne of Achab kyng of Israel went to fyght with Hazael kynge of Syria at Ramoth
in Galaad / and they of Ramoth wounded him.
Wherfore he returned to be healed in Jezrel
of the woundes which were geuen him at Ra-moth, when he fought with Hazael kynge of Syria. And Ochoziah the son of Joram kynge of Juda, went downe to se Joram the son of Achab at Jezrael, bycause he was diseased. For it was conuenient to Ochoziah of God to goe Joram, and that when he was come, he shulde go out with Joram, against Jehu the sonne of Namsi, whom the Lorde had anointed to destroye the house of Achab.

And as Jehu was executynge iudgement vpon
the house of Achab: he founde the lordes of Juda, and the sonnes of the brethren of Ochoziah, that waited on Ochoziah, and he slewe
them. And he sought Ochoziah, & they caught him where he was hid in Samaria, & brought him to Jehu. And when they had slayne him, they buryed him: bicause (sayde they) he was the son of Josaphat with the whole heart with all his herte. And there was none of the house of Ochoziah that coulde obteyne to be kynge.

* For Athaliah the mother of Ochoziah,
when she sawe her sonne was ded, arose and slewe all the seed of the kyngdom of the house of Juda. But Josabeth the doughter of the kynge toke Joas the sonne of Ochoziah, & stale him from among the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and put him and his nource in a sleppynge chambre. And so Josabeth the dough-ter of kynge Joram and wyfe of Jehoiada the Preeste, bycause she was the sister of Ochoziah) hyd him from Athaliah that she shulde not slee him. And he was with them hyd in the house of God, sixe yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer
the lande.

¶ Joas the sonne of Ochoziah is made kynge:
Athaliah is put to death.

CAPI. XXIII.

IN the seuenth yere Jehoiada toke herte, &
made a bonde with the capitaynes of hun-dredes, Azariah the sonne of Jeroham, Ishmael the sonne of Johanan, Azariah the sonne
of Obed, Maaliah the sonne of Zichri, &

Elisaphat the sonne of Zechri. And they went about in Juda and gathered the Le-uites out of all the cityes of Juda, and the auncyent headdes of Israell, and came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God.
And Jehoiada sayd to them: Beholde, the kinges sonne muste raygne ouer the chyldren of David, as the Lorde hathe sayde. This is it therfore that ye shall do. The thyrde parte of you Preestes and Leuites whiche come in the Sabaoth daye, shall kepe the wozes, and an other thyrde parte shal be in the kynges house,
and an other thyrde parte shall be in the gate
of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the courtes of the house of the Lorde. And there shall none come in to the house of the Lorde, saue the preestes and the Leuites that ministre. They shall goo in, for they are holye.
And all the people shal kepe the watche of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall compasse the kynge rounde about, euerye man his weapon in his hand: and what so euer other man come in to the preas of the house, he shall dye for it, and they shal be with the kyng, as he commeth in,
& as he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Juda dyd in all
thynges as Jehoiada the preeste commaunded,
and toke euery man his men: both them that came in, and them that went out the Sabaoth daye: for Jehoiada the preest dyd let none of the companyes departe. And Jehoiada the preest de-liuered to the capitaynes of hundredes speres
and shyldes, and doubletes that pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in the house of God.
And he sette all the people and euery man his weapon in his hande, from the ryght corner of the house to the lefte corner of the house, along by the aulter, and the house round about the kynge. And they brought out the kynges sonne, and put on him the crowne and the testimonye, and made him kyng. And Jehoiada and his sonnes annoynted him and said: God saue
the kynge.

When Athaliah herde the noyse of the people runnynge and prayssynge the kynge, she went amonge the people vnto the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande
at his pyller in the enterynge, and the lordes
and trompettes aboute the kynge, and all the people of the lande reioysynge and blowynge
with trompettes, and the syngers with instrumentes of musyche teachynge to playse: She rente her clothes and cryed: treason treason.
And Jehoiada the preeste wente oute with the capitaynes of hundredes that were appoynted
to garde the hoste, and sayde to them: haue
her oute without the araye, and who so euer followeth her, lette him be slayne with the sworde. For the Preeste sayde: slee her not in the house of the Lorde. And they layde han-des on her and when she was come out to the entryng of the horsegate in the kynges house,
they slew her there. * And Jehoiada made a bond
betwene him and all the people and the kyng
that the Lordes people. And all the people went to the house of Baal and destroyed it, &
brake the aulters and ymages, and slewe Ma-
than the Preeste of Baal afore the aulters.
And Jehoiada put the offices of the house of the Lorde in the handes of the Preestes, the Le-uites whiche Dauid had diuided in compa-
nyes for the house of the Lorde, to offre burnt offeringes vnto the Lord, as is written in the lawe of Moses, with reioysyng and singing,
as it was ordeyned by David. And he set porters vnto the gates of the house of the Lord, þ
no vncleane person in anye poynte shoulde entre in.

And he toke the capitaynes of hundredes,
and the nobles and the gouernours of the peple and all the folke of the lande, and brought the kyng downe out of the house of the Lord,
and they went thorowe the hygh gate in the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seat of the kyngdome. And all the people of þ land reioysed, and the cite was in tranquillite, but they slewe Athalia with the sworde.

¶ Joas kynge the lyfe of Joiada keepeth the lawe, but after his deathe he regardeth him not. He killeth Zacharias the Prophete. Joas is killed of his owne seruauntes, after whome raygneth Amazias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

IOas was seuen yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia of Beersabe. And Joas dyd that pleased the Lorde all the dayes of Joiada the Preeste. And Jo-iada gaue him two wyues, and he begate son-nes and doughters.

A iiij.Reg.xij.d

It chaunced after that, that Joas was minded to mende the house of the Lorde. Where-vpon he gathered together the Preestes & the Leuites, and sayd to them: *go out thorowe
the cities of Juda, and gather of all Israel money to strengthe the house of your God, from yere, and se ye haste the thynge: howbeit the Leuites were slacke. When the kynge called Joiada that was the chyefe, and said to him:
Why requyrest thou not of the Leuites to bringe in, out of Juda and Jerusalem, the summe appoynted by Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, and by the congregacion of Israel,
for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldren hadde broken the house of God, and hadde bestowed all the de-dicat gyftes of the house of the Lorde, aboute Baals.

B

Wherfore at the kynges commaundement
they made a coffer, and sette it at the gate of the house of the Lorde: and made proclamacyon thorowe Juda and Jerusalem to bringe
in to the Lorde the * taxacion of Moses the Exod.xxx.b.
seruaunt of God, whiche he set vpon Israel in the wyldernesse. And the lordes and all the peo ple reioysed, and brought in and caste in to the coffer, vntyll it was full. And when the tyme came that the chest shulde be brought in by the handes of the Leuites at thappoyntement of the kynge. when they sawe that there was moche money: then came the kynges scribe,

and one appointed by the chiefe Priestes, and powred out that was in the coffer, and tooke it and carried it to his place againe, and thus they did daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

And the kyng and Joiada gaue it to workemen that wrought vpon the house of the Lorde, and hyred masons and carpenters to repaire the house of the Lorde, and artificers in yron and brasse, to repaire the Lordes house. And the workemen wrought, and the worke prospered thorowe their handes: and they made the house of God as it ought to be, and strengthed it. And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money to the kyng and Joiada, and therwith were made vessels for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye vessels to ministre withall, and to serue for burntofferynges, as ladels and vessels of golde and syluer. And they offered burntofferynges in the house of the Lorde continually all the dayes of Joiada.

And Joiada waxed olde and full of yeres, and died. An hundred and thirtye yere olde was he when he died. And they buryed him in the citie of Dauid among the kynges, because he had wrought good in Israell, and on God, and on his house. After the deth of Joiada came the lordes of Juda and made obeysaunce to the kyng. And then the kyng hearkened vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lorde God of their fathers, & serued groues & ymages. And then came there wrath vpon Juda and Jerusalem for this their trespace. Notwithstandynge God sente Prophetes to them, to bringe them againe vnto the Lorde. And they testified vnto them. But they wolde not heare.

Zacharias. And the spirite of God came vpon Zacharias the sonne of Joiada the priest, and he stepte vp aboue the people, and sayde to them. Thus sayth God: why breake ye the cõmaundementes of the Lorde? ye shall therfore not prospere, but as ye haue forsaken him, so shall he forsake you. * Whereupon they conspyred Math. xxiii. b against him, and stoned him with stones, at commaundement of the kyng, euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. And Joas the kynge remembred not the kyndnes which Joiada his father had done to him, but slewe his son. And when he died, he sayd: the Lorde se & requyre it & reckenynge.

And when the yere was oute, the hoste of the Syrians came against him: and they came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the lordes of the people, and sente all the spoyle of them vnto the kynge to Damasco. And though the armye of Syria came with a small compasse of men, yet the Lorde deliuered a verye great hoste in to their handes, because they had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers, and vnto them they executed Joas according to his desertes.

And as soone as they were departed from him, though they left him in greate diseases, yet his owne seruauntes conspired against him for the bloude of the children of Ioiada the Priest, and slewe him on his bedde. And when he was dead, they buryed him in the cytye of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyred against him: Zabad the sonne of Semaath an Ammonite, and Iosabad the sonne of Semrith a Moabite, and his sonnes. And the summe of the taxe that came to him, and the foundacion of the house of God, are written in the boke of kynges. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Amazias ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kynge of Israel ouercometh and byndeth Amazias.

CAPL. XXV.

AMazias was fyue and twenty yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned nyne and twentye yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joiadan of Jerusalem. And he did that pleased the Lord, but not with the hole herte. And as soone as he was settled in the kyngdome, he slewe them that killed the kyng his father. But he slewe not their children, accordynge to that is written in the lawe in the boke of Moses, to whom the Lord commaunded, sayinge: * the fathers shall not dye for the childrens causes, nor the children for the fathers, but euery man shall dye for his owne synne. And Amazias assembled Juda together and made capitaynes ouer thousandes, & euer hundredes in the houses of their fathers throughout all Juda and Ben Jamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere and aboue, and founde them three hundred thousande younge lusty men able to go to battayle, and that could handle speare and shild. And he hyred eyghtie thousande fyghtynge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer.

But there came a man of God to him and sayde: Kynge, lette not the armye of Israel goo with the, for the Lorde is not with Israel nether with anye of the house of Ephraim. Or elles yf thou medes wylte, then go and do it, and make thy selfe stronge to battayle: and thou shalte se, that God shall make the fall before thyne enemyes. For God hath power to helpe or to caste downe. And Amazias sayde to the man of God, what shall we do then for the hundred talentes which I haue geuen vnto the hoste of Israel? And the man of God sayde: the Lorde is able to geue the moche more then that.

Then Amazias seuered the armye that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go home againe. Wherefore they were exceadynge wrothe with Juda, and returned home in great angre.

And Amazias toke herte, and caryed out his hoste, and went to Saltdale. * Where he slewe of the children of Seir ten thousande. And other ten thousande the children of Juda toke aliue, and caryed them vnto the toppe of the rocke, and cast them downe from the top of the rocke, that they all to burst: but the men of the armye which Amazias had turned backe that he wolde not let go with his people to battayle, ran vpon the cities of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethoron, and slewe three thousande of them and wan moche spoyle.

And it chaunced, after that Amazias was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, and had brought the goddes of the children of Seir, he set them vp to be his goddes, and bowed him selfe before them, & burned incense vnto them. Wherefore the Lorde was wrothe with Amazias, and sente to him a Prophete, & said to him: why seekest thou the goddes of the people which were not able to deliuer their owne people out of thyne handes? And as the Prophet spake to him, he said to him: haue men made the of the kynges counsell? cease, leest thou be slayne. And the Prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure that God hath taken counsel to destroy the, because thou hast done this, and obeyest not my counsell.

Then Amazias kyng of Juda toke aduyse, and sent to Joas the sonne of Joachas the son of Jehu kynge of Israell, and sayd: come and let vs se eyther other. And Joas kynge of Israell, sente againe to Amazias kynge of Juda saynge: a thystell in Libanon sente to a Cedar tree of Libanon, saying: * giue thy dough ter to my sonne to wyfe. But there came the wylde beastes of Libanon, and trode downe the thystell. Thou thynkest: lo, I haue beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte aryseth to glorifye thy selfe. Now abyde at home: what needeth the to prouoke to euyl, that thou perishe and Juda with the?

But Amazias rested not: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them in to the handes of their enemyes, and that because they had sought the goodes of the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe eyther other, both he and Amazias kynge of Juda at Bethshames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, and fledde euery man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amazias kynge of Juda the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ohoziah at Bethshames: and brought him to Jerusalem, and rente the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim, vnto the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes longe. And he toke all the golde and syluer and all the vessels that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasure of the kynges house and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

And Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Iehu kynge of Israell fyftene yeres. The rest of the actes of Amazias first and laste, are not they written in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israel. And after the tyme that Amazias did turne awaye from the Lorde, they conspyred treason against him in Jerusalem: and he fled to Lachis, whyther they sente after him and slewe him there, and brought him vp with horses and buried him with his fathers in the cyte of Juda.

¶ After the deathe of Amazias raygneth Oziah which is otherwise with the leppe, and Joatham raygneth in his rowme.

CAPL. XXVI.

Then all the people of Juda toke Oziah which was sixtene yere olde, and made him kynge in the rowme of his father Amazias. And he buylte Eloth and brought it againe to Juda, after the kynge was layde to reste with his fathers. Sixtene yere olde was Oziah when he began to raygne, and he raygned two and fifty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jecaliah of Jerusalem. And he did that pleased the Lord in all poynctes, as did his father Amazias. And he sought God while Zacharias the teacher to se God liued: and as long as he sought the Lord, God made him prospere.

And he went to battayle against the Philistines, and brake downe the walles of Geth and the walles of Jabneh, and the walles of Asdod / and buylte cityes aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistines. And God holpe him against the Philistines, and against the Arabians that dwelte in Gurbaal, and against the Meunites. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Oziah, and his name spred abrode euen to Egypt: for he played the man, and exceded. Moreouer Oziah buylte towres in Jerusalem ouer the corner gate, and ouer the valeye gate, and ouer other corners, and made them stronge. And he buylte towres in the wyldernesse, and digged manye welles. For he hadde moche cattell, both in the valeye, and also in the playne, and plowmen and vyne dressers in the mountaynes and in Charmel, for he loued husbandrye.

And Oziah hadde an hoste of fyghtynge men that wente oute to warre in the armye, and were tolde and nombred by Jeiel the scrybe, & Maaseiah an officer, vnder the hande of Hananiah one of the kynges lordes. And the hole nombre of the auncient heades of the men of myght, were two thousande and fyue hundred, and vnder the handes of them was the armye of the hoste, three hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre in myghte and strengthe, to helpe the kynge against his enemyes. And Oziah prouyded them throughout all the hoste, shyldes, speres, helmets, habergynnes, bowes, and slynges for stones. And he made engynes in Jerusalem by the crafte of artificers, to be on the towres and corners, to shote arowes and greate stones with. And his name spred farre abrode / for he was wonderfye holpe, vntyll he was become myghtye.

And in his greatnesse his herte arose, that he was marred, and transgressed against the Lorde his God. For he went in to the temple of the Lorde to burne incense vpon the aulter of incense. But Azarias the priest went in after him with foure score priestes of the Lorde that were bolde men. And they stepte to Oziah the kynge, and sayde to him: it pertayneth not to the Oziah to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the priestes the children of Aaron that are consecrate for to burne incense. Come out of the sanctuarye, for thou hast trespaced, and it shall be no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Oziah was wroth & had incense in his hande to offre, and in his indignacion agaynste the Pzeest, * the leprye sprange in his forehed before the Pzeestes in the house of the Lozde, euen before the incense autter. And Azarias the chyefe Pzeeste with all the other Pzeestes loked vpon hym: and beholde, he was a lepre in his forehed, and they draue him thence. And thereto he was fayne to go oute, because the Lozde hadde plaged him. And Oziah the kynge continued a lepre vnto the daye of his deathe, and dwelt in an house at libertie: how be it he was cast oute of the house of the Lozde. And Joatham his son had the gouernaunce of the kynges house, & iudged the people of the lande.

* iiii. Reg. 5. d. a.

The reste of the actes of Oziah both the firste and laste, dyd Isaias the Prophete, the sonne of Amos write. And when Oziah was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him with his fathers in the felde of the burial of the kinges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Joatham his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Joatham raygneth and ouercōmeth the Ammonites. Achaz his sonne raygneth after him.

CAPI. XXVII.

IOatham was fyue and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jeruiah the doughter of Zadoc. And he dyd that pleased the Lozde in all poyntes as dyd his father Oziah: saue, that he came not to the temple of the Lozde, and that the people dyd yet corrupte themselues. He buylte the hye gate of the temple of the Lozde, and on the walle Ophel he buylte moche. Moreouer he buylte cities in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the woode countrey he buylt castels and towres.

And he foughte with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue him that same yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and tenne thousande quarters of wheate, and as moche barley. So moche also did the chyldren of Ammon geue him the seconde yere, and the thirde. And Joatham became mighty, because he dressed his waye before the Lozde his God.

The reste of the actes of Joatham and all his warres and his wayes are written in the boke of kynges of Israell and Juda. He was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And when Joatham was layde to reste with his fathers, they buryed him in the citye of David: and Achaz his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The wyckednesse of Achaz kynge of Juda. After him raygneth Ezechias.

CAPI. XXVIII.

ACHaz was twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd not that pleased the Lozde, as dyd his father Dauid: but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made thereto Basis of metall. He offered incense in the valeye of the chyldren of Hennon, and burnte his chyldren in fyre after the abhominacion of the nacyons which the Lozde threwe oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered burnt incense in hyghe places, and on mountaynes, and vnder euery grene tree.

Wherfore the Lozde his God deliuered him in to the hande of the kynge of the Syrians: whiche beat him, and caryed away a great multitude of his captiue in to Damascon. And further, he was deliuered in to the hande of the kyng of Israel, which slewe of his a mighty slaughter. For Phaked the sonne Remaliah slewe in Juda an hundred and twentye thousande in one daye, and all fyghtyng men: and that because they had forsaken the Lozde God of their fathers. And Zechri a mighty man in mount Ephraim slewe Maasiah the kinges sonne, and Ezricam the lozde stewarde of his house, and Elcanah that was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israell toke pyseners of their brethren two hundred thousande women, sonnes and doughters, and thrist awaye moche spoyle of them, and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a Prophet of the Lozde named Obed, whiche wente oute to the hoste that came to Samaria, and sayde to them: Behold, because the Lozde God of youre fathers was wrothe with Juda, he deliuered them in youre handes. And ye haue slayne them with cruelte that reacheth vp to heuen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondemen and bondewomen. What other thynge do ye (ye vnhappye) then offende the Lozde your God? But nowe heare me, and deliuer the prisoners agayne whiche ye haue taken of your brethren, for the great wrathe of the Lozde is vpon you.

And certayne of the heades of the chyldren of Ephraim: as Azarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachiah the sonne of Mesillemoth, Ezechiah the sonne of Selum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadalai stode vp agaynste them that came from warre, and sayd vnto them: Ye shall not bringe in the captyues hyther. For nowe we haue offended the Lozde alreadye, ye entende to adde moze to oure synnes and trespace. For oure trespace is greate alreadye, and there is feare wrathe vpon Israel. Wherfore the men of armes lefte the captyues and the spoyle before the lozdes and all the congregacion.

And there arose certayne appointed them by name, and toke the pyseners and clothed all that were naked amonge them, and spoyle, and arayed them and shoed them, and gaue them to eate and to drynke, & annointed them, & caried all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho the cyte of palme trees fast by their brethren: and they returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Achaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne and slue of Juda and caryed awaye some captyues. And the Philistines inuaded the cyties in the lowe countrey and the south of Juda: And toke Bethsames, Aialon, Gaderoth, and Socoh: with the townes belongynge thereto, and Thimna with the townes of the same. And Gimle with her townes, and dwelte therin. For the Lozde brought Juda lowe, because of Achaz kynge of Juda, whiche made Juda naked and transgressed agaynst the Lozde. And Thiglath palneser kynge of Assur came vnto him and besieged him, but preuayled not agaynste him. For Achaz toke awaye out of the house of the Lozde and oute of the kynges house and out of the Lordes houses and gaue vnto the kynge of Assur, though it holpe him not. And yet in the very tyme of his tribulacion dyd kynge Achaz trespace yet more agaynst the Lozde. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Damasco which bet him and sayde because the goddes of the Syriens helpe them therfore will I offer to them, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction & the destruction of all Israel. And Achaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God & brake them, & shut vp the wyes of the house of the Lozde, and made him autears in all corners of Jerusalem. And in al the cyties of Juda cyte by cyte he made hyghe places to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lozde God of his fathers. The rest of his actes and all his wayes both first and last are written in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israell. And whē Achaz was layde to rest with his fathers they buryed him in the cyte of Jerusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Juda. And Ezechias his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Ezechias restoreth vnto the temple of the Lozde all the vessels that had not bene regarded of his predecessours.

CAPI. XXIX.

EZechias began to raygne when he was. xxv. yere olde, and raygned. xxix. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Abia the doughter of Zachary. And he dyd that was right in the sight of the Lozde in all poyntes, as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the wyes of the house of the Lozde in the firste yere and first moneth of his raigne, and repaired them. And he brought in the preestes and the Leuites and gathered them together into the east strete and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites: purifye youre selues and halow the house of the Lozde God of your fathers, and bringe out the filthynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespased and done wyckedly in the eyes of the Lozde our God: and haue forsaken him, and turned away their faces from the habitation of the Lozde and turned to their backes. And beside that they haue shut vp the wyes of the porche and quenched the lampes and haue neyther burned incense nor offred burntofferinges in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrathe of the Lozde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and he scattered them & made them so thynne that men dare se it, euen as ye se with youre eyes. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the swerde, and oure sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were caryed away prysoners for the same. Now haue I in my herte to stryke a couenaunt with the Lozde God of Israel: that his wrathe maye cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not negligent: for the Lozde hathe chosen you to stande before him, and to minister and burne offrinages to him.

Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the son of Amasai and Joel the sonne of Azariah dyd vnto of the children of the Cahathites: and the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Azariah the sonne of Jalaleel: and of the Gersonites, Joah the sonne of Zimma and Eden the sonne of Joah: and of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri and Jeiel: and of the sonnes of Asaph, Zachariah and Mathaniah: & of the sonnes of Heman, Jehiel and Semei: & of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semaiah and Oziel. And they gathered their brethren and purified them selues, and then went at commaundement of the kynge by the worde of the Lozde for to clense the house of the Lozde. And the preestes wente into the house of the Lozde to clense it, and brought oute all the vncleannesse they founde in the temple of the Lozde, and in the courte of the house of the Lozde. And the Leuites toke it & caried it oute into the broke Cedron. They began the firste daye of the firste moneth to purifye, and came the eyght daye to the porche of the Lozde: so that they had purged the house of the Lozde in eyght dayes and the. xvi. daye of the firste moneth they made an ende.

And then they went in to Ezechias the kyng and sayde: we haue clensed all the house of the Lozde, and the autar of burntofferinges, with all his vessels, and the shewbreed table with all his apparell: and thereto all the vessels which the kynge Achaz dyd cast a syde when he raygned and transgressed, them we haue repayred and sanctified: and se, they are before the autar of the Lozde. And Ezechias the kynge rose early and gathered the Lordes of the cyte and went vp to the house of the Lozde. And there were brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen lambes, and seuen kyddes to be a synneoffring for the kyngdom, for the sanctuary and for Juda. And he commaunded the preestes the sonnes of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the Lozde.

And they slewe the oxen: and the preestes receyued the bloude and sprynkled it on the autare: and they slew the rammes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the autare: and they slewe the lambes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the autare. And then they brought forth the kydes of the synneoffringe before the kynge and the

the congregation which put their handes vpō them. And the preastes slew them and offered the bloude of them vpon the aultare, to make satisfaction for all Israel: for the kynge sayd: that the burntofferinge and the synnofferinge shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Leuites in the house of the Lorde with Symbales. Psalteries and harpes accordynge to the commaundemente of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear of visions and of Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundement of the Lorde thorow the hande of his prophetes.

And so the Leuites stode with the instrumentes of Dauid, and the preastes with trompettes. And Ezechias commaunded to offer the burntofferinge vpon the aulter. And when the burntofferinge began, the songe of the Lorde began, and the trompettes with the instrumentes of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregation bowed theym selues, and the synges sange, and the trompettes blew, and cōtinued vntyll the burntofferinge was fynyshed.

And when they hadde made an ende of the burntofferinge, the kynge and all that were with him kneled downe, and bowed them selues, & gaue prayse and thankes. And Ezechias the kynge & the lordes bade the Leuites to prayse the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid and of Asaph the Sear of vysions. And the Leuites praysed that they reioysed agayne, and the other stouped and bowed them selues.

And Ezechias aunswered and sayde: nowe that ye haue fylled your handes to the Lorde go to and bringe in the sacrifices and thankofferinges into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices & thankofferinges, and all that were willing brought burntofferinges. And the nombre of the burntofferinges which the congregacion brought in was seuenty oxen, and an hundred rammes & two hundred lambes: and all for burntofferinges to the Lorde. And besyde that they dedicated sixe hundred oxen, and thre thousande sheepe.

But the preastes were to fewe, and were not hable to sleye all the burntofferinges. Wherfore their brethren the Leuites holpe them tyll the worke was ended, and vntyll the preastes were sanctified. For the Leuites were more diligent to sanctifie them selues then the preastes. And therto the burntofferinges were manye with the fat of the peaceofferinges and the drynkofferinges that belonged to the burntofferinges. And so the seruice pertayninge to the house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Ezechias reioysed, and all the people, that God had made the folke so redy: for the thing was sodenly wrought.

¶ Ezechias remueth the feast of passeouer.

CAPI. XXX.

AND Ezechias sent to all Israel and Iuda and therto wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasses, that they shulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, to offer passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his lordes and all the congregation at Jerusalē to kepe the feast of passeouer in the seconde moneth. For they couldē not kepe it at that tyme for there were not preastes ynough sanctified, neyther was the people gathered togither to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge and all the congregation. And they determined shulde be proclaymed thorowe out all Israel frome Berlabe to Dan, that they shuld come and holde the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israell at Jerusalem: for they hadde not often done it, as it is wrytten howe they shulde.

And the messengers went with letters of the hande of the kynge and of his lordes thorow out all Israel and Juda, at the commaundement of the kynge which sayd: childrē of Israell, tourne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israell, and so will he tourne to the remnaunt of you that are escaped out of the handes of the kynge of Assur. And be ye not lyke youre fathers and youre bretheren whiche trespaced agaynste the Lorde God of youre fathers, which therfore gaue them vp that they are wasted as ye se. Wherfore be not hyr necked lyke vnto youre fathers, but yelde you selues vnto the Lorde, and come to his holye place whiche he hathe sanctified for euer, and serue the Lorde youre God, that his wrathe maye turne frome you. For yf ye tourne vnto the Lorde, youre brethren and youre children shall fynde compassion in the presence of them that holde them captyue, that they may come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde your God is full of mercye and compassion, & will not turne his face frome you, yf ye tourne agayne to him.

And the postes went from cyte to cyte thorow out the lande of Ephraim and Manasses and euen vnto Zabulon. But they laughed them to scorne and mocked theym. Neuertheles yet dyuers of Aser, Manasses and of Zabulon meekened them selues and came to Jerusalem. And therto the hand of God was in Juda, to make them of one accorde to do the commaundment of the kynge and the rulers, which was according to the worde of the Lorde. And so there assembled to Jerusalem moche people and a myghtye great congregacion, to holde the feast of swete bred in the seconde moneth.

And they arose and put awaye the aultars that were in Jerusalem. And all the wormē they dyd awaye and cast theym into the broke Cedron. And they slewe passouer the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth. And the preastes and Leuites sanctified them selues for shame, and broughte in the burntofferinges into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in their stidinge after their maner accordinge to the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the preastes sprynkled the bloude receyuinge it of the handes of the Leuites. And because there were many in the congregacion that were not sanctified: and therfore dyd the Leuites slay passouer for all that were not cleane to sanctify them to the Lorde.

There was very moch people out of Ephraim, Manasses, Isachar & Zabulon that were not cleane, and therfore dyd eate passouer otherwyse then wrytinge specifieth. But Ezechias prayed for them and sayd: the good Lorde be mercyful to all that set their hertes to seke the God that is the Lorde God of their fathers, thoughe they were it not accordinge to the clennesse of the holy place. And the Lord herd Ezechias and healed the people. And so the childrē of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem brake the feast of swete bred seuen dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the preastes praysed the Lorde day by day with lowde instrumentes.

And Ezechias spake hertely vnto the Leuites that had good vnderstandinge of the Lorde. And they dyd eate that feast seuen dayes long and offred peaceofferinges & thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the hole assemble toke counsell to kepe seuen dayes moo: & they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Ezechias kynge of Juda gaue for heaueofferinges to the congregacion a thousand oxen and seuen thousande sheepe. And the Lordes gaue to the congregation for heaueofferinges a thousande oxen and ten thousande sheepe. And the preastes sanctified them selues, that they were ynoughe.

And all the congregation of Juda with the preastes and Leuites, and all the congregacion that came out of Israell and the straungers, both that came out of the lande of Israel and that dwelt in Juda, reioysed. And there was great ioye in Jerusalem. For frome the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel it happened not so in Jerusalem. And the preastes and the Leuites arose & blessed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer went vp vnto his holy dwelling place heauen.

¶ After Ezechias had called agayne the people vnto the waye of the Lorde he ordeyneth the preastes, vnto whome he commaundeth to gyue tythes.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND when they had fynished all this: all Israell that were founde in the cyties of Juda, went oute and brake the Images and cut downe the grones, and all to brake the hyaultares and the other aultares thorow out all Juda and Benjamin, Ephraim and Manasses, tyll they had made an ende of them. And afterwarde all the children of Israel returned euery man to his possession in their owne cyties. And Ezechias set the preastes and the Leuites in their ordre to wayte by courte, euerye man accordinge to his office whyther preast or Leuite: for the burntofferinges and peaceofferinges, and to minister and to thanke & to prayse in the gates of the lodge of the Lorde. And the kynge gaue a porcyō of his substaunce for burntofferinges at morninge and euen, and for burntofferinges on the Sabbothdayes and newe mones, and other solēne feastes, accordinge as it is wrytten in the lawe of the Lord. And he bad the people that dwelte in Jerusalem to gyue the parte of the preastes & Leuites, that they might be mayntayned in the lawe of the Lorde. And as sone as the worde came abrode, the children of Israell brought aboundaunce of fyrste fruites of corne, wyne, oyle, and honye, and of al maner of frutes of the felde: and the tythes of al maner of thinges brought they in plentyously. And the children of Israel and Juda that dwelt in the cyties of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and sheepe, and tythes of dedicate thinges which were dedicate to the Lord their God, and put theym on heapes. In the thirde moneth they began to laye the heapes and fynished them the seuenth.

And when Ezechias and the lordes came & sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lorde and his people Israell. And Ezechias questioned with the preastes and the Leuites concerning the heapes. And Azarias the chief preest of the house of Sadoc answered him & sayde: sythens they began to bringe the heaueofferinges into the house of the Lorde, we haue eaten & had ynoughe, and yet leste aboundaunce, for the Lorde hathe blessed his people and therof is this heape left. And Ezechias bad dresse vp chambers in the houses about the house of the Lorde. And so they dyd, and caryed in the heaueofferinges and the tythes and the dedicate giftes, euen of fydelitie.

Ouer which Chonanlah the Leuite hadde the rule with Semei his brother next to him. And Jehiel, Asasiah, Nahath, Asael, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath and Banaiah, were ouerseers ordeyned by Chonanlah and Semei his brother, at the appointement of Ezechias the kynge, and Azarias the ruler of the house of God. And Chore the sonne of Jemna the Leuite porter of the East wyde had the ouersight of the freewilloffrynges of God, to gyue peaceofferinges vnto the Lorde, and was ouer the thinges most holy. And vnder him were Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Semeiah, Amariah and Sechaniah in the cyties of the preastes of their fidelitie, to gyue to their brethren their portions, as well to the small as to the great.

And to the males also that were reckened from thre yere & aboue amonge all that went into the house of the Lorde daye by day, to their seruice & to waite vp courte, And to the preastes that were reckened in the householdes of their fathers from. xx. yere & aboue, to waite when their courtes came. And to theym that were reckened thorow out all their babes, wyues, sonnes & doughters thorow out all the congregacion. For to the fidelitie of them dyd they commit their sanctified giftes. And therto amonge the children of Aarō the preastes were men named by name in the fieldes of the suburbes of all their cyties, cyte by cyte, for to gyue portions to all the males of the preastes and to all that were reckened amonge the Leuites.

And on this maner dyd Ezechias thorowe out all Juda, & dyd that was good, right & truely, truthe, before the Lorde his God. And in all the woundes that he began in the seruice of ℣ house of God, to seke his God after the lawe and commaundment, he dyd with al his hert and prospered.

¶ Sennacherib which shulde haue beleged Ierusalē is broken of the Aungell. Ezechias dyeth after whom succedeth Manasses.

CAPL. XXXII

iiij.Reg.xviij.c

After these dedes and truthe, Sennacherib kynge of Assur came and entred into Juda and pyched against the stronge cyties and thought to drawe them to him.
But when Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib was come & that he purposed to fight against Jerusalem: he toke counsel with his capitaynes and men of might, to stop the watre of ℣ fountaynes that were without the cytie: and they were content to helpe him. And so there gathered moche people togither and stopt all the wrikes and the broke that ran thorow the myddes of the lande, entendinge that the kynges of Assur shulde not fynde moche watre, when they came. And he wente to sustely and buylde vp the wall where it was broken, and made towres aboue vpon, & yet an other wal without, and repayred Mello the cytie of David, and made many dartes and shildes.

B And he set capitaynes of warre ouer ℣ people & gathered theym togither into the large strete of the gate of the cytie and spake gently to them, sayenge. Pluck vp your hertes and be stronge: Be not afrayed or in any wyse discouraged for dred of the kynge of Assur, and

After that, Sennacherib kyng of Assur sent of his seruauntes to Jerusalem (he him selfe lyenge before Lachis and all his kyngdome with him) vnto Ezechias kynge of Juda and vnto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, sayenge.

iiij.Reg.xviij.c Thus sayth Sennacherib kynge of Assur: * where in ye trust O ye that are besyeged in Jerusalem? Ezechias deceyueth you, to driuer you to death, hongre, and thrust, sayeng: the Lorde oure God shall rydde vs out of the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not that Ezechias that put downe his hyll aultares and his other aultares, and commaunded Juda & Jerusalem sayenge: before one aulter ye shal bowe your selues and vpon that offer also?

Moreouer haue ye not herde what I and my fathers haue wont vnto the people of all landes? were the gods of the people of other landes able to saue their landes oute of my hande? which of all the goddes of those nations that my fathers destroyed was it, that coulde driuer his people out myne hande, that your God shulde be able to driuer you oute of myne hande? Wherfore nowe let not Ezechias deceyue you eyther perswade you vnto
℣ faction, nor yet beleue him. For as no God amonge so many nations and kyngdomes, was able to ryde his people out of myne handes the handes of my fathers: euen so moche lesse shall your God kepe you out of myne hande. And yet more dyd his seruauntes spike against the Lorde God and against his seruaunt Ezechias. Furthermore he wrote a letter to raile on the Lorde God of Israel and spake thus sayenge: as the goddes of the nacions of other landes haue not delyuered their people out of myne hande, no more shall the God of Ezechias delyuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed with a lowde voyce in the Iewes spache vnto the people of Jerusalem, ℣ were on the walles, to feare them and to make theym, that they might haue taken the cytie. And they spake against the God of Jerusalem, as against the goddes of the nacions of the earth, which are the workes of the handes of men.

But Ezechias the kynge and the Prophete Isai sonne of Amoz prayed concernynge that thinge and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lorde sent an aungell and destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and Capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, that he turned his face with shame to warde his owne lande. And when he was come into the house of his God, he was there ouerthrowen with the sworde euen by them that issued out of his bowels. And so the Lorde saued Ezechias and the inhabiters at Jerusalem oute of the handes of Sennacherib kynge of Assur and of all other, and maynteined them on all sydes. Insomuch that many brought presentes vnto the Lorde to Jerusalem and precious gyftes to Ezechias kynge of Juda: so that he was magnified in the sight of all nations from thence forth.
* In those dayes Ezechias was sicke vnto death and besought the Lorde: which answered him and shewed him a wonderfull myracle: but Ezechias dyd not accordinge to the curtesye shewed him, for his hert arose therfore came there wrath vpon him and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Notwithstanding Ezechias repented him self for the arrogancy of his hert bothe he and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. Wherfore the wrath of the Lord fel not vpon them in the dayes of Ezechias.

And Ezechias had exceadinge moche ryches and honour. And he gathered him treasure of syluer, golde, precious stones, spices, shildes, and all maner pleasaunt iewelles: and made store houses for the fruites of corne, wyne and oyle: and stables for all maner beastes, & sheddes for sheepe. And made him townes where he had catel of sheepe & oxen great aboundaūce. For God had geuen him substaunce exceadinge moche. And the same Ezechias stopped ℣ vpper waterspringes of Gehon & brought them downe to the West syde of the cytie of David. And Ezechias prospered in all his workes.
But when the Embassadours of the lordes of Babylon were sente to him, to enquire of the wonder that chaunced in the lande, God left him: to tempte him that all that was in his

hert myght be knowen.
The reste of the dedes of Ezechias and his godlynesse are wryten in the vision of Isai the Prophete the son of Amoz in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And when Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and they buryed him in the hyghest sepulchre of the sonnes of David: and Juda and the inhabitaunces of Jerusalem dyd him worshippe at his deathe. And Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Manasses is taken prysoner: and after destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth after him succeadeth Amō. Amō is kylled of his owne people, and Josiah his sonne raygneth for him.

CAP. XXXIII.

1 Manasses was .xij. yere old when he was made kynge, and raigned .lv. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd wyckedlye in the sight of the Lorde, lyke vnto the abominacions of the Paynims which the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel. For he went and buylt agayne the hyllaulters which Ezechias his father had broken downe. And he erected vp aulters vnto Baals, and made grooues, & worshipped him self vnto all the host of heauen and honored them. And he buylt aulters in the house of the Lorde: Of which the Lorde had sayde * in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer.
And he made aulters vnto all the host of heauen in the two courtes of the house of ℣ Lorde. And he burnt his children in fyre in the valey of the sonnes of Hennon. And he obserued diuinal dayes and occupyed wytchecraft and sorcery, and maynteined workers with spirites & fayre of fortunes: and wrought more euyll in the sight of the Lorde, to anger him with.
And he put the grauen Image of an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God sayde to David and to Salomon his sonne, in this house here in Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the tribes, * I will put my name for euer, & no more

And whē the Lorde spake to Manasses and to his people, they attended not to him.

Then Manasses knewe how that the Lorde was the very God. After that, he buylt a wal without the cyte of David on the west syde of Gihon in the broke and so forth to Iudgate and rounde about Ophel and brought it vp of a very greate heyght, and put Capitaynes of warre in all the stronge cyties of Juda. And he toke away straunge goddes and the Idole out of the house of God, and all the aultares that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cyte. And he made an aulter vnto ℣ Lord and sacrificed theron prosperous offrynges and thanke offrynges, and charged Juda to serue ℣ Lorde God of Israel. Neuertheles the people dyd other syll in the hyllaultars, howbeit vnto the Lorde their God only.
The reste of the actes of Manasses and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the seers of vysions that spake to him in ℣ name of the Lorde God of Israell, are wryten amonge the dedes of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer and how that he was herde, and all his synne and trespace, and the places where he made hyllaulters and set vp grooues & grauen Images before he was meke ned, are wryten amonge the dedes of the seers or visions.

Amon was .xxij. yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem.
And he dyd that displeased the Lorde lyke vnto Manasses his father, for Amon sacrificed to all the grauen Images which Manasses his father made, and serued theym, and meke ned not him selfe before the Lorde, as Manasses his father had meke ned him selfe: But Amon trespalled greatly. Wherfore his owne seruaūtes conspired against him and slew him in his owne house. And the people of the lande slewe all that had conspired against kynge Amon.
And there to the people of the lande made Josias his sonne kynge in his rowme.

Josias was made kynge when he was .viij. yere olde, and he raygned in Jerusalem .xxxj. yeres. Insomoche that the eyght yere of his raigne, when he was yet a lad, he began to seke after the God of David his father. And in the .xij. yere he began to purge Juda and Jerusalem of hyll aulters, grooues, kerued Images, & Images of metall: so that they brake downe ℣ aulters of Baals euen in his presence, and the Idolles that were vpon theym, he caused to be destroyed. And the grooues, kerued Images, & Images of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpon the graues of them that had offred to them. And he burnt the bones of the preastes vpon the aultars. And thus he cleansed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he

in the cyties of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon and of Nephthali. And in the wyldernesses of them rounde about he plucked a sonder the sulfares and the groues and dyd breake them and stampe theym to powder, and bet downe the ymes thorowout all the lande of Israel: and then returned to Jerusalem.

In the.xviij. yere of his raygne when he had purged the lande and the temple, he sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie, and Joah the sonne of Joachaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lorde his God. And when they came to Helkiah the hyghe preaste, men delyuered theym the moneye that was brought into the house of God, which the Leuites that kept ꝑ enteryes had gathered of the handes of Manasses and Ephraim and of all that yet remayned in Israel and of all Juda and Benjamin and of the enhabiters of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the workemē that had the ouersight of the house of the Lorde, whiche gaue it to the labourers that wrought on the house of the Lorde, to repayre and mende it, and to masons and carpēters to bye hewed stone and tymbre, for to make couples & beames for the houses which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men wrought in ꝑ worke faithfully.

And the ouerseers of them to courage them were Jahath and Obadiah Leuites of ꝑ children of Merari: and Sacharia and Mesulam of the children of the Cahathites, and as many other of the Leuites as couldē skill of instrumētes of Muske. And ouer the bearers of burthens and ouer all that wrought, in what so euer workmanship it were, were ryght scribes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And as they brought out the moneye that was brought into the house, Helkiah ꝑ preast founde the boke of the lawe of the Lorde geuen by Moses. And Helkiah answered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde ꝑ boke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, & gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kynge, and brought ꝑ kynge worde agayne, sayenge: all that was committed to thy seruaūtes, that do they. And they haue powred out the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde and haue delyuered into the handes of the ouerseers of the workmen. And then Saphan the scribe shewed the kynge, sayenge: Helkias the preast hath geuē me a boke, and he red it before the kynge.

And when the kyng had herde the wordes of the lawe, he rate his clothes, and commaunded Helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphā and Abdon the sonne of Micah and the sayd Saphan the scribe and Asaia a seruaunt of the kynges, sayenge: go and enquire of the Lorde for me and for them: that are left in Israel and Juda ouer the wordes of the booke ꝑ is founde. And she sayde vnto them: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, tell ye the man that sent you to me: euen thus sayth the Lorde, I will brynge euyll vpon this place and vpon the enhabiters therof, euen all the curses that are written in the boke whiche they haue red before the kynge of Juda, because they haue forsaken me and haue offred vnto other Gods to anger me with all maner workes of their handes, therfore is my wrathe set on fyre agaīst this place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kynge of Juda whiche sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye say vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concernyng the wordes which thou hast herd. Because thyne hert dyd melt and thou hast mekte thy selfe before God, when thou herdest his wordes against this place and against the enhabiters therof: and hast humbled thy selfe before me, and rent thy clothes and wepte before me, that haue I heard also sayth the Lord. Beholde I will take the to thy fathers & thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, & thyne eyes shall not se all the myschefe that I will bryng vpon this place and vpon the inhabiters of the same. And they brought the kynge worde agayne. Then the kynge sent and gathered vnto hym all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kynge went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and the inhabiters of Jerusalem and the preastes and Leuites and all the people great and small: and red al the wordes of the boke of the couenaūt that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode at his standing and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde and to kepe his commaundementes, his wytnesses and his statutes with all his herte and with all his soule and to fulfill the wordes of the appoyntement written in the same booke.

And he made to come forthe all that were founde in Jerusalem and Benjamin, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem prompted to kepe the couenaunt of God which was the God of their fathers. And Josias put away all maner abhominations out of all landes that pertayned to the children of Israel, and brought all that were founde in Israell to serue the Lorde their God. And they tourned not a syde from the Lorde God of their fathers as longe as he lyued.

¶ Josias holdeth passouer. The kyng goeth agaynst the kynge of Egypte / and dyeth. The people bewayle hym.

CAPI. XXXV.

And Josias helde the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, and they slewe passeouer in the.xiiij. daye of the first moneth. And he set the preistes in their offices and ayded them in the seruyce of the house of the Lorde. And he sayd to the Leuites that taught taught thorowout all Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lorde: put the holy arke in the house which Salomon the son of David kyng of Israell dyd buylde, ye nede not to beare it vpon your shoulders. Wherfore now serue the Lorde your God and his people Israell. And prepare your selues by your auncient houshoulds and companyes, accordinge to the wrytynge of David kynge of Israel, and the wrytyng of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordynge to the deuysions of the auncyent housholdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, and after the deuyson of the auncyent housholdes of the Leuites, & hyll passouer, sanctifye and prepare your brethren that they maye doo accordynge to the worde of the Lorde by the handē of Moses.

And Josias gaue to the common people in lambes and kydes, for palle ouer offerynges meate, vnto all that were present thirty thousande by tale, and three thousande oxen, euen of ꝑ kynges substaunce. And his lordes gaue willyngly both vnto the people and vnto ꝑ preastes and vnto the Leuites. Helkias, Zacharias & Jehiel rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto the preastes for palle ouer offerynges two thousande and syxe hundred lambes and kydes, and three hundred oxen. And Conenia with Semeia and Nethaneel his brethren, and Hasabiah and Jaiel and Josabad, Lordes of the Leuites, gaue vnto ꝑ Leuites, fyue thousande palle ouer offerynges, & fyue hundred oxen.

And the seruyce went forwarde: and ꝑ preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leuites in theyr companyes at the kynges commaundement. And they offered passouer: and the preastes sprynkled the bloude receaūyuge it of the Leuites, and the Leuites stryppe the beastes. And they set awaye the burntofferynges, to gyue them vnto the comū people as they were deuyded by auncient houses, for to offer vnto the Lorde, as is wrytten in the boke of Moses. And so dyd they with the oxē also. And they dressed the passouer with fyre as the maner was. But the other baloued dedicat beastes they sod in pottes, cauldrons and pannes and beled them quickely amonge all the comun people. And afterwarde they made redy for them selues and for the preastes and for the chyldren of Aaron, which were busyed in offeringe burntoffringes and the fat vntyll nyght. And therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the preastes the sonnes of Aaron. And the singers the children of Asaph stode in theyr standinge accordinge to the commaundement of David and Asaph, Heman & Jeduthun the kynges seare of visions: and the porters wayted at euery gate, and might not departe from their seruice: But their brethrē the Leuites prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde went forwarde the sayde daye, to offeringe passouer of burntofferynges vpon the aultare of the Lorde, accordinge to the commaundement of kynge Josias. And so they dyd passouer the same tyme and kepte the feast of vnsauerd breade.vij. dayes. And there was no passouer lyke to that kept in Israel from the tyme of Samuel the Prophete: nether dyd any of the kynges of Israel holde suche a passouer feast as dyd Josias and the preastes & Leuites and all Juda, and almoche of Israel as couldē be had, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. And this passouer was holden in the xviij. yere of the raygne of Josias.

After all this, when Josias had prepared the temple, Necho kynge of Egypte came vp to fight against Carcamis vpon Euphrates, and Josias went out against him. And the other sent messengres to him, sayenge: what haue I to do with the thou kynge of Juda? I came not against the now at this tyme, but against an house with whome I haue warre, & God bad me haste. Leaue therfore and medle not with God which is with me, least he destroy the. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face frō him, but made him redy to fight with him, & herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouthe of God. And when he was come to fight in the valeye of Magedo, ꝑ shooters shot against the kynge Josias. And ꝑ kynge sayd to his seruauntes: cary me away, for I am sore hurt. And his seruauntes yadde him out of that charet & put him in an other, and brought him to Jerusalem where he dyed and was buryed in ꝑ sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias. And Jeremye lamented Josias, and all syngynge men and syngynge women speake of Josias to this daye, and made it an ordynaūce in Israel: and they be written in lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josias & his goodnes in folowinge the writinge of the lawe, & his deedes first and last are written in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

¶ After Josias raigned Joachaz, Joakim, Joachin, Sedechias, in whose tyme all the people were caryed awaye to Babilon and were brought agayne the.lxx. yere after, by kynge Cyrus.

CAP. XXXVI.

And the people of the lād toke Joachaz the son of Josias & made him kyng after his father in Jerusalem. And Joachaz was.xxiij. yere olde when he began to raygne, & raygned thre monethes in Jerusalē. For the kynge of Egypt put him downe at Jerusalem & raunsomed the lande in an hundred talentes of syluer & a talent of golde. And the kynge of Egypte made Eliakim his brother kynge vpon Juda & Jerusalem, & turned his name vnto Joakim, but Joachaz his brother Necho toke & caryed him to Egypte. Joakim was.xxv. yere old when he began to raigne, & raygned.xj. yere in Jerusalē: he dyd ꝑ displeased the Lord his God. Against him came Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilō & bounde him in fetters to cary him to Babilon. Moreouer the kyng Nabuchodonozor caryed of ꝑ vessels of ꝑ house of the Lorde to Babilon & put them in his temple at Babilon. The rest of the actes of Joakim & his abominations, & ꝑ was layd to his charge, are written in the bookes of the kynges of Israel: & Joachin his sonne raygned in his stede. Joacin was. viij. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned three monethes and ten dayes in Jerusalem / and dyd þ displeased the Lorde. And when the yere was out, kynge Nabuchodonozor sent and fet him to Babilon with the goodly vessels of þ house of the Lorde, and made Sedekias his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

And Sedekias was. xxj. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned a. xj. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lord his God, and humbled not him self before Jeremy the Prophete at the mouth of the Lord. And therto he rebelled against Nabuchodonozor which had receyued an othe of him by god and was to styfnecked and to harde hearted to turne vnto the Lord God of Israel. Furthermore all the rulers of the preastes with the people trespaced a pace after all manor of abominacions of the Panyms & polluted þ house of the Lorde whiche he had halowed in Jerusalem.

And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, tendynge them by tymes: for he had compassion on his people and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messengers of God and despised their wordes and mysused his Prophetes, vntyll the wrath of the Lorde so arose against his people that it was paste remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kynge of Caldey & slew their yonge men with the swerde in their holy temple, and neyther spared younge man nor mayden, neyther olde man, neyther so moche as him that stowped for age: But gaue al into his hande.

And all the vessels of þ house of God both great and smal, and the treasures of the house of God, and the treasures of the kynge & his Lordes he caryed to Babilon euery whit. And they burnt the house of God and brake downe the walles of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces therof with fyre, with all the goodly stuffe therof, and marred it. And he caryed awaye them that had escaped the swerde, to Babilon, where they were seruauntes to him and his children, vntyll the kyngdome of Persia began to rule, to fulfill the worde of the Lord by the mouthe of Jeremy, vntyl the land had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as she laye desolate, she kept Sabboth vntyll the had fulfilled. lxx. yeres. And the first yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia to fynysh the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremy, þ Lord stered vp the spirite of Cyrus kynge of Persia that he made a Proclamation throwout all his kyngdome, and set it vp in wrytinge, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus kynge of Persia, all the kyngdomes of the earth the Lord God of heauen hath gyuen me, whiche hathe charged me to buylde him an house in Jerusalem that is in the lande of Juda. Wherfore who so euer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with him, and let him go vp.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of the Chronycles of the kinges of Juda.

THE FYRST BOKE OF ESDRAS THE PROPHETE.

¶ Cyrus sendeth agayne the people that was in captyuytye, and restored them theyr holy vesselles: And commaundeth them to buylde agayne the temple.

CAPI. I.

IN the fyrste yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia (that the worde of the Lorde spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myght be fulfilled) the Lorde stered vp the spirite of Cyrus kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclaymed thoroww out all his empyre, yea and by wrytinge also, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The Lorde God of heauen hathe gyuen me all the kyngdomes in the lande and hath commaunded me to buyld him an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Who so euer nowe amonge you is of his people, the Lord his God be with him, and let him go vp to Jerusalem in Juda, and buylde the house of the Lorde God of Israel. He is the God that is at Jerusalem. And who so euer remayneth yet in any manor of place (where he is a straunger) let þ men of his place, helpe him with syluer and golde, with good and catel, besyde that whiche they willyngly offer, for þ house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the preastes and Leuites, and all they whose spyrite God had rayse to goo vp, and to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. And all they that were aboute them, strengthed their handes with vessels of syluer and golde, with good and catell and Jewels, besyde that whiche they gaue of their frewill. And kynge Cyrus brought forth of the vessels of the house of the Lorde, whiche Nabuchodonozor had taken out of Jerusalem, and put in the house of his God. But Cyrus the kynge of Persia brought them forthe by Mithridates the treasurer, and numbred them vnto Sesbazar the prince of Juda. And this is þ numbre of them: thirty basens of gold and a thousand basens of syluer, and nyne and twenty knyues, thirty cuppes of golde, and of other syluer cuppes foure hundred and ten. and of other vessels a thousand. So that all þ vessels both of golde and syluer, were fyue thousand and foure hundred. Sesbazar brought them all vp, with them that came vp oute of the captyuitye of Babilon vnto Jerusalem.

¶ The nombre of them that returned from captyuytye.

CAPI. II.

THese are the children of the lande that went vp oute of the captiuitie (whome Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babilon had caryed away vnto Babilon) and came agayne vnto Jerusalem and in to Juda, euery one vnto his cytte, and came with Zorobabel Jesua, Nehemiah, Saraiah, Reelaiah, Mardochai, Belsan, Mesphar, Beguai, Rehum, and Baanah. The men of Machmas, an hundred and two and twenty: the men of Bethel and Ai, two hundred and thre and twenty: the children of Nebo, two and fyftye: the children of Magbis, an hundred and fyue and fyftye: the children of the other Elam a thousande, two hundred and foure and fyfty: the children of Harim, thre hundred and twentye: the children of Lodhadid and Ono, seuen hundred & fyue and twentye: The chyldren of Jericho, three hundred and fyue and fourty: the children of Senaah, three thousande, sixe hundred, and thirty.

The preastes. The children of Jedaiah of the house of Jesua, nyne hundred and three & seuenty: the children of Emer, a thousande & two and fyftye: The children of Phashur, a thousande and two hundred, & seuen & fourty: The children of Harim, a thousande and seuentene.

The Leuites. The children of Jesua and Cadmiel of the children of Hodauiah, foure and seuenty. The singers, The children of Asaph, an hundred, and eyght and twentye. The children of the porters. The children of Selum, the children of Ater, The children of Talmon, the children of Akub, the children of Hatita, and the children of Sobai: all together gyther an hundred and nyne and thirty.

The Nethinims, the children of Ziha, the children of Hasupha, The children of Tabaaoth, the children of Ceros, the children of Sicha, the children of Phadon, the children of Lebanah, the children of Hagabah, the children of Acub, the children of Hagab, the children of Samlai, the children of Hanan, the children of Gadel, the children of Gahar, the children of Reaiah, the children of Rezin, the children of Necuda, the children of Gasan, the children of Uza, the children of Phaseah, the children of Besai, the children of Asena, the children of Meunim, the children of Nephussim, the children of Bacbuc, the children of Hacupha, the children of Harhur, the children Bazeluth, the children of Mahira, the children of Harsa, the children of Barcom, the children of Sisara, the children of Thamah, the children of Neziah, the children of Hatipha.

The children of Salomons seruauntes, the children of Sotai, the children of Sopheretb the children of Pharuda, the children of Iaalah, the children of Darcon, the children of Gebell, the children of Saphatiah, the children of Hattil, the children of Pochereth of Zebaim, the children of Ami. All the Nethinims and the children of Salomons seruauntes were all together, three hundred and nynety and two.

And these went vp also, Thelmelah, Thel, Harsa, Cherub, Addon & Emer. But they could not shewe their fathers house nor their seed, whether they were of Israel. The children of Dalaiah, the children of Tobiah, the children of Necoda, five hundred and two and fyftye.

And of the children of the preastes. The children of Hobaiah, the children of Hakoz, the children of Berzilai, whiche toke one of the daughters of Berzilai the Galaadite to wyfe, and was counted amonge the same names: these sought the register of their byrth, & found none, therfore were they put frome the preasthode. And Hathirsatha sayde vnto them, that they should not eate of the most holy, tyll there rose vp a preast with the ✠ lyght and perfectnesse.

Ezod.29.xxviii.

The hole congregation as one man, was two and fourety thousande, three hundred and three score: beside their seruauntes and maydens, of whome there were seuen thousande, three hundred and seuen and thirtye. And they had two hundred singynge men and women, seuen hundred and five and thirty horses, two hundred and five and fourtye Mules, foure hundred and five and thirty Camels, and vi. thousande, seuen hundred and twenty Asses. And certayne of the chiefe fathers, when they came to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, they offred willyngly vnto the house of God, that it should be set in his place, and gaue after their habilitie vnto the treasure of ✠ worke three score and one thousande drammes, and fyue thousande pounde of siluer, and an hundred preastes garmentes. So the preastes and the Leuites, and certayne of the people, and the singers, and the porters, and the Nethinims dwelte in their cyties, and all Israell in their cyties.

¶ After the foundacyon of the temple ones renued, they sacrifyse vnto the Lorde.

CAP. III.

When the seuenth moneth came, and the children of Israel were now in their cyties, the people clouded together as one man, vnto Jerusalem. And Jesua the sonne of Josedec arose and his brethren the preastes, & Zorobabel the son of Salathiel and his brethren, and buylded the aultar of the God of Israel, to offre burntofferinges theron, as written in the law of Moses the man of God and the aultar they dyd set vpon his sockets (for there was a fearfulnes among them because of the nations and landes) and offred burntofferinges theron vnto the Lorde in the mornynge and at euen. And helde the feast of Tabernacles (as is written) and offred dayly sacrifices dayly in order, according to the custome, daye by daye. Afterwarde the dayly burntofferinges also, and of the new Mones of all the feast dayes of the Lorde that were halowed, and all manor of freewill offrynges, whiche they dyd of their owne motion vnto the Lorde.

Upon the first daye of the seuenth moneth beganne they to offre burntsacrifices vnto the Lorde. But the foundacion of the temple of the Lorde was not yet layde. Neuertheles they gaue money vnto the masons and carpenters, and meat and drynke and oyle vnto them of Zidon and of Tire, to bringe them Ceder tymbre frome Libanus by see vnto ✠ Joppe, according to the commaundement of Cyrus kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their comynge vnto the house of God at Jerusalem and the seconde moneth, began Zorobabel sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua sonne of Josedec, and the rest of their brethren the preastes and Leuites and all that were come out of captiuitie vnto Jerusalem, and appointed the Leuites from twentye yere olde and aboue, to exercise workes of the house of the Lorde. And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiel with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to forthere the workemen of the house of God, namely the children of Henadad, with their children, and their brethren the Leuites.

And when the buylders layde the foundacion of the temple of the Lorde, the preastes stode in their araye, with trompettes. And the Leuites the children of Asaph with cymbales, to prayse the Lorde ✠ after the maner of Dauid kynge of Israel. And they sange together, gyuynge prayses and thankes vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israel.

And all ✠ people shouted loude in prayssing the Lorde, because the foundacyon of the house of the Lorde was layde. Many also of the olde Preastes and Leuites and auncient fathers fathers, which had sene the first house: when the foundacion of this house was layde before their eyes, wepte with a loude voyce. And many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse came a great sounde, in so much that the people could not perceyue the ioyfull sounde for the noyse of the weepynge amonge the people: for the people shouted with a loude crye, so that the noyse was herde farre of.

¶ The buylynge of the temple is hynderyd.

CAP. IIII.

But when the aduersaryes of Juda and Ben Jamin hearde, that the children of captiuitie buylded the temple vnto the Lorde God of Israell, they came to Zorobabel and to the principall fathers, and sayd to them: We wil buylde with you: for we seke the Lorde youre God as ye do. And we haue alwayes sacrifyce vnto hym, sythens that Asor Hadon kynge of Assur brought vs vp hyther. But Zorobabel and Jesua and the other auncient fathers of Israel answered them: It belongeth not to you, but to vs to buylde the house vnto our God: for we our selues will buylde vnto the Lorde our God of Israell, as Cyrus kynge of Persia hath commaunded vs.

Then the folke of the lande hynddered the people of Juda, & made them afrayde to buylde and hyred counselours against them and hynderd their deuyse, as longe as Cyrus kynge of Persia lyued, tyll the raygne of Darius kynge of Persia. And whe Assuerus was made kynge, in the begynninge of his raygne they wrote vnto him a complaynt against them of Juda and Jerusalem.

Also in the tyme of Artaxerxes, wrote Bistham, Mithridates, Tabeel, and the other of their conspiracie vnto Artaxerxes kynge of Persia. But the scripture of the letter, was written in the Syrians speache, and was red in the language of the Syrians. Rehum the chaunceler, and Samsai the scrybe, wrote also an Epistle frome Jerusalem, to Artaxerxes the kynge, of this tenour.

We Rehum the chauncelour, and Samsai the scrybe, and other of the counsel of Dina, of Apharsath, of Tarplat, of Persia, of Arach of Babylon, of Susan, of Deha, and of Sia, and other of the people, whome the great and noble Asnaphar brought ouer, and set in the cyties of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Cenereth. (This is the summe of the letter that they sente vnto kynge Artaxerxes). Thy seruantes the men on this syde the water and in Cenereth to kyng Artaxerxes greetynge. Be it knowen vnto the kynge, that the Jewes are come vp frome the to vs vnto Jerusalem a cyte seditious and frowarde, and buylde the same, and laye the foundacion of the walles therof, and repayre them. Knowe nowe therfore, O kynge, that yf this cyte be buylded and the walles made vp agayn, they shall not geue tribute, tolle, ne pearely custome and so euen vnto the kynges shall this hurt redounde. But nowe lythe we al eate the-

by, whiche destroyed the temple, we woll no longer se the kynges dishonoure. Therfore we haue sent out, and caused the kynge to be certified therof: that serche maye be made in the Chronycles of thy progemitours, and so shalt thou fynde in the same Chronycles, and perceyue, that this cyte is seditious and noysom vnto kynges and landes, and that they cause others also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cyte destroyed. Therfore we certifye the kynge, that yf this cyte be buylded, & the walles therof made vp, thou shalte kepe nothinge on this syde the water by reason of it.

Then sent the kynge an answere vnto Rehum Chaunceler, and Samsai the Scribe, & to the other of their counsel that dwelt in Samaria, and vnto the other beyonde the water. Peace and salutation. The letters whiche ye sent vs, haue bene openly red before me, and I haue commaunded to make serche: and it is founde, that this cyte of olde hath made insurrection against kynges, and how that sedicion and rebellion hathe bene committed therin. There haue bene mighty kynges also at Jerusalem, whiche haue raigned ouer all that is beyonde the water, and tolle, tribute and perely custome was gyuen therin. Doye now after this commaundemente, forbyd the same men, that the cyte be not buylded, tyll I haue gyuen commaundement. Se nowe ye be not negligent here in, leest the kynge haue harme by meanes of it. The kynges answere.

When kynge Artaxerxes letters were red before Rehum the chaunceler and Samsai the Scribe and their counsell, they went vp in al haste to Jerusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbad them with vyolence and power. The ceassed the worke of the house of God at Jerusalem, and continued so tyll the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia. The worke ceassed.

¶ By the exhortacyon of Aggeus and Zachary the temple is reedified.

CAP. V.

The Prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary ✠ sonne of Addo, prophecyed vnto the Jewes that were in Juda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israell. Then gat vp Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec, and began to buyld the house of God at Jerusalem, and with the the Prophetes of God which helped them. At the same tyme came to them Thathanai the Capitayne on this syde the water, and Sthar buzanai, and their felowes, and sayd thus vn to them: Who hathe commaunded you to buylde this house, and to make vp the walles therof? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made this buyldynge. But vpon the Elders of the Jewes came the eye of their God, so that they could not cause them to ceasse, tyll the matter was brought afore Darius, and tyll they had answered by letters therunto.

A Esd.vi. & vii.

B

This is the coppe of the letters that Thathanai Capitayne on this syde the water, and Sthar-buzanai, and their adherentes of Aphar sach (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kynge Darius. The wordes they sente vnto him were these: Vnto Darius the kyng All peas. Be it knowen to the kynge, that we came into Jewry to the house of ℣ great God which is buylded with rought stone, and beames are layd in the walles, and the worke goeth fast forthe, and prospereth in their handes. We asked therfore the elders, and sayde vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buylde this house, and to make vp the walles therof? We asked their names also, that we myghte certifye the, and haue written the names of the men that were their rulers. But they answered vs these wordes, and sayde: We are the seruauntes of the God of heauen and earthe, and buylde the house that was buylded many yeres ago, which a great kynge of Israel buylded and set vp. And after our fathers had serued ℣ God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer into the hande of Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon the Caldee, which ouerthrew this house, and caryed the people awaye vnto Babilon. But in the first yere of Cyrus the kynge of Babilon, the same kynge Cyrus commaunded to buylde this house of God, for the vessels of golde and syluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor tooke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and broughte them into the temple at Babilon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of the temple at Babilon, ✻ and deliuered them vnto Sathazar by name, whom he made Capitayne, and sayde vnto him. Take these vessels, go thy waye and bringe them vnto ℣ temple at Jerusalem, & let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Sathazar and layd the foundacion of ℣ house of God at Jerusalem. Sithes that tyme hath it bene in buyldinge, and as yet is not fynyshed. Nowe therfore yf it lyke the kynge, let searche be made in the kynges treasure house at Babylon, whether it was kynge Cyrus cõmaundement, that the house of God at Jerusalem shulde be buylded: and sende vs the kynges pleasure in this behalfe.

¶ The cõmaundement of Darius, when the temple was buylded and dedycate, the chyldren of Israel kepe the feast of vnleuened bread.

CAPI. VI.

Then commaunded kynge Darius, search to be made in the Library of the kynges bookes, whiche laye at Babilon. So at Ecbathanis in a castel that lyeth in the lande of the Medes, was founde a booke, and in it was a recorde written after this maner: In the firste yere of kynge Cyrus, commaunded kyng Cyrus to buylde the house of God at Jerusalem, in the place where ℣ sacrifice is made and to laye a foundacion of thre score cubites hyghe, and thre score cubytes brode, and thre walles of rought stones, and one wall of tymber, and the expenses shulde be geuen of the kynges house. And the golde and syluer vessels of the house of God (which Nabuchodonozor toke oute of the temple at Jerusalem, and broughte vnto Babilon) shulde be restored again, that they may be brought vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place into the house of God.

Nowe therfore thou Thathanai capitayne beyonde the water, & Sthar-buzanai, & your felawes which are beyonde the water, get ye awaye frome theym. Let theym worke in the house of God, that the Capitayne of the Jewes and their elders may buylde the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded also, what shall be wone to the Elders of Jude in the buyldinge of the house of God, that thes shall dylygently be taken of the kynges goodes, euen of the reuenues beyonde the water, and geuen vnto the men, and that they be not hyndred. That yf they haue nede of calues, lambes, or gotes, for burnte offrynge vnto the God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the preestes at Jerusalem be it geuen them dayly that no complaynte be made therein. And let them offre swete sauoures vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his children. This commaundement haue I geuen. And what man so euer altereth these wordes, there shall a beame be taken frome his house, and set vp, he shalbe hanged theron, and his goodes shall be confyscated for the dede. For the God that hath made his name to dwell there, destroye all Realmes & people, that put to their hand to alter and breake vowne the house of God at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be dilygently wone.

Then Thathanai, the Capitayne beyonde the water, and Sthar-buzanai with their fellowes (to whome kynge Darius had sende) dyd their deuoir. And the elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered thorow ℣ prophecyenge of Aggeus the prophete and Zacary the sonne of Addo: and buylded, and fynyshed the worke, according to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerxes kynges of Persia. And they were in fynyshynge the house vnto the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, that was in the sixte yere of the raygne of kynge Darius.

And the children of Israel, the preestes, the Leuites, and the other children of captyuite helde the dedication of the house of God with ioye, and offred at the dedication of the house of God, an hundred calues, two hundred rammes, foure hundred gotes: and for the synnynge for al Israel twelue he gotes, according to the nombre of the tribes of Israel, and set the preestes in their courses, and their Leuites in their offices to ministre vnto God which is at Jerusalem, as is written in the booke of Moses.

And the children of captiuite helde passouer vpon the fourtenth daye, of the first moneth: for the preestes and Leuites had purified them selues, so that they were all clene as one man, and offered Passouer for all the children of captiuitie, and for their brethren the Preestes, and for them selues. And the children of Israell, whiche were returned out of captiuitie, and all suche as dadde seuered them selues frome the filthynesse of the Paynims in the lande to seke the Lorde God of Israel, ate and helde the feaste of vnleuened breed seuen dayes with ioye: for the Lorde hadde made them gladde, and tourned the herte of the kynge of Assur vnto them, so that their handes were strengthed in ℣ worke of the house of God, whiche is the God of Israel.

¶ The commaundement of Artaxerxes/Esdras taketh the children of Israel/ and returneth to Jerusalem.

CAPI. VII.

After these thynges in the raygne of Artaxerxes kynge of Persia, there wente vp frome Babilon, Esdras the sonne of Saraiah, the sonne of Azariah, the sonne of Helkia, the sonne of Helum, the sonne of Zadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amariah, the sonne of Azaria, the son of Maraioth, the sonne of Zeraiah, the sonne of Ozi, the sonne of Boki, the son of Abisua, the sonne of Phinees, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron the chefe Preeste. This Esdras was a quicke lerde in the lawe of Moses, ✻ which the Lord God of Israell dyd geue. And the kynge gaue him all he requyred, according to the hand of the Lorde his God vpon him. He went vp certayne of the children of Israel, and of the preestes, and of the Leuites, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Nethinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seuenth yere of kynge Artaxerxes. And they came to Jerusalem in the fifth moneth, that is the seuenth yere of the kynge. For vpon the first daye of the firste moneth began he to goo vp from Babilon: and on the firste daye of the fifth moneth came he to Jerusalem according to the good hande of God vpon him. For Esdras prepared his herte to seke the lawe of the Lorde, and to wo it, and to teache the precept and iudgement in Israel. This is the coppe of the letter that kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the Preest, the scribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the Lorde, and of his statutes ouer Israell. Vnto Esdras the priest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen perfyte and greteynge. I haue commaunded that all they of the people of Israel, and of the preestes and Leuites in my realme, whiche are mynded to go vp to Jerusalem, that they goo with the, beinge sente of the kynge and of the seuen Lordes of the counsell, to vysyte Jude and Jerusalem, according to the lawe of God, whiche is in thy hande: and that thou take with the, syluer and golde, whiche the kynge and the Lordes of his counsell haue geuen of their good wyl vnto the God of Israel (whose habitacion is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babilon: with that also that the people and Preestes gyue of their good wyl vnto the house of God at Jerusalem. Take thou ℣ same and bye dilygently with it, calues, lambes, gotes, and sacrifices, and drynckoffrynges, to be offered vpon the aultare of the house of youre God at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren, to do with the rest of the moneye, that do after the will of youre God. And the vesselles that are geuen the for the ministracion in the house of thy God, those delyuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And what so euer thyng more shall be nedefull for the house of thy God, whiche is necessarye for the to spende, let the same be geuen oute of the kynges chamber. I kynge Artaxerxes haue decreed and commaunded to all the kepers of our treasour beyond the water, that loke who so euer Esdras the Preest and scryde in the lawe of the God of heuen requyreth of you, that ye fulfyll the same dilygentlye, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, vntyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred Bathes of wyne, and tyll an hundred Bathes of oyle, and salte without measure. What so euer belongeth to the rytes of the God of heuen, let the same be done with diligence for ℣ house of the God of heuen, that there come no wrath of, vpon ℣ kinges realme and his children.
